Prop No. 4.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
By the
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932, this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice is of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> "ARTICLE —. The Legislature may form or provide for the formation of Forestry Districts in Alabama for the promotion of reforestation and the development and protection of growing timber and, for the purpose of establishing and maintaining such Districts, may authorize and provide for the collection of an acreage tax not to exceed five cents per acre to be levied and collected on the lands comprising such Districts. This Article shall be retroactive as to legislation in accordance with its provisions enacted by the Legislature of 1931."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Juniors' Column
By Miriam

Dear Boys and Girls:

I am wondering how many of you are keeping your treasure-chests bright and clean. As I write this I am thinking of two kinds of treasure-chests. Some of us have one kind, but all of us have the other kind.

When I was a little girl my mother gave me the middle drawer of the dresser to keep my treasures in. That is the kind of treasure-chest that some of us have.

I had a variety of treasures in my dresser-drawer-treasurer-chest. Sometimes it would get too full to close. Then I would have to sort out my treasures and keep only the most prized ones and throw away the others. Sometimes they would get all jumbled up and I would have to put them in order again.

During the years that the dresser-drawer was my treasure-chest many things went into it that did not stay long because they were not real treasures. I would find that they were not so attractive as I had first thought. Dust was always drifting into the chest and settling. That caused me to have to dust the treasures off pretty often to keep them clean. When my friends came we would look at my treasures and play with them, and sometimes I would give some of them away.

I did not realize then as you perhaps do not realize now that God has given to everyone of us a treasure-chest that is most precious. And that treasure-chest is Mind or Memory. That is the second treasure-chest that I am thinking of as I write. Every minute that we are awake we are putting something into that treasure chest. We share its treasures with everybody we meet. And when this life is over and all the people are gathered together our treasure-chests will be opened and millions of other people will see the treasures that we have stored in them.

Right now is the most precious period of life that you will know. You are filling that treasure-chest—your mind—with thoughts that will determine what kind of man or woman you will be. Your good friends, your parents, your pastor and your teachers are doing all they can to help you. They have been along the same way and they realize how important boyhood and girlhood years are. They want to help you to avoid putting into your treasure-chest trashy, evil and worthless thoughts, that will ruin you or else will have to be taken out to make room for better thoughts. They know how hard it is to take out of the treasure-chest thoughts that should not be there. Some thoughts would be as destructive in your treasure-chest as rats would have been among the doll clothes and Sunday School papers in my dresser-drawer-treasure-chest. There are thoughts that would be as poisonous in your treasure-chest as a rattlesnake would have been, hidden among my trinkets ready to spring out and bite me or my best friend.

Your treasure-chest is going to be filled. If you are a wise boy or girl you will fill it with thoughts that will not shame you when a friend sees in. Now is the time to learn every worthwhile thing that you can find. Memorize beautiful thoughts left to us by great men and women. This is the time in life when great portions of the scriptures can be stored away in your mind. They will be the most prized treasures that you can carry over from childhood to old age.

Let me tell you a secret that will help you to keep dirt and trash from getting into your treasure-chest: Keep it full of good thoughts, clean thoughts, and thoughts left to us by great people. Evil and unkind thoughts can not find a place to lodge in a mind that is kept full of good, pure and kind thoughts.

Lovingly,
MIRIAM.

Eastview News

Rev. A. C. Nelson returned home Friday afternoon from the Vanderbilt University where he had attended the two weeks term of the Rural Church School for ministers and church leaders. He reports the school was helpful and inspiring. One hundred and seventy-seven ministers attended the school, representing sixteen different denominations. The spirit of love and fellowship was fine. About 200 attended the special service at church here Sunday night. The program was arranged by the ladies society. We were disappointed because it rained and the Clanton quartet did not come, but the service was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Armstrong, manager of the A. & P. Store won the beautiful silk quilt which had been made by the ladies of the community and church.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Nelson who had been visiting their son, Rev. A. C. Nelson, for several weeks returned home at East Tallassee Monday.

Mrs. Bessie Driver, who is in a Montgomery hospital, is reported to be improving.

Mrs. Will Martin is on the sick list but is reported to be improving now.

Mrs. A. C. Nelson who has been sick several days is reported to be some better now.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Prickett were the week end guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Sallie Strength.

Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Griffith of Highland Community were visiting relatives here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lett of Verbena visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gray Sunday.

We have a real live Sunday school. We have 76 on roll and 51 were present last Sunday, and all teachers and officers were present, and a good offering was taken.

Our Christian Endeavor service is growing. We have a good attendance every Sunday night.

Mr. J. A. Dobbs and family were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. O. P. Henson and family.

Mr. Jim Kicker and family of Tuscaloosa were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Bowles Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dennis and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Blalock visited Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dobbs of Shiloh Community Sunday.

Mrs. Jim Courtney, Miss Lula Courtney and Mrs. Myrtle Bowles visited Mrs. A. C. Nelson Monday evening.

Don't miss Sunday school next Sunday.

Advice To The Motorist

The following advice to the motorist, given by Maxwell Halsey of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, should be impressed upon every driver:

1. Regulate your speed to driving conditions. Twenty-five miles per hour may be more dangerous than 45 miles per hour under certain conditions.
2. Do not drive faster than will permit you to stop within the assured clear distance ahead. Some one may suddenly come out of an intersection or around a curve.
3. Know the rules and regulations and obey them. They are designed to bring safety and their disobedience will cause accidents.
4. Keep on your side of the road, it is the safe side.
5. Do not pass unless you can see that no one is coming and that you have enough room.
6. Signal before you turn and turn from the correct lane.
7. Drive smoothly—the unexpected is liable to cause accidents.
8. Have your care inspected and maintain it in good operating condition.
9. Give the pedestrian more than his share of the right of way—pick on some one your size.
10. Slow down and be particularly careful when pavement is slippery, when visibility is poor and during the evening peak hour—5 to 7 p.m.

These rules deserve careful study. Following them should eliminate to the greatest degree, the possibility of accident. They are based purely on courtesy and common sense—two great friends of accident prevention.

Where Our Money Goes

We often consider the debt ridden condition of foreign countries and pat ourselves on the back because the United States is not in the same boat. But if the trend of recent years continues, it won't be long until we are.

In 1900, the per capita cost of the Federal government was $7.29, and it increased ten per cent in the next 16 years. In 1931, the per capita cost was $34.37—an increase of 500 per cent in 15 years. According to a Treasury estimate, the combined deficits of 1931, 1932 and 1933 will increase the Federal debt by the neat sum of $3,250,000,000, bringing the total debt to the staggering total of $19,240,000,000.

It is a favorite political practice to blame all this on the war. To a certain extent, that is fair enough. But ia is likewise true that many departments of the Federal government have proven inept, inefficient and wasteful. The Farm Board has spent the greater part of $500,000,000 in an effort to maintain prices on certain commodities—and has made a monumental and predestined failure of it. Two hundred millions more is being poured into Boulder Dam. The Postoffice is one long deficit. The Government operates ships at a loss—the Shipping Board appropriation in 1930 was $11,494,000. And, to go back a few years, the Government sunk $1,600,000,000, while it was running the railroads.

The condition of the states is even gloomier—while Federal expenditures were increasing 730 per cent between 1903 and 1928, the state were more reckless yet, with a 900 per cent increase. Every family in the country is saddled with a government debt of $1,000!

The thoughtful citizen will wonder if we are not approaching a tax crisis—a point beyond which we cannot pay. And be is liable to come to the conclusion that the progress of the country demands government retrenchment and economy, not in a vague future, but right now.

Farmers Keep Producing When Others Stop

How to start the wheels of exchange moving again is a vital problem for everybody these days. But to no class of people is the solution more important than to farmers. The farmer never goes on strike. No matter how low prices are, he keeps right on producing. And when the machinery of exchange breaks down and other classes qiut producing, while they wait for prices to get better, the farmer becomes the worst victim of the system.

Take the matter of houses, for example. Nine-tenths of our farmers are living in houses less good than they ought to be. The farmers in these houses have not quit work or gone on "half time." They have said in effect, 'The world needs wheat, cotton, tobacco, etc., and we will go on ministering to the world's needs as fully as we have always done." The result is that prices of wheat, cotton, and tobacco have collapsed.

But prices of commodities farmers buy have not come down proportionately. For when times get bad, other businesses go on strike and thus cut down production in order to maintain prices. Suppose manufacturers of furniture, lumber, brick, plumbing fixtures, paints, roofing, etc., should keep running full time in spite of depression: then prices of their products would drop as farm prices have dropped and farmers could keep on buying. The farmer would have goods an dthe manufacturer markets. Suppose carpenters, plumbers, brick masons, etc., said: "We will keep on working full time for whatever we can get." Then their wages would come down to figures at which farmers could hire them and farmers would have houses and these men would have work.

The farmer of course has the advantage that he can produce much of his own living at home and so avoid all "the high cost of exchange" on these items. But we repeat that so far as the farmer must buy things, a condition like the present hits farmers harder than anybody else.—The Progressive Farmer-Ruralist.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

"Let us be thankful for fools. But for them the rest of us could not succeed."
—Mark Twain.

The tour round town is almost completed. That was about the toughest job I ever undertook to handle, but I enjoyed it. We never did get over across the railroad, and over there is the store of B. L. Jones, one of Clanton's oldest merchants and I'll bet he is really well known, too.

Of course everybody knows that the Wadesonian Theatre is over there, where Mr. C. W. Wade, is manager. They just fixed up their "broadcasting" apparatus the other day and have new stuff in the equipment, and I'll congratulate them. It's good now. See their program in the News each week.

Up the street a little more is the pressing shop of J. L. Crawford, and with the help of Mrs. Crawford, they turn out some splendid work.

On the corner is the Mims Grocery Store, where Mr. Hayes looks after the business, and Zeb Mims is the operator.

The big building across the street is the New Wilson Hotel. This is one of the oldest hotels in this section, and Mr. P. D. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson have just recently "done over" the inside of the lobby and everything looks spick and span.

So far as I am able to ascertain, or something, that is the end of our tour round town. I kind of feel like that we have missed visiting somebody, but I just can't think who it is. If I have failed to take you to any place that I should have, I'm sorry, and we'll visit these places if our attention is called to them, or if I happen to think of one. We went up one side of the street and down the other, yet there is a possibility we missed some place, or something.

Now where do we go from here? Maybe I ought to take you out to West End, and down to South Clanton. We may do that later on, after I talk about something else for a while, and get into trouble, then I'll get to visiting round town again, some more, or something.

I've been hearing of a lot of things going on in this man's town and county and they ain't all just right. Why I even heard the other day that certain politicians are taking advantage of the suffering families from the storm, in order to play politics. Can you beat that for irony? Wonder if these politicians I hear of doing that, really believe that they will come out best in the long run.

Schools—Ah, there we have a subject that could be elaborated on or something. What is all this rumpus I hear about the grammar school business. Seems funny to me that a town like Clanton can't behave itself and make things run smoother in its school system. There is no wonder some of the children are disturbed after hearing "dinner table gossip" almost every day about their schools. When a parent is criticizing a teacher in the presence of a pupil under that teacher, is there any wonder the child feels like its parent is right, and will give trouble in school. Humans are funny things.

A fellow said the other day that the News certainly gave the undisputed facts aboua the storm. That was nice, and the ed appreciated that subscription he sent in, too, I'm sure.

The best people in Chilton County are making C. G. N. go over in a big way, and I'm just slap surprised at the number of subscriptions that are coming in. New ones, too.

Won't be long now, until the primary election in May, that's next month. All the Democrats in the county running for offices have already been nominated. That saves a lot of time and trouble, but they sure got to get out and work after the primary is over. Something is going to break loose now in a little while. It's been quiet almost long enough.

Folks round in this neck o' the woods are sure learning to watch the clouds now, and I don't care who knows it, I'm one of the many who watch the clouds too. I don't want a twister to come hopping after me, when I ain't looking, or something.

Was just thinking the other day that it might be well for me to bestow upon certain people, some praise and honor for the work they did in the storm emergency, but that would take a long time and a lot of space, because when I got to thinking of the people who did such fine things, and some are still doing them—there was just so many.

Maybe the thing I should do is to jump on these folks who are able to do and have not done anything but talk. There's plenty of them, too.

However, there is still plenty of time for those who haven't done anything to do something. The need for help is still strong.

And the Sheriff and his gang caught a real bandit, or something the other day. Boy that bird must have been a real burglar, judging from the layout he had with him. Wonder where he was going to use all that paraphenalia he had. I'm glad they nabbed him before some of the dynamite and those guns went off, round here abouts.

More taxes are to be placed on things, so they say. And I noticed the other day that there were eleven new, glistening sedan automobiles placed in President Hoover's garage, and I'm sure they are not all Chevrolets or Fords. Maybe they need some more money to help pay for those automobiles—so, more taxes. Now when the people sent Hoover to be president with a handsome salary, they should have had an understand with him about spending money that didn't belong to him. I don't see anything like economy in that.

Under His Wings, or a Tale of the Storm

By Rev. Wm. F. Price, Selma

A Chilton County farmer built his little home in the valley beside a small stream, and under the brow of a great hill, almost a mountain. For said he, we can live here in safety beside the still waters, and plow and sow and reap, and pluck the flowers of pleasure in honest toil, and live close to nature, and worship nature's God. And so he lived and loved and laughed as he labored on, and the birds of the valley echoed a sweet melody of song in his own breast as he waited for the harvest, knowing there were nine little birdies in the nest of his own home, and eleven mouths to feed from the product of his toil, so he labored—willingly on and was happy.

"Who hath known the mind of the Lord? How unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways past finding out!" For as the evenings shadows began to fall there came a mighty roaring, surging, whirling and twisting spectre of death over that mountain, and picked up that little house of Jack Latham's with his wife and nine children, and scattered them—house, furniture, barn, stock, children and all, like a whirlwind scatters the leaves. The little home was caught in the very vortex of the terrible storm, and the timbers scattered over a radius of perhaps half a mile. Every tree on the premises was uprooted, torn and twisted and dashed to earth again, as by some mighty monster from an unseen world. There was hardly one stone of the foundation left upon another, and an automobile in the yard was so completely wrecked that every wheel and tire and the top was torn off. But the finding of the family of husband, wife and nine children presents the greatest enigma of the whole puzzling business. Remember the premises were almost clean swept and the home no where to be seen. It was scattered piece by piece over an area perhaps a half mile in circumference, with now and then a twisted iron bed to be seen a long way off. But the family, all eleven of them, were carried up like straws before the wind, and dashed to the ground two hundred yards away, and almost in the path from which the storm had come. They did not run out there; they were dashed down to earth, as evidenced by the impression in the ploughed ground where the bodies struck and the great spots of blood where the father and mother and the five oldest children from 13 to 22 were killed. The four youngest, ages 2 to 9, were found in the soft ploughed ground in the same section of the others, badly bruised, but still living. These are in the Vaughn Memorial Hospital here in Selma, and will in all probability have to be sent to the Orphans Home. They do not know as yet that their parents are dead, and one of them said to the writer, "I went to my mamma and shook her but she was asleep, and wouldn't wake up."

The funeral at Stanton presented a scene never to be forgotten. There were eight coffins all in a row (one being of another family) and an audience of perhaps one thousand people. The writer and one other minister assisted the pastor of the Baptist Church, and the services were conducted from the front steps, while a sea of faces looked on in silence. Seven members of the Latham family were laid side by side in the Stanton Cemetery, to await the call of the Resurrection morning.

The storm always carries its freaks. When the barn was blown away, almost the only thing left was a manger—the trough from which the stock ate their food. In this sat an old hen on a dozen eggs. Well, ye philosophers who attempt an explanation of everything under the sun, explain this: Not an egg was broken and the old hen is still on the job in the same place! Four small children and one old hen, "under His wings!"

Federal Excise Tax on Automobiles

The proposed Federal motor vehicle excise tax shou not be accepted with closed eyes. On first glance it seem and easy and fair means of raising revenue—but on con sideration, its vices far outweigh its virtues.

One worker in every ten in the country—4,000,000 i all—is dependent on the automobile industry for liveli hood, and business generally looks to the industry as on of the leaders in the work of recovery. Automotive plan are located in 41 states—and all states contribute materi used in automobile construction. Thus, any move tha would retard the sale of motor cars would tend to increas unemployment and slow down business recovery.

There are, at present, 26,000,000 motor vehicles in u in this country, one-fifth of which are owned by farmer Two-thirds of the buyers of cars have incomes belo $3,000 a year, and 85 per cent of cars sell for less tha $750 wholesale. Consequently, the automobile tax woul mainly affect the person of small means. In many case the additional cost made necessary by the tax would pre vent a sale.

What we need now is business stimulation—and any thing that would act against that should be discarde The automobile sales tax may look good on paper—but i its actual working out, it would very likely prove damag ing to the entire country.

Tax Checks From The Utilities

A recent issue of "P. G. & E. Progress," published b the Pacific Gas and Electric Company of California, r produced a check for more than $3,000,000 which th company paid to the State as the second installment of i taxes. It likewise pointed out that its total taxes for th year came to $8,459,415.98—more than ten per cent of i total revenue.

All over the United States these tax checks from util ties flow into the public treasuries. In practically eve state the local industry is one of the largest and mo stable contributors to the cost of government. It wa recently reported that a single New York utility pa taxes of more than $30,000,000 a year.

The utility industry is likewise one of the nation's lar est employers, and during the present period of stress i employment average and wage scales have held up bett than those of any other major industry.

During the years since 1913, utility taxes have st risen, as have operating costs. But in all these years ele tric rates, on the average, have gone down, and are n at a fraction of their former level. Service has also be amazingly improved and broadened, to the point whe an overwhelming majority of families use electrici Those which do not are manly in rural areas and servi is being given them as fast as economic conditions w permit. This being the case, it is to be wondered if t political enemies of the electric industry will get very in their fight to take it out of private hands and leave it the tender mercies of the bureaucrat.

The Hard, Cold Facts

"The Nation cannot tax itself rich. It cannot dole i self back to prosperity. The states with relief problem on their hands cannot get any additional money to spe by piping their funds to Washington in the form of ta and getting them back again as gifts or loans. Inevitab they would lose some of it on the way. In addition th would have the aggravation of seeing their own mon which they could administer themselves much more e nomically, managed by a string of red tape leading to desk of some Washington bureau clerk."—San Francis

That the advertising columns are in the shoppers' service.

Hardly a day passes that you do not find it necessary to make some purchase. No matter what you want to buy, reading the advertisements is the quickest way in which to find where to buy what you need.

Everyone should realize the value of the advertisements and read them carefully. They tell you where you can get the fullest value for your money.

Reliable concerns who have confidence in the quality of their goods and service persistently advertise those interesting facts.

Progressive business concerns know that it takes high quality merchandise, prompt service, reasonable prices and advertising to get the business. That is why it pays to trade with them.

You should visit the stores that are regular advertisers and do it often so you can take advantage of the bargains offered.

E. C. DAVENPORT EXPRESSES THANKS TO PEOPLE FOR AID

The News office received a visit from E. C. Davenport, last Thursday. Mr. Davenport had just returned from St. Margaret's Hospital in Montgomery, where he had been carried following the closing of the hospital here. He was painfully injured in the tornadoes and at present has a leg in cast.

Mr. Davenport stated he wished to publicly thank the people who were so kind to he and his family during their suffering and bereavement following the storm of Monday night, March 21st, and they lost practically all they had.

Mr. Davenport was high in his thanks and appreciation for the kindness shown his family and the News is glad to state this for him.

MONROE HEADLEY THANKS THE PEOPLE FOR KINDNESS

In a statement Wednesday, Monroe Headley wished to thank publicly, the people who have been so kind to him and his family, during their trouble and bereavement due to the death of Mrs. Headley, as a result of the recent storms here.

Mr. Headley stated the people were very kind to them an daided them in bearing this burden.

"Cabbage or Dollars"

Coming, "Cabbages or Dollars," Saturday night, April 16, a three-act comedy drama to be given at Billingsley school. Which is the wise course for a young man to choose? A get rich quick at-any-cost career, or a quiet life of modest independence honestly earned. Jim, with his taste for higher living and lavish spending, chose the former, and his steadier friend, Jack, the latter.

Jim discovers that his ill gotten gains can buy him neither love or happiness and only serves to get him in trouble with the law.

A wholesome play, full of charm and tender feeling and amply supplied with rollicking laughs.

The charatcers as they appear in the play are as follows:

Grandad Parker, an inventor, A. D. Headley; Arda Martin, his granddaughter, Myrtle Durbin; Zinny, a colored cook, Gertie Mae Owen; Ezra Jones, the town boob, Morris Keen; Sadie Jones, his sister, the town news reel, Ruth Oden; Jim Powell, the dollar boy, Jeams Deason; Jack Mason, more interested in cabbages, Marvin Durbin; Daisy Burkes, the town belle, Mildred Durbin; Dolly Collins, her chum, Pauline Durbin; Chuck Emery, his fiance, Luther Mims; Sheriff, of the county, J. MRS. LEILA HEADLEY, STORM VICTIM, SUCCUMBED, B'HAM

Mrs. Leila Headley, age 40, wife of Monroe Headley, succumbed to injuries received in the recent tornadoes in this county, last Sunday morning in a Birmingham hospital.

The body was brought to Clanton by Martin & Sons, where it was prepared for burial. Funeral services were held at Pleasant Grove, conducted by the Rev. G. W. Stewart, assisted by the Rev. T. C. Cassidy and Rev. F. A. Gibson. Interment followed in the Pleasant Grove cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MRS. LEILA HEADLEY

God in His infinite wisdom, saw fit to call from our midst the spirit of a very dear relative and friend, Mrs. Leila Headley, on last Sunday morning, April 10th. She is gone from our presence, yet in our hearts and minds sweet memories will ever linger of a smiling face and gentle voice which none other can replace. We do not hesitate to sa ythat she will be greatly missed in our community, and by all who knew her, for she was a kind and affectionate friend to all, and to know her was to love her. She was ever ready and willing to assist in sickness, etc., or anywhere she was neede, her services she would freely give. Also she was very active and energetic in her home duties, helping in a large measure to provide a living for the family. There cannot be better words expressed in eulogy than to say that she was a good woman.

Mrs. Headley received severe injuries about the head and body when her home was destroyed in the tornado of March 21st. She was immediately rushed to the Central Alabama Hospital together with other members of the family who received injuries for first aid attention and was removed shortly to South Highland Infirmary, Birmingham.

She bore her suffering very patiently and seemed to be improving until some few moments before her death, which was due to a blood vessel bursting in her head.

She leaves to'bourn her loss her husband, Mr. Monroe Headley, one daughter, Miss Norene Headley, three sons, T. J., Clyde and Earle Headley, all of near Clanton, four sisters, four brothers, a grandmother and a host of friends and relatives. Our hearts go out in deepest sympathy for the bereaved family together with other families who had to give up their loved ones for those afflicted as the results of the recent tornado. May God's richest blessings be upon each of you is our prayer.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Henley.

Misses Myra and Elizabeth Johnson, students at University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa, spent last week end with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson.

Late Sunday afternoon a dark cloud hung over the horizon to the north of Clanton and the citizenship of our city decided to watch it through. Clusters of people could be seen at almost every home with their faces toward the cloud and waving their hands as if to shoo it away. Wonder if they were looking for another tornado. It was just an ordinary April shower.

A neat little bungalow is being built at the corner of First Avenue and 10th street in West End by W. A. Littlejohn. The first thing that Mr. Littlejohn did toward the construction of his home was to dig a storm pit.

:-: Dief Displays New Goodyear Airwheel Tires :-:

The new automobile tire that is sweeping the country is being shown for the first time in Clanton by Dief's Service Station, local Goodyear tire dealers. This new Goodyear tire is known as the Goodyear Airwheel, and is truly living up to its name, as a ride in a car equipped with these tires is like riding on air wheels.

Their first appearance on the market in this section through Dief's Service Station, at Clanton, placed them on one of their sedans, adding distinction and beauty to the car as well as adding greatly to riding comfort over the roughest roads. This was experienced by a representative of the News.

Mr. Diefenderfer stated that these tires are not in the experimental stage, as that part has been passed and the Goodyear Company is placing them on the market as fast as possible to take care of the demand. The price is not as high as most people would think, Mr. Diefenderfer stated, and a complete change to these new Airwheel tires can be had on an automobile for small cost.

In using these tires, it necessitates the change of wheels, as the wheels are made to fit the tires, which are considerably larger than the ordinary automobile tire and carry an air pressure of only 12 to 15 lbs. These tires have many outstanding advantages to them, Mr. Diefenderfer stated. They add to comfort and to the care of an automobile, due to their flexibility over rough roads and the increased traction brings more safety while driving.

These tires may be seen at the Dief's Service Station in Clanton.

Ex-Gov. Kilby Urges Use of Muscle Shoals To Make Fertilizer

Florence, Ala., April 12.—Former Governor Thos. E. Kilby's plea for approval of the Hobb's Commission plan to utilize Muscle Shoals for fertilizer manufacture for the benefit of Southern farmers met with an enthusiastic response in the Muscle Shoals district this past week.

In a series of discussions of the Muscle Shoals project Governor Kilby pointed out that agriculture is the basic industry of Alabama, and that Alabama farmers are now suffering for lack of cheap fertilizers, while Congress dilly-dallies on the passage of the bill.

"Leasing of the Muscle Shoals plant on conditions that insure manufacture of a high grade and cheap fertilizer will be of immeasurable benefit to farmers in the South, especially in Alabama," said the governor today. "Approval of the Hobbs bill will also give employment to about 3,000 Alabama men directly, at Muscle Shoals and some 3,500 more indirectly. It is estimated that about $17,000,000 of new capital would be invested in our state to put the Muscle Shoals project into operation.

"It is not strange to find Senator Norris of Nebraska lining up in opposition to this measure which would mean so much to Alabama. Nebraska farmers use only a few shovels of fertilizer yearly. Southern farmers consume yearly over 5½ millions of the 8 million tons of fertilizer made in the United States or about 70%. But it is very strange indeed to find Senator Black wearing the same harness as the Republican senator from Nebraska. Alabama would expect to see Senator Black working heart and soul to realize for his native state this great new industry which will mean so much alike to Alabama agriculture and to Alabama industry and labor."

Contest Winners Prefer Chevrolets

Results of the Cremo cigar contest, in which winners were given their choice of three makes of low-priced cars, reveal that of the 240 cars awarded, 136 were Chevrolet Sixes, 89 were Plymouths and 15 were Fords, according to records disclosed by the American Tobacco Company, sponsors of the contest.

The contest was conducted on a national scale, with a winner selected each week according to the merit of his cigar-band essay, and he was given an opitional choice of the three cars, delivered to him fully equipped.

Chevrolet score 57 per cent of the total, Plymouth 37 per cent and Ford 6 per cent.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

For several days terror reigned in West Montgomery. A huge animal would come into that part of the city in the night hours, and kill dogs and chickens and lap up the blood and disappear. Some thougt it to be a bear, some a coyote and others a wild boar from the river swamp. It mattered not what it was, it had the folks excited, and much effort and concern gathered about the nightly visits of the life destroyer. It looks a bit strange that human beings should become so excited over a destroyer of dogs, cats and chickens, and take so calmly the greater enemy that comes up into their homes and destroys their boys and girls. That one intruder created more excitement in Montgomery than all the blind tigers of the city. Mothers would not let their children get out of their sight for fear that the Boar would attack them, and yet they will allow their boys and girls to rove the streets until midnight with dozens of Tigers lurking on many corners. Most folks strain at a gnat and swallow a camel.

Saw a man approach a counter and spin a wheel of some kind. Ever and anon he would go to a clerk and buy something that looked like "Scraps of paper." Then he would turn the wheel again. He kept it up for an hour. In disappointment he walked away from the wheel saying to his comrade, "Well I lost two dollars, but it was my money and it was nobody's business." That youngster thought that his money belonged to him, and it was his right and privilege to spend it as he pleased. Not so. No man has a right to spend his money as he pleases, unless his pleasure is to spend it right. You have no right to waste your money any more than you have a right to waste your health and your time. If you spend your money in a way so as to intrude on the rights and privileges of some one else, you become guilty in your spending. When a man spends his money foolishly and at the same time he has those who are looking to him for the necessities of life, he becomes guilty of injuring others. The law of right governs both the making and spending of money.

A mother made a fine cut glass vase the depository for her savings. Little three year old Mary found the money in the vase and ran her hand down through the neck and grappled her hand full of coins. She tried to pull her hand out, but it would not come. Mary set up a yell. Father and mother became excited. The doctor was summoned. A consultation was held. The doctor advised that the costly vase would have to be broken in order to release the hand. When the crash came Mary smiled through her tears and said, "Lood, Mudder, at the money I'se got." If Mary had let the money go she could have withdrawn her hand, and the vase could have been saved. Why are we having a depression? It is because people who have money will not let go. They are setting up such a yell until the rest of us have become frightened. When at last the costly vase of American confidence is broken, then these hoarders will smile through their tears saying, 'Look, how rich I am." If the hoarders would let go the vase of American confidence could be saved. It sounds so silly for rich people to be yelling like a pig with its tail in a crack.

I see a bunch of people in for a good time of fellowship. One is seen to arch her brow and she asks, "Have you heard the latest on Mr. or Mrs. So and So?" Then the poison gas is turned loose. Each one chimes in with what she has heard. Soon a flock of vultures are tearing to pieces a defenseless one. It is all done behind the back of the one who is charged. Slander is like a tornado, it twists everything it touches out of shape, and flings character, splintered into atoms, in its pathway. Slander is like lamp-black, it is very cheap and that accounts for so much of it being used. Lamp-black never fails to turn every thing that it touches darker. About the best thing I ever heard about a saint in the church of God was, "She never said an unkind word about anyone."

Australia has a Bulldog species of ants that like to fight. This ant, like the American wasp, is large at both ends and very small in the middle. As long as the head and tail are connected the ant will fight every other ant in its path. When the ant is cut in two in the middle the battle is then set up between the two parts. The head will seize the tails in its teeth, and the tail fights back by stinging the head. In America there is a species of human beings who like to fight. They fight when they are at home and when they are abroad. If they can not shoot and cut, they seize with their teeth and they sting with their tongue. I saw a drunk man swaggering around at a picnic saying, "I want to fight."

There are always two sides to everything. If you want to know the truth and have a balanced judgment, it will pay you to know both sides. If a man steps on your toes, it could be that your toes were too big for him to step over, or ia may be that your toes were where they should not have been. It could even be that your toes were too long for him to go around. If we will make it a point to keep our toes out of other people's paths, we will not have so many mashed toes to cramp our feelings.

Soybeans Rank High For Making Good Hay

By J. C. Lowery

Auburn, Ala., April 11.—Every Alabama farmer should carefully plan to produce an ample supply of good legume hay in 1932 to supply his mules and cows throughout the year. Abundance of good legume hay means well-fed mules and cows, an abundance of milk for the family and less corn needed. Any farmer can have a bountiful supply of hay by planting the right hay crops within the next few weeks. A few acres per farm planted in soybeans will provide hay about equal in feeding value to alfalfa.

Soybeans are adapted to almost any land suited to corn. On very thin land cowpeas are more desirable.

The best variety for hay is the Otootan. In variety tests at the Alabama Experiment Station (over a period of 7 years) Ototoans were at the top in hay yields, averaging 2,482 pounds per acre. The seed yield was 5.2 bushels per acre. This variety makes little stems, making an excellent quality of hay with a small per cent of waste.

Plant not less than one peck per acre in 2½ to 3 foot rows and give one or two light cultivations. Apply 400 to 600 pounds of basic slag per acre.

A two-horse farmer should plant about one-half acre of Otootans for home seed production. Another very good plan is to plant a hill of Otootans between the hills of corn on two or three acres. A third plan is to plant rows of Otootans for seed between the watermelon rows. Home-grown seed save money and insure trueness of variety.

In cotton wilt sections or in sections where nematode is a problem, the Laredo, another little-stemmed variety, is recommended. Over a period of 8 years it has averaged a ton of hay per acre. Mammoth yellow and Biloxi have not exceeded Otootans in hay yield and are coarse-stemmed, making them not desirable for hay, especially for cows. These varieties are desirable, however, for grazing.

Sorghum And Silo For Better Feed

The biggest essential to successful livestock production is plenty of feed. F. W. Burns, extension animal husbandman at Auburn, says that the supply of good ensilage will reduce feed costs and increase returns from dairy cattle and beef cattle.

"The first step toward a supply of ensilage next spring," continued Mr. Burns, "is to plant this spring Texas seeded ribbon cane or gooseneck. The first half of May is a satisfactory date for planting. Low land is better because there is more moisture. However, other good land will do. Fertilize heavily with either barnyard manure or 200 to 400 pounds of nitrogenous commercial fertilizer applied at the time of the second cultivation, which should be about the same as cultivation of corn.

"Next summer make a silo by digging a trench in the ground in accordance with directions furnished by your county agent. Last year 230 of these trench silos were made in Alabama and 230 of them were satisfactory."

News In Brief Form

Three farmers of Crenshaw County who produced 190 hogs, in accordance with instructions furnished them by County agent J. A. McLeod, received a premium of 40 points above the Montgomery market that day because they were better hogs. The three farmers raising them were T. R. Swanner, Dexter Martin, and Joe Flinn.

Nearly a billion acres of agricultural lands of the United States have been mapped and classified during the thirty years of soil survey. Included in this are 35,289,600 acres of Alabama land. Alabama is the third state in acreage survey work, being exceeded only by Texas with 36,435,200 acres, and Nebraska with 36,027,520 acres.

Thousands of Mothers are waiting each week for this hour...

IT'S THE HOUR when son or daughter or old friends visit her each week from some distant place by telephone. How happily she looks forward to this hour.

Thousands of families are doing this each week . . . enjoying a short, inexpensive voice visit by telephone with mother or other members of the family living in other cities. Because your voice is you over the telephone, such visits are just as personal as though you were in the same room.

Visiting loved ones at regular intervals by long distance telephone is a most pleasing thing to do. Try it tonight and see for yourself. It's surprising how little it costs to talk with distant friends.

Make Every Cent Count

This is not the time to use unbalanced fertilizers. Every cent of your fertilizer dollar must give you the largest possible return, especially in a year like this. A complete, well-balanced fertilizer is always the best.

Meal and Acid is not a well-balanced fertilizer. Your crops need nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash—All Three. Each helps the others.

See that each ton of your cotton fertilizer contains 300 pounds of Muriate of Potash, or its equivalent in high grade kainit. Sweet potatoes—600 pounds. Corn —200 pounds.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932, this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by its governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed______ per cent for the year (or years)______, for the purpose or purposes of______," and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed______per cent for the year (or years)______, for the purpose or purposes of______." The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

Attest:

PETE B. JARMAN, JR.,
Secretary of State.

New Cedron News

Our B. Y. P. U. and Sunday school are growing as we have recently begun another quarter, let's make this the best. Group No. 1 rendered a splendid program Sunday p.m. and hope to have a better one next Sunday. We had some visitors with us Sunday, whom we cordially invite back.

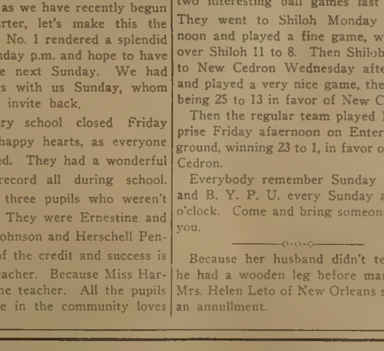
Our literary school closed Friday with many happy hearts, as everyone was promoted. They had a wonderful attendance record all during school. There were three pupils who weren't absent any. They were Ernestine and Ethel Mae Johnson and Herschell Penton. Most of the credit and success is due to the teacher. Because Miss Harris was a fine teacher. All the pupils and everyone in the community loves her and she will be greatly missed by all.

New Cedron's "Little Boys" played two interesting ball games last week. They went to Shiloh Monday afternoon and played a fine game, winning over Shiloh 11 to 8. Then Shiloh came to New Cedron Wednesday afternoon and played a very nice game, the score being 25 to 13 in favor of New Cedron.

Then the regular team played Enterprise Friday afaernoon on Enterprise's ground, winning 23 to 1, in favor of New Cedron.

Everybody remember Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. every Sunday at two o'clock. Come and bring someone with you.

Because her husband didn't tell her he had a wooden leg before marriage, Mrs. Helen Leto of New Orleans sought an annullment.



A World's Record

MORE than three thousand births without a single loss of either mother or child! That is the official Piatt County record of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, in fifty years' family practise in Illinois.

No wonder mothers have such entire confidence in giving little ones Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin!

If you have a baby, you have constant need of this wonderful preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs. A child who gets this gentle stimulant for the stomach, liver and bowels is always healthier. It keeps children's delicate systems from clogging. It will overcome the most stubborn condition of constipation. It builds them up, and is nothing like the strong cathartics that sap their strength and energy.

A coated tongue or bad breath is the signal for a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Children take it readily, for it is really delicious in flavor. Taste it! Take Syrup Pepsin yourself, when sluggish or bilious, or you are troubled with sick headaches and no appetite. Take some for several days when run-down, and see how it picks you up.

It is a prescription preparation which every drug store has ready; in big bottles, just ask anywhere for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Sheriff Gets Suspected Man Here Last Week

McDuff said Payne will be questioned in connection with two safe crackings in the Thomas office of Republic Steel & Iron Company March 1 in which more than $1,000 loot was taken; the recent safe blowings at University of Alabama, in which burglars obtained approximately $5,000; looting of a safe in the probate judge's office at Tuscaloosa, amounting to $3,500 and others.

Included in the implements, said by McDuff to have been found in Payne's automobile and in a Clanton residence were an automatic sawed-off shotgun, a revolver, a "fountain pen" gas gun, a "pin-point ray" flashlight, one full stick of dynamite, two "shots" of small-charge dynamite attached to fuses and caps, several short lengths of fuse and a black mask.

According to McDuff, Payne completed a four-year sentence for grand larceny at Kilby Prison in December, and had previously served a shorter term on the same charge in connection with theft of an automobile."

Early Wednesday morning of last week, the sheriff's forces of this county surprised and surrounded four men at a still, which was located about five miles southeast of Maplesville, it was reported. The still, a sixty gallon box outfit, was in full operation at the time of the raid, and the operators had about five gallons of liquor already made, with several gallons of mash ready for making liquor. The men were brought to Clanton and placed in jail, later making bond.

Among other arrests reported during the past week are four for violating the prohibition law, one for abusive language and two for assault and battery. On Monday of this week there were ten white prisoners and five negroes in the county jail.

Cut Governmental Costs; Reduce Taxes Says Ex-Gov. Kilby

The cost of conducting the Government has constantly increased during the six years Senator Black has been in the Senate. Have you heard of any movement of his to reduce it? As the cost goes up, taxes go up. Instead of lowering costs and taxes, Congress is raising costs and creating new and higher taxes. It is high time to stop the extravagance at Washington and lift some of these high taxes from the backs of overburdened people. We need business men in the Senate. Vote for Kilby and ask your friends to vote for him.

ISABELLA PLAYS AT HOME FRIDAY

The baseball team of Isabella showed a winning spirit at the game between Isabella and Maplesville last Friday. The tide of the game turned in favor of Isabella about the fifth inning. Two homers were knocked by the Isabella boys. The Maplesville team showed a fighting spirit, but at the end of the game the scores were 13 to 8 in favor of Isabella.

Isabella, at the beginning of the season, played the outsiders of Isabella and won. The boys also fought a winning fight against Verbena's nine. The score was 6 to 4 in Isabella's favor.

Friday, April 15, Isabella again plays Maplesville. The team hasn't met defeat this season. So may the record be kept.

DRIVE FOR JOBS BEING PUSHED

MY PERSONAL COLUMN

Billy Smith

It is very often an editor, after writing very matter-of-fact editorials to fill up an editorial column each week, would like to just write in plain, ordinary words his opinion of matters. That is what this column is for—just my personal opinion of things in general.

It was my pleasure to see "Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose" at the Thorsby school auditorium last Saturday night. I had often heard of the excellent manner this play was staged by the Thorsby people and found that the reports were true. It was good. I compliment them on the attractive stage settings used. It showed plainly, that time and care were taken in that presentation.

Speaking of entertainments, Verbena is to present what promises to be one of their best tomorrow night. I had the opportunity to witness a part of the rehearsal of this play, and if possible, expect to see it presented in full.

Clanton merchants are showing the people that they have something to offer their customers in the way of attractive prices this week, judging from the advertisements in this issue of the News. In my opinion, people should watch these ads very carefully each week because most of the merchants advertise those items they have that are most attractive in quality and price. Many bargains can be picked up.

It is very pleasing to note that the American Legion post here is taking more interest and more definite steps toward helping unemployed persons of the county secure work, even tho it be small jobs. It is hoped the people of the county who are able, will cooperate in this movement.

I read with interest each week, before the Linotype operator gets the copy, Dr. Haskew's column "Moral Echoes." One can find inspiration in each of the paragraphs on that well written column, and even while reading it, one can easily picture Dr. Haskew as if he were there speaking each word.

Soon, I understand, Culver & Jones, grocery and market, will move to a new location, on the highway across the street from The Dixie Cafe. It seems odd for a business of that kind to be on that street. I believe it will be first ever there, that I can remember. They will have a very neat store as soon as the carpenters and painters have completed their work.

Residents of Clanton have a wonderful opportunity to do their town a lot of good through courtesy to visitors. Watching the large number of visitors to our town, especially on Sundays, this thought occured to me.

Dr. Ezell has been delivering some very impressive sermons at the Baptist church here lately. They have been frank and easily understood. Very often I hear the remark that those sermons "went home" to many.

I have had many persons to ask questions regarding the setting of type and about other things in regard to printing that appear to be mysteries. It will be a pleasure to any employees of the News to show anyone as much as they can, how this work is done in our plant.

Went fishing last Thursday with Vernie Teel, the first time in over five years. Undoubtedly, all we did was fish. We didn't catch anything and the provoking part of it, Mr. John Robinson sat in his boat about ten feet from where I was and had plenty of fun pulling them in. I don't intend to give up, however, and hope to make a better showing right away. Mr. Robinson taught me something about fishing and I am going to try it right away.

BIBLES FOR STORM AREA SENT TO THORSBY PASTOR

The Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, was in Clanton Monday and told the News that through the cooperation of Bible houses, he has been able to secure sixty-two Bibles for distribution to those families who lost their Bibles in the recent storm. This is indeed a very noble thought on the part of Rev. Jones.

BABY ABANDONED HERE

NOTE IS LEFT GIVING NAME AND WISHES

Found On Porch Of Home Of Henry Gore Last Monday Night

A fine little blue-eyed, black-haired three months old baby boy was found last Monday night abandoned on the porch of the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Gore, in the Gowan Addition.

It was shortly after ten o'clock, Mr. Gore stated, that they were awakened by a sound as if someone was throwing rocks against their house. Mrs. Gore said she heard something hit the side of the house and the sound was repeated. They got up to investigate and saw a bundle on their front porch. Although somewhat frightened at first, they approached the bundle and found the baby, asleep and undisturbed.

The baby was wrapped in a soiled blanket, dressed as well as an ordinary family could afford, and beside him was a part of an old handbag containing baby clothes, such as they were. Inside the bag was a note, written with pencil, on rough paper. The note stated, "Willie James was born on the January 3, 1932. I am giving you the baby and want you to treat it as if it was your own, Mr. and Mrs. Gore."

They carried the baby into the house

KIWANIS CLUB WILL OBSERVE GARDEN WEEK

Pledges Support To Legion In Campaign Against Unemployment

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton pledged it's whole-hearted support in cooperating with the Chilton County Post of the American Legion in it's campaign against unemployment in this county, at the regular weekly luncheon last Thursday.

R. D. Woodson, commander of the local Legion Post, was one of the speakers at the Kiwanis luncheon last week, and outlined the aims of the local post in this campaign.

A report of the activities of the Red Cross in the storm stricken areas of this county was given by Mrs. Vasilike Foster, area director in this section. Mrs. Foster's talk was interesting, and disclosed many items regarding Red Cross work that were good to learn.

Observes Garden Week

The regular weekly luncheon will be held today at 12:15, at the Baptist church. The program will be given over to a discussion of Garden Week. Mrs. John C. Page will be among the speakers on this subject. Mrs. Page will give word pictures of the good that can be done with flowers and shrubbery, something new for the members of the club, and this is being looked forward to.

Strawberries Are Showing Up Here

The strawberry season for this section is open, judging from the many baskets of fine looking berries being displayed in various stores in Clanton now.

The crop this year promises to be good, unless something unforeseen shows up to damage the berries.

PARTY VISITING BERRY SECTIONS THIS WEEK

A party composed of L. E. Diefenderfer of the Clanton Berry Growers Association, C. R. Foss of the Thorsby Association and S. P. Shaw of the Jemison Association, are making a tour of the strawberry sections, visiting Hammond, La., and will probably visit Castleberry and Brewton, Ala. They will study methods used in marketing and shipping berries and other truck crops.

Camp Burglar Is Caught With Goods

Among the arrests reported this week from the sheriff's office was one for burglary. This arrest brought in a white man, who came from Illinois, and is alleged to have robbed the camp house of Dr. J. P. Hayes recently. It was stated that the goods were found. Another arrest for assault and battery was also reported.

A few weeks ago Mr. H. S. Shaw of Clanton inserted an ad in the paper about some corn he had for sale. He came into the News office and showed a sack of this corn addressed to a party in Milwaukee, Wis., in reply to his advertisement.

Baseball Season To Start Here Friday

Coach Horton Walker of the local high school announced a baseball game this week with the Marion Institute, of Marion, Ala. Two games will be played between the visitors and the team of the high school. One Friday afternoon, and one Saturday afternoon, on the local diamond at the high school.

Youth Shoots Self In Suicide Attempt

Firing a bullet from a small calibre rifle, Merrite Walker, age 19, shot himself near the heart last Sunday, according to reports coming to the News, which stated that young Walker's act was an attempt at suicide.

He was said to have been in company with friends and went into the house where he secured the rifle. The bullet missed his heart by a short distance. He was carried to a hospital in Selma, where his condition was reported not serious. He was a student at the Maplesville High School, and a member of the graduating class this year, and well thought of. His home is near Stanton.

The April term of Circuit Court which was scheduled for Chilton County this week, was continued Monday afternoon by Judge F. Loyd Tate. This was due, it was stated, to the serious illness of a daughter of Judge Tate, news of which was received by him Monday afternoon.

EDITORIAL

SOUTHERN BLOOD DOES NOT MIX WITH REPUBLICANISM

True Southern blood should be flowing in the veins of every single person in Chilton County, and every state in the South, and that blood should be caused to boil intensely with thoughts of the tactics of the Republican party over the nation. The individual desire of the Republicans to 'steal the show'—the nomination on the Republican ticket of a negro representative in Washington—the present state of affairs of the national government under a Republican administration and that administration's inability to cope with present conditions whereby there are thousands unemployed, needy people, hungry, starving mothers and children. With a man in the highest place the people of the United States can give, who promised prosperity to the people before he was elected on the Republican ticket.

Is not that enough to make any thinking, white man, or woman of the South, turn their Southern blood loose and stick to the party of the South—the party for white supremacy—the Democratic Party.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT IS PAID BY THE PEOPLE

The heading of this editorial is also the heading of an advertisement of the Alabama Power Company which appears in this issue of the News. This advertisement goes on to state that "the cost of government —Federal, State and Local taxes (over the U. S.) in 1913 was $135.00 per family. In 1929 this cost had risen to $460, an increase of three and one half times."

Is it not time that the people stopped to think of this enormous increase in taxes they are paying? The answer is "Yes, but what can we do about it now?" Apparently there has been nothing done about it in the past; and on the contrary, things have been done, so it seems, to cause taxes to increase. The people elected the lawmakers who have their say-so in such matters. These lawmakers are supposed to represent the people and look after their interest at the same time they are aiding in the government. We have no bones to pick with any particular individual on this matter of taxes, but it occurs to us that something should be done and that something is probably to cast that ballot for the man who will do his best toward aiding in the reducing of the high cost of government, which will ultimately end in the reducing of taxes on the people. Those holding offices for numbers of years have had this opportunity and should have been wise enough to have seen the ever increase and wastefulness in government expenditures. Will it take new blood in these offices to bring about a reduction in expenditures and taxes?

TO CLEAN CHURCH YARDS AT PLEASANT GROVE

Announcement has been made that there will be a general cleaning of the church yards at Pleasant Grove, Jemison, on next Friday, April 22. All friends of the church are urged to come and help in this work.

CALL FOR MORE RELIEF FUNDS IS SENT OUT

Many New Contributors Are Listed In Report As Shown This Week

A call for more funds for use in helping those families so hard hit in the storm sections of the county has been sent out, according to information. It was stated that it is difficult for the ordinary citizen, unacquainted with the conditions of the people in the storm area, to realize the great and urgent need there for financial help.

In the Thorsby News Section in this issue is an appeal from that town. Following is a list of contributors of cash made during the past week:

FREE RABIES SERUM TO BE GIVEN ANIMALS

Clanton Study Club Urges Movement Meeting with Cooperation

It was officially announced here yesterday morning that all dog owners within the city jurisdiction of Clanton must soon have their dogs given the anti-rabies treatment according to an ordiance passed Tuesday night by the Council of the Town of Clanton which is published in this issue.

This movement was sponsored by the Clanton Study Club according to C. H. Pipes city clerk. A committee composed of Mrs. J. P. Hayes Mrs. N. S. Johnson and Mrs. Renfroe Mullins appeared before the council with this matter and met with hearty cooperation not only from the town council, but from two veternarians of the county, Dr. W. L. Parrish and Dr. P. T. Hinkle.

These two men have volunteered their services in giving this treatment to the animals without charge. The serum is to be furnished by the Town of Clanton, and no charge whatever made. The ordinance as set out, states that anyone not having this treatment given their dogs in Clanton, will be subject to a fine. Dates and places for treatment to be given will be announced later, it was stated.

Fishing Is Fine At Gravel Beach Camp

A party of men composed of J. T. Cox, J. W. Traywick, W. K. Traywick, Alvin Traywick and Henry Bates, stopped by the News office Tuesday afternoon and showed a splendid string of fine fish.

They had just returned from the new Gravel Beach Fishing Camp, on Coosa river; they stated. This camp has recently opened and is operated by T. L. McKee, a man well known through this section. Mr. McKee is making a nice place of this camp, where there are excellent places for camping on week ends, boats for rent, plenty of shade—in fact an ideal place. And the fishing is fine there, according to the party of men who stopped by the News office Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tyus, Jr., and little daughter, Billie Ruth, J. T. Tyus and Miss Fay Williams, of Birmingham, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tyus of Clanton Sunday.

COOPERATION OF EVERYONE BEING ASKED

"Give Someone A Job" Will Be Slogan Of County In Campaign

The nation-wide program to put a million idle men back to work, is to be applied locally, according to officers of the Chilton County Post of the American Legion and the Kiwanis Club of Clanton. These two organizations are pushing this movement forward in Chilton County.

This movement was started sometime ago, with Adjutant A. L. Robinson of the American Legion as employment officer. And now, emphasis is being placed on the importance of such a movement at this time. Last week, the Clanton Kiwanis Club declared its cooperation and support, and elected Cohen E. Stapp as employment officer for the club, cooperating with the legion. "Give Someone A Job" will probably be the battle cry in this campaign.

Briefly stated, the program, which is nation-wide, is designed according to the purpose of finding jobs that men can do, and putting idle men in connection with the jobs. This does not necessarily mean a program of permanent employment, while it may apply thereto. Any kind of a job, whether for a day or a year, will be considered.

The people of Chilton County are urged to cooperate in this movement. If you have a piece of work you can give to some man for any length of time, you are asked to notify either Mr. Robinson or Mr. Stapp. If you are an idle worker wanting a job, you should also communicate with one or the other of these men, and let them know what kind of work you can do.

Elsewhere in this paper is an advertisement which the publisher of the paper has donated to the cause, in the hope that this very important matter may be brought to the attention of the people of the county and result in securing employment to those who are idle.

CAR OF R. J. ALEXANDER IS STOLEN ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Last Saturday night Mr. R. J. Alexander drove his new car in front of his home on 10th street, locked the doors securely and retired for the night. Sunday morning he went out to get his car to bring his family to church. Colors came and went on his face and in his mind, for his car was not. During the night thieves had taken his car and had gone to parts unknown. The car was a brand new Chevrolet, not having been broken in and Mr. Alexander could not help feeling his loss keenly. The car was found abandoned a day or two later, near here.

R. W. LOWE ADDS FOUNTAIN TO GROWING BUSINESS

Passing through South Clanton, one is attracted by a large sign, denoting a soda fountain, candies, etc. This is the most recent addition to the growing business now operated in South Clanton by R. W. Lowe.

Mr. Lowe has built a very attractive addition to his place and inside will be found a neat, clean soda fountain, where delicious drinks are served, and where one can enjoy a good barbecue sandwich, made right before their eyes. Alfonso Sanders is in charge of this addition to South Clanton, and with his past experience along this line, is giving customers excellent service. See the ad in this issue from R. W. Lowe, giving specials for the week end and inviting you to visit his new place.

SAMUEL MARTIN PASSES HIS EXAMINATION BEFORE BOARD

Samuel Martin, a member of the firm of J. Mell Martin & Sons, funeral directors of Clonton, was advised the latter part of last week, that he had passed his examination before the State Board of Embalmers, which he took the early part of the week.

This gives Samuel the distinction of being a full fledged licensed embalmer, and is quite an addition to the service of the firm of which he is a member.

Mt. Pleasant School Closed Last Friday

Last Tuesday, April 12, marked the closing of the 1931-32 school year of the Mt. Pleasant Jr. High School. The Graduating exercise was held the following day. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church, and Supt. B. Lawrence were the speakers for the occasion. Dr. Ezell delivered an excellent talk on "The Value of an Education." He wove into his talk numerous illustrations bearing out the them. Supt. Lawrence spoke along the line of educational progress and conditions in Chilton County. A large group of children were present. also a number of parents and friends of the school. A temporary stage was constructed and decorated with class colors and flowers.

The graduating class this year was composed of the following: J. P. Culp, class president, Mabel Gillespie, Dorothy Jones, Harry Parker, Lucile Price, Ilar Massey, Curtis Traywick, Annie Chambers, Mazie Logan.

The P.-T. A. held its final meeting for this school year last Wednesday following the graduating program. The present economic conditions and lack of an auditorium has handicapped the P.-T. A. in many of its activities, but above these it has added to the school a complete set of shades, a large 10-gallon water cooler, a large handsome map of Alabama and several other minor additions including a generous donation to the boys and girls Athletic Association. The school and community is deeply grateful to Mrs. Frank Massey, President of our P.-T. A. for her untiring efforts and liberal contributions to the P.-T. A. activities this year.

On last Friday, the Mt. Pleasant School went on its annual picnic, which was given at Log Cabin Beach. About 110 pupils, the school faculty, and a large number of parents made up the big party. A highly delightful time was had by all present. The day was spent in vaied pleasures: Music, flower gathering, boat riding, hiking, kodaking, games, were among the pleasure-giving features of the day. Two large trucks and several private cars carried the joyful band of picnickers to the camp.

Our attendance percentage for this year is 91.16. This is the average for the full six an done-half months. Illness, farm work and the storm effects of March 21, tended to reduce the rating the latter part of school.

The school andcommunity rejoices to know that Miss Virginia Littlejohn, popular member of the Junior II Class, has fully recovered from her recent illness. She was among those on the picnic last Friday.

Our Principal, Mr. R. B. Johnson, plans to leave about June 1, for the State Teachers College located at Florence, Ala., and Miss Lera Bean, primary instructor, is planning to re-enter the State Normal school at Jacksonville.

PRODUCE PLANT

THE 1932 YEAR BOOK
OUR HISTORY OF 1931

In many lines of industry the largest companies reduced their output in 1931. Those who furnished them with raw materials had, at best, restricted markets.

Swift & Company's 1932 Year Book, now ready, tells how this nation-wide, diversified marketing organization met conditions in a better way.

1. It kept its doors open and handled more pounds of products than in 1930.
2. It continued to pay cash for all it bought.
3. In more than a hundred produce stations it held to the policy of purchasing all the poultry, eggs and dairy products offered by farmers.
4. Still more important, Swift & Company cut its own costs.

Thirty years of experience have proved that the most economical way to market produce is through the same channels that handle meats. The same salesmen sell, the same refrigerator cars transport, the same branch houses sell and deliver the whole Swift & Company line of fine foods, such as Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon, Swift's Premium Milk-Fed Chicken, Golden West Fowl, Swift's Brookfield Butter, Eggs, Cheese and many other products.

Read the 1932 Year Book. It explains how a rounded line makes Swift & Company operations stable and how diversification lessens the costs of handling both meat and produce. It takes the mystery out of the factors that go to make price levels. And it tells in detail the steps this Company has taken to make itself still more efficient in covering the gap between hundreds of thousands of producers and millions of consumers.

Billingsley News

Rev. A. S. Bentley delivered two very helpful sermons at the Baptist church Sunday. A well filled house heard him attentively each time.

The play "Cabbages or Dollars" put on here Saturday evening at the Grammar School by the school at Isabella was indeed good, and each player rendered his part well.

Prof. and Mrs. Ralph Upton and baby, Ralph, spent the week end in Dothan with Prof. Upton's parents, his father being quite ill.

Mrs. J. T. Apperson and son, Otto, visited relatives in Clanton Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Zack Pennington and little son, Pat, of North Port and Miss Maude Lee Patrick of the University were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Patrick.

Miss Bettye Jane Gregory spent the week end with her parents in Tuscaloosa.

Mrs. A. S. Bentley entertained the members of the Girls Auxiliary Saturday with a picnic. In the afternoon they attended preaching service at Mt. Carmel church at Adams.

All of the Junior Organizations of the W. M. U. were represented at the Young Peoples' Rally at Verbena Sunday afternoon and report a splendid program.

Ernestine Moore, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore, happened to a painful accident Sunday by falling from a bridge, into a ditch. A speedy recovery is hoped for her.

Mrs. J. F. Baxter is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Powell, at Verbena, this week.

Miss Inez Patrick from University spent the week end with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patrick attended services at Big Springs church Sunday evening.

Mrs. John Wonder, Mrs. J. C. Hughes and C. A. Marlar were visitors in Clanton Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. J. A. Boozer of Tuscaloosa was the guest of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Downs, Sunday.

Mrs. J. J. Traywick was in Montgomery two days last week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Williams of Montgomery spent Sunday with Dr. A. J. Marlar.

Friends of Mr. J. W. Pattillo sympathize with him in the death of his mother last week, who was indeed a noble Christian character.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

I was in a Clanton home last week where there were five children and not one of them in Sunday school. There is a vast difference between our City schools on Monday and our Sunday schools on Sunday, and yet there should be no difference.

Next Sunday is the day for the opening of our Missionary barrels. This is an attractive service and we want everyone holding a barrel to take part.

There are two important messages next Sunday for all who will worship with us. At 11 A. M. "Church Loyalty". At 7:30 P. M. "Using What You Have." The pastor of the Methodist church is not preaching for a job. He is preaching because he is called to that task, and because he loves men. Our services are soul refreshing. Not mechanical, not common, but full of the spirit and done in decency and in order. Worship with us.

Home Saving Of Pea Seed Will Help Crop

Saving of Austrian winter pea seed this spring for planting next fall is being recommended by Alabama county agents. Tests conducted last year revealed that it is feasible to save seed and that it is better and cheaper to get them this way than to wait and buy them.

Austrian winter peas are prolific in the production of seed. In tests last year 600 pounds of seed per acre were harvested. This is sufficient to plant about 20 acres. If each farmer will save one or two, or more, acres he will have sufficient seed for himself and some for sale. If the plants fail to make seed they can be turned under and the land enriched without loss to the grower.

Old garments in Etowah County are being salvaged and made into modern new ones by remodeling and renovating. Mrs. Diana B. Williams, home demonstration agent, has made this a major project. Consequently, the women now have stylish dresses made from old dresses.

Budgeting their canned products—the same as finances—is being done in Mobile County by club girls, as reported by Mrs. Louise M. Riley, home demonstration agent. They are determining first what the family will need of each canned product and next they proceed to can these products.

Mr. Hollis Hiten, trombone, Mr. Aubrey Robinson, viola, Mr. Frank Gulledge a mandolin, Mr. Houston Robinson and Mr. Henry Williams, guitars.

Their many popular selections were thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present. The guests departed in a merry mood, at eleven o'clock.

Authorities say that George Washington depleted the fertility of his soil by continuous cropping of tobacco and corn and that he restored it by working livestock into his system. Records show that he had at one time on the Mount Vernon farm 34 horses, 15 jacks and jennets, 57 mules, 329 cattle and 640 sheep which were disposed of in his will.

CENTENARY OF AN IDEA

This year marks the 100th anniversary of an incident which led to the invention of the telegraph, although it was not until four years later that a workable instrument was produced.

On October 1, 1832, Samuel F. B. Morse, an American painter who had been studying the old masters in Europe, sailed from Havre, France, for New York. On the voyage he discussed with fellow passengers the properties of the electromagnet and the famous discovery of electro-magnetic induction by Faraday the year before.

As a result, he got the idea that signals might be transmitted by means of electric sparks, and while still on shipboard he made rough drafts of the necessary apparatus, which he showed to his companions. It was not until 1836, however, that he completed an instrument that would work.

After many discouragements he finally succeeded in getting the government to build a telegraph line between Baltimore and Washington, which was used for the first time on May 24, 1844, to send the now historic message, "What hath God wrought?" From that time on the spread of telegraph lines was rapid and Morse was acclaimed by the world as a benefactor of mankind.

He received the highest honors from foreign countries as well as his own, and in 1858 ten European nations joined in an appropriation of $80,000 in recognition of the benefits conferred by his invention.

Morse died April 2, 1872, in New York, where a bronze statue in his honor was erected in Central Park.

In Elmore County the 4-H club girls are learning why one dress looks better than another and why one can of food is better than another. These facts are being taught by Miss Mary Olive Carnley, home demonstration agent, at their club meetings.

ABOUT HEALTH FADS

The subject of how to live long is always of interest, which perhaps accounts for the eagerness of the average mortal to seize upon various methods which are recommended for promoting health and longevity, such as doing daily exercises to radio music and the like.

In spite of all the propaganda on the subject, however, there are many who are skeptical regarding the real benefits of strenuous physical activity. One of these wrote a letter to the Cleveland Press pointing out that Walter Camp, famed athlete and originator of the "daily dozen," died at 65, while he, the writer, had never taken any kind of exercise to speak of and was still in excellent health, although a great-grandfather. He added that "the longest-lived people are the physically lazy but mentally alert."

Commenting on the letter, William Feathers, a well-known editor, declares that several years ago he adopted a vigorous health program, including vegetarianism, cold baths and the daily dozen, with this result:

"Acute indigestion lead to the abandonment of vegeterianism on doctor's orders. Another doctor recommended discontinuance of cold baths. The daily dozen are still pursued, but faith in them has been shaken by the untimely death of their inventor."

Still, we may find many who swear by the health fads and feel that their lives have been saved thereby. As the proverb has it, "What is food for some is black poison for others."

COMMUNITY SUICIDE

One of the strangest phenomena witnessed in most towns and small cities is the apparent eagerness with which many othewise good citizens contribute to the tendency to commit community suicide.

These citizens will often show uncommon zeal in boosting any movement to obtain city improvements, to promote the location of new industries, to secure better educational facilities, and so on. Yet many of these same proud boosters will deliberately engage in a practice which nullifies all their otherwise laudable efforts—and wonder why their town doesn't go ahead.

We refer to the suicidial habit of buying away from home.

The enormous growth of the mail order habit in recent years is largely responsible for the failure of many communities to make the progress which their naural advantages should make possible. The money that ought to be kept at home for the expansion of local trade and industry is sent away to distant cities, never to return. The life-blood of prosperity is allowed to ebb away through the indifference or thoughtleness of the very persons who should set an example of local pride and loyalty.

A trifling saving here and there, usually more imaginary than real, is sufficient to cause the average citizen to forget his duty to his community and to himself, which if performed would mean far more in the direction of local prosperity than all his other boosting efforts put together

Why boost in one direction, while committing community suicide in another?

ABOUT OUR PRESIDENTS

Some intersting personal facts about our presidents:

Washinton was born on a Friday, and died in the last hour of the last day of the week, in the last month of the last year of the century.

Adams and Jefferson died on the same day, July 4, 1826.

Van Buren was the first president not born a British subject.

Adams lived longer than any other president, more than 90 years.

Tyler was a member of the provisional Congress of the Confederate states, and was a membere-elect of the permanent Confederate Congress at the time of his death.

Lincoln was the first president to wear a moustache, and also wear a beard.

Buchanan was the only president who never maried. Cleveland was a bachelor when inaugurated, but married soon afterward.

William Henry Harrison was the oldest president upon taking office, 68; Roosevelt, the youngest, 42.

Politics vs. Need and Suffering

Up to the time of the tornadoes that ripped through Chilton County, resulting in the death of many, and injuries to scores, politics 'had the day' so to speak. Politics had become the topic of conversation. Schemes were underway with political brains functioning in their best capacity.

Immediately following this catastrophe, it was supposed that all thought was turned to the work of aiding these stricken families and caring for the sick and injured. Politics were thought to have been forgotten for the time being. Perhaps that was true.

However, rumors have been heard that thought of caring for the sick, injured and needy persons left in the wake of this calamity, apparently soon began to be interspersed with political and personal gain. The sorrow and trouble of people stood at the mercy of politicians, the rumors and gossip carry. That is no doubt a very untimely and unkind thing to say. This newspaper regrets that such rumors could be circulated in regard to Chilton County. It is difficult to believe, and causes a question—are there grounds for such rumors? If it is true, then there is someone who no doubt feels a bit restless when they place their head on the pillow at night, with an attempt to rest. Could it be possible that any broadminded and thinking person could use the misfortune of the people for such purposes.

The Tax Road

Practically one-quarter of the national income went to the government in 1931. The exact percentage is 22.1, as compared with 14.4 in 1930 and 6.4 in 1913.

When, in a single year, the proportion of national income consumed by taxes can rise almost eight per cent, it is time for the thoughtful citizen to take action. The present trend is plain—the United States has started on the long, dark road that Australia, Germany, England and other countries have taken. The result, if it keeps to that road, will be the same as in those countries—industrial stagnation, steadily increasing unemployment, unbalanced budgets, possibly impairment of credit—and, always, even higher taxation.

Government must retrench, exactly as businesses and individuals have retrenched the past two years. It must weed out unnecessary departments, banish waste and duplication of effort—in short, promote thorough efficiency. Present high taxes have not resulted from the cost of legitimate governmental functions, but from the cost of illegitimate functions—ventures into the operation or regulation of business, efforts to artificially peg prices, etc.

High taxes drive capital away from business, and force it into tax-free bonds. They make for hoarding and are thus the best friends of depression. This tax problem is a real problem nowadays—and every citizen must face it.

o-o-o-o

The Friends of Depression

Idle dollars are the best friends of depression.

They do no one good. Stuck away in strong boxes—or socks!—they are entirely worthless. They are unable to do their bit in carrying on the financial work of the world. They are a sign of fear, of hysterical kind of conservatism that mistakes hoarding for thrift.

True thrift is a fine thing. It is the source of the money that builds plants, buys and operates machinery, employs men, keeps the wheels of industry going.

As an advertisement of the Northern States Power Company recently said: "The opportunity to earn a return on investment is better today than for years. Banks pay interest on deposits regularly. Sound securities earn, and pay, a regular, safe income."

The hoarder is cheating himself—of greater importance, he is cheating us all. He is prolonging unemployment, profitless prices, the accumulation of goods for which there is no market because people have no money to buy. He is, in the full sense of the word, anti-social.

This is worth remembering: Idle dollars are the best friends of depression.

Power in the Elections

As election time draws nigh, there is a certain amount of agitation—in certain political groups—to make power the foremost issue of the campaign.

Support for this comes from two sources. One consists of those who honestly believe in government ownership of the electric industry, in spite of the remarkable record of development and progress which this industry has made, because of a socialistic or "progressive" political-economic philosophy. The other, which is undoubtedly the larger group, consists of those who lean toward power because it seems a safe issue. The politicians who dodge prohibition, because they are afraid of alienating both drys and wets, who dodge unemployment and taxation, because these things are "hot" at present, are the ones who are whooping it up for power.

Power may be a safe issue—but as an issue it vanishes when balanced against these great national problems. People who want work, who are worrying about their futures, aren't much interested in attacks on an industry whose service is of inestimable value and yet costs an infinitesimal part of the family budget, an industry which has maintained employment and wage scales at a high point during depression, an industry which has led the way in developments which have brought employment and new taxable property to many communities.

The public wants real issues, honestly discussed—and the greatest spellbinder who ever lived can not make more than a secondary, local issue out of power.

What a beautiful thought is expressed in the above quotation. It might be compared with the Golden Rule so far as worthiness is concerned, and yet, how much the few lines in The Golden Rule carry.

I often wonder why those who write columns for newspapers are so often inclined to be critical on subjects they write about. Perhaps it is because when the columnist thinks of a subject to write about, he immediately tries to tear that subject to pieces to determine if there is anything wrong, if so, he'll write about it. Undoubtedly he is a good columnist who can write about a subject without being too critical, and at the same time be complimentary in his remarks.

The ed expressed a desire the other day, and I will take it upon myself to do what he said he wished was done. During the past few weeks there have been approximately a hundred names added to the bona fide circulation to the News. I want to call their attention to some features. First to this column, where matters of importance are ripped open, people are discussed and things in general get an airing, now and then. Also their attention is called to the editorial columns, over to the left of this column. New, clean fresh editorials each week, about most anything, and lately it looks like the policy of that column has been to talk about how much tax money we poor devils have to pay. Then there are many news sections from various communities over the county. Is your community represented? If not, then get busy and put it before the people. Another feature of real quality is the column written by Dr. D. W. Haskew, of Clanton, headed "Moral Echoes." Some of the best thoughts I've read, have appeared in that column. The new readers of the News will find that news stories are treated in such a way that facts are stated, to the best knowledge of the writers of the articles. No ruffles, just the plain statements. The News welcomes those new readers.

L. E. Diefenderfer, Reuben Foss, and S. P. Shaw went to Hammond, La., Saturday to look over the way strawberries and other truck crops are handled. They expect to go into Brewton and Castleberry to study methods used in handling berries, marketing and other things. With these men in that field, they will bring back any helpful suggestions they find.

Did you ever really stop to think of how much tax you pay each year, and what you get in return for your money? There is some good food for thought in that matter. Did you know that in 1931 almost one-quarter of the national income went to the government. And that it is still increasing? In 1913 the percentage of the national income that went to the government was 6.4. Can you figure out why it takes more to operate the government now than it did in 1913? Could it be possible that the president, in order to personally realize his campaign cry "Hoover and Prosperity" decided to hoard all the money up in Washington around him. No doubt, so far as he is concerned, we are enjoying prosperity. At least he is—not me.

Was in the News office Saturday, after H. S. Shaw had just gone out. He brought in a sack of Whatley's Seed Corn that was addressed to a man in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Several weeks ago, Mr. Shaw put an ad in the News about his corn. The ad cost him a few cents, and he states that something must have happened because he is getting results from that ad. So, in view of this, Mr. Shaw says run that ad two more weeks.

Did you know that Ensley Culpepper had assumed ownership of the place that used to be Bates Auto Shop. Well, he has and says he is making good so far. Ensley is a splendid sort of fellow, and is a cracker-jack when it comes to fixing batteries on automobiles, or just general repair work. Let's give him a hand, because I always thought Ensley should have him a little business of his own.

In our tours round town, we did miss a place of business and I realized that this week. It is the Taylor Produce, a concern headed by Parker Taylor, and located near the railroad. Mr. Taylor is almost a new comer to Clanton, but is well known here anyway—and I think, is well liked. He deals in wholesale produce.

Accident Prevention and Education

What education can do to prevent accidents is shown by a chart recently issued by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, detailing the trend in street accidents in New York City from 1922 to 1931, inclusive.

During this period, fatalities to adults steadily increased. There were 909 deaths in 1931, as compared with 487 in 1922—a jump of 85 per cent. In the case of children, on the other hand, the rate has steadily gone down. Three hundred twelve were killed in 1931, as compared with 477 in 1922—a drop of 35 per cent. It is estimated that 3,458 children are now living who would have been killed had their accident rate increased along with that of adults during the ten-year period.

Other communities, large and small, have found that accident prevention work in schools produces similar results. The young mind is open to suggestion and easily absorbs accident prevention information, especially when vividly presented. The adult mind, on the other hand, being less malleable, offers greater resistance to the influx of knowledge. The lessons these children have learned will stay with them in future years and will be a mighty influence for accident prevention among adults of coming generations.

There is not a school in the country which, out of justice to its charges, can afford to leave accident prevention out of its curriculum. No educational work can be of greater value than that which saves lives. Furthermore, it would be a good thing if adults took the example of their children and made an honest effort to develop their own "safety consciousness."

Ringing Bells . . .

They Call to You TODAY

Announcing a Return to Stability

The origin of the ringing of bells as a call to worship is lost in antiquity. The beginning of the need for religion is older still. In fact, the desire to believe—the need for faith—confidence in a Supreme and Sublime Providence is so old in the human race that it defies tracing. But note, in the madness of these past few years, what happens when we forget religion. A decrease in church attendance has always been identical in time with amazing increases in crime—immorality—economic instability.

The control of the passions of greed and lust has ever been the teachings of religious leaders. This is a plea—a call—a ringing of bells announcing that the return to sanity—to stability is through religion. We urge that you join the the worthy citizens of this town in a sane return to moral and a happy existence. Regular church attendance is adding your mite—for humanity and—yourself.

Come to Church Sunday

YOUR CHURCH—ANY CHURCH

Trying To Steal The Show

Now President Hoover proposes a commission to frame a complete plan for government economy. In other words, he wants a body consisting of two Senators, two Representatives and two delegated by himself to revise the budget.

Under the law the President is directed to "transmit to Congress on the first day of each regular session the budget." If for any reason supplementary recommendations are required he is directed to supply them. It must be taken for granted that the President is not going to ask for any expenditure which in his judgment is unwise or unnecessary. Consequently it seems remarkable that he should ask for a commission to revise his own statements as to what is requisite in government expenditure. It is true, of course, that the President suggests this committee should recommend legislation for changes in the government organization in order that certain economies he has in mind could be made which do not fit in with the present system. However, the law makes special provision that the Bureau of the Budget should report to the President what changes should be made in the existing organization in the interest of efficiency and economy, and that the President might transmit his recommendations on the subject to Congress. It therefore appears rather difficult to figure out what the suggested commission could do that the President himself can not do if he is willing to accept the responsibility imposed on him by the statute.

Incidentally there is a further provision in the law providing that "no recommendation as to how the revenue needs of the government should be met shall be submitted to Congress, or any committee thereof, by any officer, or employe of any department or establishment unless at the request of either house of Congress." This would appear to bar from the commission suggested by the President anybody now in the government employ and he would therefore have to go outside for his commissioners, which would of course mean that his lay representatives would have to make an exhaustive study of the whole governmental system in order to qualify themselves to contribute anything worth while to the deliberations of the body. This, in turn, suggests that it might be a year or more before the commission is even ready to sit.

Taken altogether, the commission suggested by President Hoover would bid fair to be as successful in accomplishing reforms in the government as the Wickersham Commission was in getting anything done about prohibition, or the Farm Board was in relieving the farmer.

The President's course in regard to the reorganization of the government has been rather puzzling all the way through. When he was Secretary of Commerce he elaborated a most exhaustive plan for rearranging the departments down to the last item. When, as President, he came to the point of asking Congress to do this thing, he merely offered that they should give him blanket authority to alter things any way he pleased. His only response to the Congressional request for a bill of particulars is the suggestion of this commission. Congress naturally wants to know before it turns the government upside down just what the intended process is to be, just what is sought to be accomplished, just how it is to be done, before it takes the responsibility of authorizing unrestricted rebuilding of the governmental machine. While this attitude might be construed as indicating a doubt of the President's capacity, perhaps a juster view would be that Congress considers the power asked for as greater than should be entrusted to any one man under our form of government, particularly with a political campaign and election imminent.

Disaster for The Railroads

Nineteen-thirty-one, according to a railroad spokesman, was the most disastrous year in the rails' history. In the face of that, their taxes aggregated about four times the sum available for dividends, and amounted to $2.65 for every man, woman and child in the entire country. Federal taxes, which are based on net income, were naturally lower than in other years, but all other forms of railroad taxes were higher. The tax collector absorbed $7.30 out of every hundred dollars of gross revenue—the largest proportion on record.

On the other hand, we have made the railroads one of our foremost taxpayers, and on the other, we have allowed competing forms of transport, regulated and taxed to a far lesser degree, to unfairly obtain a great volume of business that once went to the rails. We have paralleled the railroad tracks with fine highways, partly built at railroad expense, and along these highways roll the trucks and buses over which the Interstate Commerce Commission has no authority. The inland waterways float boats which furnish government subsidized transport.

Unless immediate steps are taken to correct this condition, the railroads are doomed to failure. There is no other way out. The rail industry is the greatest single employer and purchaser of supplies in the country—and if it goes into bankruptcy, the public will be the principal sufferer.

Intelligence, fairness and our own selfish interests demand the formulation of a regulatory policy that will apply equitably to all forms of transportation.

Name Furniture Contest Winner

News of great interest to Mr. W. M. Griffin, Route 2, came over the press association wires today. This was the announcement of the winner in the contest conducted by Household Science Institute of Chicago to find the oldest piece of mohair covered furniture in the United States. Mr. W. M. Griffin had an entry in the contest.

The winner is J. H. Greene, a farmer of near Alton, Va. His entry, a sofa well over 100 years old was awarded the $250 cash prize by Sanford Mills, Sanford, Maine. The winning piece is considered an excellent example of the American Empire or Federal period in design. It is covered in a mohair velvet of rose brocade pattern, the color being the popular shade of the early mohair velvets now called velmo, and is in a remarkable state of preservation, considering its great age.

Interest in the contest was widespread. More than 3,000 entries were received, practically every state in the Union being represented. Nearly three months were required to pass on all the affidavits and entries. Judges in the contest were Miss Norma Stable, executive secretary of the Association of Arts and Industries; Ross Crane, internationally-known interior decorator and stylist; and Bernard C. Jakway, outstanding textile authority. According to present plans, the sofa will be displayed at the Century of Progress world's fair in Chicago next year.

Bounced from his bed as though by an earthquake, Richard Sweeney of Haverhill, Mass., hustled downstairs to discover that a 10 ton coal truck had crashed into his home.

Mrs. Lorna Lamb of Cleveland, testified in her divorce suit that her husband tried to hypnotize her.

Mrs. M. B. Arant Died At Her Home Monday

Mrs. Lula Belle Arant, age 50, wife of Miles B. Arant, died at her home here early Monday morning. Death came following a serious and lingering illness.

Before her marriage, she was Miss Lula Belle Todd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Todd. About ten years ago Mr. and Mrs. Arant moved to Clanton from Elmore County, and have made their home here since that time, Mr. Arant being widely known here as a jeweler.

The deceased was a devout church member and became affiliated with the Baptist church here, taking part as much as possible in all church affairs. She was a member of the Order of The Eastern Star, Julia Beauchamp Chapter, and was loved by all her acquaintances.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church in Clanton, with Dr. S. J. Ezell officiating and a most touching and beautiful service was had. Interment followed in the cemetery at Deatsville, Elmore County, with Martin & Sons, funeral directors of Clanton, in charge. The love for this woman from her friends was shown by the many beautiful floral offerings spread over her resting place, and the large crowd who gathered to pay their last loving tribute.

She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. William Murphy, of Lay Dam; two sons, Ellis Arant and Ernest Arant; four brothers and two sisters.

Pallbearers were Tom Kemp, Frank Foshee, W. H. Sartor, H. S. Shaw and Graham Milstead. The local chapter of the Eastern Star honored the deceased by attenind as a body in uniform, serving as flower carriers.

Verbena High School News

By Senior One English Class

Graduation exercises for the Sixth Grade of Verbena Grammar school were held in the high school auditorium Tuesday night, April 12. The welcome address was given by Geraldine Hollis and the valedictory by Agnes Kelley. Miss Scarborough, Mr. Lawrence, and Mr. DuBose rendered very interesting talks.

The Mezzofontian Literary Society met last Friday and rendered the following program:

Bible reading: Melton Hughes.

Prayer: J. R. Robinson.

Roll called by secretary and each member answering with a quotation of Spring.

Club Song: by All.

Story of Spring: J. R. Robinson.

Flower Contest: by members.

Mr. W. C. DuBose is able to be back at school after an absence of two weeks caused by an abscess on his eye.

Each patron of the school is urged to attend the P.-T. A. Thursday evening, April 21, at eight o'clock. The meeting will be a very important one as new officers are to be elected and one or two other business items are to be attended to.

Immediately after the business period, Mrs. Gordon will present her piano pupils in a piano recital .

If you want to hear Mell Pattillo and Ottis Gulledge sing "Amazing Grace" see the "College Hobo" at Verbena High School, April twenty-second.

The Mezzofantian and Shakespearean literary societies will meet together Friday night, May 6, in the Verbena High School auditorium for a contest between the societies.

There will be readings, songs, declamations, piano solos, secret stunts and a debate. Each performance will be judged and graded and the society receiving the most points wins. The public is cordially invited.

The Senior Class of Verbena High School will present the Senior play, "The College Hobo," April 22, 1932. The characters are well trained. Mrs. W. C. DuBose is their director. Some of the characters are: Sally, Miss Katie Myrtle Glenn; Mr. Sims, Ottis Gulledge; The Hobo, Aubrey Boone. Everyone is invited. Admission will be 10 and 15 cents.

The Senior II Class and the faculty gave a banquet for the Senior III Class Thursday evening, April 14, at the home of Mrs. DuBose. The color scheme was pink and green. The table was decorated with pink and green candles and pink and green crepe paper. The centerpiece was of pink sweet peas and ferns. The place cards were tiny diplomas tied with pink ribbon.

The waitresses, Frances Strock, Evelyn Barrett and Mamie Meroney, were selected from the Senior I class. They wore pink dresses and green caps and aprons. Wayne Hiten, president of the Senior II Class, was toastmaster.

SWARMS OF OFFICERS

In re-reading that immortal document, the Declaration of Independence, which recites the grievances which impelled the American colonies to rise and throw off the British yoke, we were struck by a paragraph which appealed to us with a new significance. Referring to King George III, it declared·

"He has erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of offices to harass our people and eat out our substance."

It appears that "swarms of officers" were distasteful to the sturdy forfathers. What would they say to the army of office-holders who "harass our people and eat out our subtance" today?

Every session of Congress and every session of the state legislature enacts laws creating new offices. Seldom is an office once established ever abolished, except to create a different and more expensive office or offices, in its place. Office-holders' salaries are often raised, but never lowered.

Some day, possibly, a majority of the voters will rebel, as did the early fathers, and by their ballots, instead of bullets, call a halt on those legislators whose chief aim appears to be the increase of public pay-rolls.

'Panama Flo' Is Natural Vehicle For Twelvetrees

Helen Twelvetrees' latest RKO-Pathe starring vehicle, "Panama Flo" which has won the acclaim of audiences and critics alike wherever so far it has been shown, will be a feature attraction at the Wadesonian Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, April 25 and 26.

A melodrama filled with suspense and thrilling situations, "Panama Flo" tells the story of the fortunes and misfortunes of a beautiful New York show girl who is stranded in a Panama honky tonk.

Critics are unanimous in their praise of Miss Twelvetrees and her portrayal of the dance hall "pony," caught in the mesh of two wild tropical loves—one sincere and the other profane—stating that the young star has even surpassed her outstanding performances in "Her Man," and "Millie."

In support of the star, RKO-Pathe has provided a sterling supporting cast which consists of Robert Armstrong, Charles Bickford, Paul Hurst, Maude Eburne, Marjorie Peterson and Reina Velez.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

There were two cars of tourists from Montana stopped over for service at the Methodist church in Clanton last Sunday. The church was decorated in honeysuckle and these people were charmed with the flowers. They had never seen such before and were greatly interested in Alabama's beautiful wild flowers.

The Epworth Leagues of the Methodist church are planning to send a delegation of the young people of Clanton to a district-wide meeting to be held in Selma on April the 23rd. This meeting is called by Rev. S. M. Baker and Rev. O. G. Pope of Montgomery, and a gathering of 200 young people is expected.

It will be interesting to the friends of Mrs. T. H. Neighbors to know that her brother, Jake Moon, will sail in a few days for the Phillipine Islands, where he will be engaged in government employ. Mr. Moon is a young man and doubtless will reach prominence in the work of Uncle Sam. He leaves his home in Goodwater this week.

One of the most beautiful homes in Clanton is nearing completion. This residence is being built by Mr. Reid Mullins and is located west of the Eric Hart home. It is of the bungalow type, having three bed rooms, dining room, reception room, breakfast room, kitchen and sleeping porch. It is finished on inside with the best of material, having the last word in comforts and conveniences. The outside is brick and is made safe in case of storms. This class home adds much to the appearance of the residential part of our city and it is hoped that many others will follow the example of Mr. Mullins.

Work has begun in the repairing of the Durwood Broadhead home that was partially destroyed by fire four weeks ago. Much damage was done to the roof and the interior, but the adjustment of insurance makes it possible for Mr. Broadhead to replace the damage with but little loss.

The health Department of the county and State has been busy for ten days cleaning out the wells in the storm stricken district. Ten men have been employed and they have made usable something like 116 wells to date. They took out of the wells almost everything that you could imagine to be in one. Dogs, chickens, cats, hams, sides of meat, chairs, pillows, saws, hammers, nails, fine gravel and much rubbish. The wells were not only cleaned out but they were treated against any possible infection. This will help to prevent an epidemic of fever during the summer.

Professor J. I. Little will deliver the baccalaureate address for the Isabella High School in the school auditorium on the night of May the 10th. Dr. Little comes from the Woman's College at Montevallo and is a man of wide knowledge. His address will be the bright light of the Commencement occasion.

Those attending the Selma district conference at Pine Apple on Tuesday from the Clanton Methodist church were Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Haskew, W. M. Polk, J. B. Atkinson, Judge and Mrs. L. H. Reynolds, Miss Madge Scarborough and Mrs. J. D. Armstrong.

P. D. Wilson spent Sunday with his wife in Birmingham, who is there for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Green who resided near the City School building in Clanton have recently moved into the Isabella community. Mr. Green gave up his position with a local Wholesale Grocery house and has opened a business for himself in the store located at the cross roads near the Isabella High school.

A sad death occured Sunday night in a hospital at Montgomery when German Sandlin passed away. He had undergone an operation and was not able to rally. His body was brought back to his home at Cooper and from his residence he was buried Monday afternoon.

Peanuts For Home Use More In Need

Emm7do as now is the time for all go

Although the market outlook for peanuts is not bright increased production for home supply and for hogging off is advisable, in the opinion of J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn. A small acreage maye be profitable on many farms not now growing peanuts. They are a good substitute for corn as a feed.

Planting peanuts where cotton was raised and well fertilized last year is recommended. The plants should be as close together as possible to permit cultivation. Spacing of runner varieties should be 12 to 15 inches apart with rows 2½ to 3 feet. The Spanish variety should be 6 to 10 inches apart in 2½ foot rows. Close spacing is essential to big yields.

DEMOCRATS MAKE SWEEP IN ILLINOIS G.O.P. STRONGHOLDS

Washington, April 18.—Democrats made a sweep in the municipal and township elections in Illinois recently held.

In Cicero, a suburban village of 66,000 on Chicago's West Side, a Democratic landslide ended a Republican reign of 16 years. The Democrats elected every one of the eight contested offices, including that of village president. The latter's majority was 5,399.

Nashville, in southern Illinois, elected the entire Democratic ticket for the first time in 25 years.

Joliet, not far from Chicago, elected a Democratic township highway commissioner for the first time in forty years.

Juniors' Column
By Miriam

In addition to the precious gift of the mind God has given to each one of you a wonderful gift called the body. It is given to you for a dwelling place for the real you, the part of you that is called soul.

Jesus called His body a temple and in Dear Boys and Girls:

1 Corinthians 3:16, 17 God speaks thru St. Paul to us in these words:

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."

The body is wonderfully made of flesh, bones, blood and nerves. In perfect health all parts work together so easily that we feel no pain. We can use the muscles all day, and day after day and they never get tangled up. God gave you that marvelous body to use and care for. He gave you a body for a house for your soul so that you might live here on earth and associate with other people and glorify Him.

Some people are so concerned about the body that they forget the soul. They give all their time to providing food and clothing for the body and when it is fed and clothed to their satisfaction they go dashing about from place to place trying to find entertainment. They do not feed the hungry soul. They do not know that it is their hungry souls that causes the restlessness. Many people take poison and narcotics into their bodies hoping to ease the restlessness. Poisons and narcotics do great harm to the body that God says we must not defile. Anything defiles the body that harms it or makes it unfit for God's Spirit to dwell in.

To keep your soul from starving now is the time to begin (if you have not already begun) to feed your soul at regular times, just as you do your body. Read your Bible and talk to your Heavenly Father every day. It is your privilege to profit by the mistakes and share the victories of all the people whose experiences in life have been preserved in word pictures for you. It is your blessed privilege to talk intimately with a king any minute of the day—more intimately than you would talk to any person. You will soon find that the time you spend reading and talking with your gentle, loving, forgiving and patient Lord makes the whole day bright, so bright that you will be singing, whistling, or smiling and helping someone all the time. Some of you already know that this is true, the rest of you, by trying it, will see that it is true. Don't get discouraged, for this sort of happiness grows.

Here is a picture of the boy or girl that is not wise. He sees a man that is a slave to some bad habit, but because of the swagger and bluster that accompanies the habit the boy thinks that he is the manly man. He begins to imitate the man.

The girl sees a woman who is striking in appearance, but does not do or say the things that a good woman does. The girl is attracted by the glitter of the woman's dress and manner and begins to imitate her. Both the boy and the girl are putting chains of bad habits on their wrists that will grow stronger all the time. A chain of iron becomes weaker the longer it is used, but the chain of bad habits grows stronger and stronger and can be broken only by great effort with the help of God. Many, many people become slaves and remain slaves until they do not have determination to free themselves.

Be wise boys and girls and do not defile your body in any way. Feed your soul and do not become a slave of habits that will stunt and injure your body and mind and starve and destroy your soul.

Lovingly,
MIRIAM.

USE AMERICAN SHIPS

The trouble with our shipping business, particularly as concerns passenger transportation, is that a surprisingly small percentage of travelers patronize American ships. While Englishmen, Frenchmen and Germans loyally travel on vessels flying their own national flags, Americans do not.

An appeal for the patronage of American ships by Americans, especially women, was recently made by Miss Ruth Victory, an executive of the Connecticut chamber of commerce, who pointed out that women constitute the large proportion of passengers on ocean liners. She said:

"Business and professional women and others who go abroad should recognize the advantageous impression they can create and the confidence they can inspire in foreign associates by traveling on ships flying the Stars and Stripes. American supremacy on the seas means American supremacy in business, and the patronage of American women will be an invaluable asset."

The important part which feminine patronage plays in the passenger business of steamship companies was recently recognized by the Grace Line, on which women supervisors of service, women housekeepers and waitresses are to be substituted for men on its four new vessels being built for service under the American flag.

Only Six Banks Closed In Week

With only six bank suspensions reported for the entire country in the week just passed, a new record level for banking safety for the period since 1928 has been reached. Four banks reopened in the same period.

Suspended banks since the first of the year now total 565, tying up for eventual distribution, deposits estimated at $242,255,000. Of this total, 361 failures took place in January; 128 in February; and 51 in March. To date April has had only 25.

Revised weekly figures for bank suspensions show the following trend—for the week ending:

March 3	13
March 10	14
March 17	12
March 24	8
March 31	12
April 7	19
April 14	6

The six suspensions of the week just passed were widely scattered, taking place in Texas, North Dakota, North Carolina, Michigan, Minnesota and Missouri.

70 PER CENT OF BANKS ARE FOR HOME LOAN PLAN

A tabulation of the questionnaires sent out by the Commerce Department to determine the sentiment of banks to the Federal Home Loan measure indicated more than a 70% approval.

Approximately 7,000 institutions replied, representing a cross section of financial agencies, including all classes of banks as well as building and loan associations and mortgage bankers. Institutions favoring the plan had assets totaling $10,699,950,811.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

THAT it takes TEAM WORK to win.

In nearly every city a team of live citizens is working hard to make their city a more prosperous city.

Every citizen should support that team and help them win.

Actions speak louder than words.

If they promise their best efforts and follow that up with action, they will get results.

A city without vision gets nowhere.

A city lacking cooperation on behalf of its citizenship goes backward.

A city with a vision of greater things gets somewhere.

No city is so great but what it will become a greater city with the cooperation of its citizens.

Some cities get in a rut and stay there.

Most cities that get into a rut get out of it by putting pep into every line of activity and joining in the March of Progress.

Cities must do things worth while to keep in the running.

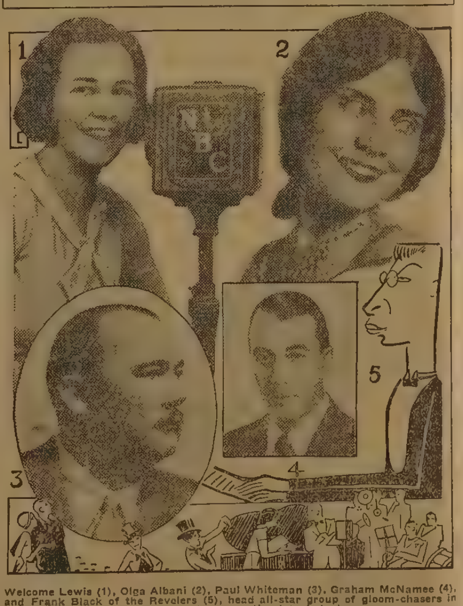
Will Drive Away Depression Blues



Welcome Lewis (1), Olga Albani (2), Paul Whiteman (3), Graham McNamee (4), and Frank Black of the Revelers (5), head all-star group of gloom-chasers in mammoth broadcast to stimulate industry.

DEPRESSION will take a back seat on Monday night, April 4, when General Motors signalizes the opening of the national exhibit of its automobiles and other diversified products simultaneously in 55 cities with an hour's All-Star Exhibit of the air, marking a high spot in 1932 radio history. The nation-wide drive to stimulate the automotive industry and thereby induce prosperity in industry as a whole will begin when the exhibits open the previous Saturday.

More than a hundred entertainers including such headliners as Paul Whiteman and Erno Rapee with their orchestras, the Revelers, Welcome Lewis with her blues, the Countess Olga Albani, Ohman and Arden, Graham McNamee, ace announcer, and a host of other stars will take part in Broadway's biggest broadcast. More than forty stations will be linked in the radio opening of the drive "to put hands to work and bring back prosperity."

Staged in the Times Square Studio atop the famous Amsterdam Theatre in New York City, the revue will be attended by celebrities from the business, social and theatrical worlds. Cameras will click, columnists will be busy jotting down "names" and spectators will peer over shoulders for a glimpse of the aristocracy of the radio world before the lights go out and millions of American listeners hear a program that only a king could have commanded a few decades ago.

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932 this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by its governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed_____ per cent for the year (or years)______, for the purpose or purposes of________," and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed_____per cent for the year (or years)______, for the purpose or purposes of________." The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

B. M. MILLER,
Governor.

MRS. DORA ANN ELIZABETH PATTILLO—AN APPRECIATION

On April 14, 1932, just as the sun in all the glory of noon-day had reached the zenith and began its majestic descent toward the western horizon the noble spirit of Mrs. Saranebeth Pattillo was set free and this world lost one of its beacon lights.

Her shining life deserves to be ranked with the noblest and best along life's white way, and the influence of her life will continue to shine more radiantly as the years pass on.

To her family and those about her she set a stainless example and left their memory beaming with all that makes life beautiful and useful.

She had reached the eighty-eighth milestone in years, yet only in a loss of strength did her body show the ravages of time. She was devoted to the church and as long as she was able was always found at church services whether at home in her own church or away in that of her children. Along with her prayers and attendance went her support. As long as she kept her own home it was a haven for ministers who came into her community.

Her personality was marked by a calm, serene, cheerful, peaceful manner. Kindness pervaded her words as well as her deeds. Self was lost sight of in her interest for those about her.

Though we shall greatly miss her presence, her gentle disposition and kindly smile may each of us emulate her example and never grow old, but with Victor Hugo say: "When I go down to my grave I can say I have finished my days work, but I cannot say I have finished my life. Another days work will begin in the morning. The tomb is not a blind alley, but a thoroughfare. It closes with the twilight to open with the dawn."

The funeral was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. P. A. Lynch, and the Rev. J. M. Metcalf of the Verbena Methodist church. The Verbena quartet, composed of Messrs. F. B. Gordy, Frank Gulledge, Hubert and Chester Messer, sang a number of songs. As she was one of the choice spirits of this world it was altogether fitting that her grave was covered with the most choice flowers that loving friends could bring to her bier.

A FRIEND.

THE TOWN BAND

It is saft to say that no institution of a civic nature gives greater returns for the money and effort expended upon it than does a good town band. The benefits derived through the maintennance of a band touch the entire cultural, social and commercial life of the community.

Members of the organization are enabled to develop their musical talents in pleasant association with their fellows, while the discipline necessary to their successful advancement is most desirable for boys and young men.

After the band is capable of playing in public its presence adds immeasurably to parades, ceremonies and celebrations of every kind, while its regular concerts are a source of enjoyment for the entire citizenship.

As a business proposition, a good band is of the greatest value in advertising its town. The better the band the better the advertisement. of course In some localities it is the custom for merchants' associations to take the band occasionally on good-will trips to various rural communities in their trade territory. Such trips invariably result in closer relations and consequently increased trade.

It does not take a large town to maintain a good band; in fact, some of the best amateur bands are found in towns of less than 1,000 population. With earnest and willing members, a capable instructor and reasonable support from the leading citizens a good band may be developed anywhere.

A town that does not possess a band is overlooking one of the most valuable agencies for its social and commercial advancement.

Cullman County 4-H girls completed 919 articles for home improvement during March. Among them were linens, bedroom furnishings, and kitchen articles. In addition 289 girls planted flowers and shrubbery and made walks.

By producing better beef cattle J. K. Knowles of Fitzpatrick, Ala., received a premium of more than one cent per pound over ordinary cattle. He sold on the Montgomery market after feeding a ration of corn and cottonseed meal.

Jemison F. F. A. News

The F. F. A. chapter was called to order at its regular meeting hour last Friday by Mr. Alton Cobb. The minutes were read by Mr. Herbert Conway and then the meeting went about its duties.

A committee was appointed by Alton Cobb to get up a program to be presented Friday morning in chapel. The committee consisted of three. They were Wilson Clements, Joyce Howard, and Jesse Splawn.

We had with us at our F. F. A. meeting Mr. Pearson from Auburn. He was giving demonstrations and lectures on the nitrogen used by farmers. The two classifications were organic and inorganic. His whole purpose was to warn farmers against using the inorganic nitrogen until it would hurt them. "To use it," he said, "this acid-forming fertilizer will decrease your yield per acre. This is caused from the acid souring the ground and you can't have a stand of anything so long as you use it without something to base it and this is accomplished by using one to two pounds of lime to each pound of sulphate of ammonia." He favored nitrate of soda, but our vocational teacher, Prof. J. P. Montgomery, said that one ton of sulphate of ammonia was worth one ton eight hundred pounds of nitrate of soda and was cheaper he added.

Pilgrims Rest News

Health of this community is fine at present. Farmers have been very busy these beautiful spring days.

Our Sunday school here is moving on very nicely now with a large attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Williams were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kendrick Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Browning and Mrs. Mary Apperson spent Sundpay with Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Apperson.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Sims of Bessemer spent the week end with relatives here.

Miss Conner and Miss Evelyn Deramus spent the week end with Miss Mollie Belle Ousley.

The party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Ousley Thursday night was enjoyed by a large crowd. It was given for Miss Leila Belle Smith as her school closed at Pilgrim Friday. We all regret very much to see her leave, as everyone seemed to think so much of her. She was such a fine girl and school teacher. We are hoping she will visit us again this summer. She gave a picnic on the creek Friday for her school and patrons. We all enjoyed the day fine, as we made pictures, played games and made ice cream. Also spread a real nice dinner at noon. Below are the ones who were present: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Keener, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Ousley and children, Mrs. G. B. Williams and children, Mrs. Lou Langston and children, Mrs. Sarah Langston and children, Mrs. Walter Kendrick and children, Mrs. Ruth Apperson and baby, Mrs. J. T. Abbott and children, Mrs. Kent Abbott and baby, Mrs. J. L. Abbott and little son, James, Mrs. George Chandler and children, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Turner and children, also several of her school pupils.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Doctor Slaughter, a unique Methodist minister of the North Alabama conference, was holding a meeting in his church without results. He announced at 11 A. M. that he would close the meeting that night if no one acceded to his proposition. A dozen young men in the community got their heads together, and agreed that they would go to the altar that night to keep the meeting in progress. When the appeal was made the young gentlemen walked down the aisle to the delight of the preacher, The next night they did the same. The third evening these young gentlemen tanked up on whiskey, but to keep the meeting from closing, they walked down to the altar and knelt for prayer. Dr. Slaughter dropped down among them and prayed this prayer: "Lord, here are a dozen young men who act like mourners, they even look like mourners, but if my nose deceive me not they do not smell like mourners." The meeting closed that night. Not long since I ran into a man who did not smell like a mourner, and yet he should have been. He should have been mourning because he was such a fool, because he was breaking the law, because he was spending his money foolishly and because he was breaking the heart of a loved one. A drinking man loses the capacity to mourn, unless he gets in jail.

A few Sundays nights ago some negroes near Castleberry thought to celebrate the closing of the Lord's Day by gathering in the home of one of their number for a big dance. Before the fiddle was in tune there was a roar in the elements and a tornado swept down upon that house and negroes, planks, fiddle and all went scattering through the woods. All the Lord had to do to break up that irreverent conduct on His day was to just open his lips a bit and half way blow. Some folks will say that the tornado striking that house was just a happen so. No such stuff. Sometimes God's patience is limited, and He shows His power to make men think. The wonder to me is that when God looks down and see so much irreverent conduct on His Holy Day, that He does not open his lips wide and blow hard. When I see how some folks spend the Sabbath I am really surprised that God does not blow them into kingdom come.

Thanks to the State Health Department, we have had a crew of men for more than a week going from house to house throughout the storm area cleaning out the wells and treating them against possible infection. They have found almost everything that you can mention in the wells except oil. In one well they found a large cured ham, a well grown country dog, several cooking pans and pots, an axe, screws, bolts and bushels of fine rocks. Those seeing the sights coming out of the wells are convinced that they should have been cleaned and treated. The tornado of sin that has been sweeping through our country for the past twelve years, has well nigh filled the souls of men with the rubbish of the world. Our trouble is that we think that we do not need a heart cleaning. Society, business, politics, all alike are drinking from our heart wells that are full of putrifying things. No wonder that we have the Racketeers, the kidnappers and the bootleggers. Would that some kind spirit would come through our country and give our hearts a cleaning, and then treat us within against possible infection.

I was walking along the cement side walk, and looking just ahead I read this sign, "Always Reliable." That sign looked good to me and I kept my eye on it until I was opposite where it was hanging. I looked about for a business firm of some kind, but the sign was backed up with nothing but a vacant lot. I wonder if some wag had just put that sign there to let people know that the only thing in that town that was "Always Reliable" was a vacant lot. To my sorrow I have found lots of people, lots of politicians, lots of business houses and lots of church members who were not reliable. If you think that folks will not "Jilt" you, just try them out. I have found a few people who were reliable everywhere you touched them, but they are few and far between. After all, I guess the sign was hanging where it belonged.

One day I was standing by a mud puddle and I noticed that two Dirt Dobbers would come and go together. I observed that one of the wasps would gather up a ball of mud and go away with it, while the other wasp would go away empty handed. I wonder if the Dirt Dobber species had drones like the bees. I followed them to the place where they were building their house. There I observed them at work. One spread its mud, while the other skeeted water on it to make it smooth. Then they would fly back for another load. The truth was that one wasp carried mud and the other carried water, and together they built their home. That is what I call Co-operation. There is a task for every member in every family. If every member of every family would do his own stuff, and do it in harmony with all the other members of the family, we too could build our homes. If every member of every church would do his own stuff, in harmony with every other member, we too could build up the kingdom of God.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT is paid by THE PEOPLE

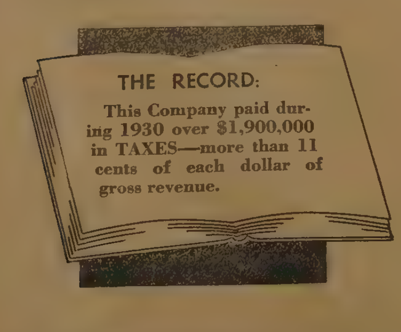
THE average cost of electricity to the 75,000 homes served by Alabama Power Company was approximately $35.00 during 1930.

The average rate per kilowatt hour paid by these household customers is going steadily downward, being 4.87 cents per kilowatt hour now. It was more than 37.1% higher back in 1926.

The cost of government—Federal, State and Local taxes (over the U. S.) in 1913 was $135.00 per family. In 1929 this cost had risen to $460.00 an increase of three and one half times.

The cost of government per family is thirteen times the cost of electricity to the home served by Alabama Power Company.



THE RECORD:

This Company paid during 1930 over $1,900,000 in TAXES—more than 11 cents of each dollar of gross revenue.

Marbury F. F. A. Plant SoybeansCooperatively

After a careful survey of the farm crops of our community, the Marbury F. F. A. members found that the farmers were not planting enough hay crops to supply their needs. At the last meeting we decided to buy one bushel of O-too-tan soybeans seed, taking the money from the treasury and plant them on our field crop projects. The members agreed to harvest the seed next fall and return one half of the seed to the committee and let them distribute them among the farmers and keep the other half for the expense of raising them. In this way we hope to introduce soybeans into the Marbury community.

There lies a little city in the hills;
White are its roofs, dim is each dwelling's door,
And peace with perfect rest its bosom fills.

There the pure mist, the pity of the sea,
Comes as a white, soft hand, and reaches o'er
And touches its still face most tenderly.
Unstirred and calm, amid our shifting years,
Lo! where it lies, far from the clash and roar,
With quiet distance blurred, as if thru tears.
O heart that prayest so for God to send
Some loving messenger to go before
And lead the way to where thy longings end.

Be sure, be very sure, that soon will come
His kindest angel, and through that still door
Into the Infinite love will lead thee home.

and gave it a good bed for the night. It slept as if all was well. When asked if they intended to keep the baby, Mrs. Gore replied, "Sure, we are going to keep it. I have already learned to love it and it is so sweet. We hope to give it the best home we can."

After the reporter had viewed the sleeping tot, Mrs. Gore showed the things she has already purchased for the baby. Shoes, blankets, dresses, a cap, material for more dresses, and other articles for a baby's comfort.

At the time of this writing, no idea had been found as to who abandoned the baby. Undoubtedly the party knew whose home it was, judging from the note left. When the News reporter left, the youngster was resting in a regular baby's bed, and was being prepared to receive his bottled meal, which comes every three hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Gore have no children, and this youngster has without a doubt found a good home, where it will receive the undivided attention of his foster parents, and Mrs. Gore's mother, Mrs. Clerkley.

RAPID WORK BEING SHOWN RELIEF HERE

150 Cases Have Been Closed With Awards Made With 190 More Coming

Now that cases in the storm area of this county are practically through with investigations, rapid work is being seen in making relief awards to the needy families and closing the cases, according to C. E. Stapp, general chairman of relief, and Mrs. Vasilike Foster, area director of the Red Cross.

Up through last Tuesday night, there had been 150 cases to receive awards, and considered closed. It was stated that there are approximately 190 more to be investigated and receive awards.

These awards through Tuesday night make a total of expenditures for such items of $13,236.53, it was stated, and consists of buildings for the farmers, household goods and livestock. This is in addition to the large amount of food and clothing that is still to be issued to the stricken families from the relief headquarters at Clanton, Maplesville, Jemison and Thorsby. One of the notable contributions outside of cash was a carload of hay sent in by some residents of Brown, Ala. Their names were given as follows: R. B. Wallace, H. B. Gilden, S. M. Bondurant, Mrs. J. C. Smith and J. A. Hare.

The Red Cross nurse, Miss Giles has been exceedingly busy lately, redressing injuries of the persons from the storms.

MEETING HERE ON SATURDAY FOR TAXPAYERS

To Be Held at Courthouse At One O'Clock; Speakers To Explain Matters

Arrangements were made in Clanton last week to have a meeting at the courthouse here which is of great importance to the taxpayers of this county, according to Mrs. Mabel Jones West, chairman of the Taxpayers Economy League, with headquarters at Birmingham.

This meeting will be held next Saturday afternoon at one o'clock. Among the out-of-town guests will be Mrs. Mabel Jones West and Judge Herbert J. Ward, of Birmingham, who are interested in this matter of taxes, advocating the policy as has been expressed in the editorial columns of the News, calling the people's attention to the increasing taxation.

"We are not interested in politics," Mrs. West stated, "we want the people to understand from the beginning that the movement we are sponsoring does not concern politics, and is not seeking endorsement of any candidate for public office.

Judge Tate Endorsed By Chilton Citizens

A real rally meeting was held in Clanton last Thursday night, in the interest of the campaign of Judge F. Loyd Tate, candidate for Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit, composed of the counties of Chilton, Elmore and Autauga.

This meeting was attended by leading citizens of Clanton and the entire county, and was held without the knowledge of Judge Tate. His candidacy was fully endorsed by these citizens, and he was acclaimed as the man for the job.

Judge Tate is now presiding over this circuit, having been appointed to fill the place of the late Judge George F. Smoot, deceased. Since being placed in that position, Judge Tate has won the admiration of the people of Chilton County, through his fairness in his courts.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS ANNOUNCE ANNUAL PLAY

The Senior Class of the Chilton County High School has announced as the title of their class play "The 18 Carat Boob." This play is what is generally known as a "scream" and is to be presented at the high school auditorium on Friday night, May 6th, beginning at eight o'clock. It is a comedy in three acts, and further information will be given next week, it was stated.

BOYS' WEEK TO BE OBSERVED BY KIWANIANS

Large Group Of Boy Scouts To Be Guest Of Club At Luncheon Today

Always something a little different—always something worthwhile, seems to be the activity of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, and today there will be a large group of Boy Scouts as guests of the club at the regular weekly luncheon here. The program will be in charge of the Scouts and their leaders, observing Boys' Week.

Boys' Week opens officially on April 30th and runs through April 7th. John J. Sigwald, Boy Scout executive will also be present at the Kiwanis luncheon today to assist the boys with their program.

Considerable interest is being shown Scout work in this county, according to Mr. Sigwald, and the program today promises to be very interesting.

Last Thursday at the regular weekly luncheon of the club, Mrs. John C. Page of Clanton gave a very interesting talk on gardens, flowers and shrubbery, in observance of Garden Week. This talk was thoroughly enjoyed by those present, and created considerable interest among the Kiwanians on the subject of flowers and shrubbery, which will no doubt result in the beautifying of various spots near here, according to John Hollis, president of the club.

Judge Leon McCord Coming Here Soon

Through the efforts of citizens of Clanton, Judge Leon McCord, of Montgomery will be in this county on Saturday, May 7th, and is to speak to the people in the sections stricken by the recent tornadoes.

The message that this beloved and well known man will bring to the unfortunate people will be something that should not be missed. Just where the speaking will be was not announced, but the time and place will be announced in next week's issue of the paper. Watch for this announcement, and see that every family in the storm stricken areas of this county, hear this message from Judge McCord.

PARENTS OF ABANDONED BABY FOUND

Mother Says She Wants Mr. And Mrs. Gore To Keep Child in Their Home

While little Willie James, the three months old baby that was abandoned on the porch of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Gore in Clanton one night last week, was enjoying a nice nap, or partaking of his bottled meal, his mother was telling of how she sent the baby to the Gore home, and of writing the note that was found with the baby.

The names of the parents are being withheld, but it was stated, the mother felt no reluctance in saying the little black-haired, blue-eyed baby was hers and that she believed Mr. and Mrs. Gore would give it a good home. She said they were just not able to even feed the baby, and give it proper clothes and care.

It was found last Sunday who the parents were and where they lived. An attractive mother and a hearty hard-working father, yet conditions are so that they can barely make a living. The baby must have a good home, the mother stated.

Mr. Gore stated to a representative of this newspaper Monday that he had already started legal steps to adopt the baby, and that his wife is certainly becoming fond of the youngster.

The baby was found Monday night of last week in the front porch of the Gore home in the Gowan Addition, in Clanton shortly after ten o'clock. A note was also left with the child, stating, " * * * I want you to treat him as if he was your own."

Big Cat Race For May 3, 1932, Is Announced

According to Mr. Spain, who operates the ferry at Log Cabin Beach, he has purchased a big bob-cat, a really wild one, which he proposes to turn loose next Tuesday morning, May 3rd, at three o'clock. And shortly afterward a great many dogs will be unleashed to take up his trail. A real race and lots of thrills are expected.

Mr. Spain invites all hunters with dogs to be present and join in the race. "Bring all your dogs," he says, "and if you haven't any dogs you wish to enter in the race, come on and listen in anyway." There will be no charges except a small free will donation, which is expected to take care of the actual expense of the cat, etc. Don't forget the date and the hour—May 3rd, Tuesday morning at three o'clock. Meet at Log Cabin Beach.

DR. GRAGG ESTABLISHES OFFICE NEAR HIS RESIDENCE HERE

Dr. V. J. Gragg, widely known physician and surgeon of Clanton, stated to a representative of the News Monday that he had established his offices in the building on the Maplesville highway, across the street from his residence.

There, he has already installed his X-ray machine, and says he intends to equip the building as a modern infirmity. He wishes to have his friends and patients to know where his location is now. The building Dr. Gragg has, will make an ideal infirmary if he carires out his present plans, and his friends and patients will be glad to know this.

EDITORIAL

THE ONLY HOPE FOR DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS

With the idea in mind that possibly the voters of Chilton County have their minds centered upon the election of local officers and perhaps are not given to consider the other offices of importance to be filled, this newspaper feels that it should bring to the attention of the voters some very important and very timely thoughts.

Regardless of political affiliations, we wager that everyone will confess the nation is in the throes of one of the worst financial conditions experienced in years, unless there is pointed out some official who has had a finger in on some 'political pie' for a number of years and does not feel conditions as the farmer or merchant does. Whether the blame for this condition can be placed on any one person or political party, it is obvious that politics play a large hand in all matters of the country. Back in 1928, the campaign cry of the Republicans in their efforts toward supporting Herbert Hoover for President, was "Hoover and Prosperity." That slogan will be remembered in years to come due to its utter failure to mature during the administration of that man and its demoralizing effect upon the farmer, merchant and others. not only those who cast their ballot in 1928 under the Republican emblem but also those straight-forward citizens who had the grit to stand for the Democratic party.

It is not our purpose here to sponsor any individual candidate, insofar as Chilton County is concerned there is no competition in the Democratic party for local offices. But both parties in Chilton County are units of great national parties. In that sense every voter is given an opportunity to use his influence in national affairs.

Most anyone will also readily admit that so far as governmental affairs are concerned they are in serious condition, and in the past four years, have grown from bad to worse, with apparently no effort being made to better them. Now, the question is before the people: "Do You Want another Four Years of Hoover Administration and Reversed Prosperity?"

The Republican ticket went over the top as a winner in 1928, the choice of the majority of the people. It went over the top in Chilton County, and Republican officials were elected. The names of the Republican officials, county and national, all were on the Republican ticket and if the one reading this voted that ticket in 1928, he or she voted in the very conditions that are now existing in governmental affairs. Are we to have four more years of this, continually growing from bad to worse simply because the majority of the people expressed their desire for men not capable of handling the affairs of the United States.

It is not the purpose of this editorial to attack individuals in the Republican party. But its program and its policies have controlled national affairs through a period of years. The time is swiftly arriving for the voters to say whether or not we shall have a continuance of this same leadership. We urge all persons to think well of the responsibility which a party in power at Washington has to the American people and judge carefully whether or not the present one in control has discharged that obligation. Think seriously whether you can go into the Republican party and by so doing endorse a continuance of this leadership for four more years.

We are well aware of the ghastly economic chaos in which America has struggled so terriffically. We also realize that this has happened despite promises four years ago of unprecedented prosperity. This newspaper contends that Republican leadership has signally failed in living up to its promises, and that it will not be wise to continue it, by an endorsement at the polls.

Herbert Hoover, it is conceded, will be the nominee on the Republican ticket for President of the United States again in the election this year. His name will appear on the Republican ticket if he is the nominee, which is inevitable. On the bottom of the opposing ticket will be these words, "By casting this ballot I do pledge myself to abide by the result of this primary election and to aid and support all the nominees in the ensuing general election."

The only hope for the coming four years for the people, Democrats or Republican, is in the Democratic Party, where men like Franklin D. Roosevelt are being placed before the people as the Democratic nominee for President of the United States. It is the only hope for years to come, for men and women and the youth of today and years to come.

It is true, the Democrats have the best opportunity in years to elect a Democratic President and are going to take advantage of this opportunity. To assure this, there are names of sixteen men on the Democratic ticket as delegates to the national convention. Eight of these men have pledged themselves to vote for Roosevelt as the nominee. In an article in this issue will be found the names of these men. This is an assurity that Roosevelt will be nominated—the man to become the next president of this country, and this opportunity presents itself on the Democratic ticket. Shall it be four more years of Hoover and 'Prosperity'?

We ask you to weigh these matters carefully, realizing that when you go into one or the other primary elections held in Chilton County that you are not only selecting individual candidates, but that you are casting a vote toward determining far-reaching national policies for the next four years.

We contend that present conditions warrant a change in leadership. We believe that the Democratic party has this leadership. You are invited to cast your vote in the Democratic primary next Tuesday, to march with the great throngs under the Democratic banner and on to victory next fall. You make your choice at the polls next Tuesday, May 3rd.

Red Cross Finishing Up Work In Chilton

In a report from the Red Cross Headquarters in Clanton, it was stated that they are about to finish their work in this county, in the storm sections.

The report also stated that it is the desire of the Red Cross to receive all outstanding bills against them as quickly as possible, as they will soon end their work here and wish to attend to these matters at once.

DR. AND MRS. J. E. EDGAR LEFT TUES. FOR WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar left Tuesday for Washington, D. C., where Dr. Edgar has been called on business. He requested the News to state that he would be out of his office until May 15th.

Isabella Senior Class Play Saturday Night

The Senior Class of Isabella has selected this year for its play, "A Poor Married Man," a play which abounds in clever dialogue and lively situations. The poor professor's marital experiences with two wives, his terror of his mother-in-law and the escapades of the black Jupiter furnish two hours of fun that will be remembered for a long time. Eight o'clock Saturday night. Admisison 10 and 20 cents. The cast of characters follows:

Poor John Wise, Morris Keene; Mrs. Iona Ford, Myrtle Durbin; Jupiter Jackson, James Deason; Billy Blake, Marvin Durbin; Miss Zoie Ford, Ruth Oden; Dr. Matthew Graham, R. C. Veazey; Miss June Graham, Gertie Mae Owen; Rosalind Wilson, Mildred Durbin.

Young Man Commits Suicide Last Week

Marshal Peters, a young man residing about eight miles east of Clanton ended his life last Thursday afternoon by firing a load of shot into his heart, according to reports from the office of Coroner J. Mell Martin.

Peters is said to have been hunting turkeys with a borrowed double-barrreled shotgun, and while near the stock lot of a neighbor, pressed the barrel of the gun against his breast emptying one barrel into his heart. Domestic troubles are said to have been the reason for his act.

Peters is the son of Robert Peters. He is survived by his widow, one child, mother, father, three brothers and one sister. Funeral services were held last Friday.

RABIES SERUM FOR DOGS WILL BE GIVEN SOON

Dates Set For Giving Animals Treatment According To Recent Ordinance

Last week's issue of the News stated that anti-rabies treatment would be given to dogs in the town of Clanton without charge, and that an ordinance recently adopted by the Town Council of Clanton made anyone failing to have this treatment given their dogs, would be subject to a fine.

This movement was sponsored by the Clanton Study Club and is being pushed with the cooperation of the town officials and Dr. P. T. Hinkle and Dr. W. L. Parrish. veterinarians of this county, according to C. H. Pipes, city clerk.

The dates set for the giving of this treatment to the animals are Wednesday and Thursday, May 11th and 12th. Dr. Hinkle will have as his headquarters on these two days, the stables of George McCain, in Clanton, and Dr. Parrish will be located at the office of the Farm Bureau here.

No charge is made for this work. These doctors are giving their services these two days, and the serum is being donated by the town. This ordinance applies only to the city jurisdiction of Clanton, and anyone failing to have this treatment given will be subject to a fine as set out in the ordinance.

It has been announced that Frank Massey has sold his interest in the firm of Holcombe and Massey, of Clanton to Mr. Holcombe, and is no longer connected with that store, which is successor to the business of W. W. Fox.

Eighteen Arrests Are Reported By Sheriff

During the past several days, eighteen arrests were made by Sheriff Gillespie and his deputies, according to a report from that office Tuesday. These arrests include 4 for violation of the prohibition law, 5 for transporting liquor, 2 for assault and battery, 2 for using abusive language, one for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, one for manufacturing whiskey and possession of a still, and three for petty larceny.

The still that was captured Tuesday morning was in full operation, and said to have been located in the north western part of the county. The petty larceny cases were for stealing chickens, it was stated.

DR. BARSON GETTING MANY CALLS FOR GLASSES HERE

Dr. S. A. Barson, optometrist of Montgomery, filled his regular appointment at the Exchange Hotel in Clanton Monday and stated that he has already given many examinations and fitted many glasses for people in the storm stricken area of this county.

Some time ago, Dr. Barson announced he would give free examination and make no charge for glasses to those persons having lost their glasses in the recent storms in this county, and has received considerable favorable comment on this action.

The grocery store just opened next door to the First National Bank, and managed by W. J. Billingsley, is certainly attractively arranged and neat. In my opinion, it is the attractiveness of a place of business, as well as of prices, that makes success.

MORE JOBS ARE NEEDED REPORT LEGIONNAIRES

Kiwanis Club Issues Appeal To People To Join In This Movement

The greatest trouble to prevent the drive for jobs for unemployed of this county is the shortage of jobs, according to A. L. Robinson, employment officer for the American Legion post here and Cohen E. Stapp, officer for the Kiwanis Club.

A second and stronger plea is issued to the people to file their list of odd jobs with either of the above men, so that some person really needing the work, can be contacted with the job.

It doesn't have to be a week's work, nor even a day's work, just a few hours will do, and those applying for the jobs are not particular.

R. M. FOSHEE WILL BEGIN DELIVERING MILK HERE

According to an announcement elsewhere in this issue, Mr. R. M. Foshee, will on Saturday, April 30, begin making regular rounds in Clanton, delivering milk. Mr. Foshee is well known here and is experienced in this business. He invites those wanting to get good milk regularly to call or see him.

Negro Killed In Very Unusual Way

An accident Wednesday night of last week, which occurred in a most unusual manner, resulted in the death of Wyman Peoples, a young negro man of near Thorsby.

According to the story given the News, Peoples had caught a ride on a large freight truck, going south, and when he started to alight from the truck about six miles north of Clanton on the Birmingham highway a car said to have been driven by Ernest Arant of Clanton, was passing the truck, from the rear.

The negro jumped right into the front of Arant's car, and it was said that he struck the car before he struck the pavement. An investigation was held and the accident reported as being unavoidable.

County Council P.-T. A.

The County Council of P.-T. A. will hold a meeting April 30, 1932, at 10:30 o'clock at the High School Auditorium, Clanton, Ala.

Our District Chairman, Mrs. Clayton Rogers, of Speigner, Ala., will be with us. A good program is being outlined.

MRS. F. A. SHANKS,
County Chairman.

SHIPMENT OF STRAWBERRIES BEGINS HERE

Several Cars Have Been Sent From This Section Since Last Saturday

The strawberry season in Chilton County is getting into full swing now, judging from reports coming from the associations in this county.

Several days ago scorching sun rays tended to slacken the ripening of the berries, and then recently a few showers of rain hastened the ripening. The heavy, driving rain and wind of last Monday night did no damage to the crops that could be ascertained at the time of this writing, it was stated.

The Thorsby Fruit & Berry Growers Association loaded four cars last Monday, and in a report from C. R. Foss, manager of the association Tuesday afternoon, he stated that they expected to load three cars then.

The latest reports from Jemison stated that association had loaded one car, while the Clanton association reports six cars up through Tuesday of this week.

Authorities on berries in this county state that prices are not so attractive at this time, while the berries are showing up fairly well. The low price, it was stated, is due to the market being flooded with berries from many other sections.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

In the tornado that swept through Chilton County a mother saw that her home was going. She reached for her six months old babe and rushed into the yard. She tried to battle against the winds, but all in vain. She was pushed against a small pine sapling nearby and holding to it she was able to sit down on the ground with her feet and arms locked around the tree, and with her baby between her body and the body of the tree. The wind wrung the top from the trunk of the pine, but the mother clung on for life. She was sitting there when the storm was gone, and strange to say, planks and brush and logs were piled all around her, but not a piece of anything was within four feet of the mother and her babe. Small pebbles and trash had cut the mother's arms and face, but the babe was untouched. Who kept the trees from falling on that mother? Who held an unseen power around that tree and piled the logs and brush around that mother and babe and never allowed one piece to strike them. You may call it luck, you may call it a freak of the storm, but I call it God. "His eye is on the sparrow and I know that he cares for me."

A family in a happy home were sitting about the fire when they heard something that sounded like a freight train approaching in great speed. Without saying a word the entire family arose and ran to a corner of the room. They were huddled there when the tornado struck their building. When the storm was gone they began to look about as best they could in the dark and they found that the entire building was gone with the exception of the corner where the family had huddled. The family and a few planks that stood around them were all that remained after the blow. Who told each member of that family to rush into that corner of the room? Who stood facing the storm and commanded it to leave untouched that corner of the building? Again you may say that it was the hand of luck. You may say that it was another freak of the tornado. Say what you please, but I say that it was God. God has the power to temper every wind that blows.

A bright little boy of four summers looked about him and he saw that his home was flying apart and he could not understand. His childish heart prompted him to make a run for his mother. The lights all went out and the lad thought that he had seized his mother's arm. He felt himself lifted and then he was up in the elements going. In the hospital he said, "I felt myself away up among the trees, but I held on to Mama and I knew that I would be all right." Those who rescued the family knew that the boy was holding on to a plank and not his mother, for they were wide apart when found. Even if the little fellow had failed to find his mother in the storm, yet he had a very fine philosophy of life. When our boys and girls will learn to make a rush for mother at the first appearance of danger, they will likely come out all right. How I do wish that I could get the boys and girls of the teen age to do as this little lad did. It means much for them to hold on to mother in the days of testing and during the stormy period of temptation.

Over in the Northeastern part of Chilton County, far down toward the Coosa swamp, it is said that there are about five acres of land that are practically covered with the rubbish of the tornado. It seems that this terrible monster stalked through the county for forty miles and gathered up house tops, furniture, live stock, trees of all kinds, planks and produce and sacked them and carried them in his arms until reaching this point. At this place the bottom of his sack seemed to have bursted, and he spilled his spoils and they were sufficient to bury five acres of land. The tornado had wrought destruction and had gathered up its spoils until its arms were so full that it had to disgorge. Doubtless a vacuum gave way and this amount of splintered material fell to earth. The World War was the most awful tornado of wickedness ever sweeping over the human race. It wrought destruction and ruin for the world for four years. Spiritual, civic and social life today are deluged under the falling rubbish of that tornado. A vacuum seems to have given way, and we are deluged with rubbish, the back wash, of the War.

I have seen many happy faces this week. Saw one man who was so happy he could hardly speak. The Red Cross had allotted him sufficient funds to put the top back on his home. Others were happy because they had been allotted lumber. windows, nails and other necessary things with which to rebuid. Saw two mothers whose eyes were full of joy because a friend had given them five dollars with which to replace some of the cooking things that they so much needed. These noble spirits were not begging. Bless their brave hearts, they were going to do the best they could and not whimper. How happy it made them when they knew that there were hearts that cared. The most of us think sometimes that this is a wicked old world, but it is better than we think. It takes a trying need to call out the best that is in us, but when it comes, we are made to see that the world is not all bad. God bless this altruistic spiirt that makes the human race to be moulded into one mighty brotherhood.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

For several weeks the pastor has been on the pad going from house to house. He is now completing his second round of pastoral calls since Christmas. Many homes were tagged with a card. Sorry to have missed you. All that we ask is that you show your appreciation of these calls by attending church. That is where you belong every Sunday.

Sunday school at 9:45, L. C. Warr, Superintendent. We have a department for all ages.

Preaching next Sunday at 11 A. M. by the pastor. Night service at 7:30.

We have a Bulletin that is second to none and we want you to have a copy each Sunday. If you are hindered from being at church, ask some one to get your copy for you.

Last Sunday night a faithful member of our church could not be present, and she phoned the pastor. Sad it is that so few people love the church that way. Most members are absent and say nothing. Wonder what God thinks of such indifference

PAINS
QUIT COMING

"When I was a girl, I suffered periodically with terrible pains in my back and sides. Often I would bend almost double with the intense pain. This would last for hours and I could get no relief.

"I tried almost everything that was recommended to me, but found nothing that would help until I began taking Cardui. My mother thought it would be good for me, so she got a bottle of Cardui and started me taking it. I soon improved. The bad spells quit coming. I was soon in normal health."

Pleasant Grove News

Rev. J. C. Miller was at Pleasant Grove to perform his given duties. Mr. Miller came alone this time. The reason his family did not come is not known. They were missed by us all.

Our morning lesson was enjoyed by all. The text was taken from the following Scriptures: Matt. 22:1-14; Luke 14th from 16th verse finishing the chapter; and from St. John 21st, 15 verse. The sermon was well fitted to the time.

The evening message was delivered in words and figures. This lesson drew the attention of the whole audience. The text was taken from Luke 21st, 24th verse, finishing chapter. His high point was God's punishment of disobedience and his restoration of the Jews to their homeland, Palestine. He also referred to Lev. 25, 26 chapters, Chron. 36th, 21-31 verses. Everybody is invited to attend the services at Pleasant Grove every fourth Sunday in each month. Come and bring someone with you.

Bro. Ander Hatcher was united with the Pleasant Grove church Sunday, April 24th. Let us pray that we might be worthy to be prayed for and to pray for friends.

No. 6

State of Alabama
A PROCLAMATION
GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the election be held on the First Tuesday in May in the year 1932, this date being more than three months from and after the final adjournment of the regular session at which the said amendment was proposed, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 3rd day of May, 1932, being the first Tuesday in May, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:—

> ARTICLE —. "(a) That the municipalities of the Cities of Eufaula and Talladega, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said cities of Eufaula and Talladega shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (b) That the municipality of the City of Decatur, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may from and after the adoption of this amendment, levy and collect an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation; provided further, that a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by said municipality for that purpose may vote an additional tax not to exceed three-tenths of one per centum in any one year for any special purpose or purposes, which tax shall be levied, collected and used exclusively for the purpose or purposes for which the same is voted; provided that the total tax levied for all purposes by said municipality shall not exceed one and one-half per centum during any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (c) That the municipality of the City of Bridgeport through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto, authorized to levy and collect, may without an election therefor, levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, based on the value of property situated therein as assessed for state taxation during the preceding year, to be used exclusively for the purpose of paying its bonded indebtedness and the interest thereon, evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment, or refunding bonds with the interest thereon hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding any bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment; provided however, that when and after all of said bonded indebtedness of the said city existing at the time of the adoption of this amendment, and whether evidenced by its bonds and interest coupons outstanding at the time of the adoption of this amendment or by refunding bonds hereafter issued for the purpose of refunding said bonded indebtedness or any part thereof, shall have been paid in full, the said additional tax herein authorized may be levied and collected in such amounts and may be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by its governing body and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of said municipality voting upon said proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided, however, that the total taxes levied by said municipality for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of said property as assessed for state taxation. (d) That the municipalities of Attalla and Altoona, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provision of the Constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one per centum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (d-1) That the municipalities of the towns of Red Bay and Parish, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which they are by any other provision of the Constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may each levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one per centum per annum to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the governing body of the municipality, but before any such additional tax can be levied, it must be voted by a majority of the qualified electors of the municipality, voting upon such proposition at an election called by the governing body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes by said towns of Red Bay and Parish shall not exceed one per centum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation. (e) That the adoption of this amendment shall in no wise affect, limit, modify, abridge or impair the right, power or authority of any municipality to levy and collect any and all taxes, whether general or special, which it is now authorized to levy and collect under the Constitution of the State of Alabama, or under any amendment thereto. (f) Each election held under the provisions of this amendment shall be ordered, held, canvassed and may be contested in the same manner as is or may be provided by the Law applicable to the municipal corporations for elections to authorize the issuance of municipal bonds. The ballots used at such elections shall contain the words: "For authorization of additional taxation at a rate not to exceed______ per cent for the year (or years)________, for the purpose or purposes of__________," and, "Against authorization of additional taxation at rate not to exceed______per cent for the year (or years)________, for the purpose or purposes of__________." The rate of taxation proposed shall be printed upon the ballot in the space indicated therefor, and the year or years in which the proposed rate is to apply, and the purpose or purposes for which such tax is to be used, shall be likewise printed in the respective spaces therefor. The voter shall record his choice either for or against authorization of the proposed rate for the proposed purpose or purposes by placing a cross mark before or after the words expressing his choice. Nothing herein contained shall in any wise change or affect the rights of any holder of bonds of said municipal corporations heretofore issued. Elections in each of said municipalities to authorize the levy of such special tax may be held as often as ordered by the governing body thereof, but when a proposition is submitted to the electors of either of said municipalities for authorization to levy a special tax for a specific purpose and such proposition is defeated, no second election for the same purpose shall be held in such municipality within one year thereafter. This amendment shall be self executing and no Legislative Act shall be necessary to put said amendment or any part thereof in force and effect."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 3rd day of May, 1932, in each county of the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 20th day of February, 1932.

IN MEMORY OF JOHN A. POOLE

Death claimed the life of Mr. John A. Poole on March 30, 1932. He died near his old home place where he was born October 3, 1856. He spent about 65 years of his life on his farm and worked from year to year with patience, until three years ago. Since that time he was unable to do active work, but was faithful to the end.

He was well known throughout Chilton County, not only by his good friends, but by his many helpful good deeds done. He lived through his three score and ten years, also lived to see his fifth generation.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Beedie M. Poole and five children, one son and four daughters, Mr. E. J. Poole, Tuscaloosa, Mrs. T. A. Garner, Bessemer, Mrs. D.T. Reid, Calera, Mrs. J .L. Abbott and Miss Willie Poole, Pletcher, Ala.

We wish to thank our good friends and neighbors for their kindness and thoughtfulness during the death of our father and husband.

Rev. Bentley of Billingsley conducted the funeral services at the home. The interment took place at Pilgrim's Rest cemetery with Spigener in charge.

Encouragement for the Farmer

The most encouraging sign of the times we have seen, so far as the farmer is concerned, is the estimate of the U. S. Department of Agriculture that the Winter Wheat crop will be about 42 percent less than last year and 17 percent less than the average of the five-year period of 1924-28. In those years the average production of Winter wheat was 551 million bushels. Last year the farmers of the nation produced 787 million bushels. No wonder wheat prices stayed down!

This year there will be only 458 million bushels of Winter wheat to supply the market's needs. That will inevitable result in a better price, probably a profitable price, for those who have it to sell. Nearly 14 percent of the lands which have been devoted to wheat growing were not sown for this year's crop. Drought in the Great Plains area is largely responsible for this fact, however, rather than intelligent foresight on the part of wheat farmers.

The importance of anything which will tend to give any considerable part of the nation's farmers a better price and a larger profit extends to everybody. Not every farmer is a wheat grower, by any means. But wheat is one of the five great agricultural staples—the others are corn, cotton, tobacco and potatoes—upon which the prosperity, not only of the farmer but of the whole nation, depend. There has been overproduction in all of these for the past two or three years. Growers have not received enough to enable them to buy the commodities they need. That is true of amost everybody else, and the vicious circle will not be broken until some large class or group finds itself with some surplus money to spend.

If the Winter wheat growers get a fair price for their crop, as present indications suggest they are likely to, that may be the one thing needed to start the public to spending money again instead of being afraid to let go of a penny. And that will start us back on the road to prosperity.

Why Not Outlaw the Gangsters?

The suggestion is made by the dean of Duke University Law School that legislators might well consider a revival of the old English statutes of outlawry, as a means of checking the activities of racketeers and gangsters.

Under those old laws, any person known to be an habitual violator of the laws, whether convicted under the rules of evidence or not, could be declared an outlaw—that is, without the protection of the law. It became the duty of every citizen, then, to kill such an outlaw on sight. His property was forfeited and his family prohibited from carrying on his name.

That was an effective means of dealing out summary justice. It has been used in the United States more than once in the past century and a half. The suggestion will make the tender-hearted shudder, but so did the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby.

We think the time is here for the tightening up of the criminal laws. As long as crooks can corrupt legislative bodies and courts, they will continue to flourish and imperil the lives and property of honest men. We think the taxpayers are paying too much now for the board and lodging of prisoners in jails. We think it might be a good idea to consider the more effective and economical way of ridding the nation of known criminals by declaring them outlaws.

Really Expensive Utility Service

[illegible] words are found in an editorial in the Suffolk, Virginia, News-Herald, of March 9, which says: "Some [illegible] said the service of utilities costs a 'powerful' lot [illegible]y, but the most expensive type of public utility ser[illegible] is that which does not serve. Undependable public service would be costly if it were given absolutely free. With business and all the affairs of men keyed up to a high tension, dependent upon the acme of service at all hours of the day and night, what would happen to the nation if it were suddenly thrown back upon a nondescript, haphazard type of service, unregulated, unco-ordinated and minus the marvelous precision that dominates the modern twentieth-century utility with its matchless reserve of equipment and intelligence? So well are we served and so perfect is the service that we accept it as a matter of course without due appreciation, we fear, of the mighty effort and expense it requires to meet insatiable modern demands upon our utility companies."

The bitterest enemy of the great private utility industry could not deny that it has done wonders in improving service—at a continuously dropping cost to the consumer. Not so long ago, in the day of small local plants, there was nothing remarkable in the service being shut off at almost regular intervals due to plant breakdown. Nowadays, even when a great storm sweeps across an area, snapping poles and destroying the intricate system of power lines, efficient crews are instantly on the job bringing order out of the chaos. Interconnected systems, serving hundreds of towns and millions of people, have given the modern utility the volume of business that makes a high standard of service, under all conditions, possible.

"The secret of Happiness is not in doing what one likes, but in liking what one has to do."—James M. Barrie.

'Tis time for a little fun and frolic, me thinketh, and so I don mine jester costumey and commenceth to illucidate upon matters pertaineth to those necessary evils, of which I have hereuntobefore been appointed duly a critter sizer, by the Great Dooker Pooker, known to wimmin of the Magic City for his undisputed authority on such matters. I herewith beseech thee not to make any attempt to control thy mirth ejecting glands, and at the same time, weigh and consider, or something.

After donning my official cap, which denotes that I am Chilton County's Certified Critter Sizer, I have gone into confab with the Great Dooker on matters, and have received his recommendations, instructions, and things. We read after the Great Dooker as follows:

Dear Doug:

This here is a true story of how a lady was cured of chronic headaches—of course, however, I have took some dramatic liberties—

I was present at a recent meeting of the Dozen W's, which is an alleged secret society of wimmin. But since the best way in the world to circulate information is to tell somethin' to wimmin and then ask them not tell it, of course everybody knows that Dozen W's stands for Winsome Workin' Wimmin Which Would Willingly Wed Worthy Widderwess With Worthwhile Wealth.

The Dozen W's has a membership of fifteen and is officered by a President, a Secretary-Treasurer and thirteen Vice Presidents. Each of the V. P.'s is Chairman of some committee and the members regard these committees as omniscient and omnipotent in their deliberations and functions resp., or something.

All of the members were present at the meetin' 'scusin' only Sallie Pattiker, Thirteenth Vice President and Chairman of Committee on Foreign Relations. Sallie had went up to Montevallo for to tell the Ladies A.d Society how to stop wars.

The Chairman announced that this special meetin' had been called that Hallie Toesis, Second Vice President and Chairman of the Executive Committee might relate an interesting experience she had enjoyed recently—whereup, Miss Toesis addressed us all in words and figgers, if any, as follows:

"For many years terrifyin' aches had frequented my bean with not infrequent frequency. I gallivanted up and down this country, consultin' famous doctors here and there and I even visited several famous waterin' places in Europe. But, I'm happy to say, always I was a puzzle to the doctors.

"Then one day Jennie Rossity, our able Tenth Vice President and Chairman of the Finance Committee, told me that Mollie Cule, our Fifth Vice President and Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, had told her that she had a cousin, a famous surgeon in Birmingham who had said that most always there is some exterior evidence of any interior trouble.

"Well, I hurried down to his office for an examination which enabled him to discover between my shoulder blades a small lump, known to the uncultured as a bump. He injected some novacaine into the lump, withdrew a lancet from his instrument case and a few moments later I had suffered the loss of the cause of my headaches but I had enjoyed the gain of an operation. To-day I have wore a dress V-shaped in the back so that you all may see my scar."

All of the wimmin crowded around Miss Toesis who, when ast the name of the surgeon, said:

"I'm sorry I can't tell you the name of my surgeon because I'm sure that Dr. Mike Robe, with offices in the Tower Bldg., and who has special low fees for workin' wimmin', wouldn't sanction my advertisin' him in a meetin' of this kind, 'cause the Medical Association might ostrichize him."

Ruby Yott, Eleventh Vice President and Chairman of Educational Committee, said that she intended to have a surgeon examine her before the sun set in the hope that he would find cause for an operation, if possible where the scar would show,—but cause for an operation.

As I left the building, I saw Miss Yott and a twelfth of a gross of other wimmin trottin' down the street headed for Dr. Robe's office.

DOOKER POOKER.

I will say here that I presume, and suppose that Dooker intends for me to recommend this statement above to the wimmin of Chilton County, and other places where I hold forth. I will ad they might get in touch with me if interested.

Slashing Government Expense

Municipal and state governments must follow the precedent set by private business, and slash expense, throw out inherited impediments to progress and eliminate waste, if their cost of operation is to be cut. A recent survey shows that the average cost of government in 146 cities rose from $24 per capita in 1915, to $56 in 1929.

We cannot have tax reductions so long as government functions are steadily enlarged. We cannot have tax reduction so long as we demand "improvements" costing millions for which we have no real need. We cannot have tax reduction so long as we pay little attention to the administration of local governments, make a practice of electing unsuitable men to office, and follow that by dashing to the polls to vote for new bond issues.

The public alone has the power to bring tax rates down. When it exercises that power, the tax problem will solve itself.

Entire Elmore County was saddened the past week due to the untimely death of the beloved daughter of Judge Loyd Tate. This sadness extended into Chilton County as well, due to the high esteem in which Judge Tate is held here, and being Circuit Judge of this county. His daughter, Mrs. Storrs was not only loved by all her acquaintances, but was talented and beautiful.

This death of one of the splendid children of Judge Tate come at the time that his campaign was at it's height. His many friends, however, took up the campaign and are urging the people to elect him as our next Judge. That is certainly a splendid spirit to show at such a time.

I heard a most interesting talk last Thursday at Kiwanis luncheon, when Mrs. John Page spoke on flowers, gardens and shrubbery. It was interesting, and another thing that was to note was the interest shown among members of the club, on the subject.

Speaking of the Kiwanis Club, the program for today promises to be worthwhile to the utmost. To the layman, possibly, such programs as planned for today may seem not so worthwhile, but in my opinion, there is quite a bit that will be accomplished in years to come, directly or indirectly from this program.

Arraigned for waving a knife at Mrs. Jeanette Schultz, his houskeeper, in Chicago, when she served sausages, Fred Trumbull was fined $200.

Asbestos fiber found under the fingernails of Ted McClure of Wenatchee, Wash., led to his arrest on a charge of safe robbery as the safe was lined with asbestos.

CARD OF THANKS

The News has been requested by Mr. Zack Lowery, one of the progressive farmers of the county, to express thru its columns, his sincere thanks and appreciation to his friends and neighbors for the assistance given him which aided him greatly in his misfortune of losing considerable property in the recent storms.

Mr. Lowery stated that he realized that all the good people were not gone yet, and was thankful to the Lord for the fact that none of his people were injured or killed. His family join him in expressing thanks and appreciation for the aid given them.

E. Byrd, a blind war veteran of El Paso, Tex., testified in his divorce suit that his wife put chairs in his way for him to stumble over as he walked around the house.

To The Taxpayers Of Alabama

What do you think of Black's feathered nest in Washington? Not satisfied with his $10,000 salary he puts his wife on the payroll at $2200 per year and employs his Secretary's wife at $1800. Do you like the idea of your money being spent for this when you are working hard to feed and clothe your family? It isn't right, is it? A vote for Kilby is a vote to cut out such waste of your money as well as other outrageous extravagances. He is the only business man in the race. Remember how he handled the state finances.

VOTE FOR JOHN A. DARDEN

(Not Now on Commission)
Candidate For
PRESIDENT OF ALABAMA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION
In Democratic Primary May 3rd, 1932

DARDEN'S PLATFORM is for Cheaper Rates for Lights, Power, Water, Gas, Telephone rentals, and abolition of Room Charges, Demand Charges, Telephone Report Charges. Darden will carry out these principles.

DARDEN'S OPPONENT—Mr. White, has helped make the war-time prices the farmers and others have to pay for lights, power, water, gas, telephone rentals, etc. Ginners have to pay too high prices for power to run their gins and this has to be passed to the farmer.

DARDEN'S OPPONENT secured his endorsements through the services of a paid Engineer going over the state at the expense of the public, and endorsements and other campaign literature of Mr. White are being partly distributed by paid employees of the Public Service Commission. Is this right and just to the people of Alabama. Your votes will answer the question.

Work and vote for John A. Darden for President of Alabama Public Service Commission who will stand for the best interest of the masses. Darden will not be dominated by the Alabama Power Company or any other utility.

Thorsby Institute News

Miss Helen Jenkins, Principal of the Thorsby Institute, has gone to Burlington, North Carolina as a delegate from Alabama to the Southeastern Congregationa Christian Conference.

Fae Price, a Senior at Thorsby Institute, was the dinner guest of Elwyn Robinson Sunday at her home in Thorsby.

Helen Albert of Thorsby Institute spent the week end with her parents at Green Pond, Ala. She joined the Thorsby party at Shelby and returned with them.

Douglas Surles spent the week end with his mother in Prattville, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Sutlive, Misses Agnes Leary and Ida Lou Pate and Miss Leech went to Calera Friday night to attend the play given by the Dramatic Club of Calera. Ida Lou Pate remained with her brother in Calera until Sunday evening.

The C. E. Society of the United Protestant Church of Thorsby left Sunday afternoon at 3:30 and drove to Shelby, Alabama, where they held an outdoor meeting at the Congregational Church. The topic for discussion was "Opportunities for Life Investment." Mrs. Rascoe Maddox led the meeting. After the program the Thorsby group and friends in Shelby enjoyed a picnic supper which was spread under the trees on the hillside. The church stands on a large hill with many beautiful trees. This location furnished an ideal place for an outdoor service and the supper that followed. The entire group remained for the evening service. Rev. M. D. Morgan of Decatur, Ala., preached the sermon.

The Senior Class of Thorsby Institute, their class teacher, Mr. Sutlive, and Mrs. Sutlive were entertained with a party given by the Junior Class and their class teacher, Mr. King, at the home of Miss Juanita Each. Many games were played. Mr. V. H. Sutlive and Miss Mildred Jefferies won the prize for winning a game called "Hearts". A souvenir and a diploma of "congratulations" were presented to each Senior by the Junior Class. Delightful refreshments were served. Everyone had a very pleasant time.

Samson The Strong

In reading in the Bible you often see the word Israelites. The Israelites were the people of the Nation of Israel which is the nation about which God was speaking when He said to Abraham, "I will make of thee a great nation and I will bless thee and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing." The Israelites were descendants of Abraham and carried the name of their forefather Jacob or Israel, who was Abraham's grandson.

We, all the people of today, are blessed through this nation that God promised Abraham when He said "and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."

The Israelites lived in a land in which also lived other nations that were so wicked that the Israelites had a hard time living right. Often there was war among them, so, in order to govern the Israelites and protect them from their enemies, God sent rulers called Judges who were also deliverers and captains of war.

The Israelites were not the good people God wanted them to be all the time. They would sometimes forget God and do like their evil neighbors. One time they sinned so greatly that God allowed the Philistines to triumph over them for forty years.

Samson was a ruler or judge in the nation for twenty years along toward the last of the forty years that the Philistines punished them. God chose Samson to be a judge, and sent an angel to talk to his parents about him. He told them that Samson must not dink wine or strong drink and that his hair must not be cut. He was to be holy unto the Lord all the days of his life and his important work was to begin delivering Israel out of the hands of the Philistines.

Samson was the strong man of Israel, because God's Spirit was with him. He did many extraordinary things with his God-given power. On one trip into the Philistine country he killed a lion and when he passed that way again he found that the bees had stored honey away in the frame of the lion. One time he killed thirty Philistines and another time he killed a thousand Philistines. One time he carried away the posts and doors of the gates of a city, and left them on a hill. Other times he broke cords and ropes with which the enemy had bound him. Once he caught three hundred foxes and caused them to scatter fire in the grain fields of the Philistines which burned their grain.

Though God chose Samson to be a judge over His people Israel, He was not pleased with everything Samson did. Samson got into bad company by becoming friendly with the wicked Philistines These enemies, who pretended friendship with him were anxious to find why he was stronger than other men. Though God was sometimes disappointed in Samson He did not forsake him until he allowed a woman (whom the Philistines had hired to betray him) to persuade him to tell her why he was so strong. He told her that as long as he drank no wine or strong drink and as long as his hair was not cut, God's Spirit was with him but if his hair was cut he would be no stronger than other men. When he was asleep she called the Philistines and cut his hair. When he awoke and saw the Philistines he thought he would be able to overcome them as he had always done, but God's Spiirt had left him. They overpowered him and put out his eyes and made a slave of him. How pitiful in his weakness was Samson the strong man that was to deliver Israel! Because he played around with wickedness he lost his freedom, his sight and the Spirit of the Lord.

While Samson was a slave for the Philistines, they had a great gathering and called their blind slave before them that they might have some fun with him. Then the Spirit of the Lord came to him again and gave him power to pull down the building in which they were and thousands of the Philistines were killed and Samson himself died also.

FOR DELEGATE FROM FOURTH DISTRICT

Subject to the Democratic Primary, I hereby announce my candidacy for a delegate's place, from the Fourth District, for the Democratic National Convention. I prefer to go unpledged.

I will support that man most available, who promises us that kind of leadership which deserves and which will bring us success. It is my intention now to support Governor Roosevelt. I think he is the most available. I like his name. I admire the man, all the more because of the Smith opposition. Our Party must have leadership free from Tammany control.

Methodist Circles Met Monday Afternoon.

The circles of the Methodist Missionary society met at three o'clock Monday afternoon. Circle one with Mrs. O. M. Carter, Circle two with Mrs. Harrison Taylor and Circle three with Mrs. Macey Jones. There was a splendid attendance at each gathering place, and quite a bit of interest created in the study of the present situation of the Movies. The women of the Methodist church were a unit in the belief that the church should become interested in the kind of pictures allowed on the screen.

Reports were made of the activities of the circles during the storm relief period which showed that much substantial work had been done, where it was needed most. The finances of the different circles showed creditable progress toward the goal for the year. The three circles have set out to raise $600 for local needs during the year.

Rev. B. G. Smith of Columbia, Ala. spent last Friday night in the home of J. B. Atkinson. Mr. Smith practiced law in Clanton in 1917-18, and is pleasantly remembered in the city. After leaving Clanton he went into the ministry of the Methodist church, and is now a member of the Alabama conference, serving the Columbia charge.

Rev. N. B. McLeod, presiding elder of the Selma district, is listed as the Commencement preacher for the Verbena High School. Dr. McLeod is one of the most brilliant men of Alabama and a rare treat is in store for the students, faculty and patrons of the Verbena school.

The City is graveling the street that goes in front of the Wilson Hotel, beginning at the Broadhead store in West End and coming toward the pavement.

Dan Cody, who for two years was cashier of the local Cotton Mill, has recently been transferred to the mill at Wetumpka. Mr. C. T. Ward of Birmingham has been assigned to his office, and with his family now resides at the mill.

Dr. O. C. Carmichael of Woman's College at Montevallo has been selected to deliver the Baccalaureate address before the graduating class of the County High School. This happy event will take place in the auditorium of the High School building on the night of May the 17th.

Mrs. Hugh Foshee Hostess To Circle Number Three.

Circle Three met at the home of Mrs. Hugh Foshee Monday afternoon at 3:30. The devotional was conducted by Mrs. Willie Bean. Song, "Jesus Shall Reign," was sung. This was the monthly business meeting. Kiwanian luncheon was planned. The closing prayer was prayed by Hugh Foshee. Those present were Mesdames Virgil Harris, Reuben Wyatt, L. O. McGalliard, Jesse Jones, Hugh Foshee, E. E. Upchurch, Willie Bean, Jim Scroggins, John Mullins, Walter Bently and Miss Ressie Harris.

W. H. Saddler and family of Montgomery were visitors to Clanton on last week end. Mr. Saddler is in the employ of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, and visits the local office monthly. He speaks in the highest terms of the efficient way in which the phone business in Clanton is conducted.

Mrs. A. J. Campbell and Mrs. Marie Weightman, who have spent the winter at the Wilson Hotel, will leave for their home in New York the latter part of the week.

If there are people in Chilton county who need instruction in the use of the rod, apply to M. L. White. He knows where the big ones stay. As a result of his fishing skill last Friday Mr. White came into town with enough fish for four families.

This little jingle was going the rounds this last week: "Worn Autos on wheels and skids, Cluttering up our vacant lots, Is one of Clanton's fondest fads, and one of Clanton's darkest spots." That is a "Nuff-Sed."

It is a real joy to walk about in the flower yard of such homes as that of Mrs. W. M. Polk. In her yard there is taste, skill and beauty. There are many other such flower yards in Clanton. May their number increase.

Miss Lois Erwin entertained several of her friends at her home Saturday night with a party in honor of her week end guest, Miss Julia Edwards, of Lomax.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Sims, Butler Lowe and Dr. S. J. Ezell, were visitors to Talladega Springs Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Sims will probably remain there for a few days.

James Higgins of Gadsden, Ala., spent last week end in Clanton visiting his friends and relatives.

Mrs. Renfroe Mullins returned Monday afternoon from Huntsville where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Frank Scott.

Dr. Raymond Calloway of New York City is spending this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Calloway.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Woodson of Lay Dam attended services at the local Methodist church Sunday.

The many friends of Miss Janice Danforth will be glad to know that she is resting at her home in Clanton after an operation at the Baptist Hospital in Birmingham.

Mrs. J. J. Hendrick and Mrs. Dot McGraw visited Mrs. W. M. Polk, Sr. Monday.

The many friends of little Miss Lois Rockett will be glad to learn that she is recovering from a tonsil operation in Birmingham Saturday. She is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Rockett.

Mrs. Martin of Birmingham is spending the week with her daughter, Mrs. L. C. Warr and Miss Johephine Martin.

Mrs. Hugh Jones Hostess To Contract Club

The members of the Thursday Contract Club were the delighted guest of Mrs. Hugh Jones at a beautiful bridge party at her home last Thursday afternoon.

After a series of games a delicious salad plate was served to the following: Mesdames J. Lee Smith, J. P. Hayes, Julius Burnett, Omar Reynolds, Grady Reynolds, John Deramus, Arthur Johnson, L. F. Gerald and Grady Broadhead.

Mrs. T. H. Neighbors and children spent last week end with relatives in Goodwater, Ala.

Mrs. Walter Bentley and little daughter, Mary Ann, of Cleveland, Ohio, are spending a while with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch.

Mrs. P. M. Pitts Hostess To "As You Like It Club."

Mrs. P. M. Pitts was hostess to the "As You Like It" Club at her home Thursday afternoon. A new member, Mrs. W. A. Reynolds, was added to the membership of this cub. Later the hostess served a delicious salad plate to the following: Mesdames D. C. Alred, D. W. Haskew, J. B. Atkinson, T. H. Neighbors, L. H. Reynolds, W. W. Fox, T. R. Burdette. W. A. Reynolds, V. J. Gragg.

Mrs. J. W. McEathern was an invited guest. Mrs. W. M. Polk will be hostess next meeting.

NOTICE!

To My Friends and Patients:

I have rented the building from Mrs. P. D. Wilson, situated on the Maplesville Highway across the street from my residence. For the present, and until I can find a suitable place down town, my office will be in this building, where I intend, in the immediate future, to open a hospital with all modern conveniences and appliances necessary.

I have my X-Ray already installed there and am at your service either for that work or trips day and night.

Sincerely yours,
V. J. GRAGG, M. D.

B. LAWRENCE EXPLAINS REASON FOR DELAYED PAY

Following is a letter from Buford Lawrence, county superintendent of education, in regard to alleged rumors concerning the reason for salaries of teachers not having been paid on time:

"I understand charges are being made that the County Board of Education is responsible for the teachers not receiving their pay on time this year.

"In order that the people of the county may have full information on the condition confronting the schools, I am giving a few facts that will throw some light on the matter. I understand that some have expressed the opinion that it is a county condition responsible for the salaries of teachers going unpaid. I have just receive State Auditor's warrants for certain appropriations for school purposes. I am giving a letter received with these warrants that will explain the situation. You will note that each of these warrants has a little note pinned to them stating this: "Hold this warrant until notified by the State Treasurer that funds are available for same." Signed,—State Treasurer.

"I might state furthermore that in so far as the County Board of Education's responsibility goes we do not have a single outstanding warrant or bond. We are on a cash basis in spite of the fact that seven years ago the County Board of Education owed $22,500. This indebtedness has all been paid and as stated above in so far as the Board obligations are concerned we owe nothing.

"I shall be glad for anyone to see the records in the office and verify the facts stated above. I wish to thank the people of the county for their splendid spirit of cooperation manifested both on the part of the parents and teachers in meeting one of the most difficult conditions ever faced in the history of the county in school administration. Through this cooperation we have been able to carry on the schools, otherwise we could not have."

Yours for the interest of the children,
B. LAWRENCE,
County Supt. Education.

Copy of letter with warrant follows:

STATE OF ALABAMA

April 21, 1932.

To the Treasurer of School Funds
Chilton County:

You will receive herewith Auditor's Warrant No. 12099 for $6,876.33 covering your requisition for High School Education Fund to satisfy the pay roll of teachers.

Yours very truly,
JAS. M. GUENELS,
Chief Clerk.

Copy to: County Superintendent of Education. The above amount is to be distributed as follows:

For White Rural High Schools	$4,876.33
For Salaries of Teachers in County Training School for Negroes	1,500.00
For Equipment in County Training School for Negroes	500.00
	$6,876.33

NOTE: Hold this warrant until notified by the State Treasury that funds are available for same.

—State Treasurer.

Note: The above copy of notice of warrant is only one of several that are being held at present, Mr. Lawrence stated.

Activities of the various Boy Scout troops in Chilton County during the past several days and for the coming several days.

The May issue of Boy's Life, a popular magazine devoted to boys and Boy Scout activities, carried a very interesting article about the Boy Scouts of Clanton, praising them for the splendid work done here in relief work, following the recent storms.

Boy Scouts of this county will be in charge of the program of the Kiwanis Club today, at the Baptist church in Clanton.

Excutive John J. Sigwald will be at Lay Dam Friday night of this week, assisting the Lay Dam Troop in a Tenderfoot ceremony, which has created considerable interest among members of that troop, with Ed Lakeman as their leader.

John Hollis of Lay Dam has re-registered his Scouts as a Cub Pack, with Doyle McRae as leader, for another year's work, and has the distinction of being the first Cub Pack in this Area Council, and is attracting widespread attention. There is a Cub Pack being organized in Auburn, also.

The Big Day for Scouts and Scouters is all arranged for Friday, May 6.—A Jamboree in Auburn. Beginning at 10:30 A. M. with the massing of Scout troop on Drake Field, the first three events will be called and then the lunch for Scouts at the "log cabin", and for Scouters at the Tea Room. An hour of rest after lunch, viewing a nice picture as the guests of the Tiger Theatre, and the boys should be in fine "mettle" for the remainder of the field events of the Oglethorpe - Auburn baseball game.

Luncheon for the members of the Central Alabama Area Council will be served promptly at 12:15 in the Tea Room where they can enjoy a nice lunch, hear one good speaker, and get down to Council business without delay or confusion.

BOYS' WEEK

Boys' Week is to be observed over the entire world beginning Saturday, April 30 and continuing through May 7th. It is being observed in Chilton County beginning Thurday of this week with the initial program taking place at the Kiwanis Club luncheon.

The Object

Stated Positivey:

To focus public attention upon the boy as one of the World's Greatest Assets by making the nation think in terms of boyhood.

To interest everyone in boys, to interest boys in themselves, and to emphasize fundamentals in character building for citizenship.

To develop a community espirit de corps in the home, school, church and spare-time organization which deal with boys.

To advocate for every boy an equal chance to work out his destiny without the handicap of underprivilege or overprivilege.

Editors Note: Give this observance some serious thought from the angles stated above. Boys' Week originated in 1920 in New York City and has grown to become world wide since then. Join in with the boys, the future citizens of this town, county, state and nation. Help them as much as you can. The object of Boys' Week, stated negatively: Not to raise funds: Not to exploit the boy; Not to provide a week's holiday.

In Memoriam

The T. E. L. Class of the Clanton Baptist Sunday School wishes to express its deep appreciation of, and its affection for, Mrs. M. B. Arant, and its sorrow at the loss of such a loyal, faithful member of the class.

Sweet friend, we would have kept thee here.
We begged the Lord that thou mightst stay,
But in His love He answered us,
And answered, "Nay".

We do not know why this should be
Or why Death's angel thus should come
But we can surely say with thee,
"God's will be done."

AMERICAN LEGION WILL SHOW "LOST SQUADRON" HERE SOON

Proceeds From Picture Show Will Go To Legion Fund For Carrying On Relief Program For Storm Sufferers In Chilton County

The Chilton County Post of the American Legion will sponsor a far-famed airplane war picture at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton on Monday and Tuesday nights, and in connection will also show a picture of the National Legion Convention at Detroit last year.

The Legion, through the kindness of Mr. Wade, has worked out a plan whereby the proceeds of this program will be given to the fund for carrying on the relief program for storm sufferers in Chilton County.

The patronage or the public is solicited by the American Legion for this occasion. The soldier boys believe they have selected a program that will be entertaining and worth-while to everybody, and they also believe they will will be doing a good turn to give the money they may make out of the show to the relief of the storm sufferers.

Already the Legion has measured its strength against every opportunity to render service in the relief of the suffering people of this county. As long as there is an opportunity to serve the boys of the Legion will be on the job.

"The Lost Squadron"

The self-sacrificing brotherhood of men, air thrills galore, spectacular airplane crashes, and a glorious romance are combined in a vivid, dramatic air thriller which constitutes "The Lost Squadron" to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton Monday and Tuesday night of next week, May 2 and 3.

The picture boasts of four great aviation stars in the persons of Dick Grace, author and peerless stunt flier; Art Gobel, Hawaiian flight record holder; Babe Green, war ace; and Frank Clark, who made most of the sensational spills and air crashes in "Hell's Angels."

"The Lost Squadron' 'is a thrilling romantic story which reveals the intimate secrets of movie making in relation to the production of a great air epic.

Richard Dix is the star performer in the picture. Supporting this virile portrayer of he-man roles are the following stellar performers: Mary Astor, one of the most popular actresses of the screen; Erich Von Stroheim, Dorothy Jordan, Joel McCrea, Robert Armstrong, Hugh Herbert.

The film is based on an original story by Dick Grace, author and ace stunter. The vigorous red-blooded characters of the Dick Grace original are etched in sharp relief against a blue background of breath-taking sky scenes tragedy, romance and glamour.

It is correctly asserted that no air picture has ever before assembled such an imposing squadron of daredevils of the air, nor has picturized so many hair-raising crashes and catastrophes. Responsible for the loops, spirals, spins, banks and thrilling nose dives are Dick Grace, Art Gobel, Frank Clark, Babe Green and Garland Lincoln, aces all.

"The Legion on Parade"

In connection with the great airplane picture special, there is also on program for next Monday and Tuesday night a two reel picture, "The Legion on Parade," which shows every crook and turn of the thousands of Legionnaires who pulled off the big show at the national convention at Detroit last summer. This picture will be of special interest to ex-soldiers as it will give them a slant on what takes place at the annual convention when thousands of the boys from all parts of the country get together for the big whoopee.

The regular prices for admission at the Wadesonian Theatre will be maintained for this special program, and remember the American Legion is expecting you to attend. Don't forget it.

FIRST AID FOR SCOUTS

Our Scouts Gave First Aid When We Needed Them

Now Let Us Give Them First Aid

We all know the fine work our Scouts performed in the recent disasters in Chilton County. Some of them have records of over 200 hours on duty. On May 6 they gather at Auburn in the annual Jamboree. June 4 the summer camp opens.

Executive service has been given freely, but we want to pay as we go. Council service which trains the Boy Scouts, costs very little—$350 of a budget of $3,900. We owe $200 yet, and your chairman will be expected to make his report May 6.

If you are financially able to do so, we appeal to you to contribute something to this worthy cause. Money invested in Boy Scouts will bring a great return of future service to your community.

Mail this coupon with your contribution to C. E. Stapp, Clanton, Alabama.

I hereby contribute $________ to Boy Scout or Girl Scout Work in Chilton County.

MULLINS & MOORE STORE BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

Considerable excitement was caused in Clanton yesterday morning when the fire siren announced that the large wooden structure on Main street, the store of Mullins & Moore, was burning.

For awhile it appeared as if the building would be destroyed, but quick and efficient work on the part of the Volunteer Firemen here soon had the flames under control. The flames appeared to have been confined in the top of the building.

Dr. Carmichael Will Deliver The Baccalaureate Address

The Chilton County High School is pleased to announce that they have been fortunate enough to secure Dr. O. C. Carmichael, President of Alabama College at Montevallo, to deliver the Baccalaureate Address.

This will be Dr. Carmichael's second visit to our school this year. Those who heard his address to the P.-T. A. will recall that he is an able and interesting speaker, and that he possesses a charming and delightful personality. We feel that there is a treat in store for the people of Clanton and surrounding community, and we trust that the friends and patrons of the school will present him with a large and appreciative audience on Tuesday night, May 17, at the high school auditorium.

Commencement Program at Isabella High

Sunday, May 8th, at eleven o'clock Dr. S. U. Turnipseed of Montgomery will preach the commencement sermon in Mulberry church.

Monday evening, May 9th, in the school auditorium the Senior Class will have their class exercises. The Seniors are as follows:

Marvin Durbin, Myrtle Durbin, Mildred Durbin, James Deason, Luther Mims, Morris Keen, Gertie Mae Owen, and Ruth Oden. Marvin Durbin is the valedictorian and Morris Keen the salutatorian.

Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock the graduation exercises will be held in the school auditorium. Dr. J. I. Riddle of Montevallo will give the baccalaureate address.

All the patrons and friends of the school are cordially invited to attend these exercises.

Light Ballot Is Cast In Primary Tuesday

Democrats Will Have Strong Opposition In General Election November

Possibly the lightest ballot cast in his county in some time, showed up in the primay election Tuesday, on the Democratic ticket and Republican ticket. The race for the office of Judge of he 19th Judicial Circuit, with John Bateman, Arthur Glover and F. Loyd Tate, showed up close between Glover and Tate, with Bateman running considerably in the rear.

Indications are that the Democratic andidates will have some strong opposition in the coming general election rom the Republican ticket. However, he county Democratic candidates received practically solid votes in the the various Beats.

Following will be found an unofficial count, from all boxes in the county except five, which had not been heard rom at the time the News went to ress. Next week the News will carry he official count, by Beat and Box:

CULVER & JONES MOVE INTO NEW HOME RECENTLY

Many Improvements Seen for Customers of Popular Grocery Store

After only two years of partnership, the firm of Culver & Jones, groceries and market, has moved into a new and more modern home, located on the Birmingham highway, across the street from the Dixie Cafe.

The building they are now occupying has been completely renovated inside and made to order, according to this business which it now houses. New equipment has been installed, which assures the customers of Culver & Jones, clean, sanitary, prompt and efficient service. This firm derives its name from its owners, M. C. (Mack) Culver, and W. W. (Bud) Jones, two experienced men in the grocery and market business in Clanton.

The store is bright and attractive, and the only one of its kind on that street. They stated that they still have quite a bit of work to be done toward adding to the advantages they are to offer their customers. One of the advantages, especially for the ladies driving automobiles, will be a parking lot at the rear of the building, where the ladies may leave their cars and enter the store. The parking lot will be easy to get to and will eliminate parking on the busy highway. This store extends an invitation to the people of Clanton to visit its new home.

CAPS, GOWNS WILL BE USED BY GRADUATES

Dr. R. L. Bell Will Deliver Commencement Sermon For High School

It is very gratifying to state that the Senior Class of 1932 will graduate this time in the traditional cap and gown. This new procedure as a part of their Commencement was voted on by them and they are going to break all former customs of the other Senior Classes.

The Senior Class will appear in their caps and gowns on two occasions: At the First Methodist Church, Commencement Sermon, Tuesday, May 15, 11:00 a.m. and at the high school auditorium, Tuesday, May 17, 8:00 p.m.

Dr. R. L. Bell, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Tuskegee, Alabama, has been secured to deliver the Commencement Sermon for the graduating class of 1932 of Chilton County High School. This sermon will be preached in the Methodist Church at 11:00 o'clock on Sunday morning, May 15.

Dr. Bell comes well recommeended in every respect and we trust that the friends and patrons of the school and any others who would like to hear a good sermon and enjoy a good program and at the same time pay homage to a group of young men and young women who are now commencing a career in life, will present Dr. Bell with a large audience.

HOSPITAL TO BE REOPENED SAYS REPORT

Arrangem'ts Have Been Made And Opening Date Will Be Announced Later

Information given the News states that the reopening of the Central Alabama Hospital here is assured. It is understood that arrangements have been made whereby the indebtedness of the institution has been taken care of, according to Dr. V. J. Gragg, physician and surgeon of Clanton.

Just when the hospital will be reopened was not announced, but it is believed it will be sometime this month, however, that is not definite information.

Names of the parties who are responsible for the reopening of the place were not given out, but it is generally known that Dr. Gragg will resume his position there. In the meantime, Dr. Gragg stated, he will continue to receive calls and patients at his home in Clanton, until further notice.

Dog Owners Reminded Of Rabies Treatment

Next Wednesday and Thursday, May 11th and 12th are the days set for the free treatment of dogs with anti-rabies serum, in Clanton, and C. H. Pipes, city cerk, wishes to impress on the people of Clanton the importance of this.

There is no charge for this service as Dr. W. L. Parrish and Dr. P. T. Hinkle are giving their services, while the serum is being furnished by the Town of Clanton, with the Study Club of Clanton cooperating.

Dr. Parrish will be located at the Farm Bureau office, and Dr. Hinkle will have the McCain stables in Clanton as his headquarters for these two days. Anyone owning a dog within the city's jurisdiction will be subject to a fine should they fail to have their dog given this treatment, according to a recently adopted ordinance of the town.

Dr. Parrish requests that those bringing dogs to him, to try to come between the hours of nine a.m. and 12 noon. It was also said advisable for dog owners to bring collars for the animals as they will be given tags to wear, showing that the treatment had been given.

PERRY LITTLEJOHN ERECTING RESIDENCE & FILLING STATION

Up the highway, toward Birmingham and just north of Clanton will be seen an odd shaped brick structure going up, and workmen moving large quantities of dirt. That is where Perry Littlejohn is building a neat little residence and filling station, combined.

Mr. Littlejohn stated he would probably move his wood-working plant up near there also in the near future.

Jersey Cattle Club Cattle Show Satur.

The members of the Chilton County Jersey Cattle Club are planning to have the best show of purebred Jerseys that they have ever had in the county.

County Agent Stapp advises that there will be a goodly number of pretty Jerseys on exhibit Saturday and he urges all who are interested in better dairy cattle to attend the show.

The judging will take place at McCain's barn at 12:00 o'clock. The parade will begin at 2:00 o'clock.

Immediately following the parade there will be a sale of purebred Jersey bulls, and Mr. Stapp thinks it will be a splendid opportunity for farmers of the County who are using scrub bulls to replace these scrubs with good purebred bulls.

While we are busy with the every day affairs that take so much of our time, let us not forget that next Sunday, May 8th, is Mothers' Day, the day set apart from all others to honor Mothers.

Although every day should be Mothers' Day, we are given this one day of the year in which to pay tribute to Mothers. If your Mother is not living, wear a white carnation, if she is living, then a red one.

Judge Leon McCord To Speak In Thorsby

Another Still Brought in This Week by Sheriff

A whiskey still was found in a man's home, near the Poplar Springs community last Sunday morning by the Sheriff's forces, according to the report from that office Tuesday morning. The still was a small outfit, and approximately 100 gallons of beer were destroyed. One man was placed under arrest.

Other arrests are two for using abusive language, one for non-support, one for contributing to deliquency, one for carrying concealed weapon.

BOYS' WEEK IS OBSERVED BY KIWANIS

Twenty - Three Boy Scouts Guests of Local Club Last Thursday

One of the finest meetings held recently by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, took place last Thursday at the regular luncheon hour, when the local club had as its guests, twenty-three Boy Scouts from troops in this county. Mitchell Dam, Lay Dam and Clanton were well represented by these boys in full uniform.

This meeting was in observance of Boys' Week, which is being observed over the entire world this week, and was put over right by the boys at the Kwanis luncheon. Among the guests were John D. Mullins, Scout Leader of the Clanton Troop, Edmund Lakeman leader of the Lay Dam Troop and John J. Sigwald, Scout Executive. John Hollis, president of the Kiwanis club, had representatives from the Cub Pack of Scouts of Mitchell Dam present.

Several of the Scouts took interesting parts on the program, which they were in charge of, and told of the advantages of training for members of their organization. A brief outline was also given by two Scouts of their activities following the storms in this county, for which they have received national recognition. Kiwanians were urged to give their wholehearted support to the Boy Scouts of this county, and this request met with unanimous approval from members of the club.

SENIOR CLASS WILL PRESENT ANNUAL PLAY

"Eighteen Carat Boob" Is Title of Comedy To Be Presented May 6th

The Senior Class of Chilton County High School will present, "The Eighteen Carat Boob," a comedy in three acts, at the High School Auditorium Friday night, May 6, at eight o'clock.

A gay summer house party given by Alice Bisnette, played by Jane Roberts, is invaded by Ottis Miller, a raw and gawky young hick and country cousin of one of the guests, Bella Sparks, played by Mary Nelle Jones. His coming creates excitement and much merriment in a household already enjoying thrills and goose flesh over the fact that a daring society jewel thief, known as the "Crow," is at large. Almost every young man in the vicinity falls under suspicion—notably Erle Ellis, as a young detective, posing as a suitor to Alice, and Joe VanDerveer, a mypsterious young writer who has won Alice's heart. Even Bud, the boobish country cousin, gets mixed up in the mystery. This play is a comedy of surprises and contains a female impersonation that will bring down the house.

EVERY PERSON IN STORM AREA URGED TO COME

Address Will Be Directed To Storm Sufferers; Ladies Especially Invited

A man who is widely known for the inspirational addresses he delivers and the words of wisdom he commands, will speak to the people in the storm stricken sections of Chilton County on next Saturday night, at the high school auditorium in Thorsby at seven o'clock. This man is Judge Leon McCord of Montgomery.

Judge McCord consented to come to Thorsby and deliver a message to the people following requests of citizens here. He was asked to speak twice in the county, once in the afternoon and again that night, but due to the large Sunday School class, the Big Brothers Class, of Montgomery, which he teaches he will be able to be here for one engagement at this time.

Thorsby was selected for the occasion due to its central location in the storm areas. Each man, woman and child, who possibly can, is urged to hear Judge McCord's message, and especially are those people of Thorsby, Jemison, Collins Chapel, Union Grove and Pleasant Grove, urged to hear him. He will bring to them a message that will be more than worth the time spent in listening.

Each family should attend this speaking in a body, and if that is not possible, as many members of a family as possible should be present. Lay everything aside for next Saturday night, urge your neighbors to come to the high school in Thorsby at seven-thirty.

PLAY TO BE PRESENTED AT THORSBY PUBLIC SCHOOL

"Little Miss Jack," a four-act play, will be given at the Thorsby Public School on Saturday night, May 7th, at eight o'clock.

This play was given at Thorsby on last Saturday night, but many requests have been made that it be repeated. Many expressed themselves as having enjoyed it as well as any play they had ever seen here. If you enjoy a play filled with laughter and pathos, you can not afford to miss this one. There will be a small admission of 5c and 10c, that will go for the benefit of the school.

ESAU SELLS HIS BIRTHRIGHT
Genesis 25:27-34
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Here is a fine opportunity for character study as you size up those who occupy the stage in this lesson study. Dig out all the facts about Isaac, Rebekah, Esau and Jacob and you will note what a mess can develop in what should be a well regulated family. These boys were twins but they do not manifest the usual interest that such brothers have in each other. Both the father and mother had their favorites and this added much to the home difficulties. Rebekah thought more of Jacob and Isaac doted on Esau, the first born.

As the first born, Esau would normally come into his father's place as the priestly head in the home and would inherit a double portion. Much trouble is occasioned today when a will is made in which the children do not "share and share alike," to use a familiar phrase. But Esau did not look forward to the honor of succeeding his father as head of the family, while that was the very thing that Jacob was eager for and plotted accordingly.

Esau was a hunter and came home one day with no bag but with a tremendous hunger. Jacob was making some lentil stew and Esau pointed to it and begged for some of "that red." Wiley Jacob would not share his food until he had exacted a promise to turn over the birthright privileges. Later a trick was played on almost blind Isaac, when he would bless Esau, as Jacob concocted a stew that would taste like vension, put fur on his hands to make them feel like hairy Esau and obtained the blessing. This caused a break between the brothers and Jacob, with the connivance of his mother had to flee from the wrath of Esau. They did not meet again for twenty years.

THE USE OF FARM MAGAZINES IN THE TEACHING OF VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE

By Benjamin Anderson
Chilton Co. Colored Training School

Teachers of vocational agriculture appreciate the importance of habit formation. In fact, they are the leaders, among the teachers of the nation, in forming or using methods designed to fix desirable habits. But is there any habit more important than that of reading the "literature" pertaining to one's job?

If our boys could carry away from our classes, either in their heads or their notebooks, all of the data which we discuss (and we know they can't do this) most of this information would soon be lost—so far as they are concerned. Notebooks get misplaced and destroyed and information not used daily is soon forgotten. Again, if we could present to our boys all the facts available today about the business of farming, ten years hence much of this information would be obsolete.

The more thought and study we give to the matter the sooner we reach the conclusion that the most valuable and worth while thing we can do for our students is to help them form habits which will function in keeping their feet in the right pathway after they leave our classrooms, laboratory areas and shops.

Let me illustrate how important this is in terms of the teaching methods we are using. We teach farm jobs. Under each job one or more decisions must be made. These include the managerial and operative aspects of farming. To make intelligent decisions all the factors must be clearly understood. This method will apply to the solution of any problem (at any time in the life of the student) but the important thing is to have all the facts. There may be many ways of acquiring facts, but among these reading is by no means the least.

Our agricultural literature may be divided into three groups; (1) books, (2) bulletins and (3) periodicals. Each meets a distinct need. All are essential. But unfortunately because many boys have associated books with school they have acquired little interest in them. The taste must be cultivated. How then, may farm papers be used most efficiently as material in Smith-Hughes classes? (make them available).

Before they can be used they must be available. To my mind, the most satisfactory way of interesting boys in reading agricultural periodicals is to select one or more farm magazines for special study, subscribe a special number to be sent to the school so that every boy may have a special copy and a definite period be set aside for discussing these magazines in detail. In most cases each boy will find articles relating to the particular project which he is carrying. The above method is being carried out by the students at the Chilton County Training School.

Dr. Glenn Frank said, "Even though a man have as many degrees as a thermometer; even though he graduated with the highest of honors; he will soon be grossly uneducated if he halted his reading and learning with his graduation. Authentic education matriculates us at the cradle and graduates us at the grave. The best thing that the school can do for the student is to waken in him a zest for thinking and the habit of reading. He hould not let his brains get rusty after graduation." To this end that such an attitude toward reading may be developed in all students in vocational agricultural classes, this appeal is made to all vocational teachers for a more systematic use of agricultural periodicals.

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

The Men's Bible Class in our church broke all records for two years last Sunday. The men are interested and mean to make their class grow.

Vernie Teel addressed a fine gathering of Young men Sunday morning. Did you know that the men and boys outnumber the women and girls in our Sunday school?

Sunday night at 7:30 Rev. S. U. Turnipseed, a former pastor of our church, will preach for us. We urge that you attend this service. Give him a crowded auditorium.

Sunday morning the pastor will give a message on "Mother." If you love your mother be sure to attend church next Sunday. We are urging all of our membership to bring one penny for each year of your mother's life, and give it for Missions next Sunday. Do this without fail. Honor your mother with a deed of love and sacrifice.

If you are a sinner and want to know the way of life, if you are growing indifferent and want to be stirred with zeal, if you are sad of heart and want comfort, worship with us.

SECTION HARROW FOR EARLY CULTIVATION

A section harrow with the spike teeth slanting backward and run across rows of cotton or corn immediately after the young plants break through the ground is perhaps the most profitable cultivation of the year. Unless trash accumulates in the harrow it does very little damage to the corn or cotton but it kills a lot of weeds and grass when the are easy to kill and before they have done any damage.

This cultivation is being emphasized by county agents in their demonstrations and also by J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer at Auburn. They are emphasizing also the fundamental fact that killing weeds and grass is the chief value of cultivation

This being true they say that the best method of cultivation is that which kills weeds and grass most rapidly and at least expense before they have done any damage. The best implement is that which does this work most effectively and rapidly.

This early cultivation destroys weeds and grass and gives corn and cotton a start, thereby making it much easier to control weeds and grass during the remainder of the year.

"Cultivation," said Mr. Wilson, "is essentially a battle with farmers on one side and grass and weeds on the other. Consequently it should be continued in the best way and with the best implements for weed and grass control with least damage to the crop being cultivated. This is why shallow cultivation is better."

Larger Planting Of Sorghums Is Needed

The soybean has become an important crop in Alaabma in recent years; and increasing the acreage planted to it this spring is being recommended by county agents along with the experiment station at Auburn. It ranks among the very best hay crops for the State, it is splendid for grazing, and it is also a soil builder.

In view of these facts—and the further fact that cotton acreage reduction is needed—farmers are acting wisely in increasing their soybean plantings. There is no probability that too much hay will be made. Furthermore, soybeans planted with corn are splendid for finishing hogs in the fall. The combination produces good gains in weight at a low cost per pound.

In experiments on the experiment station at Auburn the leading five varieties in hay production were Otootan, Biloxi, Chiquita, Tarheel Black, and Mammoth Yellow. H. B. Tisdale, who conducted the experiments, said that Otootan and Chiquita varieties have fine stems and produce a better quality of hay than either the Biloxi, Tarheel Black or Mammoth Yellow, which have coarse stems.

Leading varieties in the production of seed are, in the order named, Chiquita, Dixie, Tarheel Black, Arlington, and Laredo.

Mr. Tisdale explained that Chiquita is a promising new variety for central Alabama, ranking well up in both hay and seed production. It is medium early in maturing, has fine stems, and straw colored seed.

State of Alabama, Complainant, vs. One Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, Respondent.

In The Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, in Equity.

The Bill of Complaint of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, against one Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 12 day of February, 1932, an unknown escape did transport in One Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, certain prohibited liquors and beverages, from one point in the State of Alabama to another, and that said automobie was on said day seized by the Sheriff of said County and said Bill of Complaint praying that said automobile be declared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

It is therefore ordered and declared that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for three successive weeks in Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and that all persons claiming or asserting any right, title or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 6th day of June, 1932, and that failing so to do, the said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

SHE doesn't look seventy. Nor feel that old. The woman who stimulates her organs can have energy that women half her age will envy!

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescriptional preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

INDIGESTION

"My work is confining, and often I eat hurriedly, causing me to have indigestion. Gas will form and I will smother and have pains in my chest.

"I had to be careful what I ate, but after someone had recommended Black-Draught and I found a small pinch after meals was so helpful, I soon was eating anything I wanted.

"Now when I feel the least smothering or uncomfortable bloating, I take a pinch of Black-Draught and get relief."

Dedicated To My Dear Mother & Step-Mother

Standing almost in the shadow of my half century mile post and surveying the realms of life from the viewpoints of observation and experience and looking in awe and admiration upon the glorious creation of God, I view with reverence His Matchless Name. I believe implicitly in mother. About forty-five years ago God saw fit to kiss her spirit into the Holy City, made not with hands, eternal and in the Glory World. Conscious of her finite being, with her inherent human proclivities, I regard her as the most beautiful of God's creation.

Go gather the brightest and purest flowers that blend and wave in the winds of heaven, the roses and lilies, the vine and immortalles, wreathe them into a garland, and with this crown the brow of the truest of all earthly friends, Mother. In her beauty, purity, and love, three elements closely akin to the adorable Trinity.

Appreciating her in the four-fold capacity of mother, wife, daughter, and sister, as the best gift of God to man, save the Supreme Offering, Jesus. I would feast my eyes upon her beauty, my thoughts upon her purity, and my heart upon her love.

Love, virtue and happiness are her heritage. With this tri-une sceptre and her divinely appointed way, she kindles the sacred fires about the altar of the home, in which she reigns supreme and exemplifies the God-given mission of the church, beautifies and adorns society and sways the world.

It requires but the sweet, gentle and almost divine touch of mother's hand and the Angelic influence of her pure love, to transform any condition into a literal heaven.

Mother's love is fresher than a dew-drop, sweeter than a child's smile, pure as the throne, as sweet as the songs of the angels and as eternity as heaven, with her mother-love she beautifully typifies the great Architect of life, "To whom we all with reverence should most humbly bow." With mother to love and inspire, man can drink the dregs of sorrow and yet smile; he can wrestle with the lashing, turging, Titantic billows of disappointment, in financial matters and yet stem the tide, scale Alpine heights, to nobler and greater achievements.

The brawny arms of either, poverty and obscurity or wealth, fame and power, or even the icy hands of death may embrace her graceful form, but the application of love, in its sublime height, immeasurable breadth, and fathomess depths, lies the key to mother's heart, that unlocks the door and lets God's sunlight in.

Only the Garden of Eden, in all its primeval beauty antedates the realm of romance, when God said, "It is not good for man to dwell alone." So He made woman, who became mother of the race. Indeed, in its virgin soil were sown the seeds, which in germination thrust their roots through the arteries of succeeding ages and engrossed the master-thoughts of men and nations and through God's love Jesus came, the greatest Man that ever walked the dusty highway of Mother-earth.

Conceived in the Divine Mind, the laws of love were the medium thru which the pulsation of one heart was transmitted into another, both to beat as one, and two souls so closely interwoven until it takes the call of God to eparate, thus in the early morning of life the nature of man and woman were assimilated, hereby laying the foundation of home and society for future generations of earth.

Mother's love is almost divine, but possessed of all the beautiful attributes that mortal soul can possess. She must silently fan the flame of sorrow and shame, disappointment and fame in her own bosom.

Man's sense of perception must catch a vision of the passion consuming her soul, and in courtly bearing, weave the tangled threads of his life, his thoughts, plans and purposes, into those of hers, thus making life worth living and the world better by us having lived in it.

"My debt to you, dear mother,
Is one I can not pay
In any coin of any realm,
On any reckoning day.

For where is he can figure
The debt, when all is said,
To one who makes us dream again,
When all our dreams are dead?

Or where is the appraiser,
Who can claim to compute,
Of one who makes us sing again,
When all our songs are mute?

If I could gather all the gems
That lie on land, in sea,
I could not pay you, Mother dear,
For all you have done for me."
—Miss Whitaker.

GERMAN SANDLIN

German Sandlin died Sun. night, April 17, in a Montgomery hospital after an illness of only a few days. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ethel Sandlin, one baby girl, Betty Jean, seven weeks old, Father, Mother, eight Brothers, one Sister.

Burial was at Chestnut Creek with Martin in charge. The funeral was conducted by Rev. J. A. Raines. He was a member of that church for nine years.

We miss him, oh, we miss him for our Savior called him away but we are Praying to meet him in a better world some day. He is not dead, just sweetly resting from life's labors and cares, and if we live as Jesus taught us we will meet him over there. He was good and kind. Everyone who knew him loved him.

He was 30 years old, had been married 7 years. Our loss is Heaven's gain. I want to thank Mr. Martin for his kindness shown me, also the good people for their kindness and help. May God bless all of them.

Demand Governmental Economy Now

The increasing cost of government is one of the highest barriers in the path of industrial expansion and a return to normal conditions.

In 1913 total taxes were $2,187,000,000. In 1923 they were $7,234,000,000. In 1929 they were $10,251,000,000. The percentage of national income garnered by the tax collector for these years was 6.4 per cent, 10.1 per cent and 14.4 per cent, respectively. During this period the amount of tax per capita increased from $22.66 to $83.21. A family of five would thus pay $416.05 yearly on the 1930 basis.

It is customary to blame these increased costs on the extraordinary expenses made necessary by the war. But that applies only in the case of the Federal government, and in recent years local and state governments have been the worst tax-boosting offenders by far. This is likewise true in the case of the total public debt which increased from $4,200,000,000 in 1913, to $30,200,000,000 in 1922. In 1928, while the national debt had been decreased $5,400,000,000 in six years, due to Federal economies, the state and local debt had increased $5,400,000,000.

The tax problem extends, with steadily increasing importance, through every branch of government. The orgy of spending which followed the war—and was largely the result of the inflation of 1926-29—has come full circle at last. We are no longer able to increase taxation and public debt without seriously imperiling the future of the country. Investors are frightened, and money is hoarded. Businesses come to a standstill and more and more men are thrown out of work. Nothing could do more to start the country on the upgrade than decisive governmental economy—not next week or next year, but now.

We'll Soon Know the Worst

We are cheered by the news from Washington that Congress expects to finish its work by the early part of June and shut down shop until next December. We have no inside information as to what the ultimate tax program will be, or how the proposed reductions in government expenditures will finally come out. But we have lived in this world long enough to know that any certainty, even the worst, is better than an uncertainty. We know and hear of many businesses and industries which are marking time, waiting to find out for sure what Congress is going to do about taxes, before they can make their plans intelligently for going ahead. It may make all the difference in the world whether one kind of tax or another kind is finally decided upon. But American business men and manufacturers have always had a happy faculty of adjusting themselves to conditions as they are, and when they know exactly what the conditions are we believe that there will be a rapid and general revival in manufacturing and trade.

Before the end of June the Presidential conventions will have been held and we will know exactly what each party promises in its platform, and who it offers as its candidate for the Presidency. That will remove another uncertainty. And we can then enjoy a pleasant summer hoeing corn and fishing and talking politics, with the satisfying knowledge that there isn't any more we, as individuals, can do about the situation until election day. So we might as well tend strictly to our own business from the fourth of July to the eighth of November.

Costs Must Balance Receipts

A decrease during 1930 of $7,073,865,119 in the individual net income of the nation, as compared with 1929, has been reported by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The number of persons having incomes above $500,000 was cut in half; incomes of individuals fell 29.12 per cent, and 574,705 fewer persons filed income tax returns. Tax collected on individual incomes showed a 52.50 per cent drop, while corporations paid $618,246,431 tax—a decline of $428,739,406. The rate of tax, however, was one per cent higher than in the previous year, on normal and corporate incomes.

If our law-makers in Congress have the interest of the whole nation at heart, and consider it paramount to the demands of any local territory which is seeking public funds for some pet scheme or hobby, they will bend every effort to reduce governmental and public expenses to correspond with normal government income.

Why should not government budgets be trimmed the same as private budgets? The people cannot pay inflated tax bills based on abnormal earnings of 1928 and 1929.

It is easy for public officials to say governmental expenses are "fixed" and cannot be reduced; this dodges the issue. Governmental expenses must be reduced.

If the politicians would spend half as much time trying to find ways and means to lower government expenditures a they do trying to find new things to tax or new methods of increasing existing taxes, real tax reduction would result.

"Mounting taxes and government expenditures drive capital into tax-free bonds and all taxable property will eventually pass to government ownership."—Gen. James G. Harbord. This is a self-evident truth which one can prove by mounting tax charges againt one's own property.

Looks like the key to the political situation in Chilton County, with all the grangling going on in a certain party, is for them all to just come on over and vote the Democratic ticket and then won't anybody be sore about anything anytime. It would at least stop some of all that mud-slinging that appears in print. Wonder who named it mud-slinging, anyway. Regardless of how much mud is slung at a fellow, it won't do much damage unless he is the type that it will stick on.

When this column goes to press, the election will be over. I was out in the county a little Monday, and certainly saw some politicians 'hard at it'. Looks like some politicians always wait until the last minute to get in a last strike.

The ed was telling me something to put in this column if I wanted to, and I want to so here 'tis. Postmaster Bean of Clanton has built a fine, large home up on the Birmingham highway, near Lomax, and a large barn. It's a good looking place. Mr. Bean says that he and Perry Littlejohn and this Preacher Parker are going to join Clanton to Lomax. Henderson Bates and Will Reynolds are going to join Lomax to Thorsby, and first thing you know, you won't be able to tell when you get in or out of either of these places. Mr. Bean says, however, that they won't have any white-way just yet, but all those improvements are in mind.

Now if we can just get somebody to start building between Thorsby and Jemison. But there might be a streak in between those places that won't anybody build on, for fear there might come another twister through there—but it ain't.

If the folk down at South Clanton will cooperate with folks in Clanton, and with Hosea Downs, J. B. Downs and Frank Boswell, we might just include Cooper in this merging business. That would be somethin' wouldn't it?

DOOKER POOKER WRITES AGAIN

Had another letter from the Great Dooker Pooker and this time, he has certainly put me to a task that might not prove so good for the anatomy, or something.

DOUG., Chilton County's Certified Critter-Sizer, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Doug:

You will proceed at once to the wimmin's college at Montevallo for to see and to do as directed, or something.

Now Doug, a good cook book put to proper and frequent usage is the shortest route to a man's heart, and I was gratified recently to learn that the wimmin at Dr. Carmichael's emporium of knowledge was gave not only lots of book learnin', but also lots of useful information as well. In fact, I am gave to understand that they are taught how appetizingly to prepare and temptingly to serve grub of gastronomic delectableness.

I suppose some of them wimmin come up to Birmingham recently to attend Jessie Marie DeBooth's cookin' school. Bein' eager always to learn how to get the most grub for my money, if any, and then how to get the most outen it, I decided to attend it myself. Knowin' all about wimmin, as I do, I naturally expected that I'd feel kind o' like a rooster in a chicken yard and I intended to strut my stuff accordingly.

Well Doug, when I arrived there, more than five thousand wimmin was present—and still pourin' in. While I had often observed wimmin individually and collectively, this was my first observation of the critters multitudiously. Verily, 'twas the most terrifyin' spectacle I'd ever beheld; so I not only didn't do no struttin' but I actually trembled in my boot, 'cause I was scairt to death.

I had expected to find the wimmin prissin' around in their pretty little sweet white apron. But nay: most of 'em had on their Eve-ning gown and some of them looked like they'd been playin' strip poker—and lost. (One of 'em had enjoyed an operation—I know 'cause I saw the scar. Aside to the curious: Save your postage, because I must not state location of scar.) But at that they didn't have nothin' on me 'cause I was gorgeously dolled up in my other pair of pants over adorably striped shorts (masculine jump-ins or step-ins or somethin').

Well Doug, pretty soon ou come trottin' this here Jessie all ready to demonstrate. The wimmin finally settled theirself into that state of tumultuous disquietude which is commonly accepted by the wimmin as order; and I tried to give Jessie my ear. But I soon realized that with all them wimmin on hand, I wouldn't be able to keep my mind on my business, so I decided to allow my venture to become one of amusement rather than education. Therefore I profited not, from a culinary standpoint, by Jessie's visit.

Now Doug, I'm the reciprocatin'est guy ever saw, and it occurs to me that we ought to make a deal with the wimmin at the college whereby we could use our respective talents pro each other's bono. In exchange for their culinary tricks, we could offer them a demonstration of the Dooker Pooker Pucker which's usefulness in matters of sentiment is greater than that of salt in seasoning. The college down there can qualify them for success; the D. P. Pucker assures it.

You will, therefore, approach Dr. Carmichael and arrange for periodical exchanges. You will select our beneficiaries, who will prove the deliciousness of their recipes and their skill in following them by inviting us to dinner some night. If we find them not wanting we will proceed to administer the Pucker to the lucky ones.

Be good enough to report instanter or sooner.

DOOKER POOKER.

P. S. No. 1—The only time I ever visited the college, I saw more good lookin' gals per twelfth of a gross than I'd ever saw before. However, I didn't tarry and give them the opportunity to meet me, 'cause I didn't know they was culinary artists. So I too probably missed a treat although I'll bet that all of them was mighty prissy and thought they was so smart.

P. S. No. 2—Be sure and look up the Montevallo lady who spoke to the Pilot Club on "Wimmin's Peculiar Place in Society" and see if you can ascretain just what "peculiar" place it is that our wimmin occupy in society.

P. S. No. 3—Has George McCain still got some "nice" mules?

Now, Dooker I shall follow your instructions to the letter and bring myself enough courage to face the temptations to be found at the college in Montevallo.

MY PERSONAL COLUMN
Billy Smith

Perry Littlejohn told me Monday that the little brick structure he is erecting north of Clanton, on the highway that it is to be a filling station and residence combined. I have had many people to ask me about that building. It is odd looking now, but Mr. Littlejohn says there is quite a bit of work to be done to it yet.

He also told me that it was going to be a storm pit. Whatever kind of business was conducted in it would be by storm. I thought that was a good reply to the questions he was being asked.

At times when I want to get out and enjoy some congenial company, outside of Clanton, I usually drive up to Thorsby to 'rub shoulders' with some of the fellows up there. Of course it has been several years since I lived there and a few more since I was born there, I still have a feeling that Thorsby is something like home to me, and I like to go up there and just knock around now and then.

I sincerely hope that all who are interested in the people who have suffered so much from losses in the recent tornadoes will urge these people to hear Judge Leon McCord next Saturday. I am sure the message Judge McCord will bring to the people will be worth more than the time. In fact at this time, I don't believe anyone would regret having left their business to listen to this man, whose address will be directed to the storm sufferers.

A PEDDLER'S RISE

There is a striking "success" story in the career of Joseph Abraham, who landed in New York in 1896, an immigrant from Syria, with $10.50 in his pocket. He died in Bristow, Okla., a multimillionaire.

Abraham invested his original capital in merchandise which he peddled from house to house, first in the East and later in Oklahoma. Within three or four years he was able to open a store, which prospered greatly. He also acquired eleven cotton gins and a cotton seed oil mill. Through industry he built up a great fortune.

A few years ago he returned to Syria on a visit and endowed a school for boys and girls in his native city, Adoon. He was a friend of the press and in 1924 he entertained the National Editorial Association at a dinner at which Syrian cooking was served exclusively, during the tour of the editors after their convention in Oklahoma City.

When he died, two daughters, who had been in school in Los Angeles, returned to Oklahoma for his funeral, covering most of the distance by airplane.

There is a valuable lesson for the shiftless and improvident in the story of this immigrant who began to climb the ladder of success with a peddler's pack on his back.

BORROWED THOUGHTS

"Verify your quotations," is the advice of someone, but the advice is sometimes difficult to follow. In the case of many famous sayings it is hard to find out who really said them first. There are many instances of striking phrases which have been attributed to prominent persons who really borrowed them from others.

For example, Lincoln's reference to "a government by the people and for the people." Almost identical words were used by John Wycliffe in the 14th century and by Robespierre, Thomas Cooper, Joseph Story, Daniel Webster and Theodore Parker long before Lincoln used them at Gettysburg.

Even the Golden Rule, which appears in two forms in the New Testament, was expressed by Confucius five centuries before Christ, and by other ancient teachers.

Perhaps the most catchy phrase ever uttered by the late William Jennings Bryan contained his "crown of thorns and cross of gold" metaphor, which is credited with securing his nomination for the presidency in 1896. It has been and still is generally believed that the phrase was original with Bryan, but the Congressional Record shows that it was spoken by Congressman Samuel W. McCall several months before.

But no one whose words have been appropriated by another could have shown a better spirit toward an imitator than McCall showed toward his in this instance. When questioned about it later, McCall said:

"Yes, Bryan borrowed it from one of my Congressional speeches. And probably I stole it from somebody else."

AN ARMY MAN'S VIEW

It may be true that military men favor maintenance of larger armies and navies than the average citizen deems necessary. But that they want war is not true. No class is more opposed to war than those who must inevitably take part in it when it comes. Particularly is this true of those who have experienced the horrors of war.

But military men who have seen the slaughter of untrained or partially trained troops are naturally believers in adequate measures of preparedness. As a rule they have little faith in the idea that war is a thing of the past.

At the same time they realize that public sentiment is against a large regular military establishment and content themselves with making the best preparations possible with the means Congress provides. Their attitude is well expressed by Major General Charles P. Summerall, who recently said:

"We have never fought a war with trained and equipped troops, and we never shall do so. It is inconsistent with the form of our government and the psychology of our people to maintain adequate military perparedness. They would rather pay the price that has followed every war than to spend a part of that amount in preserving peace."

LINCOLN'S GRAMMAR

An interesting memento of Abraham Lincoln and his youthful sweetheart, Ann Rutledge, was recently received by the Library of Congress, where it will be preserved with other relics of our first martyred president. It is the Kirkham's Grammar which Lincoln and Ann studied in New Salem, Ill., 100 years ago.

Textbooks were scarce in those days and Lincoln obtained the grammar second-hand from its former owner, walking a doden miles to secure it. This was in 1831, when he was clerking in a New Salem store and boarding with Ann's parents. When he had mastered its contents he gave the book to Ann, writing on the title page, "Ann M. Rutledge is now learning grammar."

It is said that Abraham and Ann became engaged on July 4, 1833, shortly before Lincoln's election to the state legislature. Ann was stricken with malarial fever and died on August 25, 1835, and intimate friends of Lincoln declared he never recovered from his grief for the only woman he ever truly loved.

The book was preserved by the Rutledge family, finally coming into the possession of William Rutledge of Milton, Mont., a nephew of Ann. From him it was borrowed by Miss Jane Hamand for the public library of Decatur, Ill. Not long ago, with Mr. Rutledge's consent, she presented it to the Congressional Library. There it may now be seen in the case which also contains Lincoln's Bible in which he inscribed his family record with his own hand.

The Way of Life By BRUCE BARTON

Rhythm

Looking back, the record would be something like this:

Unbounded optimism; "new era"; everything's going to be all right.

Collapse; disillusionment.

Fear.

Fear compels thought. "The fear of the Lord," says the Bible, "is the beginning of wisdom." Until we are thoroughly scared we do not start to recover.

Congress was thoroughly scared when it convened last December, and it has been the most sensible Congress in a long time. Business has been thoroughly scared, and more constructive business thinking has been done than for many years. Bankers have been thoroughly scared, and we shall have a sounder banking system.

The greatest impression that this experience has made on me is a fresh realization of the Rhythm of human existence. The race does not move in a straight line forward and up, much as we should like to thing so. It Swings.

It swings too far to the left, bumps its nose, and swings back, too far to the right. In the course of these great swings it edges forward.

But most of us fail to sense the rhythm. We are looking for a fixedness, a finality which does not exist. We do not realize that Change is the one unchanging fact in the universe; that because a situation is so today is the one reason why it will not be so tomorrow.

In these depression periods we question everything. We probe with doubts. We react. And the reaction is beneficent.

For twenty-five years we worshipped "scientific progress." Now we wonder whether a lot of this so-called progress did not consist merely of filling up the world and speeding it up. We begin to wonder whether less Things and more Thinking may not lead to the happier life.

In education we have been devoted to the practical, to training men and women to Do things. We are swinging back to the old fashioned idea that education is an enrichment of the spirit and not a filling of the brain.

In government we have multiplied laws and bureaus and taxes. Now the worm is turning. The taxpayer rebels; government must simplify, deflate.

We had a great period of misdirected idealism, a passion for educating everybody, "improving" everything, enlightening the world. Now we are beginning to suspect that the older civilizations have fully as much to teach us as we have to teach them.

Action and reaction, ebb and flow, trial and error, Change—this is the rhythm of living. Out of our over-confidence, fear; out of our fear, clearer vision, fresh hope. And out of hope—progress.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.
"Allergy"

When questions come thick and fast from the asthma and hay fever patients, the doctor has at least one umbrella to get under, that of "allergy." Allergy may be described as the "kick" obtained from different sorts of foods, different individuals obtaining not by any means the same sort of kick.

For instance, the Irish potato may awaken terrible consequences in certain sensitive persons. No certain law has been discovered at this time which is obeyed by food allergies. But we are studying.

Asthma of the "bronchial" sort, may be due to reactions of certain kinds of food in that particular individual. Fish will provoke asthmatic attacks in some; oysters in others. When I am consulted by a confirmed sufferer from asthma, I have him write me a list of the articles he eats—and then require him to eat everything else but that; to keep the list before him constantly, and avoid every single item noted. In other words, to live on the things for awhile at least—that he don't like! This plan, with the line of remedies that relieve symptoms, sometimes works great good.

The advice is based on "food allergy" of course.

"Hay fever" is believed to be an allergy reaction. Its victims react to pollens on the nasal mucous membrane. If we inject pollen vaccine, it looks like the rational way to prevent hay fever. I have had success with pollen vaccines, but the patient usually waits till the season is on, and brings his sneezes to me when too late.

I had a patient, and they are common, who could not take quinine without developing a "rash" that was most annoying—a half grain of the drug would cause the volcano. Allergy, the scientist says. Just how one can take it, and another can't, is something yet undiscovered. Truly, allergy is worth considering.

MIRTH MELODY AND ACTION AT LOCAL THEATER

A Big All-Star Cast With Wheeler and Woolsey in Grand Comedy

The Wadesonian Theater, Clanton's popular playhouse, is again this week providing for its patrons a series of pictures which for sheer mirth, melody and action cannot be equaled. On Monday and Tuesday they present the two screen comedians, Wheeler and Woolsey, in a rollicking comedy entitled, "Girl Crazy," and on Wednesday and Thursday these two mirth provoking comedians are present in another comedy drama entitled "Caught Plastered. This week may rightfully be termed fun week for Clanton theatergoers. Mr. C. W. Wade states that he has a number of good pictures booked for the near future and that he is doing all that he can to bring to the Clanton public the latest and best shows on the market at the lowest admission prices possible.

Following are reviews of the two pictures scheduled for this week:

It's a Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey comedy, this Radio Pictures, "Caught Plastered" which opens Wednesday.

That is "'nuf said."

However, for the benefit of those who haven't seen these incorrigible laugh kings, the picture not only is funny, but it is funny in an altogether refreshing way.

It combines new laughs and dramatic tensity. In between these two extremes are little giggles, big smiles and heartaches.

There is even some slapstick, and plenty of giddy patter.

Opposite Wheeler is Dorothy Lee, a combination fittingly called the "Romeo and Juliet of the Comedy World." Wheeler's whimsical love-making and Dorothy's charm are very much in evidence all through the picture.

Action plunges into an absorbing story, strange as that may seem in connection with comedy.

Tommy Tanner (Wheeler) and Egbert Higginbotham (Robert Woolsey) enter a midwestern town on their uppers. They meet Ma Talley (Lucy Beaumont), who is about to lose her drug store because of the machinations of a villain, (Jason Robards).

They take over the store to save her from the poorhouse, and are about ready to pay the "heavy" when he spikes their soda with liquor and tips off the police. When things are darkest, Dorothy Lee (daughter of the local police chief), outmanoeuvers the crook.

If variety is the spice of life, RKO-Radio Pictures' all-star rollicking comedy "Girl Crazy," which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre Monday and Tuesday is a snappily seasoned entertainment dish. It offers mirth and melody, romance and action, beauty and atmosphere.

In the cast are comedy stars, a child prodigy, Broadway beauties, Hollywood cowboys, Mexican senoritas, two gun men, and polished villains. The action shifts from city tenement, to western dude ranch and Mexican resort and ranges from riproaring chases to rhythmic dances and tender love scenes.

Heading the imposing array of talent are the inimitable Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, who start the film as city slickers and wind up as rough and ready westerners. Eddie Quillan carries the romantic lead of a girl crazy youth who transforms a respectable cattle ranch into a whoopee dude resort. Mitzi Green, Hollywood's child mimic wonder, plays a pestiforous little sister and the romance and beauty brigade is headed by Dorothy Lee, Arline Judge, Kitty Kelly and Lita Chevret. Stanley Fields and Chris Pin Martin play the shoot and run villains.

The story deals with a girl crazy youth who is sent to the quiet of a western ranch to cure him of his weakness for beautiful women. He imports a snappy jazz band, a bevy of Broadway beauties, dresses the cowpunchers in dinner jackets, and turns the ranch into a playboy's paradise.

Melodies which are liberally sprinkled through the fast and furious action and laughs are original compositions by George Gershwin, modern music's master hit creator.

If you chance to stroll that way.

You'll need two dimes and a nickel, too
To enjoy the thing aright.
One dime will pay in the usualy way
For refreshments good, tho' light.

But the other dime and the five together
Will buy you a wonderful prize
All wrapped from sight in a package tight.
Of many a shape and size.

Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association

The Thorsby strawberry movement got well under way last week with a shipment of 17 cars in spite of the cool weather prevailing. On Monday of this week the day's loading was 9 cars, one of these being an entire car by express, the first express car to be shipped by this association.

The berries this week are of excellent quality, and should command a stronger market than was experienced last week.

The outlook at this time is for shipments to continue with car loading for next week, and possibly longer.

It is believed that the estimated movement of some 60 or 65 cars from this place will be reached, and a probability of more.

Orders for potato bags are now being received, with the anticipation of loading from 15 to 20 cars. Some string beans will be shipped, but just how much is yet undetermined.

Jemison F. F. A. News

The regular meeting of the Jemison F. F. A. Chapter met last Friday, April 22, for its last time this year. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Jesse Splawn, vice president, due to the president, Mr. Alton Cobb, being absent.

The Chapter discussed the finishing touches of all its work of the past year. It also read the "dues" and made those even with all of the members.

The last meeting called for lots of work and hurried work, for there was lots of planning to be done. First, the delegates to represent us at Auburn this summer. the delegates are Mr. Frank Nelson and Mr. Herbert Watson. Let us hope that these boys will make the best of the trip. Second, the annual camp meeting this summer was taken up. Two or three places were named, but the place chosen was Mc-McGrawn Ferry in Shelby County, near Wilsonville, Ala.

Prof. J. P. Montgomery gave us the close-up on the trip to Auburn, Ala.

Mr. J. A. Peterson visited our meeting. He gave us the reason for being honest and respecting our chapter.

Owl's Patrol News

Our patrol has been very busy preparing for the Scout Jamboree that we go to Friday, the 6, over at Auburn. Scouts from all cities, mostly in Central Alabama Area Council, will be there. We will be the guests of Auburn College. We will leave Clanton at six o'clock Friday morning and stay all day, competing with other troops in Scout events such as signaling, water boiling, rescue race, first aid and map finding. Troop 47 hopes they can win 1st, 2nd or 3rd place in some of the events. We will tell you how we come out next week.

SIDNEY L. REYNOLDS,
Patrol Leader.

REPORT OF COUNTY BOARD OF REVIEW OPEN FOR INSPECTION

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given by Akins I. Collins, Tax Assessor of Chilton County, Alabama, that the Board of Review of said county has returned its report and the same is now open for inspection in the Tax Assessor's office.

The Board of Review will sit at the Courthouse of Chilton County on the first Monday in June, 1932, to consider such protests as may be filed by any taxpayer, as provided by law.

Any taxpayer who is not satisfied with the valuation of his property as fixed and entered upon the return list, may file objections in writing to such assessed valuations with the secretary of said board (Akins I. Collins) on or before the last Monday in May, 1932, and the taxpayer shall set out in such objections filed, the description of each item of property and his reason for making objection to the assessed valuation as placed thereon. (Section 158, of 1923 Revenue Act.)

AKINS I. COLLINS,
Tax Assessor, Chilton County.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Mother. We see her sitting on the front steps of an humble home. The twilight of a setting sun is falling upon her face. In her arms there is a cooing babe and upon her lips there is one of the sweet songs of Zion. Listen, O earth, listen ye angels of heaven—she is singing— "Jesus lover of my soul, let me to thy bosom fly." Over the hill there is a Whippoorwill singing his song, "Chip-fell-out-of-the-whiteoak." From the fowl house comes the farewell song of the yard cockerel, while the distant tap and double tap of the approaching cow bell can be heard. The sound of steps and clanking chains tell of the approach of a young husband as the day's work is over. It is a grand scene to stand a few feet away and look into the face of that Mother. She is the goddess of love. In her calm, trustful soul there is a bit of heaven on earth. We lift our hat to her as the mother of our baby.

Mother. We see her moving about the room, the house and the yard. There is much stir and bustle in the home that was once so quiet. There are the voices of childhood in frolic and fun. There is the bark of the dog, the bellow of the yearling and the bleat of the goat. All about the place nothing seems poetical. Rarely ever do we hear a song. From early morn until late at night there are rapid footsteps, and sometimes we hear a sound of irritation and impatience. It is a time when floors must be swept, beds must be made, food must be prepared, garments must be mended and bleeding fingers must be bound. It is a time when the heart is in the heel and in the finger tips. It is wonderful to see that mother moving among her own. Children bury their sobs on her bosom, they rest their sleepy head on her shoulder, they cling with a strong grip to her fingers and they continually trample over her toes. Night and day they are a burden to carry and only a heart of steel can refuse to break under the load. We lift our hat to the one who never sleeps soundly, for she is the mother of our children.

Mother. We see her as she comes into the full development of womanhood. On her head there are silver threads among the gold. No longer does she move with such haste. On her face there are lines of hardships borne and of burdens carried. In her eyes there are visions of hope and life. Her hands are a bit calloused from hard service, and her form is not so erect as it once was. About her home we see the coming and going of young men and women. They have come up by the way of her heart and hands, and now they are living in her home and heart. There are more tears in that home than ever before. The trunk is packed and a college student is embraced in a farewell blessing. Wedding roses are banked and a sad, but a beautiful woman stands just within the door. There are more prayers in that home than ever before. We do not claim to know why, but the lips that sang, "Jesus lover of my soul" is now singing, "Sweet hour of prayer." It is mysterious to look upon the mother as as she pushes her own flesh and blood out on the sea of life. We lift our hats to her for she is the mother of our manhood and womanhood.

Mother. We see her as she is alone in the home. The birds of her nest have gone away and now they are singing the mating song under other skies. The husband is in the field or in his place of business, and we see this lonely mother as she sits at the window and waits for the letter. With her fingers she may be darning torn places, but in her thoughts and prayers she is padding the path of her own with love and motherly concern. Her heart strings run out to the four corners of the earth, and she sits and dreams and prays. Once her children trampled upon her toes, but now they are tramping upon her heart. No longer does she risk her voice to sing, but in a hum of the soul she is singing, "How firm a foundation ye saints of the Lord." It is sublime to see her sitting in the old rocker and to listen to her as she talks of the long ago. We lift our hats to her for she is the mother of our souls.

Mother. We see her upon her dying bed. The years have passed over her hair and made it as white as the snow. The years have passed over her face and made it thin and wrinkly. The years have passed over her hands and they can no longer handle the tools of service. The years have passed over her eyes and they can no longer see. The years have passed over her soul and now it is too good for this world. The apple is ripe on the tree and it must fall to earth. Pick and shovel make a gash on the breast of the earth and into that trench we pour our tears. We cover the tomb over with flowers. There we bow our spirits and uncover our heads for we are before the mothers of men.

Mother. We see her up in heaven. No wrinkles on her brow. no tears in her eyes, no pains in her body, no more heart strings to be broken. In her hand there is the harp, on her lips there are songs of Moses and the Lamb and on her head there is the crown of life. She is sitting there by the window looking for the coming of her children into that land where the weary are at rest. Some day may we not meet our mothers in heaven then we will lift our hats to her and say with Lincoln, "All I am, I owe it to my angel mother." Then we will know that God could not be everywhere and therefore he created mothers. On Mother's Day we do honor to all the mothers of men.

ONE of the outstanding developments in recent years has been the extension of rural lines to provide electric service to the farms—in which Alabama is a leader.

Alabama Power Company in the past 5 years has built 1781 miles of rural electric lines to serve 7416 customers in 64 of the 67 counties of the State.

That the farmers of Alabama appreciate this service and have found its use profitable on the farm is evidenced by the increasing average use of the service.

As the use of service has increased the average rate paid for it has steadily declined. In 1926 the farm users paid an average rate of 7.46c per kilowatt hour. In 1930 this average rate was 6.29c per kilowatt hour—a decline of 15.7%, in spite of the fact that Rural Lines were being continuously extended to more thinly populated areas.

Weevils can't ruin AN EARLY CROP

IT is not surprising that we have one of the heaviest of all weevil infestations this year. A remarkably mild winter, a late, damp spring, the possibility of a wet summer—this combination of conditions is ideal for the weevil.

What he does to the crop however, depends pretty much on what he finds when he begins to get around in large numbers. If he finds squares, it will be just too bad. But if he finds the crop already set, he'll have plenty to worry about.

The job is to get your crop set just as early as you can. And there is nothing like a Chilean Nitrate side-dressing to do it. Immediate availability, quick action, lasting vigor and vitality—these are reasons why Chilean Nitrate is so valuable, so effective for side-dressing cotton.

Put down 100 pounds per acre (200 pounds would be better) right after chopping. That ought to pull you through this year. But be sure you get Chilean Nitrate. See your dealer now.

ALVIN C. YORK

Alvin C. York is worthy of eulogy this Thursday of "Boys' Week." I'm sure that he is a hero in your heart and will be a great hero to all boys in years to come.

I think too that the mother of Alvin C. York is worthy to share in the adoration that we give our own mothers on the national Mother's Day, May 8th, 1932. For back of Alvin C. York is his mother, who was a hard-working mountain woman. She had a big family and few advantages, but she was a good woman, a praying woman, therefore a good mother, and we see the result of her influence in her big son, Alvin C. York.

Alvin C. York grew up in the mountains of Tennessee. In all his life he did not go to school as many months as a boy in Alabama ordinarily goes in two years.

The Word War came on and the country called for her finest young men. Alvin C. York, away over in the mountains, was drafted. He didn't want to go. Because he was not brave? No! for the proved that he was braver than most. He didn't want to go because he was a Christian and he believed that one must forgive one's enemies and do good to all men; but he was a loyal American too, and he wanted to be true to both. He did not know what to do. He spent one whole night on his knees in prayer seeking to know what was right. When a flood of peace and power swept over him he felt that he could go and still keep faith with his Saviour, even though he could not understand it all.

Months and months later Sergeant Alvin C. York went into the Battle of the Argonne with that same God-given power and that determination to do right. He saw thirty-five machine guns that needed to be stopped from firing upon his buddies, so, with less men to help him than you have fingers, he captured the thirty-five machine guns and marched one hundred and thirty-two prisoners back to the American lines. For that act of unsurpassed bravery he has a handful of medals, is a hero in our hearts and is a famous man in the history of the Battle of the Argonne. And this noble man is as much opposed to war as he was when he was drafted, really more so for now he knows from experience the horrors of it.

When Sergeant York came back to America the whole country knew about him. The cities of New York and Washington cheered and gave him fitting welcome. When he arrived back in Tennessee, the State gave her son the royal welcome that was his due and in addition wanted to give him anything that he would ask for.

Sergeant York had a yearning in his heart to bring back to his mountain people a gift that would keep on lasting. That gift he wanted to bring to his people was something they had never had. It was the enjoyment of the progress, advantages and comforts of life that the people outside the mountains enjoyed. He saw that the way to give that gift was though better schools and passable roads. So when the State offered him anything he wanted he asked for a road and helped build it.

To get the better schools Mr. York had to do something that was hard for him because of his poor education, but his red-headed determination carried him through. He went out of his state to great cities and talked before thousands of people in different gatherings—in colleges, legislatures and churches. The people that heard him were glad to help their hero and their buddy make life pleasant for his people. They gave him fifteen thousand dollars to start his schools. His state and county added one hundred thousand dollars more and the better schools began to be built.

Sergeant York's boys now go with other boys and girls to an Elementary school better than their father and mother knew about and to a Vocational High School where they can take courses in Agriculture, Home Economics and Manual Training.

Back of Sergeant York's bravery and determination is his principle, or rule of action, that he will not lower. Immediately after the war when everybody wanted to pay him honor, some manufacturers and sellers of different articles of merchandise wanted to use his popularity to their own advantage. They offered him fortunes in money to be allowed to use his name in their advertisements. He refused, He was true to his principles and is still refusing to sell it for money, much as he needs it in his schools. Recently he refused to make a five-minute radio talk about his war experiences for which he was offered five hundred dollars by a tobacco advertising agency. He is against anything that will harm the children of his people. He doesn't smoke; he doesn't drink and he says that because he is a friend of little children he is for prohibition.

He always carries about with him, among other things, a copy of the United States Constitution and a copy of the New Testament. Alvin C. York is a Patriot and a Christian.

JAMES SMITHSON'S GIFT

One of the most remarkable gifts in history, both with respect to the circumstances under which it was given and the results which have sprung from it, was that of James Smithson, an Englishman, who left his fortune of about $540,000 to the United States about 100 years ago.

From this legacy has arisen one of the leading scientific establishments in the world, in accordance with the terms of his will, which provided that the money should be used to found in the city of Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, "an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

A strange fact connected with his gift is that during his life James Smithson never set foot on American soil. He was born in France, of English parents, the natural son of Hugh Smithson, who afterwards became the Duke of Northumberland; his mother was Elizabeth Keate Macie, a descendant of Henry VII. Smithson was a scientist of some note, deeply interested in research, particularly in chemistry. Just why he left his fortune to the United States is unknown.

In any event, as was recently said, "Smithson's bequest became the inspiration of American science and even to a measurable extent of world science." Besides, it has served as an example to other men who have given princely gifts to promote the spread of knowledge.

In 1904 Smithson's remains were brought from Genoa, Iitaly, where he died in 1829, and interred in the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution.

EFFECTS OF A FOOL LAW

Laws enacted by radical legislators sometimes have effects not expected by those who enact them through misguided zeal for the "dear people." An example is the Kansas law which prohibits the sale of electrical and gas appliances by public utility companies.

At a recent meeting in Wichita, the Kansas Press Association condemned the law, declaring it has caused the sale of such appliances to drop 62 per cent last year, while chain stores sold 85 per cent of what was sold. It was also estimated that utility advertising in the state dropped off to the amount of $250,000, which loss was suffered chiefly by small town newspapers. Because of a similar law it is estimated that Oklahoma newspapers lost an average of more than $600 per paper during the year.

Commenting on these facts, a Texas periodical estimates that such a law in that state would cause an annual advertising loss of nearly $700,000, besides depriving many small communities of any opportunity to buy electrical and gas appliances locally.

This sort of legislation benefits no one, buf serves only to retard the rapid progress which is being made in extending modern conveniences and comforts to the smaller communities and to farm homes.

The "beared man" which a frightened woman telephoned Chicago police about, turned out to be a nanny goat, which the officers took to the station.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

During the week the Chilton County Training School for Colored students has been observing its Commencement exercises at the school building eight miles to the South west of Clanton. Benjamin Anderson is at the head of this institution and is completing one of the best years in the history of the school.

Last Sunday afternoon at 2:30 the Baccalaureate sermon was preached by Dr. C. L. Fisher of the Southern University, located at Selma. There were twenty white people from Clanton attended this service and reported that Dr. Fisher preached a great sermon. He was pleasing in his manner of delivery and he was forceful in the sphere of his thinking.

Friday at 1:30 o'clock P. M. the graduating exercises will be held, when John Dellingham of the State Teachers College at Montgomery will deliver the Baccalaureate address and diplomas and certificates will be delivered to the graduating class. This institution has an enrollment of more than 200 students, and is one of the greatest assets for the Colored race in Chilton County.

Mr. Quinn and Judge Leon McCord of Montgomery spoke in the Court House Thursday afternoon to the Woodmen who gathered for the "Log Rolling." The size of the audience was enlarged when Prof. L. C. Warr of the Chilton County High School marched his Senior Class into the Court Room. Mr. Quinn spoke on "Making Good Citizens," and Judge McCord spoke on "Finding the Truth." Both addresses were highly appreciated.

Judge McCord told his audience that a friend of his had informed him that no wild geese had dared to fly over Alabama this last winter. He asked his friend why? His reply was that they were afraid to do so. Hoover had picked them clean and they knew that if they crossed Alabama in their flight that Miller would skin them. Judge McCord said, "I have no special complaint to register against the Republican party, but I would be well pleased if they would give the general public a different deal."

FORMER PASTOR COMING

Rev. S. U. Turnipseed, pastor of the Forest Avenue Methodist church in Montgomery will preach at the local Methodist church next Sunday night at 7:30. At 11 A. M. he preaches the Commencement sermon for the Isabella High School at the Mulberry church and that night he will preach for Dr. Haskew in Clanton. Dr. Turnipseed was pastor in Clanton when he was a young man, just joining the Alabama conference, and there are many yet living in Clanton who will be glad to hear him again. Since serving the Clanton church he has filled many of the leading appointments in the Alabama conference. Among these are Troy, Ozark and the Greensboro district as presiding elder. Clanton should give this former pastor a splendid hearing next Sunday night.

Dr. R. E. L. Bell, pastor of the Presbyterian churches at Union Springs and Tuskegee will preach the Commencement sermon for the Chilton County High School on May the 15th. at the Methodist church. There are few men in Alabama pulpits who are more fluent in speech than is Dr. Bell, and his coming to Clanton means that there is a rare treat for those who will hear him on the Commencement occasion. Dr. Bell is one of the leading men of his denomination and enjoys a wide reputation as a scholar and as an orator.

Rev. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the Methodist church in Clanton, has accepted the invitation to deliver the Baccalaureate address before the graduating class of the Maplesville High school at 8 P. M. on May the 10th. Dr. Haskew has selected for his subject for the occasion, "Hands That Hold Us Back."

Pratt and Fred Buzbee of Birmingham were week end visitors in Clanton last week.

Reece Mullins, Jr., accompanied Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar on their trip to Washington. A card from him tells us that he is enjoying the sights of the Capitol City.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Carroll of Montgomery spent several hours in the city last Friday. Mr. Carroll was out doing some political stunts for a well known politician.

Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer and daughter, Helen, spent Sunday with Miss Ruth Prince at Alexander City.

One of the real beauty spots in Chilton county is the home of Sam Powers at Lay Dam. Mr. Powers is a great lover of flowers and has devoted much effort and quite a bit of expense in beautifying his yards overlooking the lake.

POPULAR TOWN NAMES

If someone were to ask you what is the most popular name for towns in the United States, what would you guess? Unless you had checked up the names in the United States Postal Guide, it is safe to say that you would not hit upon the right name in a dozen guesses.

Of course, Washington would suggest itself, also Springfield, possibly Paris. But neither of them is the leader, although Washington stands in the second rank.

The most popular town name in the United States is Clinton, of which there are 30 having postiffices.

Next comes Chester, Florence and Washington with 28 towns of each name; then Clayton, Madison, Marion and Troy, 27; Glenwood, Kingsport, Newport and Salem, 26; Ashland and Centerville, 25.

There are 24 Clevelands and the same number of Springfields, several of them being important cities. Other names range from this number downward. There is only one New York, but two Chicagos, 6 Philadelphias and 8 Detroits.

The outstanding popularity of the name Clinton is somewhat difficult to understand, although two statesmen of that name were very prominent in the early days of the republic.

George Clinton was the first governor of the state of New York and was vice-president of the United States at the time of his death in 1812. His nephew, DeWitt Clinton, was also governor of New York and an unsuccessful candidacy for the presidency, being defeated by Madison.

Whether it be through the fame of these statesmen or through the euphony of the name itself, Clinton is the favorite name for towns in the United States.

IN MEMORY

As we stroll through the woodland we discover that an acorn has fallen and has been deposited in the mother earth. It germinates and comes forth and grows, then as it shoots forth its branches it goes up, until it becomes a giant whose branches furnish shade for the beast and bird. It stands the rain, storm, sleet and snow until after a while it has grown to such an enormous size until it becomes useful for other purposes more valuable than shelter for beast and bird.

Man looks on it and decides that he will put it to a better use. He fells it to the ground and manufactures it into lumber, then he dresses it and paints and polishes it to make a beautiful home somewhere.

On January 3, 1861, God planted in this world the life of Bro. C. D. Messer. As the tiny acorn, he was small but he grew up, up, up, until his life and influence became a giant and protection for those he came in contact with.

God called him to a life of usefulness in he gospel ministry. He was fervent in spirit, pious and a power in the pulpit. He stood uncompromisingly against all wrong. He was a good builder and very optimistic in his undertakings. His was a lovable disposition, kind to his loved ones and friends.

About three years ago he was stricken with paralysis and gradually grew worse all the time. He was patient in his affliction, smiled through all his suffering and was submissive to his Master's will until April 19, 1932, at 5:10 p.m. the great monster death cut him down.

He is polished and redeemed and has been placed in that home over on the other shore to be used at his Master's will as long as eternity lasts. We will miss him here, miss his words of encouragement and admonition. We would say to the loved ones not to weep as those that have no hope, for he has gone to the Haven of Rest for the righteous, awaiting the judgment day. Let us strive to live and watch for the light of his spirit as it beckons to us from eternity's shore.

He was laid to rest in the Verbena cemetery, with the Masonic Order in charge.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. J. P. Morgan of Speigner, Ala., assisted by Rev. T. C. Cassidy of Capitol Heights M. P. Church, Montgomery, Ala., and Rev. P. A. Lynch, of Clanton circuit of the M. P. Church.

He leaves to mourn, his wife, two sons, Commodore, of Verbena, Mc D, of Birmingham and two step-sons, Prof. Cleve Weldon and Oliver Weldon and Mrs. Mollie Ray of Tuscaloosa, besides his grandchildren, and a host of friends and relatives. The Spigener Funeral Directors were in charge of arrangements.—Rev. P. A. Lynch.

The program for the Jemison High School Commencement is as follows:

The Senior Class play entitled, "Valley Farm" will be given Friday evening, May 6th, at 8 P. M. This play is a comedy of four acts and promises to be one of the best plays ever put on by the Senior class. The play is being directed by Misses Bessie Jesse and Miriam Harvey.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Dr. Walter H. Chapman, director of Religious Education at Howard College—Sunday, May 6th at 11 A. M. Those who have had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Chapman say that we are fortunate in securing his services for this occasion.

The Senior Class exercises will be held Tuesday evening, May 10th, at 8 P. M. This will be followed by the presentation of diplomas and the awarding of medals. The students who will be honored on this occasion will be: Urmi Lee Anderson, Wilson Clements, Herbert Conway, Evelyn Cooper, Bonnie Hilson, Harry Horton, Ruth Horton, Virginia Hubbard, Delene Lawrence, Violet Martin, Nora Evelyn Roberts, Hugh Shaw, Jesse Splawn, Jonnie Mae Watson, and Lexa Watson.

The public is cordially invited to attend each of these exercises.

METHODIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY HELD BUSINESS MEET

The business meeting of the Missionary Society of the Methodist church was held in the parlor of the church on May the 2nd. Mrs. D. W. Haskew presided. The devotional was conducted by the president and the society sang, "Have thine own way, Lord." After reading the second chapter of Timothy the leader gave a talk on "Christ the Lord," and Mrs. J. Q. Wade led in prayer.

The president then told of a collection of missionary relics used by the Lambuth's in their first Missionary work in Japan, and Africa, having been presented to the Museum of Missions in Nashville.

Many items of interest were discussed during the business session. On motion of Mrs. Wilson a vote of love and appreciation was given to Mrs. T. H. Neighbors who has served so efficiently and faithfully as a member of the society, and who is soon going to move back to her old home at Goodwater, Ala. Everyone expressed deepest regrets over the going away of this loved member.

The attendance banner was again won by Circle No. 2, it having the largest number of members present at the business meeting. By a unanimous vote it was decided to have Guest Day for the society on the 5th Monday in May.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT SAMUEL HENRY SMITH

Verbena Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 754, of Alabama.

Verbena, Ala., May 2, 1932.

To Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren:—

Dear Brethren:

On Monday, March 21, 1932, the sad tidings went forth that our beloved brother, Samuel Henry Smith had departed this earthly life.

For several weeks past the end had been expected, but the blow was none the less severe to his family and host of friends.

The funeral services were held on the afternoon of Tuesday March 22, 1932, in the Baptist Church, Coopers, Alabama, conducted by Brother J. D. Hughes, a life long friend of the family, at the grave the Masonic ritual was conducted by Bro. Q. C. Meroney.

Brother Smith was born in Coosa County, Alabama, July 10, 1860, was married to Miss Lucindia Wilson in 1878 and to this union were born five sons and five daughters who survive him. In 1919, his wife having died, he was married to Miss Alice Blalock who also survives him.

He united with the Methodist Protestant church at Moores Chapel, in Coosa County, Alabama at an early age and remained a consistent member of this denomination until his death, at the time of his death his membership was at Walnut Creek church near Clanton, Ala.

Brother Smith was made a Mason at Buyck Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 242 in Coosa County, Alabama November 14th, 1908. Soon after his removal to Chilton County he affiliated with Verbena Lodge A. F. & A.M. No. 754 and remained a consistent member until the time of his death.

Now Therefore: As God in His all-wise providence has seen fit to call our most worthy and beloved brother from his labors on earth to that Lodge Triumphant, be it resolved:

First. That in the death of Brother Smith this Lodge has lost a faithful and loyal member and this community a valuable citizen.

Second. That our most heartfelt sympathy is hereby extended to his bereaved family and friends, though his face we see no more, we shall cherish his memory.

Third. That a blank page in our record be inscribed to his memory and that a copy of this report be spread on our minutes and a copy thereof be furnished his family under the seal of this Lodge and that a copy be published in our County papers.

Respectfully submitted,
—J. C. Pattillo, J. S. Hubbard, C. D. Hughes, Committee.

OPENING OF HOSPITAL IS NOW ASSURED

Dr. Gragg Makes Statement Regarding Opening Of Local Institution

Definite information was secured this week which stated that the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton would reopen its doors in the very near future. This announcement was made by Dr. V. J. Gragg, president of the institution, who also makes a public statement, which follows:

"Dear Editor:

"Will you allow space in your valuable paper for the following announcement?

"On recommendation of the directors, the Central Alabama Hospital is to be re-opened on or before May 16th.

"It is our aim first, last, and all the time, to give service equal to the best that can be found anywhere. We will necessarily do some charity work, but we want the public to distinctly understand that we are going to expect people who are able to pay, to do so. It will not be our aim to carry on our charity list people who are members of exclusive clubs and consider themselves s belonging to the upper ten or silk-stocking bunch. The hospital lost hundreds of dollars last year and closed March 20th. because people who could have paid for services rendered did not do so. And I want to say frankly we cannot and will not keep this up and please do not expect it.

"Another thing about which we wish to have a better understanding; is that some doctors in the past have felt very free to "dump" all their charity work on the Central Alabama Hospital and carry all their pay cases elsewhere. To them I would say if you can't bring any of your pay cases here, please carry or send your charity cases along with your others.

"Just a word regarding a nurses training school. We have several applications to enter training, but have decided it will be best to discontinue our training school and employ only graduate nurses together with such other practical assistance as may be necessary.

"It is our aim to open the hospital on or before May 16th, and we will expect to give the best of service and to receive remuneration for such service unless otherwise arranged for.

"The co-operation of the doctors and the public in general is cordially invited. Any and all regular ethical doctors will have equal rights and privileges in the exercise of the treatment of their cases, both medical and surgical, as has always been the case heretofore.

"Your suggestions or complaints, if you have any, will be carefully considered."

"Yours for service."
V. J. GRAGG, President.

"THE RED-HEADED STEP-CHILD"

A comedy-drama in three acts will be presented by the Senior Class of Billingsley High School at the Elementary building, Saturday night, May 21.

This is a real play that will give two and one-half hours enjoyment that you can not afford to miss.

Dudley Russell and Flora Farnum are screams in their attempt to elope while Mrs. Russell will keep you amused with her idea of culture.

You will laugh, you will scream, but you will love Bess, The Red-Headed Step-Child, from Montana. Come and enjoy the fun.

IT'S HAPPENED WHETHER EXPECTED OR NOT

Something happened Monday that never happened in Clanton before. There is no way of telling when it will occur again either. It came unexpectedly and as a great surprise, although perhaps a pleasant surprise to Dr. Joe E. Edgar who did it. He made a hole-in-one on the Golf Club links, the first ever made here. "Doc" drove the ball 165 yards and without even touching the ground, it struck in the cup and stayed there. So much was it unexpetced that some time was spent looking for the ball everywhere except in the cup. This is no joke—it really happened that way. Dr. Edgar was playing with Raymond Smith. Maybe that had something to do with it.

ALICE M. HARRELL DIED AT HER HOME IN BILLINGSLEY

Alice M. Harrell, age 67, wife of the late E. J. Harrell, died Wednesday night, May 4th, at her home in Billingsley.

Funeral services were held on the following Thursday, with interment in the Billingsley cemetery. She was the mother of Neal Harrell, who is well know in Clanton and over the county.

Heflin Nominated On Republican Ticket For Justice of The Peace in Chilton County

One of the greatest political upheavals now in this section was the nomination of former Senator J. Thomas Heflin for Justice of the Peace in Beat Four of Chilton County—if it is an upheaval. The upheaval part seems to be in the rumors that Tom Littlejohn of Clanton threatens to contest that election, as he was also a nominee for the place.

When hearing through the press of this, J. Thomas Heflin, Jr., who is a law student at Cumberland University, sent a telegram to Mayor J. Lee Smith which stated:

The Mayor, Clanton, Ala.

Press reports state J. Thos. Heflin elected Justice Peace at Clanton. Vague as to senior or junior. I presume of course that this honor was intended for me. I will thank you to convey to the voters my sincere appreciation and also to notify proper authorities that I accept with pleasure. I expect to assume my new duties immediately after graduation from law department here last of May.

J. Thos. Heflin, Jr.,
Cumberland University.

Reports state that the younger Heflin was advised that the place was intended for his father, the former United States Senator. At this time, no statement had been received from the senior Heflin in regard to the nomination.

SHORTAGE IN BERRY CROP OF COUNTY IS SEEN

Unexpected Freeze Cuts Crop Short By Many Cars In Other Sections Also

The strawberry crop in Chilton County will be found short several cars this season, according to reports received from the Thorsby Association and the Clanton Association. Other sections of the state are also showing up short, it was stated.

This shortage, it was said, is due to the unexpected freeze not so long ago. The Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association, with approximately three hundred members, and capable of shipping 125 cars of berries a season, will only ship about 75 cars this season, according to C. R. Foss, manager of the association. Up to Tuesday afternoon late, the Thorsby association had shipped 43 cars and an equivalent to five cars went away in trucks to Birmingham.

Birmingham is said to have bought more berries this year from Thorsby than ever in history. Five cars of Chilton berries were sent to the Magic City the past few days.

The Clanton Berry Growers Association reports 27 cars shipped up through Tuesday night of this week. No report was received from the Jemison association at the time of this writing.

DR. GRAGG IS ATTENDING MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, N. O.

Dr. V. J. Gragg of Clanton, left the early part of this week for New Orleans where he will attend the meeting of the American Medical Association. Dr. Gragg stated he would return sometime the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McEathern and son, Demar, spent the past week end in Siluria with friends, and motored to Birmingham Sunday afternoon.

VERBENA WILL GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY SOON

Well Trained Talent Promises Many Laughs To Expected Large Audience

Musical Comedy. Fast and Furious, Rich and Racy. Hot? Oh, Boy! To a Boiling Point.

Place: Verbena High School Auditorium. Time: Wednesday evening, May Eighteenth at Eight o'clock. If the so-called depression has "Got You" so badly that it hurts you to laugh and be thrilled, just stay at home and nurse the "Blues" and don't come to this show because it is a laughing matter, and because for about one hour and thirty minutes there will not be any sad or sorrowful doin's going on and no sad faces will fit in the audience.

A six-piece orchestra will broadcast some foxtrots that will tickle the goutiest foot on record.

At this show, which is being given for the benefit of play equipment for a children's park in Verbena and for improving the Verbena Cemetery, you will hear vocal and instrumental music by some of Chilton County's best talent and you will get both eyes full for delicious, petite, irresistible chorus girlies who would knock the shine off of many a Broadway chorus. Don't miss 'em—they are so easy on the eyes. In fact there will be three entirely different choruses and each one is well

CLANTON QUARTET WILL SING AT MAPLESVILLE

It was announced the early part of the week that the well known Clanton Quartet will appear at the Maplesville Baptist church on next Sunday morning and render several selections. This announcement was made by the Rev. Paul Oden. The quartet will appear at the evening services at the church, at seven o'clock.

EDITORIAL

THE RED CROSS IN CHILTON COUNTY

Soon the industrious and thorough workers of the National Red Cross will complete their work in Chilton County and withdraw to do work in other places where they might be needed. To some, perhaps, the Red Cross is merely a division of the War Department of the United States. To others the Red Cross is the finest organization ever founded and feelings of gratitude will ever be found in the hearts of the latter. That is due to the knowledge of what the Red Cross has done for Chilton County.

This organization with its corps of skilled and sympathetic workers, has brought happiness and harmony into a section that was torn to shreds by tornadoes. It has placed back those things that men and women have worked, saved and sacrificed in order to have, and in a fleeting moment had it swept from them.

Chilton County's Red Cross Chapter had only about one thousand dollars in its treasure, a mere drop in the bucket, when the cry went out for help from storm victims. The National Red Cross has expended near $40,000 in Chilton County, erecting homes, furnishing them, and many other items. This newspaper feels that Chilton County as a whole owes the National Red Cross a debt of gratitude never to be forgotten.

OUR HOSPITAL

A gratifying announcement indeed is to the effect that the Central Alabama Hospital will reopen on or before May 16th, which is carried elsewhere in this issue. It was with regret we saw its doors close last March 20th. But even then we were not awakened to a full realization of its meaning to Chilton County. We felt that it was more or less the chief concern of stockholders, management, etc. But almost as though the hands that direct the universe rebelled at the closing of such an institution of service and mercy, it was only a few hours until such a calamity as Chilton County had never dreamed could strike our own peaceful homes swept by, leaving in its wake a wounded, bleeding, suffering and dying cross-section of Chilton County.

Without questions and without delay Dr. V. J. Gragg, head of this institution, reopened its doors and took in its own, to relieve suffering and save lives, without thought of money or reward, other than the maintaining of the high standard of service which this institution has constantly lived up to.

On Tuesday morning, March 22, 1932, a representative of the News walked down the halls and through the corridors of the Central Alabama Hospital and saw on every hand cots and beds crowded into every available space on which were lying men, women and children of Chilton County, wounded and suffering, but in every instance being cared for in a manner highly creditable to the management.

Then it was we realized that this institution was more than just a business concern, that more people than just the stockholders have an interest in its existence, that it belongs, not only to those whose money is invested, but to all of our people. Chilton County owes this institution a debt which can only be paid by cooperation and support.

Though it was against the wall financially it came to the aid of its people in their time of need in a glorious way. Its people can do no less than give it their support in every reasonable way. Those who accept, and have accepted of its services, and are able to do so, can do no less than pay their just dues that this institution may be able to continue its program of service to Chilton County.

Note: We give credit to the Central Alabama Hospital for its service after the storm, but in no sense does this mean we minimize the splendid services rendered by all those others who so unselfishly gave in this time of need.

ENTERTAINMENTS GALORE IN COUNTY NOW

Anyone seeking entertainment of the best will certainly have no trouble finding it in Chilton County during the next few days. In almost every town in the county there is some entertainment taking place at school buildings, or churches, and the local theatre has some well recommended pictures on its programs for the coming week. Commencement exercises are being conducted over the county, and in each school, widely known speakers have been secured to deliver addresses, class plays are being staged. Entertainment of the highest class and at small cost, awaits the people of the county for the next few days. Attend these school exercises and lend your cooperation and support.

CHILTON MAN SLAYS RELATIVE IN RECENT ROW

Thomas Littlefield Placed In Jail For Murder Of Half Brother

Thomas Littlefied, 49, well known resident and farmer of Chilton County, was placed in the jail at Clanton last Thursday, following the death of his half-brother, Posey Littlefield, 36, on the same day, said to have been caused by a blow on the head from a gun in the hands of the former Littlefield.

The report given this newspaper stated that Thomas Littlefield struck his half brother over the head during a quarrel at the home of the dead man Wednesday afternoon of last week. Posey Littlefield died in a Sylacauga hospital the following Thursday. At the time of this writing, Thomas Littlefield is being held in jail in Clanton, awaiting a preliminary hearing.

Other Arrests Reported

The Sheriff's office here reports arrests during the past week, up to Tuesday at noon, at four. One for delinquency, two for violating the prohibition law, one for assault and battery.

Father Of Prof. Warr Died Suddenly Tues.

News was received in Clanton early Tuesday morning of the death of Tommie Warr, of Eufaula, Ala., and father of Prof. L. C. Warr, principal of the Chilton County High School.

Prof. and Mrs. Warr left immediately Tuesday morning for Eufaula. Funeral services were held yesterday. The report reaching Clanton Tuesday morning brought no details, but it was stated his death was sudden.

J. MELL MARTIN ELECTED SEC.-TREAS. OF FUNERAL ASS'N. FOR THIRD TIME

News was received in Clanton this week of the re-election of J. Mell Martin, local funeral director, as secretary-treasurer of the Alabama Funeral Directors Association, at the annual meeting in Montgomery this week. This is the third time Mr. Martin has been elected to this responsible post by his fellow craftsmen, and Chilton County extends congratulations to him. He was also presented with a large basket of beautiful flowers for excellent service

The firm of J. Mell Martin & Sons, funeral directors of Clanton, was also represented at the meeting in Montgomery by Samuel Martin, who recently became a licensed embalmer. They returned to Clanton Tuesday afternoon with statements from members that this meeting of the funeral directors association was declared the best held in its history, and much credit for its success was given to its secretary, Mr. Martin.

SEVERAL HUNDRED MINNOWS ARE POISONED, SAYS REPORT

Someone poured ammonia into the minnow barrels at the Shell Service Station here sometime last Saturday night or early Sunday morning, is the belief of Clay Marcus, operator of the filling station, where minnows are sold.

There were between six and seven hundred minnows in the barrels, and on investigation, employees at th station discovered that ammonia had been poured into the barrels, and all the minnows were dead when found Sunday morning early.

A Varied And Splendid Program Rendered At Kiwanis Luncheon On Last Thursday

A splendid program was presented at the weekly luncheon of the local Kiwanis Club last Thursday. It was instructive and very much enjoyed.

Morris Reddy, Assistant National Director of Red Cross Disaster Relief, briefly explained the nature of their work, and expressed appreciation of help by local committees. The Music Study Club of Clanton rendered a program of varied selection, Mrs. Roberts in charge. The presentation consisted of a vocal duet by Mary Ellis and Nell Wells, a vocal solo by Mrs. Ross, and a piano solo by Mary Ellis. A talk on music appreciation was given by Mrs. Roberts. Mr. C. S. Taylor of the Alabama Power Company made a well balanced talk in which he drew distinct lines of demarcation as to the difference between business and government on the basis of efficiency and progress.

Raymond C. Smith was selected at the last Directors Meeting as the delegate to represent the local club at the International Convention in Detroit to be held the last week in June.

Dr. James S. Thomas of the Alabama Power Company will be with the club again today. Dr. Thomas was formerly in charge of the Extension Department of the University of Alabama. Several weeks ago he gave a splendid lecture at our weekly luncheon. Today he will talk on Re-employment of Men and Money

Dear Boys and Girls:

"What are you going to do when you grow up?" is a question that someone is certain to ask boys and girls. Did anyone ever ask it of you? Perhaps you had an answer right on the tip of your tongue, or perhaps you have not, even yet, decided what your answer will be. It isn't easy to decide when there are several things you would like to do; but that impotrant choice can be made later. The imporant thing to you right now is (and will be for several years to come) the laying of the foundation upon which that work—whatever worthwhile work you choose to do—must succeed or fail.

You have noticed that when a house is to be built the builder first lays a strong foundation and then on that he builds the kind of house that is desired. While he is building that foundation you never see him slip in blocks of rotten wood instead of the bricks or stones. No! He wouldn't think of using any material that would cause the whole building to fall. He uses the best material, whether bricks or stone, that he can get because he is a wise builder.

Not all boys and girls are wise builders. Some slip material into their foundations that will mean ruin; and it is sad that some of them seem to want people to notice that they are doing it. They lay blocks of rotten wood or mud and call attention to what they are doing. They mix along with their bricks, mud-blocks of untruthfulness which must be propt up on all sides with other blocks of the same kind. They have to keep adding props until after a while they find that they have no foundation, only a heap of knobby, hard, uncomfortable, sun-baked clay. On that they must try to build a house, but it will be just an unattractive, one-sided hovel. Some slip in sap-wood blocks of dishonesty which rot before the foundation is finished. Then there are the weak blocks of selfishness, cowardice, anger and hate that weaken every foundation wall into which they go.

The wise boys and girls do not build that way. They use stones of truth, because truth endures just as long as the foundation is needed. Along with the stones of truth they use stones of honesty, of courage, of unselfishness and kindness, of cheerfulness, good humor and love. Then, to make their foundation everlasting they surround each stone with the mortar of trust in an all-wise overseeing Heavenly Father who is the father of all truth, honesty, unselfishness, courage and love.

With such a foundation you can stand up straight and be a manly man and a womanly woman. You will know no such thing as fear. Your foundation will be strong enough to support a skyscrape of beauty and usefulness.

Lovingly,

MIRIAM.

Don't let the weevils take your crop

IT wasn't much use to plant cotton if the boll weevils are going to get most of it. All reports indicate that the weevils mean business this year. The warm winter, the late damp spring, the possibility of a wet summer, all point to a very heavy infestation.

A late crop won't stand much chance. If you can set your crop ahead of the weevils, you will be reasonably safe.

If there is one thing that will pick your cotton up and push it right past the weevils, it is Chilean Nitrate. Nothing takes its place for side-dressing cotton. While 200 pounds would be better, put on 100 pounds per acre right after chopping. That may prove enough. If not you can come along with 50 to 100 pounds more later in the summer.

Be sure you get Chilean. Specify Chilean to your dealer. He has it or can get it immediately. See him now!

HEFLIN SHOULD GET A DIVORCE

To get Tom Heflin out of the Senate and off the Senate floor is seemingly almost impossible. Surely Alabama did not deserve all this punishment and unfavorable publicity for having made the original mistake in sending him there. The search for words and phrases that will sufficiently describe him and his conduct would be laborous—for he is difficult to define. He may be a political warrior—or perhaps a comedian—but certainly not a statesman. Can Alabama or even the nation recall a greater manifestation of ingratitude and disloyalty than the fight Tom Heflin has made for an undeserved victory?

The Senate of the United States is not to be blamed. And may we hope that the time will never come that this great deliberative body will be guilty of sponsoring such a puerile investigation, when the result is already known. When the Senate allowed $100,000 to be spent in investigating this alleged fraud, it did not know that the allegations were substantially false. But Tom Heflin knew it. And now that curtain is fallen—never to rise again—on the political stage where he draws the spotlight.

This stalwart and handsome person who has lived and wrought among us will certainly not continue to malign the name of the good state that sustained him so long. He was not even careful in his criticism of our Supreme Court. That speech in the Senate lasting more than five hours must have been an ordeal of endurance for him and his listeners. Perhaps some of them thought he was conducting a filibuster singlehanded. Will he now rebuke and censure the Senate? Will he call Senator Borah and the other sixty three "squirrel heads"?

It seems from the recent primary election, as shown by Associated Press article, that the Republicans want him. Well, we are willing to give a quit claim deed in fee simple—but no warranty—to all the rights, title, and interest that we may have had or expect to have in and to him, his influence, if any, and all alignments or affiliations. But for fear such a union might be the subject of gossip, unethical, or tainted with fraud, it would be well, first, to have the young attorney from Birmingham to re-file his petition for a divorce decree in the name of Lady Democracy. It seems that the period of abandonment has now been longer than the statute requires in such cases.

FUTURE MEAT SUPPLY

Within 50 years the principal source of the world's meat supply will not be cattle, but reindeer from Alaska, Canada and Siberia, in the opinion of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famed Artic explorer.

He gives several reasons for his prediction, an important one being the economy in raising reindeer, which live on grass in summer and on lichens and bushes in winter. Besides, reindeer meat may be kept in natural cold storage in the far North until it is desired to ship it out.

Another reason for the predicted decline of cattle as a food source is the increase of tuberculosis, which is making serious inroads on the Argentine herds and threatens American herds also.

The possibility of having to eat reindeer meat is nothing to be alarmed about, Stefansson says, as its taste is little different from that of beef. But most folks will prefer to stick to beefsteak as long as it is available.

THE AMERICAN JUNGLE

It is not a pleasant thing to think about, or to write about, but the fact is that the appalling increase in violent deaths in the United States is a severe indictment of our supposed civilization.

The record for 1931 shows approximately 34,000 dead from automobile accidents, 15,000 burned to death, and 12,000 homicides. The homicide death rate has doubled in the last 30 years, reaching 10.8 per 100,000 of population in 1931.

In the same year Canada's homicide rate was only 1.6, while London's was 0.8 and Liverpool's 0.5. In other words, population considered, the United States as a whole had more than 13 times many murders last year as London, and more than 21 times as many as Liverpool, and nearly seven times as many as our neighbor, Canada.

While remarkable progress has been made in the reducton of the death rate from disease, this has been largely offset by the increase of deaths fom external violence, which claim a total of more than 100,000 annually.

Considering all the dangers which surround us, it would seem that life is less secure on an American city street than it would be in a African jungle.

SUCCESSFUL WRITERS

How do writers become successful? That is a question now in the minds of half a million ambitious beginners, as it was in the minds of the present successful ones a few years ago. After a study of many books and reading many articles on the subject, one finds the question still unanswered.

About the only advice that can be given, it seems, is that of a noted editor who expresses it thus: "The only way to write is to keep on writing and never become discouraged." It might also be added that it is necessary to have something to say that will interest other people. Fiction is the most difficult branch in which to gain success, but the most remunerative when success, is won. Many noted writers followed other callings before beginning to write.

Harold Bell Wright, whose novels are said to bring him greater money rewards than those of any other writer, was a painter and decorator and later a preacher before he wrote his first book. The late Dr. Frank Crane also was formerly a clergyman; Peter B. Kyne was in the lumber business; Edgar Lee Masters was a lawyer, and so on.

Those ambitious to write for a livehood would do well to hold on to some other job, however, until they have demonstrated that they have something to say and know how to say it. One can tell when that time arrives by the number and size of the checks received from publishers who buy his stuff.

News In Brief

The Tennessee Experiment Station at Knoxville has published a little leaflet entitled "New Uses for the Sweet Potato." It is interesting to Alabamians where the sweet potato is a very important crop.

The New York Times announced recently that a "complete survey of the history of agriculture" will be made by a group of prominent educators and economists. The research is to trace the American farm problem back 300 years and it is hoped that the survey will provide background for a plan for permanent rather than temporary agricultural relief.

A Melbourne, Australia, dispatch says "Prime Minister Joseph Lyons, April 20, announced a cooperative plan among the commonwealth and four Australian states for relief of unemployment by flotation of state loans and commonwealth contributions totaling 3,000,000 pounds (currently about $11,310,000)."

A Berlin dispatch states that the duty on foreign wheat has been reduced 50 marks or to 180 marks (now about $42.60) a ton until June 20 at 15 of the 100 flour mills permitted to grind foreign wheat. The report says: "The step was taken to cover the country's wheat shortage, and American officials estimated that the amount imported under the decree probably would run around 100,000 tons."

A press dispatch from Vienna states that the Austrian cabinet council has decided to present to parliament a list of proposed import embargoes. The report says ". . . Austrian farmers have demanded exclusion of United States fats, lard and canned goods, imports of which now total more than $1,000,000. Sugar, southern fruits, cotton cloth, shoes and automobile tires, and other rubber goods are almost certain to be on the prohibited list."

The Scout Jamboree

By Lone Scout Charles C. Foshee

Mr. Stapp and others made it convenient for Scouts of troop 47 and 51 to take part in the Jamboree at Auburn May 6, at which we all had a fine time. We also learned plenty of good scouting.

We had lots of fun going down on a school bus, the road was bad and the bus rattled like a sack of knots. We arrived in Auburn at 9:00 a.m. and registered. We were ready for the events by 9:30, which Clanton troop 51 won third place in two or three events.

At 11:45 we went over to the cabin for lunch, then at 1:15 we went over to the Tiger Theatre to see "Sky Bride," which was a thrilling aviation picture. Then we went back over to the park for the ball game and other Scout events. When the game was over at 5:00 p.m. we started for Clanton. About two miles out of town we had a puncture or something. There was a horse shoe rammed into the tire and pulled the tube into. That horse shoe was no luck to us, for we didn't get into Clanton until 10:00 p.m.

Thanks to Mr. Stapp and others who made it convenient for us to go.

CHEVROLET BUILDS 55,432 CARS AND TRUCKS IN APRIL

Chevrolet built 55,432 cars and trucks in April, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announced today.

This compares with 38,890 built in March and is the highest month's output so far into 1932, Mr. Knudsen said.

Total production of the new 1932 line of Chevrolet sixes since its introduction last winter is now in excess of 260,000 units, the Chevrolet head announced.

He stated that the April schedule was stepped up several times during the month, as commitments for cars were increased over the original estimates, and that Chevrolet dealers reported the sale at retail of 89.2 per cent more cars during the first twenty days of April than in the corresponding days of March.

JACOB AT BETHEL
Genesis 28:10-17
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Those who think that the Bible is a dull book will do well to learn the action, intrigue, love-making and accomplishments in this portion of the life of Jacob. He had to leave home because he had gained the bitter hatred of his twin brother Esau by reason of the two infamous tricks that he played on him. The favoritism of both father and mother made the plot thicken. Then a real hike was entered upon as a 400 mile journey was undertaken that would lead to Mesopotamia where family relatives would be found.

A few nights out the tired young man camped at Bethel. During the night he was granted a wondrous vision in which he beheld angels descending from heaven and returning by what looked like a great ladder. Jacob was mightily impressed and realized that Jehovah was speaking to him through this manifestation. At once an altar was set up and dedicated with oil and prayer. Turn to the hymn "Nearer my God to Thee," and you find how the author gave a beautiful poetic setting to the events of that night. Such manifestations relate heaven and earth vitally. The spirit world is an actual world and mortals are in intimate relation thereto. The Bible is clear in its teaching of angelology and one of the finest descriptions of their work is found in Hebrews 1:14.

Note that this vision was accompanied with the same promise that had already been granted to Abraham and Isaac. Jacob could see that his descendants were to be a mighty race and have far reaching influence, and this is the glorious record of the Hebrews. Further, this promise was given before the twenty years away from home were entered upon. Jacob in turn was tricked a plenty by his uncle Laban, but in the midst of all the trials he could think back to the promise of God at Bethel.

When Justice C. J. Gregory of Marianna, Ark., pronounced the words that made Miss Barbara Reece the bride of Thurman Passmore, the bridegroom fainted.

When Walter and Pearl Priddy of Vancouver, Wash., sought a divorce they discovered they never were legally married, so they decided to be married instead of divorced.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

Our Sunday school is averaging higher this year than it did last, at this date. We want your presence next Sunday at 9:45 A. M.

We take this means of inviting all of Clanton to be with us at the Methodist church next Sunday as we are host to the Chilton County High School faculty and student body. This is their Commencement occasion and we are glad for them to be with us in our beautiful auditorium. The Bulletin of our church will be dedicated next Sunday to the High School and the interests that we have in education.

We have a message of vital importance to the Young People of Clanton and Chilton County Sunday night at 7:45. Observe that our night services are fifteen minutes later.

If you should treat your husband or your wife, as you treat your church, how happy would you be in each other's fellowship? The way you treat your church is the way you treat God.

The Greatest Responsibility

—Editorial from Sumter County Journal, (York, Alabama.)

No doubt the worst treated employees in Alabama are the public school teachers, and but little complaint is heard from them. After having taught for months without pay many of them have been called on to teach an extra month free in several counties in the State.

No meetings of protest have been held by them, with charges of unfairness, which might justly have been made; no denunciation of government or officials have gone forth from them: no demands that bonds be issued to pay their salaries that are honestly due them!

We have listened for some outburst, somewhere, for we know many of them are humiliated, almost to exasperation.

But their course has been one of dignified silence, with an occasional call to the public conscience for fair treatment. Our admiration has been stirred and our sympathy touched for the noble, self-sacrifices they have made for the youth of Alabama.

We wonder if those who "sit in high places" and draw their salaries monthly have no thought for these patient teachers who are devoting their time and their lives to the splendid service of moulding the character of Alabama's future citizens? It is manifestly unfair and unjust that such treatment should be accorded these faithful employees, and Alabama should hang her head in shame. We sound the clarion call: "Let Alabama do her duty to those to whom she has entrusted the education and care of her youth!"

Jefferson Day Rally To Stir Democratic Spirit

The Jefferson Day rally in Washington this year under the auspices of the Democratic National Committee—the largest ever held on a like occasion—ought to be, and, doubtless will be, an inspiration to Democrats in all sections of the country in behalf of successful party action and ultimate victory to Democrats.

In various states there were, all told, more than a thousand Jefferson Day dinners, evidencing nation-wide party activity to an unsual degree. But the gathering at the National Capital on April 13 last was much more than a gustatory feast and a display of post-prandial political oratory. It was an exhibition of the machinery of a great party in action, performing numerous pre-convention functions to forward a united preparedness movement in anticipation of the vital decisive contest in November.

It comprised among other activities a business meeting of party leaders in the various states who are carrying on the Democratic victory campaign to balance the party budget before the meeting of the National Convention and also to provide a surplus with which to inaugurate the post-convention election campaign for the Presidency. One-half of $1,500,000 sought has been obtained, and the meeting had the effect of giving fresh stimulus to the "army" of Minute Men to complete the task set by National Chairman John J. Raskob and Executive Chairman Jouett Shouse, under the General Chairmanship of John W. Davis of the Victory Fund Committee.

The occasion gave opportunity for a general survey of political conditions in all the states, and the roll call revealed a united and militant Democracy, eager for the decisive contest and confident of the result. Even states ordinarily considered as rockbound Republican are reported as Democrati possibilities.

While practical affairs were given adequate consideration, the occasion was made memorable and inspiring by the tribute paid to the latest of the great Democratic Presidents. Woodrow Wilson, whose exalted idealism twice led the party to victory in recent years. Around his tomb in the National Cathedral members of the party heard a eulogy pronounced in simple eloquence calculated to exalt the spirits of men and women in futherance of the greatest of all human desires—world peace and national integrity—even though efforts to achieve them may involve the sacrifice of life itself.

With rebaptism in the original fount of Jeffersonianism, and recalling the self sacrifice of Wilson to his ideal of world accord, the Democratic incentive to high aims and purposes in seeking to redeem the nation from the slough of despond into which it has fallen trough disregard of Democratic principles as exemplified by the first and the last Democratic President ought to be measurably strengthened.

In the messages that went out to the people frmo the Washington assemblage, there were naturally some differences of opinion as to the details of the methods by which the nation may be redeemed through Democratic leadership, but the forthcoming convention will provide the leader and the declarations of policies through which it may be expected that all minor differences will be smoothed out and victory won.

Upon the most important actions looking to such success, the speakers at the Washington Jefferson Day observance were practically united—the selection of the strongest possible candidate for the Presidency and unequivocal platform declarations, constituting a programme for the redemption of the country.

In the face of a great national crisis, there was little disposition to reiterate the numerous and long continued failures of the existing administration to anticipate or to deal effectively with the depression. Rather it was taken for granted that they are well-known to the electorate of both parties and that the present regime is foredoomed to defeat.

The fact that all sections of the country were represented at the Jefferson Day rally, and the assurance that the party will enter the campaign well organized and equipped to win upon constructive issues must be heartening not only to all Democrats, but to Republicans and independents, who realize through sad experience the futility of further dependence upon the party in power to deal successfully either with local or world conditions.

On press night, after the paper is printed and out, a man shoots another. That is what you call tough luck for the newspapers. They had to wait until this week to carry the story, or put out an extra, and those things are not being done so much by the best papers.

Looks like folks who are going to shoot somebody, rob a bank, commit suicide or something would consider the weekly papers and do those things the first part of the week, if they just must do them.

Why not give the newspaper reporter some consideration anyhow. Most of them are honest, energetic and intelligent—sometimes. Give them a break, tell them what they want to know and tell them the truth. Then there is little reason for mistakes and misunderstandings and things.

The reporter is a watcher on the hill, overlooking the activities of man with calm and disspassionate eyes. He is the voice of all humanity—a white searchlight on the tower.

Those who are wrongdoers dread him more than they dread the courts, policemen, prison and gallows. And the ethics of his profession are set out in one statement, "Tell The Truth."

The integrity of the reporter is akin to woman's virtue—above any price. No man can buy his silence, and no bribe can change his story. His only connections with politics, business and things, is to tell about them. He meets and mingles with all kinds of folks, moves in all conditions of society.

He is just as at home with a preacher as he is with a bandit, as to him they mean only a story for the public. Although he writes about them, he is not responsible for the faliure or success of any movement, he merely writes about them.

The reporter is the invisible czar of a free people—public opinion. He gazes upon all humanity as the sun gazes upon the earth. He is not conscious of class, speaking with equal candor about the priest, the pariah, the tramp and the banker, the sinner and the saint, the Gentile and the Jew, the conservative and the most radical. They look alike to him.

Influential and unfluential persons, the great and the near-great, tramps, kings, emperors, presidents and bosses always show him deference, as they know his voice is that of the multitude.

Consider the reporter. You may not have met one, but he is a person worthwhile. Give him a break, a glad hand, help him tell the truth.

Now that I've pleaded in behalf of the Reporter, what shall I do? Let's see what I know about politics. Not much. I'll tell you that before I start. I read in the papers where J. Thomas Heflin, former U. S. Senator, was nominated on the Republican ticket in Chilton County, for Justice of The Peace. One fellow said that was more in keeping with Tom's capacity.

Now that he is nominated, guess he will be elected. Somebody down here must have pitied him and wants to give him a job, or something. It'll be all right with me for him to come down here and stay, but there's one thing he better not do or me and him won't get along together. He better not come down here and start telling us how to save the country, because he had that chance long time ago, and anyhow, we already know—put in a Democratic bunch of officials. He ought to know that, but he got mad sometime ago, and with a few followers, decided he would start him a party all his own. Well, I guess it is his own. Don't anybody else want it.

Now's when the Democrats have their chance. The road is open, smooth and the weather is pretty. Good men are nominated on the ticket, ballot boxes will soon be open again, and I'll betcha that some of these fellows round about who ain't got much innards to speak of, will just be like jelly fish in the hands of smooth politicians. It's a pity some folks can't think and act for themselves when the time comes for merely voting. That cap can fit wherever it will. If it's you, don't get sore at me. Just feel ashamed of yourself and try to do better. Be a Democrat. You may not get rich doing it, but you certainly can be a lot of other things that will count in the long run.

Wanted: Fair Transport Policy

In the opinion of Herbert H. Lehman, Lieutenant Governor of New York, the country needs a definite policy which will eliminate or lessen unfair, wasteful and inequitable transportation and place "transportation for hire of every character under substantially equal regulation and control."

Mr. Lehman pointed out the intimate relation existing between general prosperity and railroad prosperity. The rails render a service which no other agency yet devised can render.
est purchaser of supplies and commodities. They pay exother single industry. In normal times they are the great-

They pay out more in wages and salaries than any ceedingly heavy taxes to all branches of government. Their securities are held by a large percentage of our people, either directly through possession of rail stocks and bonds, or indirectly through an interest in savings banks, trust funds, insurance companies and other institutions which are heavy holders of railroad issues.

It is obvious that the railroads are gradually being destroyed through inequitable competition from carriers which benefit the public far less. It should be the aim of our law-makers to formulate transport legislation that will assure the public good service at a reasonable cost—and at the same time do away with discrimination, in tax and regulation, against or in favor of any one form of transportation.

MY PERSONAL COLUMN

One of the funniest picture shows I've seen in many days, was put on at the Wadesonian last Monday night. There was only one thing to do, just open your mouth and let the laughter roll. There is another picture of this same type scheduled for tonight at the theatre, and I intend to see it. These pictures are certainly recommended for all ages and it will do one good to see them.

Speaking of entertainment there is an article on the front page of this issue about a musical comedy to be put on at the Verbena high school next Wednesday night. Verbena has some splendid talent in its younger set. I've seen them take parts in plays several times, and always feel assured of seeing something worthwhile when I go to an entertainment down there.

With such pleasant weather, I suppose most everyone is turning to entertainment, and I'm not alone in this.

My mother, my brother, Dan, and I, enjoyed a good lunch last Sunday at the Bir-Mont Cafe in Thorsby. It was really a treat to be served in the style used by that neat, attractive and yet simple cafe. It is more like having lunch in someone's home where you feel perfectly at ease.

You can no doubt readily see that I still feel a soft spot for Thorsby. But that is perfectly natural that I should, having spent the early part of my life there. However, if such fellows as Ernie Hanson, Nels Peterson, G. F. Harper, Carl Peterson, E. R. Piper, E. N. Bentley, C. R. Foss and dozens of others, were not there, the place wouldn't be the same.

Had a pleasant visit Tuesday from J. R. Hall, a farmer who lives in the northern part of the county.

* * *

I heard one of the finest messages I've heard in a long time last Saturday night, when Judge McCord spoke in Thorsby. I felt a lot better after hearing that address. It was not a political speech. It was anything but that, and I know that everyone who heard it, went home feeling better than before.

Potash Tests On Sweet Potatoes

Last year several farmers in northern Alabama ran tests to determine the value of adding extra potash to their sweet potatoes in addition to their regular fertilizer used on this crop.

Their regular fertilizer was applied at the average rate of about 700 pounds per acre and had an average analysis of approximately 9-3-7. In addition to this they added, as a top-dressing on part of their potatoes, an average of 134 pounds of muriate of potash. This extra potash not only increased the yield by about 22 bushels on the average, but gave smoother and better shaped potatoes as well.

These results indicate that with each 400 pounds of ordinary cotton fertilizer 100 pounds of muriate of potash should be used to make a suitable sweet potato fertilizer. This extra potash may be mixed with this fertilizer and applied before setting the slips, or it may be used as a top-dressing. The amount of fertilizer to use should vary from 600 to 1000 pounds per acre.

INDUSTRY SEES HOPEFUL SIGNS, BANKERS TOLD

Leading Automobile Unit Expects to Employ More Men This Winter Than Last

MOTOR SUPPLY IN HANDS OF PUBLIC FALLING OFF

Twelve Million Years Less Transportation in Nation's Car Inventory Than Considered Normal, Manufacturer Tells Financiers

ESTIMATING that transportation in the form of automobiles now in the hands of the American public is twelve million "car-years" below normal, and that this deficit will eventually have to be made up, Richard H. Grant, vice president of the General Motors Corporation, recently told the American Bankers Association convention that employment in his company may be greater this winter than last year.

"Employment during the winter months is a very important thing," Mr. Grant said. "So far as our corporation is concerned, in November, December, January and February we will be employing at least as many and probably more men than we did this past year."

In order to gauge the outlook for next year's market his corporation, he said, attempts to set up sales indices based on intensive scientific studies in addition to observation and common sense.

"We are in the habit of looking upon an automobile not merely as an automobile but as transporation," he said. "We figure each automobile produced as six years of transportation. Then by following up records of production yearly, we get a graph which indicates what ought to be a normal inventory of transportation in the hands of the American people, and whether there are more or less miles than might be expected. According to our figures, there are about twelve million years less transportation in this inventory at the present time than has been considered normal since 1925.

The Outlook for Business

"Consequently, if we retain the same purchasing power in this country, it is quite evident that on the first upturn of business there will be a rush to replace that inventory. In developing this graph, it has come out very strongly that every third year is a big automobile year. The biggest automobile year was 1929 when 4,100,000 cars were produced for American consumption. This year the industry will produce somewhere between 1,800,000 and 1,900,000 cars. As 1932 is three years after 1929, if economic conditions were normal we could be sure we would do a tremendous business, because the third year is the time when the bulk of the replacing takes place."

He added that there are factors at work that make it uncertain how big the year will be, instancing that "money is being hoarded from lack of confidence and this takes away some purchasing power that we would otherwise have, while family budgets are being cut on account of changes in income conditions, which again means that purchasing power for the automobile, like a good many other things, will be knocked down." As a result, he said, it was necessary to measure what statistically would be a big year against a practical consideration of the curtailment of expenditures which is going on and determine how big the year will be under these circumstances.

"From a long haul standpoint, regardless of how many automobiles are sold in 1932, we are storing up a big business for the future," Mr. Grant said. "There will be fewer automobiles sold in 1931 than will go to the scrap heap. With 12,000,000 car-years out of the inventory, nine percent more gasoline was used up to August 1, 1931, than was used in 1930. With fewer automobiles, the people must have been running them faster and longer to consume the additional gasoline. This means that we have some 22,000,000 people working hard to make a fine business for our industry when there is an economic recovery.

No False Optimism

"I am not attempting to create any false optimism—I am not speaking without a statistical background. Using the best sense we can, we have drawn conclusions from the figures we have, and I am willing to make the statement that as far as the conduct of our business for the first half of 1932 is concerned, we shall set the indices somewhat higher than the actualities of 1931. We are willing to set our advertising budgets and our selling expense on that kind of indices. With economic conditions as they are, and since the obsolescence is so great and we have sunk so low in this year's sales, we figure that the first half of 1932 must necessarily be better than was the first half of 1931."

BROTHER OF W. H. SARTOR LAID TO REST IN B'HAM

The many friends of W. H. Sartor and family of Clanton were saddened to learn of the death of Mr. Sartor's brother, Eugene F. Sartor, which occurred in Birmingham last week, following a lingering illness.

The deceased had held a position with the Sloss Furnaces in Birmingham for a number of years. He was well known and loved by his fellow workers and others who knew him, and the large crowd at his funeral and the beautiful floral offerings attested to the love held for this man, a brother of one of Clanton's oldest merchants and business men.

Funeral services were held on Saturday following the passing of Mr. Sartor, with Dr. Dillard of Birmingham conducting at the Southside Baptist church. Mr. Sartor had at one time resided in Clanton but had been living in Birmingham for approximately fifteen years. He is survived by his widow, 2 daughters. one son and other relatives.

Large Crowd Hears Judge McCord Speak

Although a little late, the auditorium of the Thorsby Public School was filled with people to hear Judge Leon McCord of Montgomery deliver a message to the storm sufferers of the county.

Judge McCord's message went straight home, judging from the comments heard by a News representative during the course of his address and following it. It was one of the most inspiring and uplifting messages heard in many days by the people of this county.

After hearing this address by this widely known jurist, one would feel as if they were in the best of shape and had everything to look forward to. One thought among the many outstanding ones that Judge McCord put forth was that people were only entitled to shelter, clothing and food, and that God had just thrown in all the extra things we are now enjoying. He was kept busy following his address for several minutes receiving compliments on his remarks. Mrs. McCord accompanied her husband on this trip.

Approximately $32,000 Spent For Rehabilitation Work In Chilton County

The work of the American Red Cross in Chilton County in rehabilitation and other work in the storm sections, is expected to be closed this week, according to Mrs. Vasilike Foster, Area Director here. Mrs. Foster stated that they expect to finish up sometime today.

Any person who has received an order for an award and the award has not been made, is requested to see C. E. Stapp, if the Red Cross offices have closed.

The report given the News Tuesday stated that the Red Cross had registered 403 cases, all of which have received attention. That means 403 families in this area that were affected by the tornadoes. There has been $800 paid out of the local Chapter Funds, while the National Red Cross has expended approximately $32,000 in rehabilitation work in the county and approximately $5,000 was paid out in the emergency relief, immediately after the storms. The latter included many local bills, it was stated.

Last Tuesday morning, there were still twenty persons from Chilton County who were in hospitals in Birmingham, Selma, and Montgomery, recovering from injuries received in the storms. The Red Cross is to pay all hospital bills, in cases where the family is unable to take care of them.

Mrs. Foster and other Red Cross workers were high in their praise of the fine spirit shown by Chilton County people, and the cooperation given the Red Cross in its work here.

MISS MATALYE GLASS WEDS WALTON HILL OF B'HAM

A marriage of interest was that of Miss Matalye Glass to Mr. Walton Hill which was solemnized at the First Baptist church in Birmingham Thursday morning, May 5th, at nine o'clock, in the presence of a few intimate friends of the couple.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. P. Thorton, using the ring service. Immediately after the wedding, the bride and groom left for New Orleans and parts of Florida for an extended trip.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Hubbard Glass of Jemison, and a young lady whose charm and sweetness have won for her many friends and admirers. She was at one time a popular employee at the Dixie Cafe in Clanton. Mr. Hill holds a responsible position with the Alabama Bus Co., with headquarters in Birmingham. where the happy couple will make their home. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hill are extending their congratulations to them.

When Mrs. Margaret Covey of Hawarden, Ia., learned that police at Sioux City wanted her on a charge of passing a worthless check, she walked forty miles to give herself up.

Activities of the Fruit and Truck Growers Association

There were loaded last week from this organization eighteen cars of berries, besides 1250 crates bought by Birmingham and trucked there, being equivalent to more than four cars more. The berry market was on low levels, the same as previous week, due to the large loadings over the berry sections.

There has been loaded up to Tuesday morning 43 cars, and the equivalent of five cars sent by truck to Birmingham. Many growers report that if rain would come they would yet ship heavy for another week.

Notice

A meeting is called for Saturday afternoon, at the Fruit Growers office, at which time all growers and shippers of beans and Irish potatoes are asked to be present, to take up any questions of loading and disposing of these two crops. If you intend to ship any of the above, be sure and come.

Thorsby Institute News

A pleasant surprise this week for Thorsby Institute came in the form of a check for $100 as a result about a month ago of a visit to the Institute by sixty-five members of the Community Congregational Church, Birmingham. Also three dozen tea towels were received, the cloth having been woven in Clanton. These were given by a unit of the Church Guild.

The Commencement speaker, Thursday, May 26, is to be Rev. Trevor Mordecai, D. D., pastor of this Community Congregational Church. He draws large crowds to his services. We hope all the Thorsby people will be present to hear him. The exercises will be at 10:30 a.m.

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, May 22, at 11:00 a.m. Everyone is urged to come. A collection will be taken for "Student Aid."

The Institute Dormitory appreciates very much the turnip greens, strawberries, etc., that have been given the school by town folks. Such gifts help very much, especially in a year when many people are not able to help the school as much as in the past.

The school needs $2,000 more in donations to meet the final expenses of the year. Perhaps some Thorsby folks would like to help.

Olean Hybart was leader of the C. E. Society prayer meeting. The topic for discussion was "Appreciation of Our Parents." The society meets at 7:00 P. M. each Sunday. We cordially invite all young people who do not attend other young people's societies.

Although he never moved out of the house he and his wife occupy, Frank Ginger of Chicago has been charged by his wife with desertion in a suit for divorce.

A Prayer

By Mrs. Newton Cooper

We thank thee, oh, God, for the spiritual home beyond this world. For our blessed Saviour who has gone to prepare for us a home not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

We thank thee for thy blessed word that teaches us that the Kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace. and joy in the holy ghost.

We pray that thou will help us to do thy holy will and whatever our mission may be, help us to work whole-hearted and willingly do whatsoever may come before us to do, that would be pleasing to thee.

Help us to lend a helping hand to all we meet along life's way. Help us to seek first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven, for where our treasures are our hearts will also be.

Official Returns Of The Democratic Primary Election In Chilton County

Official returns from the Democratic Primary Election Tuesday of last week have been made by the Chairman and Secretary of the Executive Committee. In the county offices, W. Louie Smith, candidate for Treasurer of Chilton County, received the largest number of votes, a total of 776, with J. H. Jackson, candidate for Commissioner from District Four, following with 769.

George W. Edwards, candidate for member of the School Board carried 722, and J. L. Davis, candidate for Commissioner from District Three polled 768 votes. These men are now placed before the voters of Chilton County on the Democratic ticket subject to the general election.

In the race for Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit, John W. Bateman ran lowest in this county with 42 votes. Judge F. Loyd Tate polled the largest number in this race, having 496, with Arthur Glover 328. The result from the three counties in this circuit, Chilton, Elmore and Autauga will cause this to be a run-off between Tate and Glover on June 14th. General concensus of opinion is that Bateman's votes will go to Tate in the run-off.

Senator Hugo Black led the Senatorial race in Chilton County with 464 votes. His nearest opponent was Thomas E. Kilby who polled 282. These candidate will also have a run-off on June 14th this year.

Following is a tabulated form of the official count of the Democratic Primary in this county:

More Cowpeas Are Advised This Year

With a large supply of seed in the hands of farmers increased plantings of cowpeas in the spring and early summer is being recommended by county agents and also J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn.

Instead of waiting until after the last cultivation to plant cowpeas in corn earlier planting is advised. It should be done by or before the corn is knee high, Lowery said.

Cowpeas planted this way improve the soil and they also produce human food and livestock feed. As evidence of the soil improvement done by cowpeas planted in corn, Lowery referred to an experiment conducted by the experiment station at Auburn in which cowpeas were planted annually in one plot and no cowpeas in the other. Each plot was fertilized with phosphate and potash. The experiment ran for more than a quarter of a century and during the last five years where no cowpeas were planted the land produced an average of 8.5 bushels per acre against 17.3 bushels where peas were planted.

In addition to planting cowpeas in corn, Mr. Lowery urged planting alone for hay or for peas. This may be done from May until early July.

As a fertilizer an application of either basic slag or superphosphate will pay under cowpeas.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

"FIELD NOTES"

One of my friend-patrons came into the office this morning. He is a fine specimen of manhood, a good family and a reliable citizen. But, he came to me ten days ago with ACUTE ALCOHOLISM. . . . Some earnest advice—a medicine to take the place of the stuff that MUST be let alone—and he was on the road to recovery; rapidly becoming himself again. Very well. Almost ready to return home to his wife and grown-up daughters. . . .

Yesterday, he told me this morning, he met an acquaintance, a traveling salesman, a "hail fellow well met." This fellow was equipped with a real arsenal—a quart of bootleg liquor, that he kept to treat his customers. My man "broke over" and today is entirely off the mineral water wagon. Not drunk, not at all maudlin, but just a little extra steam on. Of course he is sorry and repentant, but he mustn't go home for another week to face that trusting wife and daughters.

I mention this for my readers, so that they may know how we physicians have to struggle with the "noble experiment" that we have, and which some hug to their breasts as bearing the sprouting seeds of the millenium, when they fondly expect a "DRY" world will emerge from its moonshine coils. It is all well enough to talk about, but its practical working is another thing, or it is so here.

There is not a minute of the day or night when the victim of dipsomania can't go out and help himself to liquor, if he has the price—not bonded liquor, but bootleg! Why don't I stop it? My dear sir, I'm not a federal officer; if I were, that traveling salesman is probably 200 miles out of town this morning, charging some other man's battery. No, folks, we shall have to devise some other way.

The Obituary Page

Once I was talking with Kent Cooper about what interest people in the newspapers.

He said: "When a man gets to be about forty-five years old he discovers the obituary page."

I certainly am not a gloomy minded person, but I have always thought more or less about death. The attitude of a large portion of the human race toward it seems to me infantile and silly.

It isn't a pleasant subject but certainly it is an inevitable one. Why dodge and pretend and act like children? Said Caesar:

"Of all the wonders that I have yet heard,
It seems to me most strange that me should fear;
Seeing that death, a necessary end,
Will come when it will come."

All of which leads me to remark that there is a certain advantage in discovering the obituary page comparatively early in life. The tragedy is that some men never discover.

I have seen a doddering old millionaire, with one foot in the grave, fighting with a taxi-man over a nickel, or trying to beat down the price of a neck-tie.

I once sought a contribution to charity from a millionaire who was well over sixty and notoriously tight. He told all the reasons why he couldn't give up a cent, and as he warmed up to the subject he began to act as if my call were an insult.

Finally I said: "Why are you so mean? Why do you deny yourself pleasures and squeeze every nickel? It isn't your money; it's your children's money, or will be in a few years. Why let them have all the pleasures? Why not have the fun of giving some of it away?"

This rude remark shocked him. I think it started a line of thought that made quite a change in his life.

Moses prayed: "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

I assume that to mean that, when we get along toward middle life and note by the papers that men of our own age, or a few years older, are dropping off, we ought to stop and take stock.

We ought to say: "As life goes I have maybe ten, fifteen or, at the most thirty years. Therefore, I ought to quit thinking—How much money can I pile up? and begin thinking—How can I be sure to do all the things I want to do, see all the places I want to see, and leave behind me a reputation for having been a reasonably good and generous individual?"

It would help if the papers would print at the top of the obituary page every day this quotation from Rousseau:

"The dead take to the grave, in their clutched fingers, only that which they have given away."

Walnut Creek

The Annual Singing and Mothers' Day service was held at Walnut Creek on last Sunday. Several lessons were directed, some of them being selected to suit the occasion.

At eleven o'clock an able sermon was delivered by the pastor, P. A. Lynch.

At the noon hour a bountiful basket lunch was spread and everyone was invited to partake of the food. There was plenty for all and some left to be carried back home. We take this means to thank all those from other churches and communities for their hearty cooperation along this line as well as others.

The entire afternoon from 1:30 until 4:00 o'clock with the exception of a few minutes for recess, was devoted to singing and we certainly had a good singing. The Clanton Quartet promised to be with us in the afternoon, but for some reason they did not come. However, we were not disappointed because Mr. W. M. Devaughn arranged a quartet composed of himself, Mrs. Marion Mims. Messrs. O. L. Devaughn and Wilson. They favored us with several numbers.

We closed a day of service for God with our Christian Endeavor Sunday night. The subject for discussion being "Appreciating Our Parents."

The regular Sunday School and preaching service will be held here next Sunday and on next Sunday evening the C. E. will meet at 6:30 o'clock to discuss the subject, "How May We Work for World Good Will." At 7:30 the pastor will bring a special message on the subject, "Some of the Evils of the Day." We invite all who can to be present at this service.

The many friends and relatives in this community of Mr. and Mrs. Weaver Wilson are congratulating them as the proud parents of a fine baby girl born on May 7. Mrs. Wilson and baby are doing nicely at their home in Montevallo, Ala.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

The store that is occupied by the Durwood Broadhead Grocery and Market is undergoing repairs and is being treated to a coat of paint. This is a good time to do that job of painting that you have had in mind to do for so long. It puts money into circulation and it gives employment to the unemployed.

Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Elmore spent Mother's Day with their mother at Elba, Alabama.

Rev. S. U. Turnipseed of Montgomery preached the Baccalaureate sermon for the Isabella High School Sunday morning in the Mulberry Baptist church. The large building was crowded to the limit, and Dr. Turnipseed delivered a great message on "Washington, the Ideal American."

J. H. Broadhead on 2nd Ave., in West End has developed a splendid business and is this week enlarging his store and market room.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Teel could not resist the pull of heart strings and made it their business to be with their mother at Rockford last Sunday.

Immediately after the Sunday school hour last Sunday, Prof. and Mrs. L. [illegible] Warr left to spend a few hours with their mother in Birmingham.

The State has placed convict labor on the Birmingham Highway up as far as Verbena and it is in the air that soon the Convict Department will take [illegible] a large part of the road work in the state. The prisons are crowded full of idle men, and the State deems it economy to use convicts on the roads rather than employed labor.

Last Saturday brought one of the largest crowds ever coming to Clanton. An observer noted that there were at least two hundred people in one of Clanton's stores at one time. That did sound like hard times.

The sermon preached at the Methodist church Sunday night by Rev. S. U. Turnipseed was a message that was [illegible] received. He gave word picture after word picture of the chaos that is in the world today, and closed his message by stating that these things are to be traced back to man's forsaking of God. His remedy for the healing of the wounds of the present age was in a return to God.

Summer months are coming and already the residential sections of Clanton are being smothered with the dust that is created by cars. We will never forget the awful experience through which house-keepers passed last fall during that period of extreme drouth. The dust was something fierce, and a repetition of that experience is not anticipated with joy. We are wondering if the Mayor and the Council of Clanton could not work out some program by which our streets could be oiled. That would prove a benefit to the streets and it would prevent the clouds of dust that hover about us during the day and for a large part of the night, and this treatment would add much to the health of the City. The placing of clay and gravel on the streets and then leaving it here to dry and blow away is about as much of a bane as it is a blessing.

In passing about over the county we have observed that the fruit crop this year is going to be limited. Many of the peach trees did not venture to bloom at all. Our citizenship showed signs of good judgment last year when they canned their fruit from the abundant crop produced. Many homes are now provided with enough canned fruit to carry them through another winter, and well they have for the fruit will not be here to can this year.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Two families lived side by side and efore the terrific tornado swept near heir home, they were at outs and vould not speak. The storm on Monay night caused each one to think. ach one alike knew that she was not it to die with hatred in her heart. On unday afternoon following, the clouds ere dark and the wind was howling s weird message of destruction. The arometer indicated another tornado. hese two neighbors could stand it no onger and met each other over the ard fence and spoke kindly. The next orning there was no storm in sight nd these two neighbors felt mean and oolish and continued their neighborly ndifference. That kind of forgiveness ill stand the same show at the judgent that a pine straw would stand in a rnado. When people make out that ey are sorry for their littleness in he face of fear or death. and then rop back into the old ruts of hating nd sinning when things move normal-, you need attach no importance to e confession made. I have heard any confessions on sick beds and on eath beds that were without sincerity. hat a pity for people to try and fool od.

When I was a lad on the farm, one orning I was strolling about in an old ield that skirted a woodland section. ust ahead of me I saw a Dove on the round. It would leap into the air and utter its wings as if trying to fly. I hased it over quite a distance, and fially caught it. As I held it in my ands I could feel its little heart throbing like it would burst. On examinaion I found that the Dove had a brokn wing. It may have been fleeing rom a hawk and dashed itself against limb. I know not how it met with e accident that took it out of the sky. ith deep pity I looked upon that inocent bird. I held its broken wing ut at full length saying, "Poor little ove you will never fly again." A roken wing had taken it out of the y. With a broken wing it could nev fly again. Since that day I have en many men and women with brok wings. Once they were as pure and ood as the Dove that coos among the ees, but they met with a sad experice when virtue was murdered. They ll to earth with the thud of the imure, never to rise again. When you estroy the chastity of your person you ll to earth with a broken wing. Many uman birds there be who are flutterg about over the earth with broken ings.

One day I was working on the farm. had just reached the age of sixteen, at age when a boy does a large mount of dreaming. The May sun as shining and bees and birds were usy. The cotton row stretched down e edge of the ditch bank and there as much grass to be killed. My fath was leading in the chopping of the otton. I was the youngest in the field d I was bringing up the rear. I tood erect with the end of the hoe andle under my arm. A bird was sing g in a nearby plum patch, and I lled to my father, "Pappa, do you ear that bird. What is he saying?" y father stood up with his face toard the singing bird and this was his eply, "That bird is saying 'Laziness ill kill you'." Nothing more was said, ut soon I was pushing my way on head of the other boys, and from that ay to this I have tried to carry the ading row in the work of life. Wish at I had a thousand birds to sing ov the wide fields of earth today, "Laziess Will Kill You." Laziness has killd its thousands and it is in to kill its ousands more. It was God who made e bird to sing, "Laziness Will Kill ou."

When I was a Circuit rider in Barbour county I had an old horse that was as good as good could be. I could go to sleep in my buggy ten miles from home and he would carry me safely to my family. One Friday night I closed a meeting twelve miles from home. I was worn out from six weeks of revival effort. The family where I had supper failed to feed old Sanford and that night on the way home I had dropped off to sleep. My old dependable had walked on for about five miles, when I was awaked by something scraping on the sides of the buggy. I peered into the darkness to see where I was and found that I was out in the middle of a farmer's corn field, and that old Sanford was helping himself to his supper. I could find a nice grass patch in the middle of a field and stick four little plum sprouts into the ground and run a cotton string around the grass plot, and old Sanford would stay within the enclosure all day and whittle on that grass. He was safe between the shafts of the buggy, and you could do anything on earth with him with a cotton string, but he was the slowest horse I ever saw. He was good but good for nothing. We all know people who are good, like old Sanford but good for nothing. They will not run away with the cart, and a cotton string will hold them on grazing territory. The cotton string of timidity, the cotton string of environment, the cotton string of fear. will hold them within narrow fields. If you are going to be good, be good for something. Do not let cotton strings hold you back when the grazing is good beyond those strings.

Was visiting in a home and a baby was on the floor. A beautiful toy was a few feet away and the crawling babe tried to reach it. A bad little brother of five was behind the child and he would hold the dress of the crawling babe. It would pull and struggle to reach the toy, but an unseen hand would hold it back. Finally it fretted and fumed, but the bad boy kept it from going. Young men and women see beautiful things just ahead, and they want the toy that will make them happy, but there are unseen hands holding them back. Locate the hands that hold you back and break the grasp and then go on to success.

COMRADESHIP OF FOES

If, as it is said, politics make strange bedfellows, it is no less true that war makes strange friendships. This was again illustrated by the friendship which arose between two opposing naval commanders of the Spanish-American War and their families.

In the naval battle of Santiago on July 3, 1898, in which Cervera's fleet was destroyed, Captain Antonio Eulate of the Spanish armored crusier Viscaya surrendered to Captain Robley D. Evans of the U. S. battleship Iowa. Captain Eulate, who was wounded, tendered his sword to Captain Evans, but the American commander generously refused to accept it, and his chivalrous treatment of the enemy prisoners gained the warm admiration of his erstwhile foes.

When "Fighting Bob" Evans, then an admiral, died in 1912, a message of condolence was sent to his family by Eulate, then also an admiral and governor of the Canary Islands. Recently Admiral Eulate died, and his daughter notified Taylor Evans of New York, son of the American commander, of the fact, receiving a letter of condolence in return.

Eulate was probably the last survivor among the important commanders who took part in the Spanish-American War. For more than a third of a century he had cherished the memory of a magnanimous action on the part of a victorious foe.

Anyway, in the high cost of living days we had something with which to pay the cost.

A lot of political arguing is being done by fellows who never take the trouble to vote.

I Like The Depression

SAYS HENRY ANSLEY

Clipped from the Alexander City Outlook, Alaxander City, Ala.

The author of the following incorrigibly optimistic point of view, Henry Ansley, is a well-known newspaper man of the the Panhandle-Plains, on the staff of the Amarillo Globe-News, an original associate of Gene Howe and Wilbur Hawk. Henry does about everything around the shop from writing personals and pungent paragraphs to dining out "on the paper"—and now, "on his friends." A little depression now and then is nothing in his life. He has found a way out. This article is a boil-down of an address he has been delivering, with riotous success.

I like the depression.

No more prosperity for me.

I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common every day food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high hat.

Three years ago, only one man of the News-Globe organization could be out of town at a time and he had to leave at the last minute and get back as soon as possible. Many times I have driven 100 miles to a banquet, sat thru three hours of bunk in order to make a 5-minute speech, then drive the 100 miles back so as to be ready for the work the next morning.

Nowadays, as many News-Globe employees as are invited make those trips and we stay as long as we want to. The whole outfit could leave the office now and it wouldn't make any difference.

I like the depression. I have time to visit my friends, to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town, I always stayed at the hotel. Now I go home with my friends, stay all night and enjoy home-cooking. I have even spent the week end with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me.

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or a half day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time.

I like the depression.

I am getting acquained with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following the Biblical admonition, "Love your neighbors." One of my neighbors has one of the best-looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two and three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit in two years, I am mighty proud of my Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up and I don't mean maybe. I like the depression.

Three years ago I was so busy and party, I could never locate her, since my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, cosequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home for dinner—at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go on a there was always a "blonde" or a "redhead" available. I didn't worry much about it.

My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mothers club. We don't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home.

We got stuck up and hifalutin. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds—on the installment plan.

When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl in mine. If I came in first, it was vice versa.

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at my house now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights. she sticks her heels in my back, just like she did before Hoover was elected.

I haven't been out on a party in 18 months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. I think I will keep her, at least until she is forty and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two twenties.

I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise. I walk to town and a lot of folks who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression.

My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

I am getting real, honest-to-goodness food. Three years ago, we had filet mignon once a week, now we have round steak with flour gravy. Then, we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad to get sow-bosom with the buttons on it.

I like the depression. My salary has been cut to where I can't afford to buy lettuce and spinach and parsley and we can't afford to have sandwiches and frozen desserts and all that damfoolishness which has killed more good men than the World War.

I like the depression. Three years ago, I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart that there wasn't a preacher in West Texas who could tell me anything.

Now, I am going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday.

And if this depression keeps on I will be going to prayer meeting before long.

I like the depression.

Hugo Black Expresses His Thanks To Voters

Following is a letter to the Democrats of Chilton County from Senator Hugo Black:

To the Democrats of Chilton County:

Until I have a chance to see you personally, Iam taking this means of expressing to you my sincere appreciation of the vote you gave me in the Primary of May 3rd. My duties in Washington prevented my making a personal campaign. My loyal friends looked after my campaign for me. I was given a vote of confidence throughout the State which, according to unofficial returns, was only 1230 short of a clear majority over all the candidates.

Muscle Shoals, Veterans legislation, and other important matters make it necessary for me to return to Washington to look after the business of the people. I could not go, however, without this message of gratitude to my friends, and the assurance that I shall do my best to prove worthy of their confidence.

Sincerely and gratefully yours,
HUGO L. BLACK.

Judge Tate Expresses His Thanks To Voters

Judge F. Loyd Tate, candidate for office of judge of this judicial circuit, was in Clanton Saturday and stated he wished to express his thanks to his friends for their support in the recent Democratic Primary. Judge Tate will have to run-off this race with Arthur Glover.

Following is Judge Tate's statement to the News, and to all his friends:

"No man ever had more loyal friends than I in my race for Circuit Judge in the Primary of May 3rd. to succeed to the unexpired term of my friend, the late Geo. F. Smoot.

"Realizing, in the latter days of the Campaign, that the regular Spring term of the Circuit Courts of the Circuit would prevent my making an active canvass, you gladly and willingly took over the work I could not do; and it is due entirely to your efforts, and to none of my own, that I received the splendid vote I did on May 3rd.

"Any man is rich indeed who has friends like this. I cannot thank you enough."

Gratefully yours,
F. LOYD TATE,
Judge 19th Judicial Circuit.

LOYALTY WAS EXPENSIVE FOR STATETEACHERS

Contributions Of $31,439 Of Work Listed As End Of Year Nears

Montgomery Advertiser

The supreme test of loyalty to which Alabama's teachers have been subjected in the present crisis due mainly to failure of the Legislature to provide for the schools at its last session, is reflected in returns being gathered by the Alabama Education Association.

The Association, through its secretary, Frank L. Grove, has sent questionnaires to county superintendents in all counties and to all city school superintendents, requesting information as to the amount of time teachers have donated their services in order to keep the schools open for the full term. By donation, it was explained, is meant work for nothing or without any promise or hope of ever being paid for it.

The returns are coming in rapidly but a hasty tabulation from nine counties and three small cities yesterday revealed that teachers in these counties and cities have given away $31,439 worth of work to the counties and to the people of the State.

At $5.26 A Day

This is computed on a basis of the average pay of $5.26 a day for teachers throughout the State for the five-day teaching week during the school year.

Reports previously gathered for the present school year to April 1, have also revealed the county which owes the most money to the teachers and the counties that owe the least.

Winston County, it is shown, owes the teachers for more teaching time than any other county. The high school teachers to April 1 had taught 10 1-4 months without pay, except in State warrants issued, while the elementary teachers have been unpaid for eight months.

ARMLESS BODY OF MAN FOUND IN TALLAPOOSA

Farmer Makes Gruesome Find In Tallapoosa; No Clues To Man's Identity

Montgomery, Ala., May 17.—The disintegrating body of an unidentified white man was discovered by a farmer yesterday afternoon on the Tallapoosa River banks one and a half miles below the Judkins Ferry bridge on the Upper Wetumpka Highway about eight miles North of Montgomery.

W. A. Foster, the farmer, was fishing along the river when he noted the head and chest of a man hanging to snags about 10 feet from the bank on the Mountgomery County side. He immediately notified the sheriff's department and Deputies Parker Masingill, and John Scogin with Coroner Diffly and a physician, went to the scene.

Deputy Masingill said the body, dressed in blue serge trousers. a tan shirt, which had disintegrated, and black working or hunting shoes was suspended by the snags over about two or three feet of water. The head, chest and right leg were above the water, while the hips and left leg were submerged. Clothing over the right leg had been torn badly. Both arms had been washed away.

Following examination of the body, Coroner Diffly said death probably was the result of drowning, presumably three or four months ago, and possibly at some other point on the river.

The man, in Diffly's opinion, was about 5 feet 7 inches tall, had black curly hair and was comparatively young. One upper molar was found missing.

The only other means through which identification may be made were the belt he was wearing, apparently homemade of leather sections, braided together and the shoes, each of which had a neat groove cut in the rubber of the heels. He had a piece of fishing cord in a pocket of the trousers.

The coroner ordered the body buried near the place where it was found.

Members of the Sheriff's department said they had received no reports of any person missing within the last four months whose description might tally with that of the dead man.

MAYOR J. LEE SMITH AND FAMILY TAKE MOTOR TRIP

Mayor and Mrs. J. Lee Smith and two children, J. Lee, Jr., and Lillian, left Wednesday for an extended motor trip. This trip will carry them into Oklahoma, where they will stop at Bristow and Tulsa. LOCAL SENIORS HAVE VARIED CLASS NIGHT

Diplomas Given To Students Completing Studies Of Junior III Class

Some have expressed the opinion that the group of students comprising the graduating class of the Chilton County High School this year has been one of the most outstanding in several years, not only in excellent grades, but in their interest and loyalty to the school.

The program of the Class Night, given Monday night of this week, showed that time had been given its arrangement and that those taking part had applied their time to their studies. The President's Address was given by Joe VanDerveer. Class Poem, Ruth Aylene Maddox; Class Voyage, Erle Ellis; Class Statistician, Jane Roberts; Class Grumbler, Ottis Miller; Class Will, Eloyse Jones; Class Giftorian, J. P. Jones; Class Prophecy, Sallye Mahan; Class History, Charlsie Pyron; Treasurer's Report, Leroy Martin.

An interesting item was mentioned in the report of the class treasurer, on that the class had raised over $200, paid for the electric clock system in use now, and will leave a balance in the treasury to be used for some worthy interest of the school.

A quartette composed of Misses Sallye Mahan, Eloise Jones, Jane Roberts and Mary Nell Jones, rendered selections, with Miss Mary Ellis at the piano.

Another feature was the awarding of the gold National Honor Key, as first honor for class loyalty and scholarship to Tom Tiffin. Second honor, was awarded to Joe VanDerveer, president of the class.

Diplomas were given to graduating members of the Junior III Class by Prof. L. C. Warr. Tuesday night was graduation night for the Seniors. Dr. O. C. Carmichael, of Alabama College, Montevallo, delivered the baccalaureate sermon.

The auditorium of the school was crowded to overflowing on both these occasions.

THE OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS

Parties interested in the welfare of the people of Chilton County and especially the educational condition of the county, are giving their time and effort again this year to the organizing of Opportunity Schools to be conducted during the summer.

These schools are all that the name implies. Truly an opportunity for those adults who were not so fortunate in their younger days to receive a fair education. Many even being unable to write their names at this time. Now, comes another opportunity to learn, without cost of any kind.

The News feels that everyone should give support to these Opportunity Schools in Chilton County, whether they attend or not, and that attitude is also shown by others who know what these schools are and the advantages they have in bringing about the elimination of illiteracy in our county.

THOSE WHO DO AND THOSE WHO DON'T

Every now and then a newspaper will feel an urge to say something through its columns about advertising and about the opportunity local merchants pass up when they fail to take advantage of the columns of the local newspaper. We do not intend to tell the merchants of Chilton County how to run their business, but to those who don't advertise, we unhesitatingly tell them they should advertise.

We call our readers' attention to the advertisements in this week's issue, and in future issues. It can be generally assumed that when you see an advertisement in your local paper from one of your local merchants, that he has something extra to offer the people and wishes them to know about it, and at the same time wants the people to know he is still in business and invites them to trade with him. So, if you pass up the advertisements you are passing up something whereby you will no doubt be able to save on purchases.

To those who don't advertise, we have a little story to tell, and especially to those who say "Advertising is of little value during the present business situation." Here is the story. It is not original, but is true:

"One editor, in a small town, population 1,072, once a banker, told a story that points a moral. He said that in his town was a merchant who had been in business for 17 years. In all that time his credit had been good, but in the present depression he had found collections bad and as a consequence unable to meet an $800 note at the bank and an open account of $400, although perfectly solvent. He asked the editor-banker for advice. The editor placed the merchant's case before a large bank in an adjoining town and they readily advanced the merchant the money to pay his note and account. The editor was then asked by the merchant what he could do to raise some ready money. 'Have you ever had a sale?' asked the editor. 'No,' the merchant replied. He was persuaded to try one. He used advertising liberally in the small paper of the town. His store was crowded during the sale. At the close he found he had money enough to pay his $800 note and his $400 account and had $1,200 left. He unhesitatingly gave the credit to advertising."

THE EARTH YIELDS ITS FRUITS

If the race is to survive the earth must give forth its fruits. Realization of this age-old truth is responsible for a vast amount of activity at this time; activity that touches every nook and corner of rural America and which provides the most inspiring picture presented within the national borders.

The people must be fed and clothed. That is fundamental. And about the work of feeding and clothing the world, millions of sturdy men and women are going from day to day.

Thousands of miles of furrows are being turned; thousands of tons of seed are being sown; thousands of backs are bent to the task of keeping clean those rows already sown. Before these millions of toilers there is not held up the glittering prize of large monetary gain. At the end of the long summer days, devoted to toil from early dawn to dewy eve, no bag of gold awaits. The incentive is not wealth but service.

Of the millions who so cheerfully go about these arduous tasks, few will receive more than a bare living for themselves and their loved ones. Some will even finish "in the red." But this does not halt endeavor.

Fortunate, too, it is that these ministers to human need are not governed by the spirit of gain, else hunger might become the rule.

Fortunate that they hear, with the coming of each Spring, the age-old challenge to bring forth from the earth its gracious fruits, regardless of how much or how little it means to them individually or collectively.

Fortunate that they are not tempted to lay down their tools when rewards are scant and hope is struggling with despair. That they keep on, in seasons good and in seasons bad, stamps the agriculturists as among the greatest of the race, unless the world is wrong in identifying real greatness with real service.

The farmer, in thus pushing on and on, regardless of circumstances, does something more than guard his fellows against the specter of famine. He sets an example of diligence, of devotion and of energy that the world well might observe with profit.

There is inspiration in the fallow fields that he tends; in the fresh young shoots that spring up at his bidding, in the promise of the golden harvest that is to come. And chiefest of all there is inspiration in his faithful discharge of duties, regardless of the rewards that lie at the end of the year's hot, hard labors.—Tuscaloosa News.

J. H. BROADHEAD IS MAKING IMPROVEMENTS IN WEST END

Those passing through West End will notice a change in the appearance of the front of the store of J. H. Broadhead. Mr. Broadhead has been having some extensive work done toward improving his popular place of business.

Brick pillars have been put up, gasoline tanks are to be rearranged. Mr. Broadhead stated that there is quite a bit he intends to do to his place, and the whole thing will be a thorough remodeling of the front of the building which houses his well known grocery store, market and grist mill.

PLAN TO HAVE OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS HERE

County Will Not Have To Match Appropriation From The State

Plans are underway in Chilton County for the conducting of Opportunity Schools again this year, according to B. Lawrence, superintendent of education. The schools will open, it is hoped, soon after crops are laid by in the county so that all who wish to take advantage of this instruction may do so, at no cost.

It was also announced that Prof. H. A. Harris of Clanton would act as organizer and supervisor of the schools again this year. Prof. Harris is well qualified to handle this, and has shown his ability to conduct the schools in a most profitable manner for those attending in years past.

A letter from the State Superintendent of Education stated that the county would not be forced to match the amount of the state's appropriation for the conducting of the schools, and that the state appropriation for ten white schools will be $625 and for ten colored schools $425, provided the county agrees to conduct that number of schools.

However, Mr. Lawrence stated, the above amounts will not be sufficient to conduct schools in this county and aid from the outside will be necessary.

These schools are strictly for adults, according to Prof. Harris and will be conducted in those communities where the most interest is shown. All communities interested in securing one of these schools are urged to get in touch with Prof. Harris, just as soon as possible.

The schools are hoped to be opened somewhere about the middle of July.

The cast of characters is as follows: Briggs, Alvin Thompson; Lucia Russell, Lorene Wright; Dudley Russell, Joe Turner; Elizabeth Russell (Bess), Elberta Overstreet; George Garrison, Earl Davis; Ethel Ashley, Altha Thompson; Lucile Christy, Sarah Misseldine; Flora Farnum, Henrietta Hesler; Mrs. Edith Russell, Mollie Belle Ousley; Mrs. Oliver Woodruff, Wista Hampton; Mrs. Emory Scott, Delia Cherry.

KIWANIANS ARE TOLD OF NEEDS URGENT TODAY

Dr. James S. Thomas Gives Interesting Data On Farm Conditions

Last Thursday, Kiwanians of Clanton and their several guests heard Dr. James S. Thomas, of the Commonwealth Southern Corp., deliver one of his most interesting, informative and instructive addresses at the regular weekly luncheon.

Dr. Thomas as special guest of the club, spoke along the line of farming and the urgent need today for farmers to raise those things they need, at home, and stop buying articles they can raise on their own land.

He gave some interesting figures, showing plainly that farming and industry are considerably out of balance, and that until this balance is gained, the people are going to continue to find that prices received by the farmer for his crops, are to be low.

Dr. Thomas urged the business men and larger planters to impress on the farmers this urgnt need today and impressed the importance of pure-bred stock on the farms, stock that will pay, instead of eating more than they return. The Kiwanis Club of Clanton was very fortunate in securing Dr. Thomas as guest speaker for the day.

The meeting for today will be in regard to health work, and it is expected that representatives from the State Board of Health will be present

COMMITTEE LAUDS WORK OF RED CROSS

Letter From Local Chairman Of Area Committee Is Sent To National

The work of the Red Cross in Chilton County following recent storms is being completed. Much is being said in regard to the splendid work done by the organization here, and the Committee on Awards in this county, made up of local citizens, has mailed a letter to the American National Red Cross, Washington, D. C., expressing appreciation of the work done. The letter follows:

"Clanton, Ala., May 17, 1932.

"American National Red Cross,
Washington, D. C.,

"Gentlemen:

"The Committeemen of the Chilton County Area of the Southeastern Tornado Relief wish to express their appreciation, also the appreciation of the public in general for the splendid manner in which your representatives handled the relief work and rehabilitation of the storm stricken people of this district.

"We would like to mention the names of each worker, and especially do we want to call your attention to the excellent work on the part of Mr. Reddy, Director of the Southeastern Tornado Relief, Miss Moses, Supervisor of our Division of the relief work and to Mrs. Vasilike Foster who labored so patiently and untiringly as Director of our local area. She made a host of friends, and her work will be long remembered.

"The Case Workers like the above, did their work well and are held in highest esteem by the Committee, as well as by the people with whom they worked. I refer to Mrs. Laird, Miss Jones, Miss Wald, Miss Millen, Mr. Grimsby and Mrs. C. E. Stapp.

"We also wish to mention the splendid service rendered by Dr. DeKline, Miss Metenger and Miss Giles.

Verbena High School News

A contest was held between the Mezzofantian and Shakespearian Societies of the Verbena High School Friday night, May 6, in the high school auditorium. The stage was decorated with the colors of the two societies. The program was rendered as follows:

Scripture reading and prayer: Ralph Hughes.

Piano Solo: Mezzofantian: Katherine Gaines.

Piano Solo: Shakespearian: Batson Culver.

Reading, Shakespearian: Sarah Hollis.

Reading, Mezzofantian: Quintilla Meroney.

Vocal Solo, Mezzofantian: Evelyn Barrett.

Vocal Solo, Shakesperian: John Abb Scott.

Declamation, Mezzofantian: Lane Allen.

A debate was then held between the two societies. The subject for debate was: Resolved: That schools should remain closed next fall, with the Mezzofantians taking the affirmative and the Shakesperian taking the negative side. The speakers were: Shakesperians, Mell Pattillo, Marvin Huett; Mezzofantian, J. R. Robinson, Eunice Bullard.

Etnel Cagle acted as chairman and Bill Wise secretary.

The Mezzofantian secret stunt was held next with the Shakesperian stunt following.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Comer announced that the judges decided in favor of the Shakesperian Society. Mr. Sidney L. Gibson awarded the loving cup to Miss Mell Pattillo the president of the Shakesperian Society.

On Sunday, May 8, Dr. N. B. McLeod of Selma delivered the Baccalaureate sermon in the high school auditorium. Special music had been arranged. The Seniors, dressed in caps and gowns, lent dignity to the occasion, as they filed down the aisle.

On Tuesday night athletic letters were awarded a large number. The Music Club fornished entertainment.

On Wednesday night the Seniors gave their class exercises. The scene was laid in fairyland, of which Miss Serena Mitchell was the beautiful queen. She was attended by Misses Kate McKinney and Sarah Hollis. Betty Boo Hollis was the flower girl. There were eight fairies dressed in pastel shades. They saw the Seniors in the soap bubbles which they blew. As each Senior was seen in the bubbles he was called into fairyland to bring his history, or poem, or music, or prophecy. The president of the class, Ernest Williams, presented a torch to Wayne Hiten, the president of the next Senior Class.

Mr. J. I. Riddle of Alabama College delivered the Baccalaureate address on Thursday evening to fifteen graduates. The stage was decorated with pink sweet peas, the class flower and baskets of pink roses. Mell Pattillo was Salutatorian, Eunice Bullard, Valedictorian.

The following were on the Attendance Honor Roll for the year:

Clarence Grey, Eunice Bullard, Ralph Hughes, Elena Thrailkill, Marshall Williams, Irma Thrailkill, Katherine Abernathy, Eddie Lois Partridge, Kate McKinney and Celia Baker.

Mell Pattillo won second place in a play writing contest sponsored by the Samuel Johnson Literary Society at the University of Alabama. There were 75 plays submitted from high schools over the state.

The following will be eligible to membership in the English Club next semester: Lilla Barron, Josephine Barrett, Irene Driver, Eunice Grant, Margie Grant, Excell Howard, Dovard Huett, Jack Wise, Irene Jones, Etta Belle Sharp, Evelyn Barrett, Helen DuBose, Mamie Meroney, Quintilla Meroney Maston Robinson Robinson, Frances Strock, Celia Baker, Robbie Hardy, Kate McKinney, Marvin Huett, Serena Mitchell, Katherine Gaines, Mell Pattillo, Evelyn Barrett. Kate McKinney and Katherine Gaines will be new members.

Notice of Filing of Bill of Complaint by the State of Alabama, Complainant, vs. One Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, Respondent.

State of Alabama, Complainant, vs. One Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, Respondent.

In The Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, in Equity.

The Bill of Complaint of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, against one Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 12 day of February, 1932, an unknown escape did transport in One Dodge Sedan, 1926 Model, certain prohibited liquors and beverages, from one point in the State of Alabama to another, and that said automobie was on said day seized by the Sheriff of said County and said Bill of Complaint praying that said automobile be declared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

It is therefore ordered and declared that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for three successive weeks in Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and that all persons claiming or asserting any right, title or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 6th day of June, 1932, and that failing so to do, the said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Given under my hand, this the 27 day of April, 1932.

A Matter of PRIDE---

A Clean Bright Car Is Like Clean Clothes

When you drive a bright, clean car away from our Station you have a sense of the fitness of things—it's a matter of pride. And as we watch you leave we always feel a justifiable sense of pride in the workmanship that made your car look that way. Our service is invariably fine and exceptionally economical.

YES, and the supply of meat and related products stays at about the same level from year to year; this supply was no smaller in 1931 than in 1930.

Thus, in depression years, as in boom years, there is absolute need for a nation-wide, diversified, economical marketing system.

How Swift & Company, with such a system, marketed more pounds of products during 1931 than in 1930, despite low consumer purchasing power and at lower service cost, is told in the 1932 Year Book.

Thirty years ago this company deliberately set out to diversify by handling produce as well as meats. Now it has more than a hundred stations where eggs, poultry and dairy products are bought and processed. Swift & Company enhances demand for produce by advertising brands of high quality, Swift's Premium Milk-Fed Chicken, Golden West Fowl, Swift's Brookfield Butter, Eggs, Cheese and many other products.

Selling and buying on a national scale, the Swift & Company organization avoids the gluts and shortages characteristic of restricted markets. Being diversified, it spreads costs more thinly over all products; the same refrigerator cars are equipped to carry either meat or produce; the same branch houses handle them; the same salesmen take orders for both.

Read in the 1932 Year Book how this diversity helped to stabilize operations, to keep volume normal and to further reduce our marketing costs, already declared by the National Distribution Council in 1925 to be the lowest in seventeen trades studied.

The Year Book is packed with a hundred items of information about Swift & Company's nation-wide cash market. Ask your local Swift Produce Plant for a copy or use the coupon.

JUST BOB AND TOM

"Come on Bob, don't be a sissy. It's not gonna kill you to smoke one cigarette."

"I'm not expecting just one cigarette to kill me and refusing to smoke doesn't make me a sissy and you know it, Tom. You are three years older, but I am stronger than you are. True isn't it?"

"Pshaw, you're gonna be scared by old long face! If he wanted to preach and had to quit smokin' let him have a hard time doin' it. I think it's funny that his father-in-law keeps him seein' and smellin' tobaccer all the time. He'll be a strong man if he holds out another five years! Ya!"

"Tom, that's mean. You know you like the preacher. You're just cross because he stepped on your cigarette-toe today. But what good is his preaching going to do if he has to go to the trouble to keep off of everybody's sore spots? He hit 'uncontrolled tempers' hard last night, but I didn't get cross about it. I know I've got to control mine, so I'm glad to have all the help I can get from the preacher and everybody else."

Bob Wilton and Tom Ulman were going home from church. As Bod said, Tom was far from pleased with what the preacher had said about the use of tobacco. He was determined to get a little satisfaction, as he called it, by getting Bob to smoke if possible, where the preacher would see him doing it. He knew that the preacher thought a great deal of Bob and would be disappointed in him if he saw him smoking. They came to the parting of their ways and stopped before going on home.

"Sure 'nough now, Bob, you know one cigarette ain't a gona hurt you."

"Oh, no, I guess one cigarette, like a little of any other kind of poison, might not hurt me long, but what about the twos, threes, fives, tens and hundreds that usually follow the first 'just one;' say Tom, what about them?"

"You're 'fraid, ya! Bob's 'fraid!" sneered Tom.

"Tom, I've told you time and again my reasons for not smoking. You've seen me mad—" (the last words halted his anger and he thought: "Guess I'd better go home before I lose my temper completely and knock him down") "So long, Tom, see you later," and with those words he turned to go.

Tom had been keeping watch up the road and just then he saw the preacher coming. Then was his chance to hurt the preacher and Bob. He had a cigarette made and ready to light. Just as Bob turned to go home, Tom thrust the cigarette into his fingers and struck a match to it and said, "Bob, I dare you to take just one draw," and Bob will never be able to explain why he put that cigarette to his lips and took a few draws, but when he looked up, the preacher was looking directly at him, smoke, cigarette and all.

"Hi! Yi! Didn't make you sick a bit did it?" gleefully asked Tom, but Bob was walking sadly homeward. The hurt look on the preacher's face and the shame in his own heart had knocked his anger too low to flare up at his tempter's sneering laugh.

Bob and Tom grew up.

Bob worked his way through college, doing any honorable work he could get to do. He made excellent grades, which others with better chances could not equal. He was able to do the almost impossible because he possessed a clear mind and a strong body, unhampered by the poison and expense of tobacco. He is an honored citizen in his community and is happy in knowing that he is doing his best for himself, his family and everybody with whom he has dealings.

Tom is the same old fellow, happy in his narrow way, still has that selfish wish to hurt someone when his ideas and wishes are not considered above all others. And, to his mind, he is always right; he never makes a mistake!

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Circuit Court in Equity. No. 987.
R. O. Estes, Complainant. vs. Emma Estes, Respondent.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Victor J. Heard that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Emma Estes to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 11 day of June, 1932, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, this 10 day of May, 1932.

And let the weevil WORRY

LOOKS like a mighty bad weevil year. We had two bone-dry summers in 1930 and 1931 and are about due for a wet one now. Owing to mild weather, weevils had a picnic all winter and they are just waiting for the squares to form.

It is going to be a race between the cotton and the weevils. Cotton sure is going to have a job keeping ahead of the weevils without a little help from you. Not much, if any, fertilizer under it, the crop is almost sure to be slow and sickly by June. Just the way the weevils want it.

What they do to your crop depends largely on what you do for your crop!

Side-dress! Chilean Nitrate, 100 pounds per acre (200 pounds would be much better) will set the crop early, ahead of the weevil. Then you are reasonably safe. But be sure you get Chilean. Nothing takes its place for side-dressing cotton.

Your dealer has it or can get it on a moment's notice. See him now!

Unsound Money Plans

Champions of the cash bonus payment who have been advocating putting $2,000,000,000 worth of "new money" through the printing presses with the credit of the Government and hot air to sustain it are not suggesting any new or untried experiment.

Behind a Bottle of Milk

In discussing some outstanding farm problems, an authority on those subjects vividly described what is back of the bottle of milk the housewife finds on her doorstep each morning.

Back of it are the broad green fields. the rolling hills, the shining homes and barns of the countryside. Back of it are plants employing thousands of men and women, and express trains and trucks speeding the milk to the city so it may be delivered in perfect condition. Back of it is the prosperity—or the failure—of whole communities, of banks, farms, manufacturing businesses.

If that bottle of milk sells for a fair price, it means that taxes are met, mortgages are paid promptly, men are given work at good wages. If it sells for an extremely low price—as is the case in many states at present—it means that mortgages are foreclosed, bills and taxes are unpaid, stores go into bankruptcy. Back of that bottle of milk, then, are frozen assets. hard-pressed or bankrupt country banks, sheriff's sales.

A good commodity cannot be produced at too low a price—whether that commodity be milk or wool or automobiles or furniture or clothing. That is the reason, in the case of the farmer, for cooperatives which, through mass action, give agriculture the bargaining power with which to maintain a fair price for what it has to sell. Every person interested in American prosperity will wish the cooperative movement all success.

Five Thousand Dollars a Minute

According to recent estimates, the government is spending seven million dollars more each day than it receives in revenues.

This amounts to $5,000 a minute. If it continues until the end of the fiscal year, the Federal budget will miss balancing by the sum of $2,000,000,000.

Nothing could better show the nature and importance of the tax problem in this country. Increased governmental expenditures can result in only two things—higher taxes and bonded indebtedness, or the failure of American credit.

Government retrenchment—not only Federal, but State and local—is essential to American progress. The bureaus and commissions must be pruned if the United States is not to become one of the nations—like England and Australia—which are being slowly taxed into ruin.

Commenting on the absolute necessity for retrenchment, Melvin A. Traylor, President of the First National Bank of Chicago and an outstanding man in public life, says:

"I believe that we shall discover that the question of taxation, aside from the question of revenue for the payment of existing debts, is primarily one of reducing future expenditures. This objective will not be accomplished unless there is a drastic change in the public attitude toward Government responsibility. In other words, we cannot continue to demand of our governmental agencies that they perform for us the increasing number of things we have been requiring of them in the past—things we should do ourselves—and at the same time expect those responsible for Government to reduce the cost of its administration."

Stumping Via Government Airplanes

"Plainly, however, Colonel Hurley has been picked to be the chief defender of the Hoover Administration in the coming campaign. Why not? He assured the newspaper publishers in their annual convention in New York that Hoover was quite as great as Abraham Lincoln.

"We know, as does Secretary Hurley, that the campaign is now but a few months off and that there is great need of dressing Herbert Hoover in patriotic robes for the sake of a Republican victory. But we strongly object to the light-hearted manner in which Mr. Hurley has been dipping into the Government treasury, into the taxes collected from the sorely pressed citizens of the county, in his efforts to accomplish that purpose. The Secretary of War has been using a Government airplane piloted by an army air-corps officer in stumping the country for Herbert Hoover. This is a highly improper, if not wholly illegal, use of Government funds. It must be condemned in the strongest terms. The practice is doubly unethical in coming just at the time when the Hoover Administration is raising such a pother about Government economy."
—The Nation.

"Truth is such a precious article, let us all economize in its use."
—Mark Twain.

Looks like this time I will have to plead in behalf of myself, because last week Joe Edgar made a hole in one on the local golf links and I had already written this column when the story broke. I might suggest to Dr. Edgar that the manufacturers of the club he used and of the ball, be advised of this sensational shot in golf worlds. I'll be willing to wager that he would receive a nice little gift from these manufacturers. That is a good suggestion "Doc" and you shouldn't let it pass by.

Did you read that article in last week's News, headed "I Like The Depression"? I read it and it was one of the best I've read in a long time, and if you didn't read it, you missed something.

Lindy's baby was found murdered, so press reports state. Somebody got $50,000, and somebody got $100,000 the reports state, and judging from that, somebody lost about $150,000.

You know, I've been thinking lately that there is a lot of wickedness going on in Chilton County. I get my impression from the reports from the Sheriff's office each week in this newspaper. Arrests include a lot of things that are not just merely violating the prohibition law, but violation of a lot of the laws of the Bible.

What the country needs now is some good Democratic government throughout. I believe the change would do folks good, stop some squabbling, speculating and what have you. At any rate, the country is fast becoming Democratic conscious and Republican unconscious.

Some of these days we are going to have another city election, wherein we will elect a Mayor and some city councilmen. The question has already been brought up and asked, "Will Lee Smith run again for Mayor?" My reply is I believe he will. He has retired from business and no doubt has this in mind. But I really would like to know.

I have several men in mind as possible candidates for the office of Mayor of Clanton and have their councilmen all lined up. When the time comes and I think it proper, I will divulge their names, or something.

* * *

"Red" Wagoner comes somewhat in line for an official office. He is interested in the affairs of the town, county and state to a certain extent. Then there is Claude Calloway.

It's all right for folks to run for office, but when they run as fast and far as Congressman Lamar Jeffers did in the recent primary, that something. He ran so fast that he carried the home county of his opponent. This is of interest to Chilton County folks, because Lamar was at one time our congressman.

I've been wondering if someone is going to start the movement in Clanton for stores to close on Thursday. Haven't even heard a whisper of anything about it yet, however.

Over four hundred dogs were given the rabies treatment in Clanton last week by Dr. Parrish and Dr. Hinkle. Boy, ain't that a lot of dogs. Could it be said that the town has gone to the dogs, or the folks are dog poor? Nope, neither one, we just have a lot of lovers of dogs. I like dogs, especially the nice dogs that don't bite anything except something you give them to eat. Four hundred dogs—think of it—in Clanton. Maybe they could be style as "Clanton's 400". Let's put on a parade of dogs, dress them up in gay colored ribbons, sweaters, dresses, pants or something and give some prizes. Now that is a good suggestion for someone who hasn't much to do, and there should be any trouble finding someone like that. Can you picture 400 dogs lined up in the streets of Clanton? Nope. Neither can I, but there are that many dogs in this town.

It must be remembered now that our elementary supervisor of county schools is no longer Miss Madge Scarborough. and that in the future she will receive her mail as Mrs. O. R. (Reed) Mullins, of Clanton, Alabama and the mail will go to one of the most attractive little new homes in this town. Boy, how I envy Mr. and Mrs. Mullins, individually and collectively.

Near The Top of The List

One of the things that must be done before we can enjoy a return to normal conditions is to adopt a policy of more fair and equitable treatment of our railroads. This also means fair treatment for the general public.

Last year the lines earned about 2 per cent return on their investment—the smallest return on record. If depression alone had caused this, as was the case with other business, it would be comparatively unimportant. But, as a railroad spokesman recently pointed out, it was the final result of developments occurring over a long period of time.

The Transportation Act has been in effect eleven years. It was passed, not only to safeguard the public interest, but to permit the roads a return of 5¾ per cent, and to make regulation more constructive than it has been. Yet in those eleven years, the lines have been able to earn an average return of only 4.1 per cent—while in the eleven years from 1897 to 1907, inclusive, they earned 4.95 per cent, and between 1907 and 1917, 4.92 per cent. Consequently, the roads, since the war, have been unable to earn enough in good times to tide them over bad periods.

The greatest single menace of railroad prosperity and stability is unfair competition. Buses and trucks throng our highways and operate under mild or unequal taxation and regulation in comparison with the railroads. Barges operate on the waterways, subsidized by the government. It is no wonder that the best economic authorities place the railroad problem near the head of the list of the important issues we now face.

Politicians can tell us of the things that ought to be done. but it takes statesmen to do them.

MY PERSONAL COLUMN

Billy Smith

An out-of-town resident asked me the other day how conditions were in the storm section of this county. It was difficult to answer that question to any satisfaction and answer it quickly. In my opinion there are numerous families affected by the tornadoes, that are in much better circumstances than they were before the misfortune. Of course, one must take under consideration the fact that many families were grieved by deaths and some are still saddened with members confined to hospitals, and some permanently injured.

So far as clothing and shelter are concerned, I don't believe that any family is suffering. But I do believe that the question of food, not only for members of the families, but for livestock, is going to present a problem soon, although it will not be a serious problem.

Perhaps the ones who are suffering most, are those who really had accumulated during the years of their life, and were not aided to any extent by the Red Cross, due to their ability to do for themselves. Those families should feel proud and keep in mind that they can continue to push forward.

I was impressed by one remark made by Judge Leon McCord: "We are entitled to only three things, clothing, food and shelter. God has merely thrown in for good measure, all the extra things we are enjoying."

* * *

In a letter received from Hon. P. W. Turner, vice-president of the Alabama Power Company, and commenting on recent editorials in this newspaper, he said in part, "It is very gratifying in these days of turmoil to find such clear thinking. It has always been my pet theory that people in the small towns and rural districts did more clear thinking than any other class of our citizens."

I sincerely appreciate that comment from a man of the calibre of Mr. Turner. Another letter received from Hon. E. C. Melvin, president of the Selma National Bank of Selma, Ala., and a director in the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, commenting on two editorials recently appearing in this newspaper, he had the following to say, "These are both splendid editorials, full of sound common sense and they pleased me so much that I felt I wanted to compliment you on them. It is refreshing to find an editor who realizes the situation as you do and who has the courage to print his views."

Considerable time is spent on the editorials appearing in the News each week. It is not the intentions of this newspaper to try to sway the people toward any selfish movement, but to place before them, as plainly as possible views on existing conditions that are of the utmost interest to every citizen of this county. It is true that this newspaper is, by heritage and by preference, Democratic, but at the same time we do not wish to appear so narrow as to withhold any comment or information within our knowledge, that would be of interest and benefit to our readers.

Darden Expresses Thanks To Voters

Goodwater, Ala., May 17th, 1932.

To the People of Chilton County:

I wish to thank each and everyone of the voters of your county who voted for me on May 3rd for President of Alabama Public Service Commission. You gave me a fine majority in your county. I have no criticism to offer against those who did not support me.

While I was not nominated, yet, I am not discouraged over the results. The large vote in your county and the magnificent vote over the state, 67,765 votes, show that the people of Alabama are waking up to the fact that they are being charged outrageous prices for lights, power, water, gas and telephone rentals. Two years from now these principles will triumph. The large vote I received was not a personal tribute to myself, but to the principles of right and justice that I advanced.

We will keep up the fight in the democratic party until justice is secured in way of fair and just rates for lights, power, water, gas and telephone service, and until we make certain that there is a just and fair taxation for the masses of the people. There cannot justly be two standards of taxation; one large one for the masses and a smaller one for the utilities.

Again thanking you for your votes and support, I am,

Yours very truly,
JOHN A. DARDEN.

State Teachers' Loyalty Proves To Be Expensive

and Dallas, had paid their teachers in full to April 1, and didn't owe them anything. Montgomery County, it was reported, owed its teachers for about 10 days at that time.

Taxes Insufficient

As has been stated most of the counties depend largely upon the State appropriations which not only remain the same as in 1927 but were slightly increased by the last Legislature. But the taxes levied by the 1927 Legislature have never been sufficient to pay the appropriations the Legislature authorized and now the tax income has decreased nearly 50 per cent.

Anticipating that a contingency might arise the 1927 Legislature provided that if the taxes levied were not sufficient to meet the State appropriations to the counties that the difference should be paid out of the general fund. This provision would stand the schools in good stead if there was any money in the general fund for them. But other agencies of government have prior claims upon the general fund—the Convict Department and the Bryce Hospital, wards of the State—and the amounts necessary to carry on the functions of government, by law, it is claimed, all have first claims upon the general fund. So that when these prior claims are paid there is little, if anything left to make up the difference for the schools.

Income vs. Outgo

Again in more prosperous times the difference in the tax income and the appropriation outgo was made up by borrowing the amounts necessary. So the State now not only finds itself unable to meet the school appropriations but is scarcely able to pay back the money that has been borrowed to pay the difference years ago.

The Alabama Education Association has determined upon a policy of acquainting the people with the facts regarding the school crisis in Alabama upon the theory that once the people understand that schools in many counties will be unable to open and that others can hope to operate but two or three months at most next school year, that the people will take the leadership in a movement for constructive legislative work to clarify the situation.

The figures now being compiled by Secretary Grove will be included among the facts to be given the people in bulletins sent out by the Association and by public-spirited citizens who are going to stump the State.

The nine counties and three cities in which the teachers gave away $31,439 worth of work are as follows:

Counties: Bibb, where 10 teachers taught five days for nothing; Elmore, where two teachers have taught 15 days for nothing; Chilton, where 15 teachers taught eight days; Madison, where 100 taught 10 days; Chambers, where 265 taught five days; Henry, Pickens, Geneva and Washington. The latter four listed collectively the total number of teachers and the days they taught for nothing.

Cities: Decatur, where 65 teachers taught 22 days; Brewton, where 20 teachers taught 2 days, and Alabama City, which listed only totals.

Warns Against Slick Stock Schemers

Birmingham, Ala., May 12.—Benjamin C. Guy, of R. F. D. 1, Wetumpka, Alabama, reported to the Investment Department of the Alabama Power Company today the loss of 53 shares of its $7 Preferred Stock and has enlisted the efforts of the law to help him apprehend the stranger who got it from him under false pretenses.

According to Mr. Guy's story, a stranger came to his home on May 9th and introducing himself under the name of Rowe or Ross, told him he understood he had certain stock in an Atlanta concern, which was a fact, and then unfolded a dazzling prospect of dividends to be paid on such stock in the near future. He then proceeded to say that he was authorized to sell Guy a large number of additional shares. Guy stated he had no money but let it drop that he had Alabama Power Company Preferred Stock and was finally induced to bring out the 53 shares of Power Company Preferred and sign the transfer on back of same in blank. The stranger then became very hurried in both talk and action and got away with the stock, leaving with Guy what purported to be a receipt, binding him to exchange same for the new stock.

According to Guy the stranger had a large lot of stock certificates which he claimed were Alabama Power Company certificates that he had secured from other parties for a like trade-in.

The Power Company has notified bankers and brokers over the State to look out for the certificate, which was not witnessed at the time of signing, and has requested its transfer agents to hold up transfer of same.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mrs. G. C. Polk is having a Tennis Court built on the vacant lot between her home and 8th Ave. The ground has been leveled and clayed and the guard wire erected. We wish to commend this project as a means to keep the young life happy and under supervision.

Clanton is this week losing one of its best families. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Neighbors have moved to Goodwater and will make that their future home. Last fall Dr. Neighbors sold out his interests in the Alred Drug Store, and will now engage in farming.

o

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Boyett have recently moved from Montevallo and are now residing in the home next door to O. O. Roper. Mr. Boyett is in the Insurance business.

o

Professor Teel of the Marbury school was in Clanton Saturday and reported that they were planning a big citizenship rally at Marbury next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Special music will be given and a large crowd is expected. Dr. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church, has been secured to deliver the address and he will speak from the subject, "What does it take to make a good Citizen?"

o

The Commencement sermon preached at the Methodist church last Sunday morning was full of thought and inspiration for the entire audience. Dr. Bell was at his best and the occasion was one of the most beautiful ever taking place in Clanton. The Senior class in caps and gowns made an unusual appearance of dignity and the profusion of flowers made the auditorium a charm for the great audience assembled. The Music by the Union Choir was at high water mark and Mrs. L. C. Ross never sang better. All things considered this Commencement occasion was the best ever.

o

Mr. and Mrs. Reid Mullins spent the week end with Mrs. Mullins' parents at Blue Springs in Barbour county. They returned to their home in Clanton Monday.

o

The farmers in the Isabella community report that they have planted about seventy per cent of a cotton crop as compared with last year. But little fertilizer has been used and they are not expecting more than half of the production of last year.

o

Among the schools inviting Rev. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Baptist church in Clanton, to preach Commencement sermons were Plantersville High School Centerville High School and the Rockford High School. He has accepted the invitation to be at Rockford and will be there next Sunday at 11 A. M.

o

We want to say this in appreciation of the teachers who have labored so long and so well in the schools of Clanton and Chilton County. They hold a place in the life of our county occupied by no other class of people. For the last nine months many of them have been criticized, many of them have shed bitter tears because of unkind patrons, and yet they have labored on. They are certainly not working for pay, if so they have not received it. They have been toiling and sacrificing for the children of Chilton County, and parents in our county are due them a debt of gratitude they will never be able to pay. When they go to their homes for the summer, be big hearted and appreciative and write them a letter. It will do them good and it will do you good.

o

During the last week there was much activity in Clanton on the dog line. There are about 475 dogs within the police jurisdiction of Clanton and free inoculation was offered to prevent rabies. One little negro boy was seen carrying five dogs for treatment. He had the bell-wether cur in front and was leading him. and the other dogs were tied with a rope, one at a time—and then tied to the leading dog. They went down the side walk like an L & N freight train—the little negro was the engine and the dogs were the cars.

The alumni association of Thorsby Institute will hold its annual business meeting Saturday night, May 21 at 7:30 P. M. on the lawn at the Boys' Dormitory. Each alumnus is urged to be present.

On last Saturday afternoon, the Seniors enjoyed one of the events which each Senior class looks forward to each year—the Senior Picnic.

Leaving here at 3:00 o'clock in a truck driven by Wilber Collins, they made their way to Yommakita Springs. The happy spirit of the group was somewhat killed when they beheld a dry swimming pool and a storm-torn bath-house. Wilber told them about another place about three miles farther, which was a very beautiful place. All the boys enjoyed a swim while the girls enjoyed talking with each other. Then after exploring the woods around the picnic grounds they gathered together and enjoyed the picnic supper. About 7:30 everyone got his place on the truck, and arrived home at 9:30 all safe and sound.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was led by T. A. McCallum. The topic discussed was "How May We Work for World Goodwill?" If a person had been standing on the shore dropping a One Dollar Bill into the ocean Every Minute since the birth of Christ, the amount of money would represent the amount the United States spent during one year of the World War. This fact and many others brought out by different members are striking illustrations of the cost of war in money, aside from the cost in lives, etc. The society will hold a special Outdoor meeting next Sunday evening at 6:30 on the lawn between the Campus Cottage and the Girls' Dormitory. Everyone is cordially invited.

EXTRA VALUES COUNT

LOW PRICES on tires is one thing—extra quality at low prices is quite another.

When you can get the Extra Values of Firestone's two patented construction features—Gum-Dipping and Two Extra Gum-Dipped Cord Plies Under the Tread—at no premium in price, you are getting the most in Safety and Mileage your money can buy.

Prices for these extra quality tires are unbelievably low today; in fact, the lowest ever known.

You owe it to the safety of your family and yourself to equip your car with Firestone—the Strongest and Safest Tires you can buy at the price you want to pay.

Drive in today. We will show you sections cut from Firestone Tires—also special brand mail order tires and others—take them in your own hands and check the construction for yourself. You and you alone be the Judge. Then you will understand why Firestone Tires are the outstanding preference★ of car owners.

In these days of thrifty buying—FIRESTONE EXTRA VALUES COUNT!

6 Gum-Dipped CORD PLIES UNDER THE TREAD

GUM-DIPPED CORDS

The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

TWO EXTRA GUM-DIPPED CORD PLIES UNDER THE TREAD

This is a patented construction, and the two extra Gum-Dipped cord plies are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and tests show 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

NON-SKID TREAD

Tough, live rubber specially compounded for long, slow wear. Scientifically designed non-skid gives greater traction and safe, quiet performance.

Every Firestone Tire bears the Firestone name and the quality excels that of special brand mail order tires sold at the same prices.

★ One of the largest magazine publishing houses published a survey which they recently made to find out the tire buying plans of car owners for this year.

In this survey they covered twelve states and interviewed 1,403 of their subscribers. They found that 68% of those interviewed are going to buy tires this summer, and that 27.2% of these car owners are going to buy Firestone Tires—the next highest is only 20.6% which shows the demand for Firestone Tires is 32% more than for any other make.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I walked down town to a brick building in the course of construction. The brick carriers were busy wheeling the brick and mortar to their place, and the brick masons were on the scaffolds laying the brick in the wall. Every man was busy on his job and I could see the walls growing. Just as I thought that it was a harmonius crew and that all were interested in their work a disturbance arose among them. There were unkind words and then a heated argument and last of all the bricks started flying. For some time the working crews ceased to work on the building and fought each other with brick that should have been used on the job. God has built several denominational scaffolds around his church. One man is standing on the Methodist scaffold, another on the Baptist scaffold, still another on the Presbyterian. All are supposed to be working on the church of God. We can actually see the church grow when every man is working and when harmony prevails. How different things are when we have denominational selfishness, denominational arguments and denominational strife. When we start to fighting each other we are consuming energy and material that should go into the construction of the church of God. A professed Christian is engaged in mighty poor work when he goes to throwing brick at other people who are standing on other scaffolds around the church of God. A true Christian is working on the church of God and he should use his energy and his material in building up Zion.

Was walking along the shore of the Gulf of Mexico and just ahead I saw a fish that had been washed up by the restless waves. Having a cane in my hand I touched the fish with the end of it. It started to swelling. I touched it again and it swelled some more. I kept touching it to see how big it would become. A little fish had become a big fish. Then I left off teasing of the fish and its size started down. Soon it was just a minnow flopping about on the sand. The friend with me named that fish a "Balloon Fish." The more we fooled with it the bigger it got. That is the way of strife between neighbors and friends. When there is a little difference between neighbors if they will let it alone, it will stay little and amount to nothing, but, just let them begin teasing that difference and it will swell and keep swelling until it is a large thing. The best way on earth to settle differences is to pass them by and forget that they ever lived. Learn the fine art of letting a difference alone and see how quickly it will dwindle, dwarf and die. The "Cantankerous" person likes to tease the differences that they have with their neighbors and make a big thing out of nothing.

I saw a doctor examining his patient. After probing into his ears he announced, "You have two good ears." The doctor examined his eyes and said, "You have two good eyes." Then he ordered his patient to open his mouth and stick out his tongue. He looked long and anxiously and then lifting himself erect he said, "Your tongue indicates your trouble." The patient had good ears, good eyes and a bad tongue, with two ears and two eyes and one tongue that he might see twice as much as he said, that he might hear twice as much as he spoke. The thing that creates social and moral disorders is that most folks talk more than they see and hear. If we would see and hear more and then talk less, we would be much healthier in our soul life. Of many people it can be truly said, "Your tongue indicates your trouble."

One day this week I was standing by the railroad track and I saw an engine approaching in great speed. I stepped away from the track in fright. There was too much speed for safety. I wondered greatly as to the speed that the engine was making, for it was pulling a grade. When it dashed by like a flash I understood. It was carrying nothing but itself. When you see one of those tongues that is forever "Rattling Away" you had better step back for there is danger. Like the engine, the tongue that runs the fastest, carries the least.

Heard a man talking loud and long on the unemployed situation in American life. He said, "Times will never be normal again until there are jobs for the eight million of the unemployed." At this time the American Legion is doing its best to get jobs for those who have no jobs. In part I agree with the words of the orator and the efforts of the Legion, but that is not the kind of unemployment that is hurting America today. If you want to know what has brought this depression upon us, just study the religious life of our nation. As a people we first became unemployed religiously, and that has thrown us out of jobs in other ways. If the ctizenship of our great country would get back on their jobs in the church and in the ways of clean living, the depression would burst like a bubble. God is allowing this darkness to come upon us that the eighty million of the unemployed in the church of God might come to themselves and return unto loyalty and life.

When I was a boy I wanted a June Bug in April. There were no June bugs in the air, but I saw a lazy Bumble Bee floating around before me. I said to myself, "I will make a June Bug out of you." I caught him and put his tail between two sticks and squeezed out his sting. Then I tied a string to his foot and I played that I had a June Bug in April. I know lots of folks who never have what they want, and all because they are not willing to take a risk. Learn how to squeeze the sting out of things and make what you want.

THE PASSING OF A GREAT SOUL

—o—

A great soul passed from earth to heaven, at Verbena, Ala., on April 19, 1932, when the Grand Master called Rev. C. D. Messer from labor to refreshment. Never in my travels from the mountains of North Carolina to the plains of Texas, or between the Great Lakes and the Gulf, have I known a braver man. Never plumed knight on crimson fields of blood, nor Alexander the Great, Charlemagne, or Napoleon, as they faced shot and shell displayed more moral courage than did our departed brother, as he fought for right against wrong on the grim battlefield of life. But while he was fearless in his discharge of duty, and firm like the Rock of Gibraltar against evil, he was kind, gentle and sympathetic as any mother who ever rocked to sleep her suffering child.

The first time the writer ever heard the Sermon on the Mount, Brother Messer, then a layman and Sunday School Superintendent, read it. Not only did he like to read that matchless piece of literature, but it was his delight to live it.

While this good man was faithful to every trust, his great work was in the ministry of our Lord. He preached Christ and Him Crucified, and thereby was a winner of souls. Though deprived of collegiate advantages, he preached the Gospel with more fervent power than many theologians and doctors of divinity. As the needle is true to the pole, he was true to the Methodist Protestant Church for which he would have given his life. Yet, his great heart was so full of love for God and humanity that denominational prejudice had no place in his great life, realizing, as he did that every re-born soul is a brother or sister in Christ.

It has been our pleasure to be with him much in school, home, and church, but we longed for more of his warm hand grasp, genial smiles, soul-stirring sermons, and Godly conversation.

Dear friend, you have left a devoted wife, affectionate children, and grandchildren, ministerial and hosts of other friends, but by the Grace of God we will meet you on the other Shore, where congregations never break up, and Sabbaths have no end. There while the ages roll we will fellowship with God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, together with the throng that have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

His friend,
J. C. DUNLAP,
Banks, Ala.

They've Never Tasted a Tonic!

THESE are not patent medicine children. Their appetite needs no coaxing. Their tongues are never coated, cheeks never pale. And their bowels move just like clockwork, because they have never been given a habit-forming laxative.

You can have children like this—and be as healthy yourself—if you follow the advice of a famous family physician. Stimulate the vital organs. The strongest of them need help at times. If they don't get it, they grow sluggish. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin is a mild, safe stimulant.

When a youngster doesn't do well at school, it may be the liver that's lazy. Often the bowels hold enough poisonous waste to dull the senses! A spoonful of delicious syrup pepsin once or twice a week will avoid all this. It contains fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin, and does a world of good to any system—young or old. You can always get this fine prescriptional preparation at any drug store. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and protect your family from those bilious days, frequent sick spells and colds. Keep a bottle in the medicine chest instead of cathartics that so often bring on chronic constipation. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin can always be employed to give clogged bowels a thorough cleansing, with none of that painful griping, or burning feeling afterward. It isn't expensive.

THE JERSEY SHOW HELD AT CLANTON LAST WEEK, BEST YET

County Agent Stapp announces that 38 head of purebred Jerseys were shown. Four years ago five head were shown. This is considerable growth.

Mr. C. M. Ling, Dairy Cattle Specialist from Auburn, judged the show. Immediately before the official judging began, the club boys judged three classes of three animals in each class and gave reasons for their placing. They were scored on their placings of the classes and their reasons. Prizes were offered for the three high scoring boys in the amounts of $2.00, $1.00 and 50c for the first, second and third high scores.

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS FROM ANTIOCH

Pletcher, Ala., May 12, 1932.

Editor, Chilton County News:

Will you please allow me a space in your paper to announce Antioch News?

There will be preaching at Antioch M. P. Church, 3 miles east of Pletcher on Thursday night of the 26th of May, by Rev. Bentley of Billingsley, Ala. We extend a cordial invitation to all to come and hear Rev. Bentley, as he has something good for you.

Also we want you good people not to forget our regular services, as follows: Our pastor, Rev. Stewart, preaches every fourth Saturday and Sunday at 11 o'clock A. M.

Sunday school at 10 o'clock A. M. every Sunday, except the 2nd Sunday in each month at 3 o'clock P. M., which is preaching day at Sardis church.

We have a fine bunch of young people in our Christian Endeavor work, which meets every Sunday night at 7 o'clock. Won't you come and join them in this fine work which they are carrying on. We need you and delight to have you with us.

Remember our Choir practice every Thursday night at 7 o'clock, under the management of Rev. Stewart and son. A coridal invitation is extended to all lovers of singing. Again, welcome greetings to all of our services, whosoever will. may come and help carry on this good work.

BILIOUS

"I have used Black-Draught . . . and have not found anything that could take its place. I take Black-Draught for biliousness. When I get bilious, I have a nervous headache and a nervous, trembling feeling that unfits me for my work. After I take a few doses of Black-Draught, I get all right. When I begin to get bilious, I feel tired and run-down, and then the headache and trembling. But Black-Draught relieves all this."—H. O. Hendrix, Homerville, Ga.

SINGING CONVENTION AT NEW HARMONY

The Sacred Harp Singing Convention met at New Harmony church, near Lomax, last Sunday, May 15. The singing was opened about 9:30 by the chairman, W. L. Sanders. Prayer was offered by Mr. Floyd Bailey.

The following directors sang 15 minutes each: A. A. Jackson, F. J. Little, T. J. Miller, Virgil Crocker, Miss Vilena Shirley. Ten minutes intermission was given after which the singers were called back. One song was rendered by the Vice Chairman, M. C. Jackson. Mr. Mr. T. C. Jackson moved that the convention go into a business session which resulted in the re-election of the same officials, W. L. Sanders, Pres: M. C. Jackson, Vice-Pres, and Flora Shirley, Secretary. The following directors sang 15 minutes each: Ellie Shirley, J. R. Scott, Marvin Jackson, T. C. Jackson.

In memorial service Mr. J. H. Willoughby sang one song in memory of the author of the book, Major B. F. White. Mr. T. J. Miller sang one song in memory of Mr. John Chandler, who was recently killed in the tornado. One quartette was rendered by T. C. Jackson, Flora Shirley, W. L. Sanders and M. C. Jackson. Intermission was given in which a bountiful dinner was served.

The singers were called together at 1:00 o'clock. The following singers directed in the afternoon: Marlow Williams, Miss Flora Shirley, Mrs. Ruth Henley, Mrs. Era Culver, Mr. J. H. Willoughby, Mr. T. J. Miller, T. C. Jackson, Ellie Shirley, Marvin Jackson.

We want to thank the singers of Perry County and Mr. Z. T. Jones from West Chilton for their support to our Convention. The closing prayer was conducted by Mr. Z. T. Jones.

FAMILY REUNION OF THE BLACKMON FAMILY

The annual homecoming of the Blackmon family was held on Mothers' Day at the home of Mrs. J. P. Gardner, 24 Jones Street, Montgomery, Ala. All the children of Mrs. L. R. Blackmon who could, went to be with their mother. A good time and a good dinner was enjoyed by all. The large table was simply stacked with cakes, pies, sandwiches, hams, breads and many other delicious things to eat. Everyone enjoyed it.

The children present were Mr. L. C. Blackmon of Tallassee, Mr. L. L. Blackmon of Clanton, Mrs. B. B. Scott, of Verbena, Mrs. J. B. Gardner of Verbena, and Mrs. J. P. Gardner of Montgomery.

The grandchildren were Ben Scott, of Verbena, Mrs. T. C. Mims of Verbena, Mrs. Judson Messer of Verbena, Mr. Roland Blackmon of Drifton, Fla., and the Misses Corinne and Margaret Gardner of Montgomery.

The only great-grandchildren were little Thomas C. Mims, Jr., and little Miss Hazel Messer.

There were several others present who helped to make it an even more enjoyable day, one of whom was the mother's sister, Mrs. J. S. Colley, of Titus.

The mother received presents from all the children, especially a very fine bunch of home grown roses from Mrs. J. B. Gardner of Verbena.

Everyone enjoyed the day immensely.

HAPPY HOUR SHAKESPEARE CLUB MET WITH MISS ELLIS

The Happy Hour Shakespeare Club met at the home of Miss Mary Ellis, Thursday, May 12, 1932. We studied "The Tempest." When we got there we answered roll call with a quotation from the story.

The next day we met again, and selected a name for the club. The name was "The Happy Hour Shakespeare Club." This day we studied, "As You Like It."

Miss Ellis chooses a new chairman each time to tell part of the story, and to call on others to take it up. Every person takes part in telling these stories. We play games after each lesson. We have decided to meet on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at three o'clock.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

Did you know that there are about 475 dogs within the police jurisdiction of Clanton, and that it takes not less than two dollars a month on an average to keep one dog alive? That means an expense in Clanton of $950.00 per month for dogs. That is almost double what the town is paying for the pastors who serve you in holy things. Wonder what God thinks of this? It sounds kinder like "Dogish" religion when a family can keep a dog and then do nothing for the church. Lots of folks are keeping a cur in the home at an annual expense of twenty dollars a year and yet they do not pay five dollars to the church of which they are a member. Jesus said one time something like this: "Where your heart is there you will put your treasures."

If you will come to the Methodist church we will try to teach you how to put first things first. The pastor is a great lover of dogs himself, but he has never yet seen the dog that he would allow to eat the money that should go into God's service. Have your dog if you want him, but be sure that you pay as much to the church as your dog costs you.

Mullins-Scarborough Wedding Solemnized

The marriage of Miss Madge Scarborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Scarborough of Blue Springs, Ala., to Mr. Oliver Reid Mullins of Clanton, Ala., was an outstanding and beautiful event of Thursday evening, May 12, taking place in their handsome new home in Clanton. The entire house was attractively decorated in roses, sweet peas and delphiniums—the predominating colors being pink and ivory.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the Methodist Church of Clanton, in front of an improvised altar of ferns, Southern Smilax and tall pink tapers. On each side of the altar stood tall baskets with a profusion of Mountain Laurel.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Hilda Hart, niece of the groom, sang "At Dawning" and "Because". At the strains of Lohrengrin's Wedding March little Hayden Lanier, a lovely little figure in pink, acting as flower girl, marched in with little Eric Mullins Hart in white, as ring bearer, carrying the ring in the bud of a beautiful white rose. They met the pastor at the altar and awaited the bride and groom who came together to the altar.

During the impressive ring ceremony, Cayce Scarborough, brother of the bride, played softly "I Love You Truly" on the violin, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. C. E. Stapp who acted as piano accompanist for all the nuptial music.

The bride was very quaint and lovely in an ivory French net creation trimmed with brown lace. Her bouquet of Talisman roses, sweet peas and lilies of the valley was showered with lilies of the valley and sweet peas.

The Clanton Pilot Club of which the bride is a member, acted as hostess. Miss Bess Thomas presided over the Bride's Book and other members of the club greeted the guests. Only a few immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom with the twenty-two members of the Pilot Club attended the wedding.

The bride is well known and beloved for her educational, religious and civic activities in Clanton. She has been in educational work in Chilton County for the past four years where she has been Supervisor of Elementary Education. She is a graduate of the Troy State Teachers College and Alabama College at Montevallo.

Mr. Mullins is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Mullins and is a progressive planter of Chilton County. He is a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullins will make their home in Clanton.

Geo. W. Edwards Thanks Democrats

In a statement given the News, George W. Edwards, candidate for the office of member of the Board of Education of Chilton County, on the Democratic ticket, exprressed his desire to thank those who supported him in the Democratic Primary on May 3rd. Mr. Edwards had the following to say:

"It was pleasing to me to see that I had the support of the Democrats in this election. Of course I'm nominated and will run in the general election next November. I want every voter who cast a ballot for me in the primary to know that I appreciate it and wish I could thank you personally.

"The political conditions in Chilton County looks very bright for the Democrats, and I hope that they will all rally to the cause and put the ticket over this time. It's the best chance we've had in a long time. If I am elected, the people can certainly depend on the very best service I can render in that office. Although I am a Democrat, that does not mean I will have a deaf ear to the Republicans. I will try to give the people a good piece of work well done. Your vote in the general election will be appreciated."

PLAN PUBLICITY OF SCHOOLS TO SHOW PROGRESS

Plans Are To Acquaint Co. With Activities Of Work Here

Plans are being formulated by which the County Board of Education will, if completed, give more publicity in this county of the workings in the educational system, according to an announcement made this week.

It is the desire of the board, according to B. Lawrence, superintendent of education, to tell the general public of Chilton County more about their schools, how they are conducted and the progress being made.

To this end they are working, and at a meeting of a few selected citizens last Saturday, a committee was selected to complete definite organization and arrangement of this idea. This committee is composed of Mrs. Reid Mullins, Prof. W. C. DuBose of Verbena, Earle Thomas of Isabella, Miss Leacy Newell of Jemison, Prof. J. A. Peterson of Jemison and W. L. Sanders a member of the county school board.

Another meeting is to be held in the very near future, it was stated, and it is hoped that the plans will start taking shape at that time.

BALL PLAYERS JUNIOR LEAGUE FORMED HERE

Local Legion Post Sponsors Fine Boys Ball League In This County

A baseball league for boys in Chilton County is now being organized and sponsored by the Chilton County Post of the American Legion. The following communication from Percy M. Pitts of Clanton tells in detail of the organizing of this league:

"The American Legion is sponsoring a Junior baseball league which is nation wide. I have been appointed Loop Chairman in the Loop which comprises the following towns and is known as the Capital Loop: Montgomery, Prattville, Wetumpka, Tallassee, Clanton, Hayneville and Fort Deposit and Rockford. I have today had a meeting in my office with a bunch of boys, designated J. O. Ray, Jr., of this city as baseball coach of the Chilton County Post team and the boys also elected Bill Simpson as assistant coach. The Chilton County Post of the American Legion covers the entire county and all boys in the county who will not be 17 years of age on or before June 30, 1932, are eligible candidates for this team. This team will have to be selected from all those who report to the coach, J. O. Ray, Jr., on or before June 30, 1932, as on that date the roster of the varsity Junior League team will have to be sent in to headquarters and all have to be signed up. It is likely that we can manage to get two or three teams out of this county and the more young men report to the coach for a trial the more

ANOTHER INTERESTING STORM FREAK

Another interesting thing done by the recent storms in the county is told by the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton. This bank received a communication from a bank in Calhoun County, that a time certificate, made out to Joe Littleton had been found 15 miles east of Anniston.

The certificate was sent to the Peoples Savings Bank, who had issued it. It apparently had not been any worse off for its long trip thru the air, as it is apparent that the paper had been taken from Mr. Littleton's home in the twister that wrecked the house and caused the death of Mr. Littleton.

YOUTH IS SHOT AT RELATIVE'S HOME MONDAY

Death Was Instant To 13 Year Old Boy When Gun Discharges

Tragedy stalked behind two youths Monday afternoon as they returned to the home of one after hunting rabbits. near Jemison. Robert Coe, age 13, was the victim of an accidentally discharged shotgun, according to the coroner's verdict.

The report given a News representative who visited the scene, stated that young Coe, with a playmate, Arthur Frederick, had gone into the Frederick home after hunting rabbits near the home with a small calibre rifle. Coe is said to have attempted to place the rifle against a door casing, where a double-barreled shotgun stood.

The shotgun, it was stated, undoubtedly was jarred and fell, discharging one barrel, the charge entering Coe's body in the neck, tearing upward and across his mouth and jaw. Death was believed instant.

Coroner J. Mell Martin of Clanton was immediately called and made an investigation. Young Coe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Coe, of near Jemison had been staying with the Fredericks, who are relatives and had been a life-long playmate of the Frederick youth, who was in the room with Coe when the accident happened, it was stated. Frederick is the son of Bert Frederick.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon. Burial took place at Ashby.

Smallest Whiskey Still Ever Captured In This County Believed Brought In Last Saturday

What is believed to be the smallest whiskey still ever corraled, captured or brought in, by sheriff's forces, was brought in to Clanton last Saturday, according to the report from the Sheriff's office Monday.

This still, it was stated, consisted of an ordinary copper kettle, capacity of about 6 quarts, with a worm made from a Model T Ford gas line, and an ordinary gallon syrup bucket for a condenser, the whole outfit not weighing over three pounds.

It was not in operation, when the officers surrounded it, as it calmly reposed between two roots of a tree, but had been recently. It was located in the northern part of the county. Deputy Sheriff Norris estimated that the outfit had a capacity of manufacturing about a pint of whiskey at each run.

Arrests reported by the sheriff's office during the past week were three for violating the prohibition law, and two for using abusive language.

Methodist Missionary Society Will Present Pageant Of Negro Spirituals Here Friday

A religious and musical pageant of negro spirituals is to be presented at the high school auditorium in Clanton on Friday night of this week, May 27, at eight o'clock by the Clanton Methodist Missionary Society.

The title of this entertainment is "Heaven Bound." It is presented by The Tuggle Institute and is something new for entertainment seekers of Chilton County.

The chorus of negro singers, taking the greater part in this presentation, has received untold publicity over the state for the large crowds that have witnessed this same pageant. "Heaven Bound" has been presented in larger cities, and one report states that with only a booking for one appearance the pageant was forced to show for a week in the same town.

The fact that it is composed mostly of negro spiritual singing will draw crowds, and those planning on witnessing its presentation in Clanton are advised to get to the school building as early as possible in order to get seats.

Clanton is fortunate in securing "Heaven Bound" which was done thru the efforts of the Methodist Missionary Society. A small charge will be made for admission.

Maplesville High Is Accredited School

Announcement of interest to residents of the western side of Chilton County was made this week by Prof. J. E. Daniel, principal of the Maplesville High School, Maplesville, Ala.

Prof. Daniel announced that this school is now a full accredited high school, having met with all state requirements of the up-to-date high school, for the junior and senior departments.

SPEAKING AT COURTHOUSE ON BEHALF OF EDUCATION

Dr. A. F. Harman Scheduled To Be One of Speakers Next Saturday

As a part of a state-wide schedule of speakings, Clanton will be visited on next Saturday by Dr. A. F. Harman, State Superintendent of Education and J. A. Keller, principal of the Covington County High School and president of the Alabama Educational Association.

These well known men in the educational system of the state are to speak at the courthouse in Clanton Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, according to an announcement from the office of the local superintendent.

The purpose of this speaking, it was stated, is to acquaint the people of the county with the facts regarding the present school situation. The public is cordially invited and urged to attend this speaking.

Dr. Harman and Mr. Keller are coming to Clanton upon an invitation from the County Boad of Education, the announcement states. These speeches are going on over the entire state at places where the county board extends an invitation.

Refreshments were served to each visitor. The delicious meats were served through the courtesy of Swift & Co., who had as their Representative, Mr. Tinsley. The Sunshine Biscuit Co., had as its representative, Mr. Ashurst, and Mr. Rice represented the Hormel Company.

Culver & Jones. deriving its firm name from M. C. Culver and W. W. (Bud) Jones, are to be congratulated.

Kiwanians Are Told Of Importance Of Backing Home Town Hospital By Prominent Surgeon

Another treat and a very instructive and interesting address was given members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club at their regular weekly luncheon last Thursday, when Dr. F. G. DuBose, of Maplesville, formerly of Selma, and one of the most prominent physicians and surgeons of the state, spoke to the club.

The club had as another guest, Dr. V. J. Gragg, prominent physician and surgeon of Clanton, and head of the Central Alabama Hospital which has recently been reopened. The club's program was "Progress of Hospitals." Dr. Gragg read a very interesting letter of information concerning surgery, dating back in the years of the Egyptians.

Dr. DuBose, in a clear cut, well understood manner, impressed on the Kiwanians the importance of backing the home town hospital, and the value of such an institution to a community. He told in illustrated personal experiences of the value of doctors in a community cooperating to bring about a more economical and better service to the people.

The Kiwanis Club feels complimented by the acceptance of the invitation to speak to them, by Dr. DuBose, who has recently moved to Maplesville where he will make his home.

WANT TO SELL OR BUY SOMETHING?

If you have something you wish to sell, or if you have something you wish to buy, but don't know where to get it, at the bargain prices you want to pay, then you should take under consideration the opportunities offered through Want Ads, or Classified Ads in the News.

A small "Wanted To Buy" or "For Sale" ad usually gets the results. The cost is very small. Each week you will find some of these ads in the News. Someone has some article of furniture they wish to dispose of, or maybe there is someone wanting to buy an article of furniture, or other articles.

COMEDIANS IN PICTURE COMING TO WADESONIAN

Wheeler And Woolsey To Be Shown Here; Laughs Are Plentiful

That wisecracking, irrepressible pair of gloom chasers, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, poke the merry finger of satire at Reno and the wholesale divorce industry in their newest starring comedy at the Wadesonian Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, June 1 and 2.

The film is RKO-Radio Pictures "Peach O' Reno" which rolls along with the gayest and merriest abandon and builds up to a crescendo of funny situations.

Bert, Bob — Lawyers

Some idea of the splendid material at the disposal of the two comedians is seen in the fact that they are cast as divorce lawyers in this Mecca of liberated womanhood. As is usual the comics are pursued by difficulties, some of them in the shapes of women while the others are ex-husbands. Despite this confusion the harried young lawyers nonchalantly continue their business of obtaining sure fire divorces at the cut rate of $50 per person and no questions asked.

The comedians make most of their original lines and build their humorous plot through an amazing series of tongue-in-the-cheek situations and slapstick moments, building to a hilarious finish when the divorce courtroom suddenly loses its dignity and becomes an inspired Tin Pan Alley of jazz.

LOCAL POST OF LEGION HERE IS FINISHING WORK

Work Has Been Noticeably Strong From Relief In Storm Area

Each day that passes now, sees some activity of members of the Chilton County Post of The American Legion, in finishing up their part in the relief work in this county in the storm sections.

The work of the local post has been noticeably strong and effective wherever they undertook to give any assistance possible. The past several weeks have been taken up by the collecting of army tents, cots and blankets from over the storm sections

The Legion was very instrumental in getting these tents to this section, and in the distributing of the tents, and other supplies. According to J. F. Gore. Legionnaire who has been in charge of relief warehouses in Clanton, there are still about forty tents in the storm sections that are now being used by families.

The local post has been receiving commendations on the efficient and well organized manner in which they conducted their responsible end of the relief work here.

Supplies are still being issued to stricken families from the warehouses, where food and clothing supplies have been stationed for sometime.

HOOVER PLAYS POLITICS WHILE NATION WANTS

McDuffie, Economy Chairman, Sees Political Angles In Latest Messages

Washington, May 24.—Chairman McDuffie of the House Economy Committee, comments as follows on the President's messages criticizing Congress, and deplores partizanship in the depression crisis:

"The recent message of the President, a candidate for re-election, shows that Mr. Hoover has yielded to the common temptation to play politics at the time when NO one, be he Democrat or Republican, should seek personal political advantage.

"If for the sake of argument, it is granted the message he sent last week to Congress contains pertinent and wise suggestions, the impartial observer and many of the President's own followers cannot understand why such a message was not sent to Congress with his budget estimates in December, or at least when a non-partizan program to save $200,000,000 was presented to the House. Such a message then might have been of great assistance but the President's hindsight seems to have been better than his foresight. However, if he sent it to Congress for the sole purpose of seeking to play to the gallery at the sacrifice of his party followers in Congress, he has certainly succeeded.

"It also happens that the President's statement came quickly after the news was flashed from his home state of California that more Democrats registered and voted in the primary elections there than ever before in history. Could it be that the President's message was

J. H. Jackson Sees Hope Of Nation In Pushing Democratic Ticket Over The Top In November

Following is a letter from J. H. Jackson, Democratic candidate for office of Commissioner from the Fourth District:

Editor Chilton County News:

Dear Sir:

Will you give me a space in your paper to say a few words in regard to my candidacy for Commissioner from the Fourth District of Chilton County.

First I want to thank all who gave me their support in the primary of May 3rd. Though I had no opponent and will not know my opponent until after June 14th. After that date, Mr. Duke or Mr. DeVaughn will be my opponent for this office, and my race will be conducted by fairness, truth and honesty.

I feel like the Democrats of Chilton County will elect their candidates in the November election, since I have heard many Republicans say they have had enough of Republicanism and Hoover Prosperity, which has reached so far over our left shoulder that it has caused millions of people to lose their homes and their jobs, tramping idle over the country suffering from want of clothing and food.

The only way to fight this Hoover Prosperity, is to get behind the Democratic ticket from constable to President and put them over the top.

I am looking to see enough Republicans to step off the old sinking Republican ship and get on the Democratic ship and ride to the shore of victory in next November.

Yours to win,

J. H. JACKSON.

Antioch News

(Received too late for last week)

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the management of our superintendent, Brother J. A. Crane. We have an enrollment of 95. Our attendance is very good, although we hope to have better attendance each Sunday. We meet every Sunday morning at ten o'clock for Sunday school, except on the second Sunday we meet in the afternoon as it is regular preaching day at Sardis.

And we cordially invite you to come to Sunday school and bring someone with you.

Our C. E. is going on very nicely, under the direction of our president, Miss Beryl Crane. Although this work is new to us, we are not as well up on the work as the other churches are, we have very good attendance. Though we hope to improve on our work and also have better attendance.

The Antioch and Sardis singing society met at Antioch Sunday afternoon with a large crowd. and enjoyed a very good program under the management of our chairman, Mr. Harvey Davis. The singing was opened with a prayer by Mr. Sam Henley. The directors for the afternoon were as follows: Mr. Sam Henley, Mr. H. L. Ratliff, Miss Lola Smith, Miss Willie Crane, Miss Mary Owen, Mrs. Charlie Stroud and Mrs. Hudson Crane. One special song was sung by Miss Lola Smith, Miss Beryl Crane, Mr. Harvie Davis and Mr. H. L. Ratliff. The organists were Mr. H. L. Ratliff and Mr. George Anderson. We had several visitors from other churches with us and we cordially invite them to come back and be with us every third Sunday afternoon. We sing at Sardis every first Sunday afternoon. We invite all lovers of music and singing to come and be with us. Remember, next Saturday and Sunday is our regular preaching day. We hope to have a large crowd to attend the services.

We meet every Thursday night at Antioch for choir practice, under the management of our pastor, Bro. Stewart.

Don't give the weevils a chance

ALL any weevil asks is a chance—one chance. Once he gets busy with a square, the boll is gone. Reports indicate enough weevils this year to ruin the crop, if they get a chance.

Whether they get it or not, depends pretty much on you.

Weevils can't hurt a crop much, once the bolls are set. Because of the heavy infestation this year, set your crop as early as you can.

Nothing takes the place of a Chilean Nitrate side-dressing for making an early crop. There is no way a little money could be better invested now than for 100 pounds (200 pounds would be better) of Chilean Nitrate to side-dress each acre of your cotton.

Don't fail to specify Chilean Nitrate when you see your dealer. That is just as important as side-dressing itself.

Get busy! The weevils will be plenty busy soon.

Home Economics Girls Write Letter To Their Supervisor

Miss Bennye Mae Ware, Tuskegee Institute, Ala. My Dear Miss Ware:

We, the members of the tenth grade, spent our fourth and last year in Home Economics this term. The years in vocational classes have imparted to us many useful things that will function wonderfully in directing our steps in the years to come.

We have learned to make many things that help us throughout life and have put them into practice. We have learned how to plan and beautify our homes and how to make many things that will be used in the homes, such as baskets, rugs, pictures, vases and many other attractive things.

We shall always remember our Home Economics teachers and all who were of help to us, and we shall continue with our studies in some Vocational school after finishing high school here.

Very truly yours,

Signed:—Maude Lee Knight, Essie Dickerson, Ressia Williams, Ennis Zinnerman, Mable Sistrunk, Ester Bell Davis.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

And it came to pass that a pastor called to see a certain lady. In his visit he let the good woman know that she was being missed in the services of the Sanctuary. She replied in a tone of seeming regret, "Pastor, I hate to miss those good services, but of late I have been so awfully busy I have not had the time to attend church and Sunday school." The good pastor knew that the member of his church never missed a meeting of the Pilot's Club. He also knew that this woman's car had been parked for hours in front of a home wherein was being conducted a Bridge club. In the travels of this same pastor he dropped into a business office and kindly reminded a member that he was being greatly missed in the services of his church. He was handed this reply, "I know and I mean to come, but of late I have been so awfully busy, I could not get there." The good pastor knew that the member never missed a Kiwanis club, and that he had spent hours on the Golf course. Then the pastor groaned in his soul saying to himself, "Oh how will my people be able to explain themselves before the bar of God."

Many years ago we had a cherished music box in our home. It was before the days of the Victrola. We would wind up the spring in this box and it would turn a cylinder on which there were several selections of choice music. It would sound almost like heavenly music in the night hours. Something went wrong and the music stopped. For days the house seemed lonely because there was not the familiar sound of those mellow tones. One day I secured a screw driver and ventured to go into the box. After careful inspection I found that there was nothing wrong on the inside but a loose screw. I tightened it and the music was as sweet as ever. I am wondering if some of you are not suffering from a loose screw. You have a loose screw on the question of church attendance, on the question of habits, on the question of companionship, on the question of ideals. The sweet music of your life has hushed. The purpose of these Moral Echoes is to just tighten a screw in your life that you may send out music to the world. Tighten up all of your loose screws and heavenly music will echo from your soul.

In my travels to and fro through the earth I came upon a man who had an unusual occupation. After viewing him for a moment I said to him, "Friend will you name your occupation " "Certainly, Sir," replied the man. "My business is to handle mud." This man was standing in the mud up to his knees, he had mud in his hair. mud on his face, mud on his clothes and mud in his hands. He carried mud, he delivered mud and he threw mud. He was certainly in the mud business. Since that day I have seen many men and women who could be classified as being, "In the mud business." They walk the streets to carry mud, they sit in parlors to display their mud product, they get up before the public to throw mud. They have mud on their hands, on their character and they live in mud up to their knees. May the God of heaven have mercy on the side walk, street corner and whispering mud dealers.

The child was a bit unruly as well as a sick child. The doctor came and filled a prescription. The exact number of drops were placed in a bit of sugar. Then the task of getting the medicine into the stomach of the child started. The mother advanced holding the spoon in her hand and coaxing, "Now, darling, open your mouth and take your medicine." A loud scream rent the air and the child started to slashing with its hands, kicking with its feet, and squirming with all of its strength. She had eaten green plums and needed medicine, but she was not willing to take her medicine. When people break the law, when they act dishonestly, they have a deranged attitude toward society, but they kick and squirm, fight and claw, as law and justice advance toward them with the medicine they should take. If a man is mean enough to eat green plums—break the law—why should he not be man enough to stand up and take his medicine like a man? When you have the colic, you had better thank God that there are folks in the world who have interest enough in you to try and relieve your pain.

Four of us were engaged in a heated game of Dominoes. It was a contest royal. At last there was a break in Domino etiquette, and one of our party said to another, "I do not see how you could let your conscience allow you to do that." In good humor and as a joke came this reply, "When I play a game of any kind. I always take out my conscience and put it under the table." It occurred to me that this good lady had described the action of many people, not only in games. but in all ways and walks of life. When it comes to observing the Sabbath, when it comes to attending church, when it comes o conducting business, when it comes to social attitudes, when it comes to pure living—we are inclined to put our conscience under the table. Your conscience is the best companion that you can have, and it should never be taken from its Divine position in the heart. It should stand in the very center of our being and cry out its message of warning. We should listen to it like listening to the voice of God.

The three Circles of the Missionary Society in the Methodist church had a joint meting Monday afternoon in the Primary department of the church. The study for the afternoon was What prohibition has done for disadvantaged communities. Dr. Haskew was invited to address the ladies of the circles and spoke in a most interesting manner, showing the contrast that is now seen in the rural and small town communities, as compared to what was seen under the reign of the open saloon. The Grog shop took the bread out of their mouths, the clothes off of their backs and the books out of their hands. He also stated that in Chicago that no man was permitted to go out on a public dance floor without first being examined to see if he carried a hip flask and he recommended this examination for all dance halls in Alabama.

After the study hour was concluded each circle retired to a separate room to look after its own business interests. They were guests of Mrs. C. R. Mullins and Mrs. M. A. Gore.

Unstuffing the Stuffed Shirts

It seems to us that one of the things which the world has learned out of the economic depression is that nobody was quite as smart as a lot of people were reputed to be. We used to hear so much about the giants of finance and the captains of industry that we got an idea that anybody who could make so much money must be a lot wiser and smarter than the average man. It turns out that some of them were only a little luckier than the average man, and some of them were just plain swindlers. And now that we are hearing about how great banking houses were fooled by financiers with international reputations, we have about come to the conclusion that the ordinary man who works hard at his own business, and doesn't buy anything on somebody else'es sayso without knowing all about it himself, is a great deal smarter than the people who thought they could get rich quick by taking the advice of the so-called big men of affairs.

We can think of nothing more disillusioning than the downfall of Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish "match king" who committed suicide in Paris some weeks ago. Even up to the moment of his death Kreuger was regarded as one of the world's ablest financiers and greatest business men. He could walk into any bank anywhere in the world and borrow any amount of money he asked for without having to put up any security. He had only to tell them that he owned so many millions of bonds of this, or that or the other government, or that some nation had given him the exclusive concession to manufacture and sell matches, and they forked the money right over. The head of one of Boston's biggest banking concerns admitted, at a public hearing the other day, that they lent millions to Kreuger on his unsupported word. But it turns out that the government bonds which he held were forgeries, manufactured by clever engravers on his orders; that the match concessions which he claimed to have obtained by secret treaties never existed, that, in short, the whole vast reputation which he had built up was founded upon fraud. He will go down into history as the world's greatest swindler.

We don't think people are going to be so eager to put their money into speculative securities on the strength of big reputations as they were a few years ago. Not for a long time at least, or until men who are children today grow up and begin to think that they are smarter than their fathers were.

The Whitest of White Elephants

The Kansas law which prohibits the utilities of that state from selling electric and gas appliances, has proven itself the whitest of white elephants. Many who were for the law in the beginning, are trying to get it repealed.

The reasons for this change of front are plain. The purpose of the law was to help the small dealer. It seemed apparent that if Kansas people could no longer buy from the local utility, they would patronize the local independent dealer.

That hasn't happened. Local dealers are selling no more than they ever did. The business has gone, instead, to chain stores and mail order houses in the larger cities.

Newspapers have lost a tremendous volume of advertising—a loss that falls principally on the small paper.

Purchasers of appliances can no longer pay for them on the installment plan, along with the electric or gas bill, as they did when the utilities made the sale, and there is usually no service headquarters in the town, interested in the quality and safety of the devices sold as was the electric company.

Many men who once worked in the utilities' sales and service departments, have been thrown out of work.

This is what has happened in Kansas, according to published reports. The same thing has happened in Oklahoma where a similar law is in effect. The same thing will happen in other states that pass this boomerang law unless they profit by the experience of others.

An Easy Decision

The principal cause of the farmer's troubles is surpluses.

It is obvious that in any line of business, production beyond the point of maximum consumption inevitably leads to profitless prices. There is but one way to make a profit—to sell part of what one has for an amount equaling the total production cost. When the balance is sold, the profit is made. Farmers, in many instances, have been selling part of what they have for far less than it cost to produce it, and have been unable to find any market at all for the balance.

A way out is through organization and mass action. In other words, through the farm cooperative. It is said that the citrus growers of California are in the best position of any farmers—simply because they are 90 per cent organized. Other cooperatives have greatly improved the conditions of their members, and still better results will be obtained as the number of organized farmers grows.

Intelligent cooperation means eventual farm prosperity. Refusal to cooperate can mean ruin for millions of farmers.

Here I go and try to elucidate upon what I know—or don't know—about politics and some fellow what seems to like to fuss about something all the time, takes exception to something I said. I remember once saying that a columnist on a newspaper has a tendency to be very critical in order to have something to write about. When I wrote that, I had in mind myself, but now I see that others are inclined that way. Oh well, so the world wags.

'Sfunny how some folks just know they are right about things. Did you ever notice that? I since learned that one is seldom right about anything. It's good to be able to express one's opinion, but is also good to leave yourself subject to change, in these days of uncertainty.

In all the roses and bouquets being thrown in the work of relief in this county following the storms, it seems to me that someone has forgotten that the American Legion has been playing a big and guiding hand in this work. I've had occasion to watch the silent but effective work of the local post and herewith go down in history in saying that the Chilton County Post of the American Legion has been of excellent aid, valuable assistance and utmost succor in helping in this relief work. That's that, if you know what I mean.

One of the niftiest pieces of work on a whiskey still was brought in by the Sheriff's force last Saturday. I notice a story in this week's paper about it. What'll they do next, is the question. From the size of this still, the operator could stick it in his pocket and run, if he was raided by officers. However, there was no one at the still when it was raided.

Had a person to ask me the other day why there was so much paper and trash collected around the courthouse. It really didn't look so good, that's true. I'm not criticizing any officials, just calling their attention to this matter.

My hat is off to J. D. Evans because he certainly used some good judgment when he selected his blushing bride. And she is to be congratulated also. Folks in Clanton have been anxious to see the recent Mrs. Evans.

I notice last week that the ed was editorializing on advertising. Now that is a good subject for most anyone to write about. I could name several merchants in Clanton who could certainly use some advertising to a great advantage. Just let me point something out to you. Did you ever notice that the two largest dry goods stores in Clanton do the most advertising? And did you ever notice that these two stores get the most of the trade in their line in Clanton?

There's some good figures for you to work out. Nope, you're wrong, advertising is not expensive when done the right way. It more than pays for itself in bringing new business and increasing old business.

I've seen newspaper men talk and talk and talk and almost plead with a business man, trying to get him to do some advertising, and many times the newspaper man is turned down.

I wonder if that business man ever thought that the newspaper advertising man was simply offering him an opportunity to increase his business at a meager cost. In other words, it should be the business man who asked for the advertising. But of course the starving newspaper man needs the business, but at the same time offers the business man something good, and he don't know it.

Was in the office of C. G. N. the other day and saw that they had increased their force, with the addition of Dan Smith, who will be known for awhile, as the printer's devil. The first thing Dan had to do was to go out and borrow a paper stretcher. Nope, he couldn't find one in town.

* * *

Maurice Lande was feeling mighty good the first part of the week. No doubt it was because business was good in his store. Well, that brings me right back to the advertising subject again. Mr. Lande knows the value of advertising to his business and uses it liberally, although wisely.

Living Beyond Our Means

The United States is afflicted with more than 500,000 tax-spending bodies. A single county in Illinois has exactly 419 governmental taxing organizations. Many other counties, in many states, show a similar condition.

It is no wonder that the American taxpayer is being driven to distraction. At a time when incomes have fallen and whtn many millions of men are unemployed, the politicians demand more and more revenue. Increasing taxation menaces America's future.

THE MACHINE AGE SPOILS A PROPHECY

By H. L. RUSSELL

Advisory Council, Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association.

A NOTED British scientist forecast thirty years ago that by 1931 all available wheat land in the world would be under cultivation, and if the yields per acre could not be increased beyond that which then prevailed there would be a world shortage. The average yield then was 12.7 bushels per acre. During the past seven years, the world over, it has been 14.1. On the 320,000,000 acres in cultivation this increase would amount to almost a half billion bushels more production than the world standards of thirty years ago. In place of dire distress due to shortage, we have had dire distress due to surplus.

H. L. RUSSELL

Wheat farmers have shown no great inclination to curtail materially their output; perhaps a 10% decline compared with 70% reduction in steel. This unwillingness, or perhaps inability, to adjust production to current needs makes the problem all the harder to solve.

Not only are we now growing more wheat per unit of land, but acreage has been very greatly extended. In twenty years Canada has increased acreage 250%, Australia almost as much. Another significant fact is the materially lessened use of wheat. A much more diversified diet has developed. More vegetables and fruits are used than formerly. The reduction of 1.2 bushels consumed per person per annum since the last generation necessitates nearly 150,000,000 bushels less wheat than was formerly required.

Machines Increase Supply

The factor that has exerted the most potent influence in this rising world flood of grain has been the rapid development of the machine. The old days of the cradle required from thirty to forty hours of hand labor to harvest an acre of grain. Then came the binder, which reduced the process to four or five hours per acre. Now the combine does the work in forty-five minutes per acre.

Where it used to cost ten cents a bushel merely to thresh the grain, the modern combine cuts and threshes at a cost ranging from 3 to 5 cents a bushel. With this reduced cost of production, the possibility of acreage expansion is tremendous. Lands heretofore regarded as worthless except for grazing have recently come into competition with the older wheat belts.

The Russian Effort

Within the past two or three years another disturbing element has come into the picture. Soviet Russia is attempting a comeback fraught with possibility that cannot yet be fully evaluated. Russia is eagerly utilizing the very latest of scientific knowledge to enlarge her agricultural possibilities. With feverish anxiety she is literally pouring millions into the expansion of her university research institutes, experimental stations and breeding farms. Her scientists are combing the earth for new crops and new methods. No country in Europe is manifesting more interest and activity in laying hold of the best science, wherever it may be found.

It is of more than passing interest that the wheat yields reported on the huge trust farm known as the "Giant" ran last year as much as 18 bushels to the acre. On this single farm the crop harvested is reported to have been 3,865,000 bushels. A single farm of 427,000 acres under government control and mechanized as fast as human energy can be applied is a new factor in the world's picture.

There can be but little doubt that the Russian situation may yet assume quite a different attitude from what obtained even in pre-war days.

Bankers Hold Farm Conference

A "feeders' conference" was held in a state bank at Presho, South Dakota, attended by fifty farmers. The conference stressed the feeding of low price wheat and barley, and marketing it through livestock. Later, booklets on the feeding of wheat were distributed among the farmers, and a feeders column was carried in the local paper each week.

"We have had more success with the conference and with the feeders column in the local paper, than with any other undertaking we have tried," the bankers said. "As a result there is about three times as much livestock being fed out in our territory than ever before. We plan to hold other similar conferences the coming year."

The benefits of civilization exist because of the capital accumulated by those who have gone before. Through accumulation of capital our great railroads have been constructed, our public utilities have been built and our mills, office buildings and homes have arisen.

WHY MORE FARM LAND?

It should be evident to any student of the agricultural situation that there is too much land under cultivation in this country already. The Secretary of Agriculture himself says that "we need to reduce our present cultivated acreage by 30 or 40 million acres."

In spite of this situation, which has existed for several years, we see the government spending hundreds of millions on Boulder Dam, which is intended to bring under cultivation a vast new area of farm land through irrigation. Numerous other irrigation projects have been built by the government for the same purpose, and more are in prospect.

There is now before Congress a proposal to spend some 400 million dollars on the Columbia Basin irrigation scheme whereby about a million and a quarter acres more would be made available for farm purposes.

While these things are going on, the Farm Board is spending half a billion dollars in a futile effort to handle the surplus farm crops already on hand. And all the taxpayers, including the farmers, must dig in their pockets to pay the bill.

WORK FOR 30,000 MEN

A 17,000-ton challenge to the depression will be launched on June 11, announces D. Stewart Iglehart, president of the Grace Line. For on that day the Santa Paula, $4,50,000 sister ship of the recently launched Santa Rosa, will glide down the ways of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company at Kearney, N. J.

Mrs. Edward T. Ford of San Francisco, wife of the president of the Panama Mail Service of the Grace Line, will christen the new ship, which is the second of four in the $20,000,000 building program which has kept 30,000 men at work since February, 1931. There is not a state in the union that has not contributed labor and materials to these new vessels, acording to the shipbuilding company.

The four new ships will make their maiden voyages next fall and winter on the only New York-California service which includes seven Central and South American ports. The vessels have been designed for comfort while crusing in tropical waters, novel features including dining salons on upper decks, with roofs that may be rolled back when desired.

Besides giving many men much needed employment in building, this new fleet will facilitate and doubtless greatly increase tourist travel and commerce between the United States and countries to the southward.

STAMPS 85 YEARS OLD

It is perhaps not generally known that United States postage stamps have been in use only 85 years, but such is the case. The first issue of United States stamps consisted of only two denomination, the 5-cent used on half-ounce letters going 300 miles or less, and the 10-cent for letters going a distance exceeding 300 miles.

The 5-cent stamp bore the portrait of Benjamin Franklin, our first postmaster; the 10-cent stamp bore the portrait of Washington, and were first issued in 1837, although a few postmasters had issued some stamps at their own expense for about two years previously. The very first adhesive postage stamps to be issued by any government were introduced in England in 1840, the example being quickly followed by other nations.

The first issue of postage stamps in 1837 would seem very insignificant in volume compared with the tremendous output of the present year, which is estimated to be not less than 18 billion, requiring 1,000 tons of paper, 575 tons of gum and 500 tons of ink. Placed end to end this one year's supply would reach around the earth at the equator ten times.

But no one has figured out how much energy and moisture it woll take to stick them where they will perfom their duty.

WIFE SOLD AT PROFIT

Few of the present generation, particularly in the North, know that before the Civil War a great many negroes in the South owned other negroes as slaves Some interesting facts concerning the subject are given in Prof. Carter Goodwin Woodson's book, "Free Negro Heads of Families."

He shows that as far back as 1830 one-seventh of the negroes in the country were free, some of them rich, owning large plantations and other valuable property. In 1857 one negro in South Carolina owned 200 slaves, in Louisiana four negroes owned respectively 91, 89, 50 and 47 slaves. Many others owned smaller numbers, it being estimated that 40,000 free negroes owned nearly 100.000 slaves at one time.

The story is told of a Charleston negro who admired a female slave owned by a neighbor and bought her for a wife. Later on when she had failed to behave herself as he thought proper, he sold her at a profit of $50.

Why A Young Woman Is A Democrat

(From Tarpon Springs, Fla., Ledger)

"A cerain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho. And the neighbor of that man was he that showed mercy."

When the young woman was seven years of age she saved a few pennies, planning to buy Christmas gifts for Daddy and Mother. . . . While looking at the holiday merchandise, her purse was lost or stolen. She returned to her mother in tears, was scolded for her carelessness, and told that she ought never to be trusted with anything. With increased hurt she ran to Daddy, who laughed at and belittled the loss, saying that the good things of life belong to those who are strong enough or clever enough to take them. Wholly stunned with grief, she ran to the rough little neighbor boy, with whom she was seldom permitted to play, and he reached her heart in a way she will never forget, by making for her undeserving parents tiny Christmas boxes of bright paper filled with striped peppermint candy from his own slender store.

When the young woman had graduated from high school, completed a short stenographic course, and had obtained a good job, a certain H. Hoover represented that the dinner pail would always be full and that the garag would have two automobiles instead of the old-fashioned Ford, and that stocks were so cheap all wise Americans should buy them.

She made a payment on an automobile, signed a contract to purcha building lot, and acquired on ma five shares of that Steel Preferred that now maketh the heart sick. She lost all, including the job. The garage is empty, also the dinner pail. Needing human aid and understanding just a badly as the man robbed on the Jer road, yes, even as much as the little girl robbed in the toy store, she went to her Socialist Landlady, who took away her trunk and belongings, and told the young woman that she ought to be kept in jail until she would help elect a government which would rob the rich through capital tax levies for the benefit of the poor. Then, she went to the Republican banker who made a commission on the stock she had lost. He laughed and belittled the whole matter, lighted a fresh 25-cent cigar, and explained to her that only a few of the wealthy deserve the good things of Life. . . .

Again she returned to the boy friend who gave understanding human sympathy, loaned her two dollars from his own slender wage, and helped her get a job in a workingman's restaurant. He told her to join the Jeffersonian Clu and become a partizan in favor of t common man, that is to say a Democrat, upholding the inherent and i alienable rights of man, practicing self-reliance taught by Emerson, pressing privilege and monopoly, storing rule to the people and pre ing American ideals. And because believes the boy friend's philosophy that the rich should not be robbed by the poor nor the poor be robbed by the rich, but that each should have political and economic equality of opportunity with his fellow citizens; and because she believes in the teaching of the parable about the man on the road down to Jericho, the young woman is resolved always to be a Democrat.

A request that his wife remarry "as soon as circumstances permit" was found in the will of Mark Finston, oil operator who died at Tulsa, Okla., leaving an estate of $140,000.

Divorces Fewer Than Marriages

Marriages maintained a lead of better than eight to one over divorces in Alabama in 1931, the U. S. Bureau of Census reported Monday.

The year saw 25,954 couples led to Hymen's altar, while 2,941 marriages were dissolved in divorces and seven were annulled. In 1930 the knot was tied 27,587 times and untied in 3,224 instances through divorces and seven times in annulments.

Figures based on an estimated population of 2,669,000 July 1, 1931, reveal the number of marriages for each 1,000 population was 9.7 against 10.4 in 1930 when the population on the same date was estimated at 2,654,000.

The following figures, subject to correction, were prepared by the State Board of Health:

County	Marriages 1931	1930	Divorces 1931	1930	An'l'ts 1931	'31

The High Schools of Autauga county instituted a merit contest among their graduating students this year, giving a three days trip to Atlanta to two seniors out of each school. The final contest was held last Sunday afternoon at Marbury when Dr. D. W. Haskew of Clanton addressed the students and patrons of the school on the question, "What it takes to make a good citizen." At the conclusion of the address Professor Teel announced Hazel Baxley and Donald Burns as the representatives from his school. He also announced that the Autauga High school would be represented by Virginia Shackelford and Kelly Scott, Autauga High by Ellenor Jones and Dick Carlton and the Billingsley High by Lorene Wright and Charlie Williams. These students will leave for Atlanta on June the 3rd. and return to their homes on June 6th. The honors of the trip were merited by being the highest in a grading of character and efficiency in school loyalty and will be known as Master Citizens.

ADVERTISING and our "POOR LITTLE RICH COUNTRY"

By HENRY T. EWALD
President Campbell-Ewald Co., Detroit

Like the "poor little rich girl" of the old Broadway play, America has been sighing and sorrowing in the midst of plenty for almost three years.

True, we are not the fabulously wealthy nation we thought we were in 1928-29. We have lost other things besides confidence, although that, by all odds, is the greatest loss. But we are exaggerating our poverty today as we exaggerated our wealth a few years ago—over-emphasizing failure as we over-emphasized success — turning a deaf ear to encouragement as we turned a deaf ear to warnings. Deflation of national spirit, too, can be carried to an unjustifiable degree.

Advertising, and business men who employ advertising wisely, can play a leading part in righting conditions and rebuilding industry, with profit to both the country and themselves. Now is a time of wonderful opportunity. If there be any one who doubts this, or who believes that the "poor little rich country" isn't rich in many ways even now, let him consider these facts:

Our population of 123,000.000 people, long husbanding their resources, are greater potential producers and consumers of products of all knds than at any previous time.

Savings deposits are at a record peak of $28,215,000,000 and depositors number more than 51,000,000.

Life insurance totals $109,146,440,473, by far the greatest volume in our history.

Almost five billions in gold are piled up in our national treasury. And the amount is steadily increasing.

In natural resources we are one of the richest nations in the world. with coal, oil, timber and precious metals in vast stores and practically every base mineral deposited in our areas.

The gross income from our leading crops last year was more than $7,000,000,000.

We can, if we wish, interpret even these great advantages pessimistically—or we can know them for what they are, great tools for recovery. We can grasp them purposefully and remind America that she wants things, can achieve them and is still rich, still able.

That is the major task confronting Advertising today. Advertising is ready for the task—when and as business puts its own house in order. Advertising can and will win markets for good products now, and increasing markets in the future. It is the swift. direct, economical way to bring values to the attention of great masses of people, to stimulate desire and promote the will to buy, always assuming that it is good advertising—soundly planned, ably prepared, well directed.

Some day, soon or late, but preferably soon, we shall believe in ourselves again and act upon our beliefs. And then our "poor little rich country" will not be poor, even in spirit, very much longer.

"All God's Chillun Want Things" and will discover ways to get them as surely as desire is the mainspring of attainment.

An Address on Mothers' Day

By T. M. Cooper

After a few introductory remarks, Mr. Cooper said:

"This is Mothers' Day, set apart as a day to extoll her many virtues and noble qualities, and thousands upon thousands have assembled to honor and pay obeiances to her, so we come with the beautiful flowers and songs of praise and unite with one accord to reverence mother, that sweet name—Oh, how we like to bow at her shrine!

"We want to talk to you about her noble life, beginning with her childhood, in order to eulogize her in the different stages of life. We find her in the home with her little dolls, Susie, Mary, Janie, Lucy Bell and Dollie. What motherly instinct is here manifested in dressing and caring for those little dolls. What love she has for those little dolls. Now she has passed from childhood into blooming girlhood. How beautiful has her life been. As she sits upon the pinnacle of fame the world sits at her feet to do her honor.

"Next we find her at the marriage altar, where in the presence of her friends and almighty God she pledges her undying love and devotion to her husband of her choice and side by side they travel. A helper and a wise counselor, à multiplier of his joys and a companion and comforter in all his sorrows. We find her next in the home with the dear little children. God has blessed her with. So happy with her little brood as she gathers them around her at night and teaches them to say their little prayer, 'Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep.' Oh, that mother's love is as strong as death. She has made so many sacrifices and denied herself of so many things that her children may be comfortably care for. How well she provides for them and exerts that wonderful influence over them that they may grow up to be useful men and women, and when adversity comes, when sickness comes, how she keeps vigil in the silent hours of the night over her loved ones; bathing their parched lips and after she has done all in her power to restore them to life and death claims her child, oh, how heartrending is the scene, when she places a parting kiss upon the lips of the dear one and commits it to the care of almighty God and resigns herself to His will.

"We come down through the years and find her in old age. She has spent her life looking after the comfort of her family and now time has begun to furrow those dear old cheeks. Those dear old eyes once so sparkling and brilliant, have became dim. Her step is not so elastic. Her hair has become gray. She has but a few more years to be with us, so we come with sweet flowers in token of our love for her. As we look at her seated by her fireside in that old arm chair with that sweet smile of contentment, let us go to her and put our arms around her and shower that dear old form with kisses and tell her, 'Oh, mother, we love you so well. We will make each day of your life more happy,' For some sad day is coming when those dear eyes will be closed in death. Those dear hands will be clasped across her breast. It will be too late then to tell her, 'Mother, oh, mother, how I love you.'"

Good Business

A good business man is always held in high esteem because he will not violate any law that defeats the chief aim in life—that it be lived in greatest abundance.

The man who acquires a fortune and dies early in life is not a good business man; he has failed in life's most important end. He has not had the business sense to take care of the most precious thing to him—his health. What is life worth to you if you are dead, or even half dead?

Sometimes I have to hammer it into the heads of my most intelligent patrons, that their activities amount to slow but certain suicide! Some take warning; of course some do not.

Here are some serious faults that many so-called business men indulge in daily: Rushing from home mornings, with insufficient breakfast to fit the body properly for the day's work. Dining downtown, at "luncheon" to save time; these two principal meals of the day are almost ignored in the interest of "business." Going home at the close of hours, tired, worried, often exhausted in mind and body, to swallow a heavy dinner. Lastly, retiring late, in the belief that the gorge will be digested at bedtime.

The function of healthy sleep is to repair the nervous and mental wear of the day. This wear is not repaired in a sleep that is simply stupor—unconsciousness—the stupor produced by the bludgeon, the knockout. It is not healthy, invigorating sleep; it awakens with more tire than was felt on retiring.

Such conduct takes its toll in deaths before death should occur. The "heart-failure" of the newspaper diagnosis; the cerebral hemorrhage on men aged before their time.

In an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide, George Griesbach of Shawano, Wis., swallowed his stickpin, cuff buttons, some safety pins, glass and other materials.

EARLY PHOTOGRAPHY

While experiments which led to the ultimate development of photography were made as far back as about 1778 by Scheele, a Swedish chemist, followed by the labors of Wedgewood in England, Seebeck in Germany, and many others, it remained for two Frenchmen, Niepce and Daguerre, to give to the world the first practical photographic process.

Niepce discovered a method of making photographs that would not fade in 1825, but it was not until 1839, six years after Niepce's death, that his co-worker Daguerre developed the daguerreotype, which marked the beginning of commercial photography.

In their earliest experiments, it required exposures of three to eight hours in bright sunlight to secure a photographic copy. but the first daguerreotypes were made by exposures of about half an hour. In the beginning only landscapes, monuments and the like could be used as subjects, as no living thing could be kept quiet sufficiently long.

The first photographic personal portrait was made by Prof. John W. Draper, an American chemist, in 1840, after which improvements in processes followed in fairly rapid succession. Before 1840 the only means of preserving the likeness of persons was by the making of death masks or through sculpture, paintings and drawings.

Now the goal of photographic science and art is to produce pictures in colors direct from the subject, toward which some preliminary steps have been taken.

In view of the wonderful advances being made in every branch of science, it can hardly be doubted that direct color photography will one day be an accomplished fact.

Pleasant Grove News

Rev. J. C. Miller with Rev. Macon was at Pleasant Grove to perform his services, it was reported. His sermon in the evening was on the coming of Christ as Isaiah told it to those in his day. His text was taken possibly from the 52 or 53 chapter of Isaiah.

Miss Lessie Rasco of Birmingham made a visit to our church with the preacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miskelley spent part of Sunday evening with Mrs. J. B. Franklin.

L. Lance Franklin has been ill since Friday morning with appendicitis and up until Tuesday of this week is still confined in bed. Dr. H. G. Franklin of Thorsby was called Sunday afternoon which gave some relief. However, he said the best thing to do was to carry him to the hospital for an operation.

Mrs. Laura Franklin spent Monday of this week with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Franklin.

Mr. Ben Manning and Mrs. Reese Wells went to see Lance Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Joe Rasberry is reported to be in a pretty serious condition. The report stated that he had been ill for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wells are visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wells.

Mr. W. E. Miskelley has finished a temporary building in which he expects to live until his permanent building is finished.

Vernon Miskelley spent Saturday night with his sister, Mrs. Hernie Hodgens.

Mr. I. N. Waldrop spent part of Sunday with his mother and family, Mrs. S. E. Waldrop.

Mrs. W. E. Miskelly is still ill. She has been in he care of the doctor for about three weeks, and seems little if any improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. Adair joined the church at Pleasant Grove Sunday.

Our other members of last preaching Sunday Mr. Ander Hatcher and two more from Macedonia Miss Hazel Cofer and Mrs. Otis Jones were all baptized in the baptizing pool at Pleasant Grove church.

Our church is at last straighter. The men of this community worked three days in accomplishing the feat.

Mrs. Enoch Davenport went to Montgomery to see her son, Bernie. It was her first trip to see him. A report came that he could not be brought from the hospital in 9 to 11 months. Bernie was one of those who were in the very center of the cyclone on March 21st, in which his sister, Lois, was killed, not instantly. His father and mother and another sister, little Alis, were all seriously injured.

There will be an all-day singing at Pleasant Grove the second Sunday in June in the new books. Everybody come, and especially all the good singers. This is an official statement. Come, come.

Warning: It is dangerous to put strawberries in the storm pit. This is the opinion of Mrs. G. W. Spivey and Mrs. Adair. This report was issued when they put some extras in the pit and they decayed on the underside—over night.

Mr. Clifford Jones of Clanton is visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wells.

Mr. Sam Edwards has been worried with a swelling and hurting in his body and especially in his hands, but is improving nicely now.

Mr. Reese Wells spent Saturday night and part of Sunday with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Willis.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Marcus spent Sunday afternoon and Sunday night with the parents of Mrs. Marcus, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright.

Pardon the Pleasant Grove reporter, but the name of Mr. Tommie Childress Mr. James and Louie Wright were left out last week of the list that went to Providence to the singing.

Pasture Is Required For Cheap Livestock

Auburn, Ala., May 23.—The key to successful livestock is a good pasture; and animal husbandmen at Auburn are frank in telling farmers that unless they have good pastures it is unwise for them to be in the livestock business.

The reason is that animals are essentially "feed on foot" and the cheapest way to provide this feed is by a good pasture. Feeding by grazing is cheaper than otherwise because very little labor is required. With a little help the soil, rain, and sunshine produces feed in the form of clovers and grasses; and livestock do the harvesting.

This explains why a good pasture is essential to production at a low cost, be the product meat or milk.

And county agents of Alabama are directing farmers in making the pastures, both temporary and permanent. They insist there are many pasture plants which do well throughout Alabama if given an opportunity.

Next to pastures, hay is the cheapest animal feed as a general thing. Consequently, plenty of hay should be produced along with pasture. In addition concentrate rations should be produced on the farm where it is to be consumed.

But the cheapest feed for animals is pasture or grazing. A permanent pasture is needed along with temporary grazing.

Why Worry?

"I wonder why folks worry. There are only two reasons for worry. Either you are successful or you are not successful. If you are successful there is nothing to worry about; if you are not successful there are only two things to worry about. Your health is either good or you are sick; if your health is good there is nothing to worry about; if you are sick there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to get well or you are going to die. If you are going to get well there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to die there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to heaven or you are not going to heaven; and if you are going to heaven there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to the other place you'll be so D— busy shaking hands with old friends you won't have time to worry—so why worry?

Gov. B. M. Miller Wants To Pay Debts

Auburn, Ala., May 23.—At the sixtieth annual commencement of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, May 15, 16, and 17, attention was focused upon state finances. Governor B. M. Miller brought the subject to a climax when—addressing the alumni—he declared that the state will owe to the schools alone on October 1, 1932, between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000.

"Every dollar of this should be paid," Gov. Miller said in a ringing voice; adding, "God being my helper, it will be paid."

He said that he is ready to proceed with legislation for balancing the state budget, paying debts, and keeping the schools open. He directed school people to state senators for relief, declaring that he has been ready for more than a year to act but that senators have blocked him.

Following this address the alumni in annual meeting adopted a resolution deploring the distressing situation as regards schools and debts and called for relief.

Governor Miller assured the alumni that the fight for balanced budget, payment of debts, and keeping schools running would be carried to the people of the state. He appeared confident as to their decision.

He made an earnest appeal for children and schools, declaring that "our children are the state's greatest asset and our schools must be kept open for them."

Robert M. Roebuck Called To Reward

The death of Robert M. Roebuck, age 86, occurred at his home in the Isabella Community last week. The News is in receipt of a fitting tribute to this man, from one who knew him well. This tribute follows:

Maplesville, Ala., May 23, 1932.

"It was my privilege to attend the funeral of Bro. Robert M. Roebuck at Adams last Saturday. The funeral was beautiful and impressive as could be. A very large crowd, more than the church could accommodate, was present to attest the character and popularity of the deceased. The pall bearers, five of whom were grandchildren, were as follows: Kent Roebuck, Otto Roebuck, Buster Roebuck, Welch Roebuck, Clyde Gragg, and Elbert Lawley. Rev. Bro. Bentley of Billingsley, preached the funeral and did exceptionally well. From the eulogy he gave on the life and work of Brother Roebuck, he was no doubt a pillar of strength in the Mt. Carmel church and community. I heard many expressions of praise and eulogy of Bro. Roebuck. He was faithful to his church and loyal to his young pastor, Bro. Bentley.

"Notwithstanding he had reached the ripe old age of 86, yet withal he was mentally and physically active until last Monday when he took his final sickness and was on Thursday afternoon called to his eternal resting place. His life must have been a benediction to all with whom he came into contact.

"He leaves a son, two daughters and a host of grandchildren and great-grandchildren to mourn his loss. It is hard to say the final good-bye to those who are near and dear to us. But we can get comfort from the contemplation of that Land beyond the river, the Home of the Soul. To this land we are all fast tending and bye and bye we'll all be gathered together in that home where sickness and sorrow, pain and parting are no more."

Fay Mathews Finds New Friends

"Look, Sue! there goes the girl that has moved into the end-of-the-alley house. Doesn't she look lonesome? Let's go to see her tomorrow."

"I don't believe I want to go. She looks poor. look at her ragged shoes and patched dress," said selfish Sue.

"Sue Thomas! the very idea. If I know anything we're all poor. Anyway I'm not going there to look at her shoes and clothes. I know if I should move into a strange place, especially such a run-down, wee-covered place as the end-of-the-alley place, I would want someone to be kind enough to go to see me," replied Fay Mathews.

"Well, Fay Mathews, you can go to see her for all I care, but don't ask me to go with you. Remember, I choose my friends from up the other way."

Fay did not forget the lonely appearance of the new girl, but asked her mother to go with her next day to see her. They went early in the afternoon and were surprised to see the improvement the new neighbors had been able to make in the place in just three days.

The new family's name was Forest.

"Mother, I liek Janet just fine," said Fay as they went home. "And Baby Betty is just as sweet as a baby can be. When we were playing 'hide' Janet or I always carried Betty with us and we did have the most fun, for Betty just would laugh, squeal or run out in sight! She always gave us away. James and Andrew are nice too. I'm glad they are all going to Sunday School with me, but mother, I know that Sue will scorn them because they don't have real nice clothes."

"Never mind, Fay, they will know that they have a friend in you, and anyway it is not as bad to be scorned as it is to scorn someone. I feel sorry for Sue because she is not more friendly. Doesn't she miss a lot of happiness?" asked mother Mathews.

"Sure she does," agreed Fay. "Mother, I guess I won't wear my new dress tomorrow. I'll wear one of my oldest ones so that Janet will feel more at home."

Very soon Mother Forest and Mother Mathews and Janet Forest and Fay Mathews became good friends. Fay had noticed that worn or mended clothes never made the wearer any less friendly or good. She was glad that she had not allowed Janet's worn clothes to keep her from being kind to her, for she found that Janet was friendly and attractive.

Janet had a twin brother James, a younger brother, Andrew, and a baby sister. Baby Betty was two years old and Janet's shadow. She didn't let Janet out of her sight if she could help it. Fay played with Betty, laughed at her funny little ways and had great fun teaching her words that she did not know. Before Fay went home Mrs. Forest promised her that Janet, James and Andrew could go with her to Sunday school the next morning.

"That's the right way to feel, Fay. You're living up to the text, 'Forget not to show love unto strangers'." said her mother.

Janet, James and Andrew met Fay at the door next morning to go to S.S. with her. She noticed that their clothes were clean and neat and their shoes were polished. There was no noticeable difference for Fay, true to her word, had left her new dress hanging in the wardrobe and was wearing an old one.

When they arrived at S. S. Fay introduced the three new pupils to her teacher. Miss Louise, who called the teacher of the boys' class and introduced James and Andrew to him. The teachers did all they could to make them feel welcome and at home. The three met kind, friendly smiles on all sides, so between Fay, the teachers and the newest friends, the Forest brothers and sister, were made happy on their first Sunday as strangers in the end-of-the-alley house.

And Sue? Poor Sue was not pleased with herself or anyone else that day. Her thoughts, as usual, were too much taken up with clothes. Her main grouch was that she saw two new dresses that she thought were a great deal prettier than her own new one.

Miss Louise could not fail to notice one face in class that morning. That face, though always bright and friendly, was fairly beaming with happiness. That face was Fay's.

THERE WILL BE NO SORROW OVER THERE

By Mrs. Newton Cooper

Oh, why should I long to tarry here,
When far across the sea,
There is a mansion bright and fair
Waiting there for me?

A mansion bright and fair
Not made with mortal hands
Where I can dwell forevermore
Among the happy band.

There will be no sorrow there,
No heartaches and no pain,
For Jesus will wipe away all tears.
Oh, praise His Holy Name.

Oh, why should I long to stay here,
In this cold world below,
When I love loved ones over there
Upon the Golden Shore?

With golden harps they sing,
And praise our Lord and King
And dwell with Him forevermore—
With Him forever reign.

Oh, why should I not want to go,
To that sweet land of bliss
Where I can dwell with Jesus
With him and loved ones rest?

There will be a great reunion
In that sweet land above
There we will see and know our loved ones
And dwell in peace and love.

designed with the view of discrediting Speaker Garner and the Democratic House? If so, the country will recall that the slight Democratic majority in the House has cooperated with the chief executive in every major proposal for relief of a sorely stricken nation. The Speaker went so far as to take the floor—an unusual action—and secured a unanimous pledge from the entire membership of the House to balance the nation's budget.

"Had the President and his official household thrown their influence to the economy committee instead of their opposition to a very substantial part of its program when under consideration in the House results might have been different.

"The President indicts the membership of his party in the House as well as his own executive branch of the government when he now suggests that $331,000,000 should be cut from his own budget estimates.

"Is the President fearful that the House of Representatives will receive some credit for initiating a program for specific economies, and for already having cut his own budget $161,000,000?" pire—but under another flag.

recreation the young men get and the likelihood of a better team. Beginning today at the Chilton County High School ball park at 2 p.m. the boys will have daily practice under an experienced baseball coach and I trust that there will be considerable competition for a try-out on each position on this Chilton County Post Junior Base Ball team and I trust in the future that the Capital Loop will boast of a championship team of this Loop and we will get in the finals at the close of the season.

"The following local merchants donated baseball supplies for the initial practice: Clanton Building and Supply Company, Alred Drug Company and Calloway Drug Company, all three of which firms handle baseball material.

"Let not only the American Legion get behind these young men in their undertaking, but let Chilton County get behind them also and lend them our encouragement in their undertaking. The foregoing are some of the rules for Junior Base Ball for 1932:

"The competition will be open only to boys who are amateurs (that is, boys who have not been paid for playing baseball), and who will not have attained their seventeenth birthday before June 30, 1932. (Note: A boy born prior to midnight, June 29, 1915, is not eligible.)

"Each player must be a bona fide resident of the community served by the Post sponsoring the team in which he enrolls in accordance with the regulations laid down by the Department Athletic Committee or the Department Executive Committee of the respective Departments.

"No team may carry more than fifteen players, and all players must be enrolled before June 30, 1932. The player personnel of a team cannot be changed after date of official enrollment. Substitutions for purpose of strengthening team will not be allowed under any circumstances. Only in case of death may a vacancy be filled with a substitute player, and then only when authorized by the Department Athletic Director for competitions within his Department and by the National Director of the Americanism Commission for Regional, Sectional and Final Tournaments.

"All tournaments to decide state champions will be under the direction of the state organization of the American Legion. The Athletic Officer, or the Department Athletic Committee of each state, shall formulate such rules and regulations not in conflict with these rules as are best suited to the conditions of that Department for the playing of local, county, district and state tournaments. Such rules and regulations as will stimulate and protect competition shall be established. The State Athletic Office, or his duly appointed representative of The American Legion, shall have the power to disqualify, suspend or remove any manager, coach or player violating any of these rules or other rules promulgated within his jurisdiction. All questions and disputes within a Department shall be decided by the Department Athletic Officer or by such commission as the Department may designate. There shall be no appeal from such decision to the National Headquarters of The American Legion or elsewhere.

"The state championship teams must be certified by their respective Department Athletic Officers to the National Director of the Americanism Commission not later than August 10, 1932. This certificate must be accompanied by a certified copy of each player's original certificate of entry and eligibility, birth certificate, photograph of player, etc.

"Any boys who will be interested in the Junior Base Ball League may communicate with the undersigned, Mr. Ray, Simpson or Dan Smith and I sincerely trust that the Chilton County Post team will be in the play-off games at the close of the season."

Breakfast Hints

By Jane Rogers

TOMATO juice cocktail, which has achieved such a sweeping popularity in the last year, is now almost as familiar on the breakfast table as ham and eggs. It is a perfect eye-opener, especially for the man of the family who appreciates that cold, spicy tang at the start of his day. But haven't you tasted many a cocktail that was either pathetically flat or unnecessarily biting? No matter how bursting with vitamins it may be, it fails miserably in its function of awakening the appetite unless it is perfectly flavored.

Why not try making it yourself to be sure of an inexpensive morning sip that will start the day with a zest? Strain the juice from a large (2 lb.) can of tomatoes. To the liquid add salt and pepper to taste and a teaspoon of sugar. The sugar does not actually sweeten, but serves to blend the flavors and bring out all the relishing spiciness of the other ingredients. A few drops of Worcester sauce, a teaspoon of prepared horseradish, two tablespoons of lemon juice and a few drops of onion juice complete the cocktail. Strain and serve it well chilled in attractive glasses. This recipe is sufficient for six persons.

Kiwanis, Pilot Clubs Bring Entertainment

MUSIC'L COMEDY OF BEAUTIFUL SCENES COMING

"Palm Beach Bound" Will Be Presented By Out-Of-Town Characters

"It's a hit wherever it goes," is the comment heard about "Palm Beach Bound" a three-act musical comedy that is to be staged in Clanton being brought here by the Kiwanis Club and the Pilot Club of Clanton.

"Palm Beach Bound" is being presented in many places by the "Y" Western Entertainers of Selma, Ala., and is acclaimed a success at all places. All characters in the presentation are from Selma, where there is an abundance of splendid talent.

It is to be staged in the auditorium of the Chilton County High School, on Friday night, June 3rd. The curtain goes up promptly at eight o'clock. Admission will be 35 cents for adults and 15 cents for children. After expenses are paid, the remaining proceeds go to the two local clubs bringing the play here, and is to be used in their worthy work in the county.

Beautiful girls in glamorous choruses, many latest song hits, and gorgeous costumes, with music being furnished by an orchestra, are some of the features of the presentation. Those witnessing this are assured of their money's worth, and will at the same time be aiding the Kiwanis and Pilot Clubs in their work.

Mrs. J. B. Atkinson has announced that the Sunbeams of the Clanton Baptist church will meet at the church on Friday afternoon of this week at two-thirty o'clock. All Sunbeams are urged to be present and on time.

MELODIOUS NEW SCREEN HIT IS COMING HERE

"The Office Girl" New Attraction Here At The Wadesonian Theatre

"The Office Girl" the RKO Radio Picture that became the screen sensation of London when given its European premiere, is announced as the attraction at the Wadesonian Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, June 8 and 9.

A romance of a young girl who resolves to be happy while seeking ultimate happiness in life, "The Office Girl" makes it first claim to success because of its continuous gaiety thruout a story with dramatic quality.

Stunning Star in Lead

In the title of the ever smiling Susie, Renate Muller is introduced to American film audiences. With the charm, grace and beauty for which she was famous on the German stage, she is expected to bid for American popularity equal to that of Marlene Dietrich and Greta Garbo.

Taking the busy part of a bank clerk by day and the leader of a comic beergarden choir by night, Jack Hulbert, perhaps the greatest comedian from across the seas, has the responsibility for providing laughs every time he comes in view of the camera. He thinks fast, cracks wise, and although a comedian at all times, advances the action of the story with the very ideas he uses for his fun.

Novel Screen Touches

An office-full of typists tapping out rhythmic accompaniment to one of the three Viennese musical hits in "The Office Girl" is one of the many innovations in the picture. The scene with the girl-filled windows is another of the original touches.

Morris Harvey plays the employment manager who tries to use his position as influence over Susie for personal favors. Owen Nares, enacting the bank director, comes into Susie's life by a circuitous and unconventional social pathway.

STATE STATISTICIAN VISITS IN CLANTON LAST TUESDAY

The News office received a very pleasant visit Tuesday from F. W. Gist, State Statistician. Mr. Gist had been visiting over in the western part of the county and in Dallas and Perry counties. He states he saw some fine looking crops in that section and commented favorably on the crops in this county.

LARGE CROWD HEARSSPEAKERS LAST SATURDAY

Harman Says It Unadvisable To Open Schools Under Present Conditions

A large crowd of interested citizens from over Chilton County gathered in the Court House Saturday afternoon to hear Mr. J. A. Keller, president of the A. E. A. and Mr. A. H. Harman, State Supt. of Education in Alabama. Both speakers dealt with the educational problems in the State and showed that they had at their command information that should be carried to every citizen in the State.

In this meeting it was emphasized that the teachers of Alabama have been a loyal, sacrificing company of men and women, and that they have more than carried their burden of the depression that is felt in every section. They have had their salaries reduced, while the salaries of other public officials have not been reduced. They have not been paid their salaries, while other public officials have collected theirs one hundred per cent.

Dr. Harman stated that the teachers were not complaining because of their share in the reduction of salaries, but that they were complaining because of

TWO ARE FOUND AT SMALL STILL IN RECENT RAID

Man And Wife Caught While Operating Still 4 Miles East Of Here

A man and his wife were surprised last week by sheriff's forces of this county, when the officers came to a still that was in full operation, being looked after by the couple.

The report stated the still was located a little over four miles southeast of Clanton near a farmer's home. It was approximately a thirty gallon outfit. No trouble was had in bringing the prisoners to Clanton, where the man was lodged in jail. His wife was allowed to remain at home where there are several children, it was stated. A small quantity of liquor was found also.

Other arrests reported were one for carnal knowledge, one for violation of the prohibition law and one for violating highway traffic code.

Religious Pageant Is Wanted Shown Again

One of the most enjoyable programs ever given in Clanton was presented last Friday night at the High School building by about fifty students of the Tuggle Institute in Birmingham. They gave the Pageant, "Heaven Bound" to a fair audience, composed of citizens in Clanton and Chilton county. The program consisted of singing and silent acting on the part of the visiting caste. The stage was decorated in white and about thirty-five of the characters marched on the stage singing. They were clad in white robes and many were dressed as angels. The stage then became "Heaven." The pilgrims were in the back of the auditorium and one by one they sang the negro spirituals as they advanced down the aisle. They were met by His Satanic Majesty, the Devil, and were tempted in every way possible. He succeeded in leading three into hell, the rich man, the hypocrite and the drunkard. The character representing the devil was unusually good and kept the eye of the audience riveted on him as he gamboled up and down the aisle in his forms of temptation.

The pageant was presented under the auspices of the Missionary Society of the Methodist church, and was one of the best entertainments ever visiting our city. Should the Tuggle Institute return to present "Heaven Bound" for the second time, doubtless they would play to a full house.

OLD FOLKS HAVE A GOOD MEETING AT FRIENDSHIP

Large Attendance Noted At Fourth Annual Meeting Held Recently

The fourth annual session of the old folks and ministers meeting at Friendship was held last Sunday. The meeting was called to order at 9:45 by Rev. J. Robert Bean, pastor at Friendship and chairman of the program committee. As per the published program, Rev. T. J. Deason conducted an hour's devotional service, and at 11 o'clock Rev. M. J. Parrish preached. Dinner was from 12 to 1, when the meeting was again called to order by Rev. Bean, and a one hour's experience meeting was conducted by Rev. F. A. Gibson. The singing before noon was conducted by T. E. Wyatt, and in the afternoon by J. W. P. Murphy.

The hour had then arrived for the

James Donovan Died Here Last Thursday

Death saddened several homes in Clanton when it took away the life of James Mullins Donovan, 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Donovan, at their home just north of Clanton on last Thursday, May 26th. Death was the result of infection caused by a small wound in his foot while playing, tetanus germs being contracted.

James was a bright young fellow, and residents of North Clanton will miss him as he was a popular newsboy, loved by all who knew him. He was courteous to everyone, thrifty and ambitious in his school, work and play. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. George Willis widely known residents of Chilton County.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church in Clanton Friday morning, conducted by Dr. S. J. Ezell. Interment followed in the Clanton cemetery, Martin & Sons in charge. A large crowd of grief stricken friends were present, bringing beautiful floral offerings to show their love for this youth. He is survived by his parents, one sister, one brother and other relatives.

Prof. and Mrs. L. D. Haskew of Monroe, Georgia will arrive in the city Friday afternoon to spend ten days with their parents, Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Haskew, before leaving for the University of Chicago.

EDITORIAL

Committee Meeting Is Of Major Importance

With renewed interest and a greater determination to push the Democratic nominees over the top this year, the Democratic Executive Committee has been called to meet in Clanton next Saturday.

It seems to the News that this meeting is of the utmost importance to the party in this county, for several reasons. It is generally talked over the county, state and nation that the Democratic Party has the best opportunity in years to elect officers in places not now held by Democrats. And surely, the Democrats of Chilton County can see the shadow of coming events being cast in no uncertain outline on the political situation in this county and on the future administration of county governmental affairs.

Members of the Executive Committee should place this meeting ahead of other things Saturday morning and attend with an open mind to carry out those suggestions that are for the benefit of the Democratic Party in this county as a whole, casting aside any personal grievances that may have been existing in the past.

The Democrats have something to sell to the people of Chilton County in the general election next November. They have men on the ticket who are above any kind of question,,men who have announced as candidates on the Democatic ticket, unhesitatingly, believing that the opportunity of many years has now presented itself to the Democrats.

Lower costs of county government, fair and impartial administration of county affairs at all times, are two of the outstanding features of the Democratic ticket. In the coming election, it appears to be the opinion of the masses to give a party a chance to bring about a more equal and impartial administration in county business, and with the Democratic ticket as nominated this time, the Democratic Party of Chilton County has to offer the people the very things they are in search of.

"Heaven Bound" A Sermon In Itself

The Methodist Missionary Society deserves congratulations in having brought to Clanton the religious pageant, "Heaven Bound" which was presented here last Friday night. This pageant was a complete sermon within itself, a comment heard from many who witnessed its presentation.

From beginning to end, a very small child could have easily understood it, while olde people were deeply impressed with the teachings of its characters. There is talk of bringing it back to Clanton for a second showing. If this can be done without inconvenience, then we say bring it back, and give more people an opportunity to witness this lesson in life staged before them.

DR. A. J. MARLAR CONFINED TO HOSPITAL IN CLANTON

The scores of friends of Dr. A. J. Marlar, of Bllingsley, regret to hear that he is confined to his bed at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton, seriously ill. Dr. Marlar was admitted to the hospital Sunday. His daughter, Mrs. J. C. Hughes of Billingsley, has been in Clanton for several days at his bedside.

JUNIOR LEAGUE BASEBALLERS PROGRESSING

Boys From Over County Are Taking An Interest In Practices

The Junior League Baseball Team of Clanton, sponsored by the local post of the American Legion, is progressing forward rapidly. A first class ball team is a bright prospect.

Boys from different parts of the county have come in and they are showing signs of great ball players. Every afternoon at two o'clock the team meets on the Chilton County High School ball park and practices under the able direction of the coaches, Jess Ray, Jr., and Bill Simpson.

The regular team has not been decided upon yet, since so many of the boys are proving their ability to play, hard, fast baseball that it is hard to pick out the best. There are thirty boys in all coming out for the team, and are all enjoying the exercise, fun and baseball fundamentals they are getting.

They are in need of some bats and balls and other equipment and will appreciate all donations given.

The following is a list of names of persons who have contributed to the local American Legion Junior Baseball Team and the amount they gave:

J. Watts Moore, Two baseballs; cash, 10c; F. J. Callen, 50c; C. O. Jones, 25c; J. D. Collins, 10c; Miss Zora Guy, 25c; Miss Alma Allen, 25c; cash, 25c; W. M. Wyatt, 25c; Billy Smith, 25c; J. B. FARMERS HARDWARE CO. HAS DISPLAY OF ELECTRIC GOODS

The Farmers Hardware Company of Clanton has recently received a very novel display of modern electric appliances. These appliances are of the latest style and have modern features of convenience.

The display includes electric irons of various sizes, automatic waffle irons, automatic egg cooker, etc. The automatic egg cooker is something new and worth seeing.

Bob Gay Is Now With Verbena Service Stat'n

Have you ever heard of Bob Gay? He is that automobile mechanic who is known over the state as one of the best, and is now located with the Verbena Service Station, in Verbena, according to an announcement from Chas. Gulledge, proprietor of the station.

Mr. Gay has had 20 years experience in automobile repairing and his recommendations term him as "a mechanic extra-ordinary, a gentlemen in every sense of the word." In this issue will also be found an advertisement from the Verbena Service Station, in which they give some important information to ladies, and in fact everyone. Read that ad which is headed "To Advise You."

ACTION LOOMS AS COMMITTEE PLANS MEETING

Meeting Will Be Held At New Wilson Hotel In Clanton

A meeting of the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee has been called for next Saturday morning, June 4th at ten o'clock, by P. D. Wilson, chairman. The meeting will be held at the New Wilson Hotel in Clanton, beginning promptly at ten o'clock.

All members of the committee are urged to be present at this meeting, when several matters that are of vital importance to the Democratic Party of the county will be handled by the committee. Members are asked to make it a point to attend, as there is also considerable work to be discussed and done prior to the coming elections.

It was believed advisable to suggest to the members of the executive committee, and other Democrats who are going to attend this meeting, to be seriously considering any work, or suggestions they may wish to make in behalf of the party.

All Democrats are asked to keep this meeting in mind, the time and place, and again, members of the executive committee are urged to be present. Increased interest in the party in this county will, it is believed, add zest and action to the activities of the party in the future.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH OF FINE YOUNG SON RECENTLY

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fitzpatrick Baldwin, of Mountain Creek, have been receiving congratulations on the arrival of a fine young son on May 10th at home. The new arrival has been named Benjamin Fitzpatrick Baldwin, Jr. The parents and son are all to be congratulated.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS ARE SHOWING UP

Prof. Harris Urges Interested Communities To Act At Once If Possible

Work or organizing the Opportunity or Adult, Schools over the county is now going forward and several have already sent in their list and met all requirements, according to Prof. H. A. Harris, organizer of the schools in this county.

Prof. Harris urges all communities interested in securing one of these schools to get in touch with him as soon as possible, in Clanton.

Apparently there is quite a bit of interest among the negroes of the county in securing these schools. Up to yesterday morning there had been three white schools organized. These are located at Cross Roads-Coopers, Pilgrims Rest and Free Springs. Those communities that are working on the schools are Mullins, Mt. Pisgah, Oak Grove, County Line, Mineral Springs, Pates Chapel and Baker.

Negro schools that are organized are Johanna, Verbena, Thorsby, Lomax, Big Springs, Clanton and County Training. Negro schools working to be located are Chilton Belle, New Convert, Stanton and Jemison.

There will only be ten of each to be located in the county. Prof. Harris stated that the schools will probably open about July 11th or July 18th.

W. H. SARTOR WANTS TO KNOW "CAN YOU BEAT IT?"

When a representative of the News called on Mr. Sartor at The Fair Store to get a copy for an ad this week, Mr. Sartor showed him some articles of clothing and the low prices he has and remarked, "Can you beat it?" The ad from The Fair appears in this issue, and Mr. Sartor says he has the bargains.

D. F. CALFEE LAID TO REST IN MULBERRY CEMETERY

On last Friday at three o'clock the body of D. F. Calfee was laid to rest in the cemetery at the Mulberry Baptist church. The services were conducted by S. J. Ezell and D. W. Haskew of Clanton. Both spoke in appreciation of the fine character of the deceased. A large crowd gathered to pay their debt of respect to the one whom to know was to love.

The Masons from the lodge in Clanton were there to take charge of the ceremony at the grave. This ceremony was one of the most beautiful and one of the best carried out programs ever being presented by the masons of Chilton county.

The deceased was 42 years of age and leaves a wife, a son and a daughter to mourn the going of a good father.

Five Years Ago

The following items are reproduced from the issué of the Chilton County News for June 2, 1927:

D. W. Haskew

A citizen in one of the Central Alabama towns was visiting a friend in a distant city. On Sunday she went to church with her friend, and was charmed at the friendliness of the people with whom she worshipped. She resolved that on returning to her home church she would speak to strangers and give them a glad hand and a warm welcome. The first Sunday after her return she went into her church glowing with the spirit of friendliness that she had met in the church in the far away city. She seated herself in the audience and observing that she was sitting by one whom she did not know, she touched her hand saying, "My Friend, I have not met you, but I want to tell you how glad we are to have you worship with us today." The lady spoken to never lifted her eyes from her prayer book but snapped back, "That is nothing to your credit my lady, for I have been living in your town twenty years." That reply produced instantaneous freezing. Often have we been thrilled with zeal and good intentions to have a bucket of cold water dashed over us. When people want to be hateful and ugly they can pull it off to perfection. But it is not worth it.

I was pastor in a thriving little city for four years. I had a member in my church who had complained much because the preachers would not come to see her. I resolved that I would do what other preachers had failed to do. I visited this home four times each year for four years and left fifteen cards. I knew that the lady was at home some of the times, but she never answered the bell. On my sixteenth call a servant came to the door and I asked that she tell Mrs. Closed Door that brother Haskew was at the door. The servant was gone about one minute and then she came back with this query: "Mrs. Closed Door wants to know what you want." I lost my speech for the present, but after turning my hat a hundred rounds on the end of my thumb I had presence of judgment sufficient to hand her the sixteenth card. Then some folks wonder why a pastor never calls. When folks want to be hateful and ugly they can pull it off to perfection. But it is not worth it.

In South Alabama there was a family of cultured people. They thought themselves to be of the elite, the select and they put themselves up as the spokesmen of the community. This family became offended at the message that their pastor delivered on Sunday. He spoke against drinking parties and dance halls and warned his people against the snares of the wicked. Every other family in the little village was delighted with their pastor, but this self-chosen elite decided that the pastor must go. He nosed about and was successful in stirring up much strife. The man of God was crushed, the community was filled with shame and regret and all because one man who hated and who had power, decided that he would rule or ruin. When folks want to be hateful and ugly they can pull it off to perfection. But it is not worth it.

I attended the court trial of a black fiend who had cut the throat of a young Presbyterian preacher because he shot his dog while prowling around in his back yard. Feeling was at the highest tension and a lynching was feared. Every person entering the court room, white or black, was examined and if he carried knife or gun it was taken away from him. On the person of one negro the sheriff found one gun and six razors. This disarming of dangerous weapons was a precaution against possible danger. In many of the public dance halls in Chicago no man is permitted the privilege of the floor until he is first examined by the authorities to see if he carries a hip flask. When one is found the man must give up his flask or be refused the privilege of the floor. Whiskey is as dangerous to society as a negro is dangerous to the general public when he is loaded down with guns and razors. I had rather risk a negro at the steering wheel with his pockets full of pistols, than to risk him there with his stomach full of rum. A concealed flask of whiskey in the hip pocket is evidence of a law breaker and any man who goes thus armed to kill should be dealt with as such. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

My brother had a bad goat. He would chew up our clothes, he would butt us in the back, he would eat up our flowers and he would keep us awake at night by his bumping and plundering. One day my father sent that bad goat away where all bad goats should stay. Brother missed his goat and set up a yell for his return. He was told that his goat was a nuisance and that he would never come back. That did not satisfy my brother, he wanted his goat. That is the way with a lot of folks on the whiskey question. Their bad goat was too bad to stay in decent society, and so Uncle Sam sent him where all bad goats should stay. The world is now full of these big brothers of ours who are bawling like fury for the return of their goat. They care not how much he butts and hurts, they want their bad goat. Suppose we bring him back, he is not fit to stay. He smells bad and acts worse. Just as well be positive with those goat lovers and tell them that their goat shall not return.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Circuit Court in Equity. No. 987.
R. O. Estes, Complainant. vs. Emma Estes, Respondent.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Victor J. Heard that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

FAMILY REUNION AT HOME OF W. M. ODEN

The first family reunion held at the home of W. M. Oden, four miles west of Maplesville, took place on last Sunday, May 29. All the children, all the grandchildren, and the one great-grandchild were present. The great-grandchild is Louise, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luin Calfee. There are twenty-nine grandchildren. The total number present was fifty-four. Yes, it was a fine day—just cool enough to be pleasant. Everybody had a good time together.

The following is a list of those who were present: H. R. Oden and family of Isabella community; J. T. Oden and wife of Providence, R. I.; J. F. Bowden and family of Birmingham; Ira Kelly and family of Lawley; Mrs. W. W. Kelly and two children of Wilton, W. M. Lawley and family; Silas Oden and Family; Fred Oden and family; Crit Oden and family; Paul Oden, Luke Calfee, Clara May Calfee, Luin Calfee and family, and Miss Minnie Mearl Jones.

Mrs. P. D. Wilson spent a few days in Clanton last week, but was returned to the hospital in Birmingham Saturday for further treatment.

MARBURY F. F. A. HOLDS MEE

The Marbury Chapter of the F. F. A. held its regular meeting Friday, May 27, 1932. The program was confined mostly to the election of officers for the following year. The officers elected were:

Ralph Culver: President.
Pierce Culver: Vice President.
Rudder Culver: Sec. and Treas.
Dovard Tatum: Reporter.

Besides the election, a trip to the conference at Auburn this summer was discussed. A committee to look after local entertainment for the chapter was appointed by the president.

Should Our Rural Residents Be Penalized?

By Martha McDevitt

The public and most especially the farmers have been quoted as desiring economies in the Government payroll. Commodities of the farmer are not bringing a fair revenue to his coffers, while his actual hours and days of labor have not been diminished, and neither have his taxes. This would most naturally inspire an appeal to the heads of the Government and Congress that some legislation be enacted that will reduce his expenditures. Unfortunately, at this time, legislation is being considered under the cloak of aiding the farmer, that will be a positive step backward to all rural communities and yet will not reduce his taxes one iota.

The farmer pays many taxes, for the county, township, school, and state, but these do not enter the United States Treasury at all. The only direct tax that goes to the Government is the income tax, and unless he is assessed under this category he is not directly contributing to the Federal Govenment. About the only direct Governmental service that is furnished every farmer is his daily mail service.

The rural mail delivery is a service that the Government provides for the benefit of the farmer, and is a contribution of the Government that is necessary. Last week the Senate returned the post office appropriation bill to its appropriation committee with the instructions to slash $80,000,000 from the total amount appropriated for this department, for all postal business.

Postmaster General Brown immediately appeared before the appropriation committee of the Senate and informed them that if this amount of money is deducted from the total appropriations for 1933 all branches of the Post Office Department would suffer. The tansfer and delivery of mail would be greatly impaired and the progress of the Post Office Department would be stifled.

He specifically pointed out that rural delivery service would be greatly curtailed. For this branch of the post office service he says: "It will be necessary to consolidate about 8,000 rural routes and place about 9,000 others on a basis of tri-weekly instead of daily service."

In other words, it means that of the $80,000,000 loss or curtailment in the appropriations approximately 25 per cent will be borne by the farmers. Out of the total number of twenty-five and one-half million patrons who receive their daily mail, five and one-half million will only receive their mail every other day. Even though this be done the taxes of the farmer will not be reduced, for unless he is contributing to the income tax he is not paying directly for his rural service except through the purchasing of postal supplies.

The farmer asks to be protected from high taxes and as usual he is being penalized and not helped.

The rural delivery service is about 35 years old. Before the time of its inception the farmer did not have the convenience of the postman coming right to his door. Since that time the rural service has grown until it has reached the peak of 42,000 routes. Rural carriers are civil service employees who have passed a competitive examination and are men and women of excellent character and high standing in their respective communities.

While many of these rural routes were laid out in horse and buggy days, their roads, for the most part, still are unimproved, for although there has been a great deal of road improvement during the past decade it has been on the highways and not on the road that the farmer and carrier must use. These carriers must furnish their own equipment and are paid for the number of miles their routes consist of. They are allowed four cents per mile "equipment allowance" while other government workers are allowed six cents per mile if their car is used in making trips on government business. This equipment allowance is over the carrier's basic salary, as the carrier must furnish all of his equipment. In many instances carriers must use horses, automobiles, and showmobiles in the course of a year's service on a rural route due to climatic and geographical conditions.

At the present time, as vacancies occur in the rural service the Post Office Department is making consolidation instead of appointing new men, and in this manner $400,000 every year is saved in that one department without inconveniencing the rural patron.

The rural carrier sells stamps, money orders, and is a source of revenue to the Department that other branches of the Post Office Department, such as the city carrier, is not. A concerted effort on the part of city organizations has been made to curtail the rural delivery service to the farmer, protecting the interest of the business man, and misrepresenting the rural carrier to the farmer. He is charged with holding a cheap political position; of being paid for eight hours a day and only working two hours; of carrying passengers along with the mail and collecting additional pay for this service. The truth as borne out with the postal rules and regulations, is that the rural carrier is paid for the number of miles he serves. No civil service employee may be politically active and rural carriers are not even permitted to accept a position on their local school board if it is an elective one, regardless of whether he would receive any compensation or not. They are positively forbidden to carry any passengers on their route while they are one duty delivering the mail. This last regulation is one that often irks the rural carrier, as he would like to give a lift to his farmer patron if he meets him on the road some distance from his home, and yet he cannot offer him transportation.

As the result of this vicious propaganda, the farmers, in many instances through the farm papers and their local papers, have been duped into believing many untruths relative to their mail service, and the ultimate result will be curtailment of his postal service. The farmer should protect his interests to the extent of keeping in contact with this unfair legislation as outlined above and protest to his Senators immediately so they may destroy it.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF FAIRVIEW CHURCH

Please give me a little space in your paper to say that Rev. G. H. Bonnett will preach at Fair View school house next Saturday night, June 4, at 7:30 o'clock p.m., and we insist that everybody who can come to hear him because he preaches the old time gospel in the old time way with the spirit and powe of God and the Bible, the only book in the land to preach from., and not a book of sermons that some man has outlined for recitation.

M. F. WAGNER.

How Old?

He doesn't look a day over fifty.
And feels like forty.
At the age of 62.

That's the happy state of health and pep a man enjoys when he gives his vital organs a little stimulant!

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation.

But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better. You will never need another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way.

FOLLOW the COPPER WIRE

THE extension of electric transmission and distribution lines of Alabama Power Company has kept pace with its development of power plants—now reaching into 66 of the 67 counties of the state making electric service available in abundance to more than 100,000 customers at generally uniform and low rates.

In 1920, 38 towns and communities were served directly by the Company. In 1930 the number had reached 474. Of the total towns now served 381 received their first electric utility service from this Company.

30 municipal (including 1 state) and 63 private utility systems have been acquired and lower rates made available to the customers in every instance.

Based on 1930 use it is estimated that present customers are saving about $5,225,000, each year compared with the cost of service at rates previously in effect.

Along with this liberal policy of extending power lines to all corners of the State, Alabamians have witnessed a phenominal industrial growth. Since 1924, 196 new industries, with plants valued at $70,370,000, requiring 25,010 employees and annual payrolls of $21,620,000 have located in Alabama.

SUCCESS OF HUMBUGS

In our optimistic moments we sometimes think the world is becoming civilized. We like to believe that the age of superstition is past, or at least rapidly passing. But a calm survey of some things that are going on must convince us that the supposedly human race is still composed largely of credulous boobs.

Among countless examples which might be cited in support of this statement, the amazing popularity and almost incredible financial prosperity of certain alleged astrologers, even in this period of national distress, may be mentioned.

Just now, the nation's favorite astrologer is Evangeline Adams, who dispenses her magic over a number of radio stations three times a week. According to a writer in the Christian Century, Miss Adams is seriously consulted by leaders in the business and political world, who seek to advance their interests by availing themselves of her wisdom, gained by a study of the stars.

Many otherwise reputable newspapers carry departments in which self-styled astrologers predict the future of their readers in response to questions submitted. Usually a more elaborate reading is offered for a suitable fee. Thus a large section of the metropolitan press is aiding and abetting the most flagrant species of charlatanry which now exploits a gullible public.

P. T. Barnum, the great showman, once attributed his success to the fact that the public likes to be humbugged And Barnum was right.

FAMOUS KIDNAPINGS

The kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby has recalled many other similar crimes, a number of which baffled all efforts to apprehend the kidnapers or find a trace of the stolen children. Among them are these:

Charlie Ross, stolen in Germantown, Pa., in 1874.

Catherine Winters, kidnapped in Newcastle, Ind., in 1913.

Jimmy Glass, abducted in Jersey City in 1915.

Billy Gaffney, kidnaped in Brooklyn in 1927.

Childen kidnaped and known to have been killed include the following:

Lloyd Kent of Springfield, Mo., in 1917.

Billy Dansey of New Jersey in 1919.

Bobby Franks of Chicago in 1924, for whose murder Loeb and Leopold are serving a life sentence.

Marian Parker of Los Angeles, for whose abduction and murder in 1927 William Hickman was electrocuted.

Marian McLean, kidnaped, assaulted and killed in Cincinnati in 1931, her murderer having confessed after capture.

In a number of cases kidnaped children were restored to their parents unharmed, sometimes after payment of ransom.

Several of the cases mentioned created nation-wide interest, but no kidnaping in the world's history has inspired such universal indignation against the perpetrators, or such sincere sympathy for the parents as that of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Worry --- The Driver's Bane

Mental lapses are a far more important cause of automobile accidents than is commonly believed. While the reports of accidents may give physical causes, such as reckless driving, wrong side of the road, cutting in, etc., those may only be symptoms of a disturbed mental state, asserts Dr. H. J. Stack of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, who says:

"Extreme hurry or worry causing intense preoccupation, fatigue, elation, or excitement, or slowed down reaction as a result of the indulgence in alcohol or other narcotics may be behind an accident. Many of these mental conditions are within our control." He suggests the following precautions as preventatives:

1. Take a short rest or let someone else drive the car when you have been driving for a long period at night.

2. Be especially alert when hurrying to work so that you can keep your mind on your driving.

3. The best place for the confirmed back-seat driver is at home.

3. Don't day dream driving a car or crossing the street.

5. Control your temper. If the traffic officer calls you down, probably you deserve it.

6. If you have a superiority complex, forget it when you get behind a steering wheel.

7. Don't become a speed maniac. This mental disorder is serious and contagious. A serious accident seems to be the only cure for its victims.

We Make Our Own Hard Times

In his remarkably valuable book, "Men, Money and Mergers," published by the MacMillan Co., Dr. George L. Hoxie examines the depression, the various solutions offered for it, and shows conclusively that most of the paternalistic and socialistic remedies proposed are as hollow as drums.

The public brings hard times on itself. "Unless the average person pays as he goes," Dr. Hoxie writes, "unless business is conducted upon a virtual barter basis, with each paying for what he gets by giving what he has currently produced, a final crash is inevitable. . . . The end comes when customers on the outer fringe have used up their saved capital and have mortgaged their earnings to the limit. Almost in a day, a considerable fraction of their buying stops. . . . Hard times are on."

As for the way out of the depression, Dr. Hoxie shows that the "assistance" of politicians and radical planners can only hinder a normal recovery. He says: "Individualism may be looked to with confidence for concrete advice respecting the best paths to pursue to more rapid and more equitable distribution of newly created wealth."

Dr. Hoxie's book is refreshing, coming as it does on the heels of a multitude of other works which, for the most part, attempt to show the need for a radical change in our system of government, and in government's relation to industry, to workers and to investors, without offering any practical substitute plan. The depression will pass—and if we are wise, it will leave us with knowledge that will enable us to prevent wild ups-and-downs in the business cycle in the future. Those interested in economic sanity rather than political radicalism, will profit by Dr. Hoxie's book.

Stay On The Job, Congress

Somebody whose familiarity with figures is on a larger scale than ours has estimated that the uncertainty as to what Congress is going to do about taxes and economics is costing the people of the United States a hundred million dollars a day. It isn't costing us, personally, that much. but we would feel relieved, as everybody else would, if we could get something definite out of Washington as a guide whereby to chart our business course for the future.

Any decision is better than no decision. The nation has been kept in suspense too long already. We know of some and hear of many more industries and business enterprises which are merely marking time until they find out what the new tax bill is going to be like. If it puts on one kind of tax, they will have to do business this way; if it is another sort of tax, then they'll have to do it another way. Meantime, it is only the part of prudence for business men so situated to sit tight and do nothing, rather than take the chance of doing the wrong thing.

We hear that the bankers are complaining that there is not enough demand for business loans for productive enterprises to enable them to lend out safely the money they are holding. We are afraid there won't be much of a demand until business knows where it is at with respect of taxes. Our observation is that Congress is showing a pretty good spirit, considering that this is a presidential year and most of the members are usually concerned more with the elections than they are with the public welfare. Many of them, in both houses, actually seem to be trying to represent the people who sent them to Washington. This is refreshing and hopeful, and we think the good work ought not to be interrupted by an adjournment merely to take in the Presidential conventions.

We want Congress to finish is work at one sitting without taking time out for play. If it can't get a constructive program completed before the conventions, let it stick in Washington until it can. We are tired of losing our share of that hundred millions a day that delay is costing us, and we think we are speaking for everybody in our part of the country in saying that it will do more harm than good to his chances for reelection for any member of either house to do anything more to drag the session out into the Summer.

Folks are getting peevish and there's no telling what they might do if things don't come to a head pretty soon.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

> "Nothing is easier than fault-finding; no talent, no self-denial; no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business."—Robert West.

And I should have headed this column with that quotation, last week.

* * *

Folks have been wrong about this idea that prosperity is "just around the corner." I've studied this situation with all necessary thought, I believe, and have reached the conclusion that the people need to get together more. In other words, the thing that is just around the corner is a feeling that they are going to 'get together' right away and everything will be jake.

* * *

I hate folks who will stand behind you and read what you are writing.

* * *

I got a good laugh just then. There was a fellow standing behind me when I was writing that big paragraph just above. He was reading it as I wrote, and says he disagrees with me about that 'just around the corner.' He says that is what's the trouble with the world now—folks are 'getting together' too much at times and places when they have no business and talking about and doing things that don't help the country along any too much, or something.

* * *

He ought to be a preacher, anyway.

* * *

I ain't grumbling, but it's got to where you don't know who to trust and who to tell to step to—. Bought an article from a man the other day, thought it was new, and come to find out that it was second-hand and had just been fixed up. I was surprised, but I suppose it is just one of those "tricks of the trade."

* * *

Whoop-la! The Democrats are coming together this time in Chilton County and the band is playing. The wagon is all dressed up and the donkey (or jassack, as you wish) has his ears all cocked up and braying. The Executive Committee of the county is going to hold a pow-wow next Saturday in Clanton, so the News says this week.

Haven't been able to find out just what is in the air, but I imagine the Committee is going to "do something" this trip. Seems that the members of the Executive Committee have their minds all washed out and ready to do some real work and how that sounds good to me. Sure, I'm a Democrat, aren't you? "Everything comes to he who waits"—so I've heard these many years of my existence. Well, the Democrats have waited, and by George, it looks like it has just come to them. Now the thing is, will they know what to do with it?

If they don't, I'll advise them to consult me as Chilton County's Certified Critter-Sizer. I have the proper treatment all worked out. It will not taste so good at first, maybe, but the effects of it are perfectly delicious, refreshing, or something.

Was reading an address by a big newspaperman, from Missouri, the other day, in which he stated," The Publisher must be able to cope with the banker, wear just as good clothes and drive just as good and as fine a car as the banker." Boy, that's a big order for a small town newspaper publisher, especially in some towns I know of. I'm glad I'm just a columnist, or something.

* * *

Arthur Johnson, Jr., is back at home from college.

The Sanitary Barber Shop sure looks different and better inside, since they have put on a new coat or two of white paint. In fact it's plum nice looking. I really like the white much better than the former color of the walls of the shop. And they are not through yet. They are going to fix up the seats and just do the job up in good shape. I admire that progressive step. 'Tis a pity some other places of business would do the same thing this summer. Paint is cheap, labor is cheaper. Now is the time for all good men to come—excuse me, you stenographers will understand about that mistake in that sentence. What I intended to say was—now is the time to clean up and paint up, give somebody a job.

The Circuit Judge race is beginning to take on color and shape now, so it seems. My mind is made up as to how I would vote. I would vote for a man who was not lined up with any "ring" or group of men who are selfish in their political motives. I want a man who does his own thinking, has backbone enough to state his opinions, and sense enough not to get angry at any little thing, and yet broad enough to listen to the other fellow's side of any question. Now, choose between your candidates, Judge F. Loyd Tate or Arthur Glover. You make your choice on June 14th at the polls, when this race will be run off.

I saw a truck from an out-of-town furniture store, drive in Clanton last week with a load of furniture. The furniture was left at some home in Clanton, the truck went back to the city, and I suppose the money did too. Now who is it in Clanton that is so ritzy, or high class, that they can't buy their furniture from a Clanton concern?

* * *

Might have stepped on somebody's toes, but it stands to reason that Clanton furniture dealers can sell you any article of furniture you need for your home. If they don't have it in stock, they can certainly get it for you. Ain't I right, furniture dealers of Clanton? Oowah!

Is Property Confiscation Approaching?

Throughout the land there is growing talk of "tax strikes." Many property owners are simply unable to pay the exorbitant levies demanded.

We are gradually approaching a time when it will be cheaper to tear down many buildings, thus creating unimproved properties, or allow the property to be taken over by the state, than to pay taxes.

Is it any wonder that the best minds of the country are regarding the tax problem as the most serious, most far-reaching and most menacing issue the people now face?

MY PERSONAL COLUMN

Billy Smith

I would like very much to personally thank, and shake hands with those people of Chilton County and elsewhere, who have recently had their names added to the subscription list of this newspaper, and have become regular readers of the News. In looking over the list of recent subscribers, I find the names of many I do not know, and I especially invite them to drop in the News office when in Clanton and get acquainted.

* * *

A day or so ago, I was again asked the question about the system used in the printing, etc. in the News plant. It is interesting to note the curiosity regarding printing that exists in the minds of persons unfamiliar with the business. It would be a pleasure to employees of the News to show and explain to anyone, about the system used in our plant in the publishing of the three newspapers and the printing of job work.

Few persons, I have found, have any knowledge of the printing trade. I once heard a newspaperman say that it should be compulsory for everyone to work in a country newspaper office for at least one month. His idea was that in the country newspaper office, one would get enough knocks from as many sources to give a taste of almost every walk of life.

I am becoming more and more impressed with the fine spirit of understanding comradeship, shown by our local pastors. Of course, I realize that all ministers are of the highest calling, but we have two in Clanton, in my opinion are of the best. They are not only ministers, in the full meaning of the word, but are men, with broad views of all that comes before them.

* * *

The Kiwanis Club had Lieut.-Gov. Lewis of Selma as guest last Thursday. I was impressed by one remark he made during his talk. He was quoting Roger Babson, when he said that people's souls have not kept up with the machinery of the world.

Notice in one of the windows at Upchurch Drug Co., photographs of local young people, tinted to a true likeness. The thought occurred to me of the rapid strides made in photography, from the time of the old tin-type, like those I find in the old camel-back trunk at home. One of the photographs shown in this window is of little Miss Joan Atkinson, clever daughter of Hon. and Mrs. J. B. Atkinson. I understand that photo received special mention at a recent art show.

I was delighted to receive an invitation to be present again at the annual Alabama Writers Conclave which is in Montevallo this month. I attended the Conclave last year and found as a very pleasant surprise, many interesting pieces of work being done in the literary field in Alabama, as well as meeting many very charming and interesting people.

* * *

It was pleasing to note the action sponsored here recently by the Clanton Study Club of putting over the task of giving all dogs in the city the anti-rabies treatment. Cooperation of the city officials and veterinarians with the club put it across. There is no way of determining the good results from this.

In a paragraph above, I spoke to the new readers of the News. Through curiosity I went through the records of a few months past to see how many persons by the name of Smith had been added. I was delighted to see several, and having the same name, I extend to them a special welcome and thanks.

A crowded house greeted the senior class of the Billingsley High School on last Sunday night at the commencement exercises of the school. Dr. D. W. Haskew delivered the Baccalaureate sermon using for his subject, "If I Were A Youth Again." He announced that he was not going to give advice, but just tell the young people present what he would do if he were permitted to live his life again.

If you have never visited the home of C. H. Roys, three miles this side of Haynes you should do so and take a look at some of the most beautiful cedar cabinet work in the State of Alabama. Mr. Roys is living on his farm but he knows how to make a living without raising five cent cotton.

Miss Ruth Prince of Alexander City was the guest in the home of her brother, A. S. Prince, last Sunday. Miss Ruth is now manager for one of the V. J. Elmore five and ten cent stores located at Alexander City.

Maplesville News

A large crowd attended the services at Maplesville Baptist Church Sunday evening. Rev. Charlie Haggard, "one of our own boys," delivered a splendid sermon. He is beginning the study of this great work in the Master's Kingdom, with the prayers of his many friends.

Friends and relatives mourn the death of Mrs. Monroe Ramsey, Sr., last Tuesday morning. Services were held in the Baptist church, Dr. S. J. Ezell of Clanton officiating. Interment was made in Maplesville cemetery, arrangements by Brislin Brothers of Selma.

Pall bearers were Kermit Cobern, Paul Cobern, Irvin Perry, Morris Foshee, Herbert Foshee, Garlan Foshee. Besides her husband, Mr. Monroe, Ramsey, Sr. three daughters survive, Mrs. Sallie Perry and Mrs. C. C. Cobern, Maplesville; one son, Mr. Monroe Ramsey, Jr., of Selma. The beautiful floral offerings attested the appreciation of a dear mother and friend.

We are delighted to have the following girls and boys home for the summer: Miss Ethel Mize of Lay Dam, teacher; Miss Elizabeth Parnell, Guntersville, teacher; Lucy Parnell of Alabama College; Louise Foshee, Womans College; Annie Laura Potts, Jacksonville; Kermit Cobern, University of Alabama; Charlie Haggard, Livingston, Ala.; Margaret Nix, Selma, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wallace, Mrs. F. A. Shanks and Mr. J. W. Foshee motored to Selma Saturday night to see Mrs. J. W. Foshee.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Guin, Jr., of Auburn, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Guin.

Dr. F. G. DuBose, formerly of Selma, but now a resident of our town, we are delighted to have him. He, Mr. Dudley Nix, Bess Nix, Mary Shanks, Pat Maples, Helen Nix, enjoyed last Thursday at Mitchell Dam.

Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Nix, Jr., Helen Nix, Mrs. T. D. Potts, Mrs. F. A. Shanks, Mrs. J. P. Payne, Normajean and Annie Lou Payne attended the graduating exercises in honor of Margaret Nix, one of one hundred and two in the Senior Class of Selma High School Monday night, May 30th.

The many friends of Mrs. J. W. Foshee will regret to learn that she continues to suffer from broken hip. She is at Vaughn's Memorial in Selma.

The many friends of Mrs. Zettie Hambrick will be delighted to know that she is doing nicely at the Baptist Hospital in Selma, where she underwent a serious operation last Wednesday.

Miss Louise Crowe, of Clanton, is the guest of Misses Ethel and Ruth Mize.

OBITUARY

God, in His infinite wisdom and mercy, has seen fit to call to himself our beloved brother and church member, Mr. William Joseph Cummings, and by his going his family has been deeply grieved and has suffered a great loss. The Mulberry Baptist Church of which he was a faithful member, will miss him in attendance. He was a friend to all with whom he came in contact, always ready to help those whom he could.

Mr. Cummings was born October 10, 1872. He died March 23, 1932, after a short illness. He was laid to rest in the cemetery at the Mulberry Baptist church. Mr. Cummings was born and reared in Coosa County. He joined the church at about 16 years of age at Concord Baptist church in Coosa County. He was always interested in church work in trying to make God's kingdom a little bigger and better.

His first marriage was to Ella Wood of Coosa County. To this union was born two children. His second marriage was to Ethel Casey, also of Coosa County. To this union was born fifteen (15) children. All of his children survive him except M. B. Cummings and a little girl.

Mr. Cummings had only been in Chilton County about a year and three months, but some of the people here have known him over 30 years.

We sorrow that he is gone, but we know if we are faithful we can go to him.

Therefore, be it resolved, first, that the Mulberry Church has lost a loyal member.

Second, that the prayer meeting has lost a faithful attendant and worker.

Third, that we bow in humble submission, believing that our great loss shall be Heaven's gain, and it shall be only for a while, and that we shall have again the splendid Christian fellowship that has been ours.

Fourth, that we revere his memory and commend his life, both in example, and deed, as that of a most worthy gentleman.

—Lorene LeCroy, chairman, Mrs. Ernest McCary, Homer Morgan, Com.

Miss Margaret Stipes and Mr. Al Crockett of Birmingham spent the week end with Miss Leora Mims.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar had as their guests last Sunday, Miss Kathryn Killebrew, Mrs. Ora Lee White and Mr. Clifford Mullins, of Tuscaloosa.

Mrs. Annie Dykes Died At Verbena May 25th

Clanton, Ala., June 1, 1932.

Dear Editor:

At 5:00 o'clock P. M., May the 25th, 1932, the death angel visited the home of W. D. Dykes, of Verbena, Ala., and bore away the sweet and loving spirit of his mother, Mrs. Annie Dykes, wife of Rev. J. M. Dykes, who passed to his reward some 18 years ago.

Mrs. Dykes at the time of her death was 63 years of age, but was until a few minutes of her death apparently well and healthy, death came almost without warning.

Mrs. Dykes possessed in a very marked degree the attributes of the old fashioned Mother. She was a Christian lady, who met the world with a smile, and always bearing her burdens and disappointments with good grace and unusual patience and a ready smile; always trusting in him who is able to support.

Mrs. Dykes was twice left a widow, and therefore was compelled to fight a great part of life's battles alone, but she never murmured nor complained but always in that simple Christ-like manner did what her hands found to do and trusted God.

She was the mother of seven children, two by a former marriage and five by the latter all of whom survive her going. They are: Mrs. Mary Wenslove of Tuscaloosa, Ala.; J. E. Wyatt of Houston, Texas; W. D. Dykes of Verbena, Ala.; Rev. B. F. Dykes of Avoca, Ind.; Mrs. M. M. Gray of Sylacauga, Ala.; S. C. Dykes of Birmingham, Ala.; and Mrs. T. E. Gray of Verbena, Ala.

To these children and her many friends, I would say, "Weep not," for we believe she is, as it were in the arms of Jesus, who will wipe all tears away and where there will be no more sorrow and no more pain, but emulate her great life and in just a short while you too, will cross over and enjoy the great bliss with her throughout eternal ages.

One who knew and loved her,
J. Z. MIMS.

Sardis News

The people of this community are working hard trying to kill the grass in their crops after the big rains in the last two weeks.

Our Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. are still on foot, though we don't have as large a crowd as we could, and would like to have. But we hope to have more in the near future. B. Y. P. U. will meet at 6:30 until further changes. So let's see how many of the members can and will be present next Sunday evening at 6:30. We would like to see more of the older people come to church and stand by the young people. We feel that they have fallen short of their duty. If you older people don't stand by the young, they won't care to do anything themselves.

Activities of The Thorsby Fruit And Truck Growers Association

We have loaded 77 cars of berries and trucked in the neighborhood of ten more for this season and while the prices throughout the whole season have been very low in this community, we expect to show as good average as in the State. We have commenced loading potatoes and expecting better returns on these than for the berries that have been shipped. However, all markets are showing large fluctuations that it is impossible to tell what tomorrow's prices will be. There is a good deal of talk of planting a fall crop of potatoes, but it would be advisable for all growers to keep in touch with the association regarding the planting of such a crop.

The fifth Sunday ally day here was attended by a large crowd. Prof. O. O. Womsby and about twenty-five others from Haleyville came and furnished the music and singing. They sang several quartets and duets. Everybody seemed to enjoy this singing. The speakers on the program were Miss Lillian McKee, Rev. E. W. Butler, Rev. J. E. Each, Miss Frances Wilson, Rev. A. C. Nelson and Miss Lula Courtney. At the close of the day's program, Rev. Nations spoke about the progress this church has made during the last six years. There were four song books that belonged to the Haleyville choir which got misplaced some way. It will be appreciated if the parties that have these books will return them here in care of the pastor.

JOSEPH THE WORKER

Genesis 41:46-57

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Joseph, the son of Jacob, had a great variety of trainings. The eleven brothers thought they were through with him and the implications of his dreams when those Midianite merchants led the Canaanites onward from Dothan in upper Palestine to far away Egypt. He had seen the caravans proceed around to Egypt and had longed to know what might be the outcome. It is fine to see how plain, practical common sense can work out to real personal advantage.

There was no trouble in marketing such a slave. He finds himself in a better class home. The Hebrew lad soon rose to local prominence but this very success from hard work caused him to become the center of a plot by the designing wife in that home (Genesis 39:1-20).

Whatever Joseph sought to do it was done well. When the two prisoners that were also confined were discussing their dreams, Joseph gave them the interpretations. One would be free, while the other would meet death. The butler promised under these circumstances that he would say a good word for Joseph. Follow this promise made to its final conclusion.

Joseph now stands before Pharaoh. Leaving he tours the land. Egypt was to have seven plenteous years when an abundant harvest would be gathered. He now assembled all the food, which were as the sand of the sea.

Duty, honor, and faith kept Joseph pure and true. It carried him through and will accomplish the same for you.

Thief? — Part I

"Fred, I saw Sam going across the lot back of our house this morning with something in a bag, but I couldn't tell what it was. He came out of Mrs. Glover's back yard and I know Mrs. Glover was not at home, for she went away yesterday to be gone a month."

"Rufe, do you guess he stole something?" asked Fred Hix.

"I don't know, but I'm going to watch him all right," replied Rufe McNef.

"Well, mother, here's the bag of scraps Mrs. Glover left inside her back porch for you," said Sam Clayton. "But, mother, I felt right guilty going in to get them and nobody there to give them to me, even if she did write you to send me for them. I wish she had told you instead of writing that note at the last minute. Then I could have gone after them before she left. I came back by the back trail to see about the little bird that fell out of its nest yesterday. It's able to fly this morning. 'Bye, mother, I'm off to school."

"Goodby, son," said mother Clayton, and she smiled as she watched her merry boy run whistling to school.

At school that day Sam, with his usual pleasantry, made the day run more smoothly for his teachers and schoolmates, but jealousy was working behind his back. Only two weeks before Sam had won a coveted prize in school work. Rufe McNef had wanted that prize and would have won it if Sam's work had not been better. Rufe had proved himself to be a poor sport and a poor loser, for he had sulked ever since Sam had won the prize. His best friend, Fred Hix, told him that he had won the prize and that the judges should have given it to him. With encouragement from his would-be-comforter Rufe's jealousy soon grew into hatred toward Sam.

On the day that Rufe saw Sam carrying home the bag of scraps, Fred told some friends that Rufe had seen Sam sneaking across a back lot with something in a bag.

"And boys," he continued, "I guess we'd better watch all we've got. You know Sam had on the best clothes he has the night he got the prize and they are too little for him. Look at him out there now with his patched overalls on. I guess he's been getting our pencils and paper. I say we'd better watch all we've got, clothes and all."

"Yes, people say that all they have to live on is what Mrs. Clayton earns sewing and making quilts and what Sam makes delivering papers, so I guess he would steal," added Rufe.

For days Sam did not notice the suspicious looks cast toward him everywhere he went. He did not know that he had been branded with the name of thief. He went on whistling while delivering papers, running errands for his mother, and doing odd jobs that he could get to do after school hours.

Days passed into weeks, and Sam began to feel the distrust of his customers. Some of them began to buy their papers from another boy, and he could not get many jobs to do after school. Many of Mrs. Clayton's customers went elsewhere to have their sewing done. The hard lot of Mrs. Clayton and Sam became harder. Not until Rufe's crowd began to taunt him with "thief" and "sticky fingers" did Sam or his mother realize why they were scorned. Even then they could not understand.

Mrs. Glover's visit was extended to two months. When she came home she went at once to Mrs. Clayton's to pay for the quilt that she had asked her to make. She noticed that Mrs. Clayton was greatly worried, but she did not ask any questions. When Sam went to deliver the quilt, she noticed that he was not the merry whistling boy that she had always known him to be. Sam was sad.

When she saw Mrs. McNef, Rufe's mother, she mentioned the worried, friendless look on Mrs. Clayton's face and asked Mrs. McNef if she knew what the trouble was.

"Well, I guess maybe I do," answered Mrs. McNef. "People say that Sam has turned out to be a thief. The first I heard of it was soon after you went to visit your sister. Mrs. Hix told me that Fred said the boys at school were afraid to trust Sam any more. He said little things went missing around school, like pencils and paper, you know, and sometimes a book; but say, Mrs. Glover, have you missed anything? Rufe saw Sam sneaking across the back lot the morning after you went away, and he had a sack of something that he got out of your house."

Alabama's Greatest Tornado

It was on March the twenty-first, just about the close of day,
When the people of Chilton saw the tornado coming their way.
Some were at the supper table eating their evening meal.
They never realized th storm coming across the field.
Some looked and said, "Oh, Lord, this is more than we can stand,"
As they saw the mighty storm sweeping across the land.
There came a mighty roar; there came a mighty thunder,
The people's little homes were left a mass of plunder.
Some were left rejoicing; some were shouting and crying,
While among the debris many poor souls were dying,
The good doctors and nurses took charge of the wounded and dead,
And the kind people everywhere said,
"the living had to be clothed, sheltered and fed."
When this was over, my house was demolished; my cow was carried off in the air,
But in my arms was my precious family
as if there had been no storm there.
Remember, dear people, such as this would not have been,
If only we could keep our hearts clean and pure without the stain of sin.

MRS. ANNIE E. RAMSEY

On May 24th, 1932, at 7:50 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Monroe Ramsey and took his beloved wife, Mrs. Annie E. Ramsey, aged 82.

She was born August, 1849. She was a member of Mt. Carmel Baptist church for sixty-odd years and a faithful member. She was well known about that section and Maplesville. She married fifty-odd years ago. There were four children to bless their home.

She died after an illness of nine weeks. Everything that human hands could do was done for her. She was cheerful and faithful until the end. To know her meant to love her. She always did deeds of kindness for other people. She was a faithful Christian and lived every day for her Heavenly Master.

Her shining life deserves to be ranked among the noblest and best along life's way. The influence of her life will continue to shine more bright as the years pass on. She lived to let her light shine before others. We shall miss the light which we saw in her. Though we shall greatly miss her presence, her gentle disposition, kindly smiles and comforting words, but may each of us strive to live up to her example of never growing tired of doing our best for our Heavenly Father.

She lived such a beautiful Christian life before her family and friends that they might carry a beautiful memory of her.

She leaves to mourn her death her husband, three daughters, Mrs. C. C. Cobern, Mrs. M. O. Perry of Maplesville, Mrs. T. A. Wright of Linden, one son, Monroe Ramsey, of Selma. Seven grandchildren, Dr. F. D. and Paul Cobern of Birmingham, Kermit Cobern of the University of Alabama, Irving and Melvin Perry of Maplesville, Tommie Kate and T. A. Wright of Linden. One great-grandchild, Jea Cobern of Birmingham. One brother, J. W. Foshee. Two sisters, Mrs. C. J. Cobern and Miss Minnie Foshee, all of Maplesville.

Service was held at ten o'clock Wednesday morning from the Maplesville Baptist church, Dr. S. J. Ezell of the Clanton Baptist church officiating. Interment was made in the Maplesville cemetery, arrangements by Brislin Brothers of Selma. There were many beautiful floral offerings.

Pallbearers were Paul, Kermit Cobern, Garland, Maurice, Hubert Foshee and Irving Perry.

Miss Madelyn Orr Honored With Shower

Perhaps one of the loveliest of the pre-nuptial affair being given for Miss Madelyn Orr, a charming bride of June 4th was the beautiful Bridge-Linen shower at which Mrs. Dick Hayes and Mrs. James Wade were joint hostesses at the home of their mother, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, on Monday afternoon at three o'clock.

For this occasion the receiving apartment of this lovely home were made most attractive with pink roses, gladiolas, sweet peas, poppies and larkspur, arranged in silver baskets and lively floor standards.

Mrs. Dick Hayes greeted the guests at the door.

After the games for which seven tables had been arranged, prizes were awarded to Mrs. Page, for high score, Miss Madelyn Orr, cut prize. Miss Orr, the charming honoree, was also presented with a handsome Maderia linen luncheon set.

The lovely gifts were presented to the bride-elect by Mary Courtney Jones. They were in a huge heart-shaped box, showered with a gorgeous boquet of white iris and specimen delphinium shower.

The bride-elect was becomingly gowned in a lovely creation of blue and pink frost crepe with entire ensemble of hat, shoes and gloves complementing the costume. A chic color note was the French blue girdle, clasped with a beautuful shell pink buckle.

A delicious salad plate was served.

Bride-Elect Entertains Informally.

On Saturday afternoon from four to six o'clock, Miss Madelyn Orr, whose marriage to Vester Bryan Curtis will be an event of June 4th, was very informally at home to her friends.

The affair was in the nature of a Trosseau Tea, and no invitations were issued. Mrs. L. F. Gerald and Mrs. John Page received for Miss Orr. Mrs. Marcus Polk and Mrs. Barney Burnett modeled the exquisite finery so dear to the heart of a bride.

The home was lovely with vari-colored garden flowers and gladioli. Miss Peggy Page, Miss Celia Gerald and Little Theda Wyatt and Nell Rockett dispensed punch to the large number of friends who called during the afternoon. The charming bride-elect was lovely indeed in a black and white flowered crepe costume.

Bride-Elect Honored With Bridge Party And Shower.

Miss Madelyn Orr, bride-elect, was the charming guest of honor at a joint bridge party and handkerchief shower given by Mrs. J. C. Page and Mrs. L. F. Gerald at the beautiful home of Mrs. L. F. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gillespie are rejoicing over the arrival of a little daughter, who arrived early Sunday morning. They gave her the name of Essie Sue.

IN MEMORY

On the evening of May 21st. about six o'clock the death angel visited the home of Mr. Jimmie Walker of Alpine Community and bore away the spirit of his loving wife, Eunice, to its home on the Great Beyond.

She was sick only a few days with a disease of which none knew. Doctors, friends and loved ones did all they could to restore her back to good health, but God knew best and took her home to rest.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband and three daughters, Lorene, Elsie Mae and Doris Lee, the baby, about nine months old. Besides, father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ousley, and five brothers, and four sisters, Mr. T. H. Ousley, Mr. Henry Ousley, Mr. Elton Ousley, Mr. Bruce Ousley, Mrs. J. T. Walker, Mrs. H. T. Gregg, Mrs. E. W. Walker, Miss Mollie Belle Ousley, besides other relatives and friends.

It was hard to give her up, but God knoweth best and took her soul home to rest. Weep not, loved ones, and friends, for she has left this world of trials and temptations and has crossed over on the shining shore, where there will be no sorrow.

She is standing at the pearly gates with outstretched hand, bidding us to come and live with her in that sweet Promised Land.

We weep for her, no tenderer wife e'er made man's fireside bright.
No more devoted mother love e'er kept home altar fire alight.
And she is with the angel host
With sinless heart and stainless hand,
Waiting to meet the loved ones to come
To that bright and happy land.
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon His love had given.
And though the body slumbers here
The soul is safe in Heaven.

Funeral services were held at Alpine church with Rev. J. E. Moore, pastor, officiating, with Brislin Bros. in charge.

The Men's Bible class will have a special speaker next Sunday morning at 9:45 in the person of Prof. L. D. Haskew. We urge a full attendance.

The message at 11 A. M. will be on the subject, "Courage." That is something that is needed by all the people of Chilton County. Give us a large crowd. It is so much easier to preach to folks than it is to empty benches.

The night services will be, Young People's organizations at seven o'clock and preaching at 7:45. Meet with us for our evening devotions.

Do you really know the way to the church of which you are a member? If so, how often do you find your footsteps in that way? It may be that the dust of last fall settled down over the last tracks that you made toward the house of God. The rains of the Spring may have washed away the last tracks you made. Make some more next Sunday.

Old Folks Have Good Meeting At Friendship

sermon of Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, but for some reason he was not there, so the committee got busy and had the place filled by another, Rev. Jim Thomas of Elmore county. Rev. Thomas filled the hour with much credit to himself and to the satisfaction of all present. A vote of thanks and appreciation by the audience was voted to Rev. Thomas, in which nearly everyone present expressed themselves by the uplifted hand, that they had enjoyed the message.

After a few announcements, some resolutions were offered and the meeting adjourned to meet again next year. The following resolutions were offered and adopted:

Resolutions

Recognizing the power for good to be derived when God in the person of the Holy Spirit is present with a gathering of Christian men and women, and realizing the fact that the greatest need of the world today is a turning of the people from worldly and perishable things and from the multiple forms of sin and ungodliness, to the pursuit of those things that enrich the soul, strengthen the faith and elevate lives to the reverence, love and adoration of God and His kingdom on earth,

And believing that it is for the fostering of these noble ideals and for perpetuating the faith that was once delivered to the Saints that this old folks and ministers gathering is held annually at Friendship;

Be it therefore resolved by all who have accepted the invitation of our host and are attending this the fourth session of the gathering, that we, in a body, extend our appreciation to the people of Friendship church and community for their cordial hospitality and for the generous and kind spirit in which we have been entertained in the capacity of this annual gathering.

Further, we ask and urge that the affair be held next year and from year to year on in the future, and we invoke the blessings of Almighty God upon the institution so long as it may exist. We also pray the blessings of the most high God upon Friendship church and its members for making this meeting possible for us. Respectfully submitted, H. W. Devaughn, J. V. Best, Riley Robinson, Committee.

Respects Rev. S. M. Adams

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions in respect to the late Rev. Samuel Memory Adams, and said committee reports as follows:—

Whereas, God has seen fit to call from us a beloved co-worker and minister of the Gospel, Rev. Samuel Memory Adams, and since he had heretofore attended this annual meeting, and two years ago preached for us; and since Bro. Adams was the first pastor of Friendship church, which is host to this gathering;

And in recognition of the many years of faithful service to the cause of Christ and the untiring and arduous efforts put forth by the deceased brother in behalf of God's kingdom on earth; and recognizing the great power which he for many years wielded thru the churches of our county and the great amount of good accomplished for the cause;

Be it therefore resolved that this gathering of ministers and older folks tender its fondest and cherished respects to the memory of Bro. Adams. His road through life was not strewn with flowers, but his hardships and trials were many, however he withstood them all with the fortitude of a real soldier and we believe has won for himself a crown of the purest gold in that beautiful world that shall never end.

Be it resolved further that a copy of these resolutions be furnished The Alabama Baptist and both the county papers for publication.

We would also like to mention the names of Rev. A. Dewey Huett, who was in our meeting a year ago, and Bro. R. M. Roebuck, who was with us in our 1930 meeting, both of whom have departed this life since our last meeting. Respectfully submitted,— A. L. Foshee, T. E. Wyatt, W. P. Lowery, Committee.

the diverting of educational funds to carry on other needs of the State. He charged that the State was discriminating against the teachers when the governor and all the State employees were paid their salaries in full, the Penitentiary force had supplies and salaries, the Assylum force had full salaries and sufficient supplies and many other State pay rolls were kept up to date. He said that it was hard to understand why the powers that be would permit this kind of discrimination, but he said that the high ruling was that funds be diverted and the empty bag had fallen at the feet of the teachers of the boys and girls of Alabama.

Dr. Harman said that the teachers of Alabama were never known to strike for better conditions, but that it was his honest opinion that something should be done to relieve the situation. He said that the matter would come back to the youth of the State and that the boys and girls of Chilton county would be made to pay for the lack of funds in the educational treasury. It was his opinion that it would not be advisable to open a single school in the State if provisions were not made to pay the limited salaries of teachers.

A. A. JACKSON PUTS QUESTION O CONTINUED PROSP'RTY TO VOTERS

Says He Has Had Enough Of The Administration Und Republican Power; Urges Voters To Give Other Party A Chance

Dear Editor Chilton County News:

Will you please give me space in your paper to say a few words to the voters of Chilton County?

Especially to the farmers and laborers:

First, I want to ask what was the condition of our country four years ago when the present administration took charge of the affairs of our country. They organized the Federal Farm Bureau, and went into the wheat and cotton market. And when the bureau began buying wheat was bringing about $1.40 per bushel and cotton 16 to 18 cents per pound. What happened then. The money kings who had charge of the market began to foresee a market decline and as the market declined the bureau went down as the market went down. But the bureau continued to buy until they had bought about forty million bushels of wheat and two million bales of cotton. Both wheat and cotton continued to decline in price until the bureau quit buying. The money kings run the bureau out of the market and left them with their wheat and cotton on their hands.

The bureau gave the wheat to poor old suffering humanity and I suppose they have the cotton yet on their hands.

Now, here is the point I want the voters to see. If the money kings are strangers and have more power than the present administration, what hope can we farmers and laborers have for relief from the present Republican administration? Here we are in a la of plenty and millions suffering fo want of food and clothing, millions o homes sold for taxes, millions of hom lost on account of mortgages fo closed. Who is responsible for cond tions.

Hasn't it been clearly proven du the past four years that the mon kings are a stronger power than th present administration. Mr. Voter, o en your eyes, consider what has ha pened to you in the past four years.

Do you want to see conditions co tinue as they are? Is not any admini tration supposed to protect the wea from the oppression of the strong?

What protection have the farmer and laborers had during the past fo years? Now, what are we going to d about it? Are we going to continue t support the Republican party?

I, for one, will not, and will not sup port any candidate that wants to con tinue the present Hoover Prosperity.

I feel it my duty to do all I can hon orably to defeat the present Republi can administration, and the only wea on I have any knowledge of that woul hurt a Republican is a Democrat vot

In conclusion, let me ask the voter of Chilton County: Do you want a co tinuation of present conditions? If s vote for Hoover Prosperity. If no vote against Hoover Prosperity.

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON.

PLAN TO SECURE FARM LANDS FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

Land Owners Asked for Their Cooperation In Plan Explained Here

There is a plan on foot to secure farm lands for those families, whose heads are out of work and will be in destitute circumstances in the coming year. Following is a communication from a committee working on this idea, explaining their purpose and the information desired.

Land owners in Chilton County are asked to cooperate in any way possible in this:

Editor, Chilton County News:

Your publication of this request for information from land owners is requested.

In view of the prospect of indefinite continuation of general unemployment, we are undertaking to assemble data for a program of relief to be based on self-sustaining farm units. As a first step it is essential that we ascertain whether privately owned lands are immediately available on terms such as stated below, assuming the necessary cooperation by state and relief agencies. Relief agencies in other states have requested us to make the inquiry as comprehensive as practicable, in order to determine whether the program can be extended to aid industrial unemployment in their area.

Owners of available farm lands are urgently requested to communicate the fact immediately to the Secretary, with a view to the beginning of trial units without delay. The following condi-

THE LEADER LISTS MANY BARGAINS IN THIS ISSUE

Many merchants are realizing that the buying public is looking for bargains more each day and have spent considerable time and money to locate goods they can sell at the lowest of prices, yet keep their standard of quality up.

To this end, Mr. Lande, of The Leader, one of the large dry goods stores in Clanton, has been working in order to give to the people of this section the very lowest prices he can find. Mr. Lande stated to the News that he has never seen prices on dry goods so low and has watched his purchases so that he could take advantage of all savings possible and pass them on to his customers.

In this issue will be found a large ad from The Leader. Mr. Lande says the prices shown in this ad are representative of all prices on articles in his store. He also stated that by using considerable advertising space, he is trying to tell the people that he has quality goods at the lowest prices and that they now can purchase wearing apparel at very reasonable prices. In doing this, Mr. Lande is not only advertising his goods, but is rendering a service as well.

Kiwanians To Enjoy Boat Ride Tonight

Something that is looked forward to by members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club will take place tonight. This is a ride on the big boat on Lake Mitchell, at Mitchell Dam. Each year the local club goes on this outing, and each time is declared more enjoyable than the one before.

Members with their lady guests will arrive at Mitchell Dam promptly at 5:30 this afternoon and board the boat at that time. Picnic lunches are to be served on the boat and the entire program will take place there. Those who are looking forward to this are hoping for a pretty moonlight night. There will be no meeting at the noon hour today as the outing tonight will take its place.

LARGEST TAX SINCE THE WAR TO BECOME LAW

President Signs Bill Making Tax Bill Another Law To Begin Soon

Washington, June 6.—The biggest collection of taxes ever enacted by the United States in peacetime became law with a scratch of President Hoover's pen at 5 p.m. Monday while the Senate plunged ahead with the national economy bill, needed to finish the budget balancing task.

The chief executive signed the $1,118,500,000 revenue measure less than two hours after it passed its final legislative test with Senate approval of the conference report reconciling differences in the measure as passed by the Senate and House.

Accepted 46 to 35

By a vote of 46 to 35, the Senate accepted the bill in its final form after a sharp debate in which an unsuccessful effort was made to have it sent back to conference for revision of a section imposing a 3 per cent tax on electrical energy to be paid by the consumer.

Eleven Republicans, most of them members of the independent wing, voted with 23 Democrats and the one Far-

EX-SERVICE MEN TAKE NOTICE

The News has been requested to announce that George W. Cameron, State Field Service Commissioner, will be in Clanton from six o'clock Friday afternoon, June 17th until five o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 18th, to render any advice or assistance he can to the ex-soldiers of Chilton County on any question relative to claims against the Veterans Bureau.

Mr. Cameron will have his headquarters at the offices of Percy M. Pitts, in Clanton. All ex-service men who have any question in regard to this are urged to see Mr. Cameron at the time he is in Clanton.

DEMOCRATS HOLD MEETING HERE; LARGE NUMBER IN ATTENDANCE

Vacancy Of Candidate In County School Board On Democratic Ticket Will Be Filled; Many New Faces Seen At The Meeting Last Saturday

Considerable interest was shown at the meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee held at the Wilson Hotel last Saturday morning, with a large number of Democrats present, who discussed freely, matters of importance to the party prior to the coming elections in the county.

Those members who were present were P. D. Wilson, chairman, H. N. Smith, Beat 10; W. B. Strock, Beat 5; O. O. Roper, Beat 4; B. M. Killingsworth, Beat 13; W. M. Oden, Beat 7; George T. Guy, Beat 5; J. B. Atkinson, Beat 4; W. A. Gulledge, Beat 5; Mrs. Lucy Parnell, Beat 7.

There were many others present, not members of the Executive Committee who participated in the deliberations of the meeting. One of the noticeable things about this meeting was the presence of several who heretofore have not been attending the meetings.

Motion was made and carried which nominated a committee to nominate another Democratic candidate for member of the county board of education, there having been only one announced in the first primary, and the opening for two places on the board.

The present candidates, namely, J. L. Davis for Commissioner from 3rd District, J. H. Jackson, 4th District, G. W. Edwards, for member of the school board and W. Louie Smith, county treasurer, were endorsed unanimously by the meeting, and undivided support pledged to all county Democratic candidates.

Several other matters were attended to and the meeting adjourned at lunch time. Among those who were present from various sections of the county were, Dr. P. T. Hinkle, J. V. Best, Howard Roper, J. L. Davis, R. L. Williams, C. K. Green, W. H. Veazey, G. W. Edwards, T. W. Bryan, Guy Higgins, Wallace Cox and Grover C. Walker.

WE NEED MORE MEN OF A. A. JACKSON'S COURAGE

When Mr. A. A. Jackson of Lomax took courage and publicly announced last week that he was done with the Republican Party and would align himself—in the future—with the Democratic Party, the Man in the Moon began to burn brush on Sunday, and the Republican Organ played "Farewell To Thee," but no doubt uttered a wish that other Republicans, who are Democrats at heart and believe in Democratic Principles as did Mr. Jackson, before his courageous move, would not follow him with like announcement, publicly, that they, too, were going to the Democratic Party. The Jackson announcement hurt, and hurt bad, the Republican Organ, and shook the craters on the moon.

The Democratic Party welcomes Mr. Jackson into its ranks and assures him and others who have announced privately their intention to join our Party, that they will be accorded just and fair consideration in all Party matters, so that we may reclaim the control of Our Government from the hands of the Money Kings and Special Privilege bunch, who for selfish and personal gain have wrenched from the Farmer the fruits of his labors, without just compensation, and have caused millions of the laboring class of people to be without employment and without food and raiment. They have forced these laboring people to the soup lines and made beggars of men, women and children, who are honest and want to earn their livelihood by the sweat of their brow.

Yet, Mr. Jackson, when he cuts loose from aiding and abetting such conduct, by a bunch of Pillagers and Plunderers of the People's Tax Moneys for selfish gain, and announces publicly his alignment with the Party who has fought and stands for the interest of the common people, is charged with leaping from the Frying Pan into the Fire. If it is from the Frying Pan into the fire, then where will men and women, who want a change in Government administration, jump? Who will stop the Communism and other isms that have flourished under the present Republican administration.

It is true that coming events always cast their shadows before them and we must say, that the Jackson announcement cast a shadow sufficient to cause a full eclipse of the moon.

If the Republican Organ and its eclipsed moon Man, would bow down in grief and sorrow for their Political errors in misleading men and women to follow the Money Kings and Special Privilege bunch of the Republican Machine, then they would have their bodies at right angles and would jump to the Democratic Party without beckon or call to do so, from any source, except the urging force of having the interest of the Common People at heart.

Let's remember that Cleveland has been charged, in the past, as being the direct cause of the Panic during his administration. Was he? If so, then is Hoover? If not, Cleveland's accusers should now explain why they made the accusation.

Prebyterians Have Preacher For Summer

There will be services at the First Presbyterian Church in Clanton each Sunday during the summer, according to J. M. McNair, who recently arrived in Clanton to assume his duties as pastor of the church.

Mr. McNair has spent the past two years in the Seminary in Atlanta, while his home is in Troy. He arrived in Clanton Friday, and is now making his home at the residence of Mrs. Clara Curry here.

Mr. McNair announces services for next Sunday as follows: Sabbath School, 10:00 a.m. Morning Worship at eleven o'clock, subject "The Three Crosses." A hearty welcome awaits you at the Presbyterian church in Clanton next Sunday morning.

MERCHANTS SET CLOSING HOURS DURING SUMMER

Majority of Stores in Clanton To Close At Six P. M. For Two Months

Sponsored by the Pilot Club of Clanton, a movement has been successful to get business houses to agree on certain hours for closing during the summer. This was done rather than agree to a half day closing as has been customary here.

It is believed that by closing earlier each day, except Saturday, clerks and other employees will be given more benefit, than by having a half holiday each week.

The Pilot Club met with hearty cooperation on this movement and following is a list of business houses signing this agreement, and the hours they agree to close.

We, the undersigned dry goods, hardware, and general merchandise merchants, agree to close our respective places of business at 6 P. M. of each day, except Saturday and the undersigned markets and grocery stores agree to close our respective places of business at 7:30 P. M. of each week day, except Saturday and it is agreed and understood that this agreement shall commence the 13 day of June, 1932 and shall continue until the 15 day of August, 1932, and we, and each of us, agree to close our doors strictly at said hour during said period of time and on said days, as we believe the same will be of mutual benefit to both our employees and the public as well.

JACKSON REPLIES TO CRITICISM OF REPUBLICANS IN MAKING CHANGE

Says Republican Paper Admitted He Was Right About Present Conditions and Republican Administration In Leaving The G. O. P.

Below will be found a letter from A. A. Jackson, of Lomax, which is a reply to the editorial which appeared in The Union-Banner last week, following Mr. Jackson's open statement that he had had enough of Republican administration.

Mr. Jackson's reply, which follows, is sent to the Union-Banner for publication this week.

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you be kind enough to permit me space in your paper to reply to Frying Pan Editorial which appeared in last week's Union Banner.

Now Mr. Editor, I shall be somewhat plain, and as pointed as possible, as you know that is the way we old farmers like to have things.

As to your Editorial, I can see nothing that pertains to the benefit of the laborers and farmers. But I can see a lot of punky stuff that I call Propaganda.

Any fair minded and honest person who read my article and your Editorial that appeared in the Union Banner of last week knows that you agreed with the text of my article when you said:

"The powers that have brought the present economic conditions are powers that can not be controlled by any political administration at Washington."

Now, my Dear Editor, would you think for a moment that the voters of this great Nation, or even the voters of Chilton County, would believe such Propaganda?

Mr. Editor, you say that I am caught in the net of Democratic deceptions and that the Democrats make men like me believe the whole trouble with our economic situation should be blamed on the inefficiency of the Republican administration.

No, Mr. Editor, you are mistaken, when you say the Democrats are responsible for the lesson I have learned.

I got the lesson by costly experience by the Republican administrations.

If I thought as you say that no administration at Washington could do anything with the present depression, I would not care who ran the affairs of our Country, whether he be Republi-

Chilton County School Page In This Issue

As was announced sometime ago, the County Board of Education has made plans whereby they hope to give the people of the county a better insight into educational affairs of the county. To accomplish this, the papers here have agreed to give this purpose a full page each month.

The first page appears in this issue, headed "Chilton County School Page" and carrying photograph of the Thomas Junior High School, and several articles of interest, relative to the schools in the county and departments of educational work.

The plan is to publish a page like this once each month. Articles are to be prepared by various persons over the county who are familiar with the schools in this county. After you have read this page this week, pass it on to your neighbor if he doesn't receive either of the county papers.

The many friends of Dr. N. B. McLeod, presiding elder of the Selma district, will sympathize with him in the serious illness of Mrs. McLeod. At present she is in one of the hospitals in Selma, having undegone an operation.

Next Tuesday Is Election Day Here

Next Tuesday, June 14th, the second primary election will be held at the regular polling places throughout the county. The same election officers will serve, as served in the primary on May 3rd.

There are several offices with candidates in the run-off, to determine the nominee. On county officers on the Democratic ticket, there are no run-offs, but there is one of interest in the Circuit Judge race between Arthur Glover and Judge F. Loyd Tate, and others in national government.

LOCAL POST AMERICAN LEGION CONDEMNS CAPITOL BONUS TREK

Urges Respect Of Laws And Upholds Their Allegiance To The Constitution of United States For Law And Order Always

Action by Chilton County Post of the American Legion in its monthly meeting Monday night indicates that the Legion is bitterly opposed to the rackets that have been raised by unemployed ex-service men marching to Washington and insisting upon the payment of the soldiers bonus.

The local Post Monday night drafted the following resolution dealing with the subject, and requested its publication:

"In view of the fact that the public attention has been recently drawn to the action of a number of ex-service men who have gathered themselves together and in an unorganized manner gone to Washington presumably to demand of the Government the immediate payment of the soldier's bonus, the Chilton County Post of the American Legion believes that such action on the part of ex-service men at this time is unwise, unsound and un-American. The American Legion does not approve of nor sponsor such action, and we feel that it is in justice to the American Legion to let the public know that the Legion is not in any way connected with the movement of this group of men who are perhaps not connected with any officially organized group of World War veterans.

Chilton County Post of the American Legion, according to the Preamble of our Constitution, hereby reaffirms our allegiance to the Constitution of the United States, and declare ourselves to maintain law and order in everything and to perpetuate one hundred per cent Americanism.

"We, of course, would welcome the payment of the Government's obligation to ex-service men, but we do not approve of the methods of certain unorganided groups in attempting to demand certain things of the Government in the manner that has been recently attempted. We believe our Government seriously recognizes its obligation to ex-service men, and will fully discharge those obligations as soon as is reasonable and consistent with the general interest of the people of our country."

The schools came to the close of a successful year Friday. After the exercises at the Elementary Building, a picnic was enjoyed by pupils, teachers, parents and friends. Ball games in the afternoon at the High School furnished amusement. Expressions were heard from many of the pleasant day, and the spirit of good will which prevailed.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Rew, Mrs. Forest Collier of Prattville attended the school picnic Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. O'Gynn of Montgomery were the guests of friends here Friday.

Mrs. J. A. Elliott of Equality is visiting her brother, Dr. A. J. Marlar, and family.

MICE CAGES

The attention of the passersby is attracted to the mice cage that hangs immediately in front of Mr. Alred's store. The two mice therein, even though not as musical nor as beautiful as canaries, are nevertheless more amusing and entertaining while spinning the little disc attached to a tilted pedestal. The hookup is something similar to a treadmill and could hardly be cruelty to dumb animals or rodents—but that they are dumb is incontestible.

Someone at Rockett's store has constructed a cage that has two such wheels and has placed therein a whole family of mice including apparently the children of two generations. So you see the horsepower in this one is decidedly greater. Well this has been an age of improvement and increased output. Of course it's all wasted energy from a commercial standpoint; and to the extent that those mice are concerned, it's a total loss. But it seems that they are slow to wake-up to the realization of that fact. Mice are stupid anyway—rats are much wiser.

Those mice remind me of a lot of people, especially during the depression. When they get half way to the top of the disc on the outer edge they have to run fast to stay still. And further, they work hard but accomplish nothing —lost motion. Wouldn't this world be a more wonderful place if men had energy and endurance in proportion to those mice and could back it up with genius.

We are told by physicists that if friction or wasted energy in machinery could be entirely eliminated we would have perpetual motion. And we are told by good statesmen that if every tax dollar was wisely and honestly spent our three units or divisions of government would have a surplus instead of a deficit. The one is obviously impossible—the other apparently so. But machines have been produced that approach one hundred per cent efficiency, but there is no case on record where this has been true of a political machine. However, when the time comes that all concerned give as much thought and honest effort to the development and improvement of government as is given to machinery, its efficiency will exceed that of the btst motor ever constructed.

Around and around those mice go, wasting energy. On and on our governments go, buying energy for which they get no complete or fair return.

Curtis-Orr Marriage Last Saturday Is Outstanding Event In Social Life Of Clanton

The marriage of Miss Madely Orr, daughter of Mrs. Franklin Orr and the late Mr. Orr, of Clanton, to Vester B. Curtis took place on Saturday at the Presbyterian Church, in the presence of a large assemblage of guests from over the State. Dr. Donald C. MacGuire performed the ceremony. The decorations were of much beauty. The decorations within the chancel were of palms and ferns, which made background for pink gladioli, and pastel shaded roses and snapdragons. Standards were placed at intervals down the center aisle, and to these were tied bouquets of delphiniums, in soft shades and pink rose buds. The altar held candelabra burning tapers and in the center was a huge basket of pink gladioli, showered with rose buds.

The first of the bridal party to enter were groomsmen and ushers. These were Dr. John Martin, James Boyd, Lawrence Rutter, all of Montgomery, D. M. Corley, of Birmingham.

The bride's matrons were Mrs. A. B. Curtis and Mrs. W. G. Orr, of Birmingham; Miss Sara Cummings, maid of honor, Clearwater, Fla. Mrs. Curtis was in a gown of Spanish lace, shaded from pink to blue, designed by Emmett Joyce; Mrs. Orr was in a gown of peau de Agne, of pale blue; Miss Cummings was in crepe Elizabeth made with panels of Chantilly lace, in peach color. They carried bouquets of snapdragons, roses and delphiniums, in shades matching the gowns.

The junior bridesmaids were Cecilia Gerald and Peggy Page. They were in frocks of pink and blue, respectively, made on princess lines, of aaffeta with flared skirt of net. They carried Colonial bouquets of roses and snapdragons.

Margaret Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wade, of Russellville, was flower girl. She wore a frock of pink net over taffeta, made in Colonial style, and carried a basket of rose petals.

John Burtin Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Higgins, was ring bearer. He wore a suit of ivory satin.

Train bearers were Jean Mullins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Renfro Mullins and Martha Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Higgins.

They wore ankle length frocks of pink net over taffeta, made in Colonial style. The neck was cut round and worn off the shoulders.

The bride entered with her brother, William Gray Orr, of Birmingham, who gave her in marriage. Mr. Orr had for best man, Arthur B. Curtis, of Birmingham. The bride wore a lovely gown of ivory bridal satin, made in long lines, of Princess mode. A scalloped cutting was a lovely detail of the gown. Molded to the figure, the knees, it flared in graceful fulness, into a train two yards long.

The bodice had a square neck. The sleeves were long and ended in points over the hand.

The veil of ivory bridal illusion had a cap of princess lace, and to each side were clusters of orange blossoms, which extended in a half-wreath across the back of the head. The bridal bouquet was of orchids, and valley lilies showered.

The music was a beautiful part of the impressive ceremony. Alonzo Meek, organist, of Selma, was director of the program. Soloist was Ernest Leatherwood of Selma. "Because," (d'Hardelet), was sung, and at the conclusion of the prayer, "Prayer Perfect," was sung. Misses Jane and Helen Roberts, violinists, played selections.

The reception which followed at the home of the bride's mother, assembled many guests. The house was decorated in flowers arranged in tall standards.

The bride's table was centered with the cake, made in tiers, and embossed in valley lilies and pink roses.

This rested on a plateau of valley lilies and maiden hair fern.

Antique candelabra on the table held ivory tapers. Salvers were filled with wedding bonbons in form of flowers. Presiding at the table were Mrs. R. B. Harrison, of Guin, Mrs. E. B. Rockwell, of Selma.

Miss Sara Cummings was in charge of the bride's book. The reception line was composed of Mrs. M. R. Orr, Mrs. L. A. Curtis, of Cullman, the bridal couple and their attendants.

Mrs. Orr, mother of the bride, wore black lace, with a corsage of sweetpeas.

Mrs. Curtis, mother of the groom, was in black crepe Elizabeth. Her corsage was of Columbia roses.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Elsberry, Mr. W. E. Elsberry, Sr. Mrs. John Martin Mrs. Bessie E. Rushin.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lyman, of Montevallo; Mrs. L. A. Curtis, Miss Reba Kilpatrick, Mrs. Gladys Murphy, all of Cullman. Mrs. C. P. Beddow, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Beddow, Miss Beddow, Mr. and Mrs. Terrance Ryan, Miss Ryan, Miss Lampkin of Birmingham, Miss Chadwick of Ensley, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Boyd, Miss Lydia Campbell, Mr. Pointer, Miss Julia Clark, Mrs. W. W. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Young, Alonzo Meek, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Leatherwood, Mrs. Harry Marks, Mrs. W. E. Stoddard and Mrs. E. B. Rockwell, of Selma.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis have gone on a wedding trip, after which they will be at home in New Orleans, where Mr. Curtis is connected with one of the large wholesale firms of the country.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Curtis, of Cullman. He is a member of various civic and patriotic organizations. He is of families, which had founding in Texas. His parents were among those who were prominent in the development of North Alabama. Mrs. Curtis is the granddaughter of the late James Franklin Orr, I, who founded the town of Orrville, Ala., many years before the War Between the States. He was an inventor and was originally from North Carolina. She attended Womans College and has a wide circle of friends in Montgomery. She is vivacious, attractive and talented and has been a leader in life in several phases in Clanton.

Mt. Pisgah News

The singing society of this place met last Sunday afternoon with a large crowd. After a song by the president, Jake Henley, prayer was led by Rev. I. B. Yeargan, while the program was arranged. Mr. Henley sang another selection. Directors for the afternoon were Prof. F. I. Popwell, Tom Wells, Eugene Aldridge, S. A. Henley, Mc. Durbin, Prof. E. M. Wilson, Cecil Yeargan, Rev. Stewart, Jake Henley, Rev. L. A. Brown. A duet was rendered by Prof. and Mrs. Wilson.

Organists for the evening were Prof. F. I. Popwell, Mrs. Beulah Henley and Mrs. Lillie Wilson.

We appreciated the help from Bethsalem, Pleasant Grove and Maple Springs. We invite you back. We especially invite all singers to meet with us at two o'clock on the first Sunday afternoon.

The song, "Power in the Blood," was sung by special request of Rev. Yeargan, after which we were dismissed in prayer by Rev. Stewart of Chilton Circuit.

We were very sorry indeed our secretary, Miss Birdie Edwards, was absent on account of sickness, and wish for her a speedy recovery.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

While holding a revival the colored minister emphasized the fact that the devil was in and all about his church. To make his messages real one of the deacons decided to dress himself up like his satanic majesty, and when the parson was in a "Reeling Way" warning his flock against the devil as he walks about as a lion seeking whom he may devour, to walk in at the door of the church. At the right time the deacon made his appearance, and as the congregation or the preacher were not expecting to see him in his visible form there was much excitement. Negroes trampled over each other and leaped in scores from every window in the building. The devil advanced down the aisle unmolested and by the time he had reached the altar in the church, he and the preacher were the only two people in the building. The devil struck the communion table with his cane and said, "Well." Then the parson addressed the devil in winning tones, "Now look here Mr. Devil, I knows dat you think dat I am agin you, but deep down in my heart I am wid you." Then advancing toward the window he said, "Now if you will jes let me off dis time there will be no odder time." I fear that there are a lot of folks who are like the negro preacher. "They kinder appear to be fighting the devil, but deep down in their hearts they are with him." Appearing good in public and being mean in private is the sin of today.

Some pesky sparrows made a resort and a convenience of the vines on my front porch. I tried hard to break them from making this place a play ground, but nothing seemed to do any good. One day I secured some black strings and plaited a large black cord, making it about three feet long and dolling it up so that it looked very much like a snake. I stretched this cord among the vines. A bird darted in but did not fold his wings before he screamed and went to the top of the tallest tree in sight. Other birds came to inspect and went away to scream and curse what they thought to be a snake in the vines. As small as a sparrow is the little bundle of flesh and feathers seems to have more sense than great big grown men and women. They know danger when they see it and they keep their distance, while so called wise men and women will see things that they know to be filled with death and danger, and yet they plunge in to see how it feels. When we are as wise as sparrows we will not drive and drink like devils. When the snake is in the vines you had better stay out. That is sensible.

When the Tuggle Institute was giving "Heaven Bound" in the auditorium of the High School one of the girls standing before the rostrum fainted and fell before the audience. She was rushed down stairs and stretched upon a table. A white lady asked a boy who was standing near if he would not run to the Drug store for some Ammonia. The young lad tilted his nose and walked away. It was beneath his dignity to run for medicine for a fainting colored girl. Standing nearby was a Clanton Scout, clad in his uniform, and on seeing the action and spirit of the other boy, he stepped before the lady and asked, "May I not go for the Ammonia?" "Yes you may," replied the white lady, "And God bless you Scouts." What do you think of a boy who will tilt his nose in scorn and refuse aid to anyone, and what do you think of a Scout who will serve regardless of color or class? It is awful when anyone will make himself less a human being. With that white lady I say, "God bless our Scouts."

Was walking along the street with a friend when a little girl of three crossed over and joined us on our way to the business section of town. She was bright of face, happy of heart and she could and did talk with all the fascination of childhood. She told us that she was in luck for that was her second time to get to go to town that morning. We asked her why she had made the other trip to town. She replied in the innocency of her little heart, "Mother just had to have some cigarettes and she sent me after them." About that time the little darling was seized with a violent spell of coughing. I said to her, "You seem to have a terrible cold, where did you get it?" She lifted her eyes to mine and replied, "My Mudder has a bad cold and I guess I caught it from her." I looked with pity upon the beautiful girl and prayed that she would not catch her mother's cigarette habit. It is more than I can understand to see what examples are set before the little angels that come into our homes. They not only catch colds from us, but they catch habits as well.

Have you ever heard about that stingy old farmer who raised chickens for the market? At first he fed them on corn meal. Then he discovered that he could mix a little saw dust in with the meal and the chickens would grow right on. He kept adding more and more saw dust until he was feeding fifty fifty of meal and saw dust. He put his eggs under the old hens for hatching, and when the time of hatching came he went out to view his product. He was very much astonished to find some of the little biddies had wooden wings, some of them had peg legs and there were a few wood pecks scattered about in the brood. Some parents seem to think that they can economize on the question of educating their children. Just any kind of mental food will do. No wonder there are wood churcks and wooden heads.

TWO FAST STEPPING BALL TEAMS FALL BEFORE COOPER'S TEAM LAST WEEK

On last Friday afternoon, June 3rd, Cooper mowed down the much heralded Marbury baseball team with a 5-2 licking on the latter's field. The game got off to a slow start with Coopers spotting, Marbury a two run lead in the second inning. This seemed as far as they could go, for there were no more scores for the Marbury team the remainder of the game. Foshee replaced Watkins in the 5th inning and hurled superb ball thereafter. Not to be outdone, Coopers got to M. Dennis in the 5th inning and scored two runs, this tieing the score. Again in the 6th inning they scored two runs. The 7th ended the scoring, Coopers making one run off H. Dennis. Here at this point Coach Bodiford decided his boys had had enough for the day and with the consent of Manager Thornton of Cooper, called the game at the end of the 7th inning. Marbury had already suffered defeat at the hands of Coopers on the previous Saturday at Coopers.

The score of the Friday's game was Coopers, 5; Marbury, 2.

Batteries: Watkins, Foshee and Ray, Allen. Marbury: M. Dennis, H. Dennis and Mitchell.

COOPERS TEAM DEFEATS DEATSVILLE ON SATURDAY

On last Saturday, June 4th, Deatsville came up to Coopers with the thought of administering defeat to Coopers, having received a set back by Coopers earlier in the season. At the first of the game it looked as if they were going to be successful, scoring 3 runs in the first inning. Rutland pitching for Coopers did not seem to find himself at first of the game. Deatsville again scored one run in the second and one in the third inning. Foshee relieved Rutland at the first of the 4th inning and held them the rest of the game, allowing only one run. Coopers scoring was scattered throughout the game, scoring one run in the second, one in the third, 3 in the fourth, 2 in the seventh and one each in the 8th and 9th. Those who did the hitting for Coopers were Ray, Morgan and Watkins and Tatum. The stars who afield were H. Rutland, Penson and Morgan. Those hitting best for Deatsville were Cox and Lewis. Stars afield were Russell, Philips and Nixon.

Score: Coopers, 9; Deatsvilillle, 6.

Batteries: H. Rutland, Foshee and Ray.

Adair and Nixon, Goree.

Umpires: At plate, W. W. Allen; bases, Hicks.

Getting Down To Facts

In commenting on public utility problems and their relation to the public, Philip H. Gadsden, Vice-president, the United Gas Improvement Company, said: "It is my judgment that what is needed for a satisfactory solution of these difficult and perplexing questions is, (1) that they be understood; (2) that they be discussed from the standpoint of the economics involved, free from political, partisan and social bias; and (3) that they be settled on a basis which will promote, rather than hinder, the growth and expansion of the utility industry."

This seems little enough to ask, but experience has shown that it is difficult to attain. Tremendous efforts have been made by the enemies of privately owned utilities, to obscure or exaggerate utility problems, and make them seem more complicated than they are. In lawmaking, sectional interests and jealousies have played a larger part than have intelligence, logic and the real needs of the consumers and investors.

The average citizen's interest in a utility is simply this: That he be given the best possible electric or gas service at the least possible cost. In order to do this, the utility must earn sufficient profit with which to maintain its facilities, attract investment of new capital, and make expansions and improvements when necessary. Acrimonious political bickering can only hinder the utility industry's development and damage the true public interest. Under our present system whereby privately owned utilities operate under the jurisdiction of state commissions, the public's interest is well protected, and the industry's future progress assured.

How To Bring Back Good Times

Nothing could do more to bring back good times than assurance of a decrease in taxes during the next few years.

Every effort should be made to increase governmental efficiency, eliminate waste and duplication of effort and do away with the bureaus and commissions that milk the taxpayer dry. Doing this would not damage the functions of government—it would greatly improve them.

High taxes have throttled industrial development in England. They have done the same thing in Germany, in Austria, in Australia and elsewhere. They are doing the same thing here. High taxes make and prolong unemployment, cause hoarding of capital and frighten investors. In short, their whole influence is toward the prolongation of depression.

Drying Up The Springs of Employment

In discussing the question of how taxes bear down on the business man, the San Francisco Chronicle recently conducted an investigation which showed that while the average person does not know what relation his taxes bear to his net income, carefully managed business concerns know to a penny what tax load they are carrying.

A San Francisco merchandising house in 1931 paid 63 per cent of its net income in taxes. A large farmer paid 30 per cent, and on some of his land which produced an income of $5 an acre, he paid $25 an acre in taxes. Another nationally known farming concern in the state paid 84½ per cent of its net income in taxes, with an outlook for no net income this year, but with taxes just as high.

The Chronicle says these are not extreme cases and then cites an insurance company which paid between 35 and 40 per cent, one of the big oil companies paid 30 per cent and big butter and egg man dug up 32 per cent of his net earnings.

Anyone who imagines that soaking an industry from 30 to 80 per cent of its net income in taxes, doesn't soak the laboring man, should think again. Such taxation simply means fewer jobs, for it dries up the sources of revenue which create employment.

Tax Bankruptcy

The spectre of tax bankruptcy is faced by a good many Americans these days. Tax levies, according to Melvin Traylor, President of the First National Bank of Chicago, take the estimated equivalent of one day's labor every week from everyone in the county. A few years ago one out of every 22 persons gainfully employed was on the public payroll; now the percentage is one in 11. It is said that if the present rate continues, in a little over twenty years we will have one person working for government for every person who pays taxes!

Recently, in a middle-western state, one million acres of land were taken over by the counties for unpaid taxes. Another state has an $18,000,000 deficit. Another has $10,000,000 in signed contracts for certain projects and is unable to raise a single dollar with which to meet them. In many parts of the country local bond issues have defaulted, schools have been closed, necessary functions of government have been crippled, public employes have been unpaid.

This is what government extravagance has done. Higher taxes is not the solution. The people cannot pay. In Ohio, according to Mark Sullivan, with present low commodity prices, the state and municipalities take, in taxes, an amount about equal to the entire value of every farmer's crop. Nothing but tax bankruptcy can result if the trend of today is continued.

"Levying taxes is an easy business. Any projector can contrive new impositions, any bungler can add to the old; but is it altogether wise to have no other bounds to your impositions than the patience of those who are to bear them?"—Edmund Burke.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

"Never explain—your friends do not need it and your enemies will not believe you anyway."—Elbert Hubbard.

* * *

But try and put that idea over. When the time comes for explanations, you will find it difficult to locate a friend who will not demand an explanation and in some instances your enemies will be more apt to believe you.

* * *

This thing about the Bonus Marches on the Capitol, is becoming serious. I don't want to be too pessimistic, but you know how one thing leads on to another, and so on.

And the Democrats did take some action at the meeting of the Executive Committee last Saturday. Now it looks like things are going to be on the hum in this county so far as the Democrats are concerned. Looks like they have polished up the old band wagon and are ready to start rolling, with some good Democratic music swelling through the air, and then some other things, too.

Met up with our new Presbyterian preacher the other day. McNair is the name and you can take it from me, he is one fine fellow. He is making his home at the home of Mrs. Curry in Clanton, and will hold services at the Presbyterian church here each Sunday. Now, let's give him a big hand, whether you be Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, or other things. Mr. McNair will be in Clanton all the summer.

* * *

Was reading what The Tallassee Tribune said about the circuit judge race. They seem to think that Judge Tate is going over the top, and maybe they are right.

* * *

Understand that rumors are circulated to change the initial of the Republican Party from G. O. P. to the more suitable O. D. P., which simply stands for Old Depression Party. However it might be still a good idea to carry the G. O. P., as that also would stand for Goodbye Old Party.

And according to one Mr. A. A. Jackson, that is about what has happened, or will happen in the next few months.

I never did want to get into politics in this column, but it has just got to the place where there is so much that could be said in a political way. But it's like I said sometime ago, I don't know much about politics, and in trying to write about it, I might put my foot in my mouth, or something.

* * *

Did you see the story in the past week's Saturday Evening Post about the storm, which was based on happenings in Chilton County? It is a very good story, but being here in the midst of the thing, one would not enjoy the story so well. It was written by F. Scott Fitzgerald, and titled, "Family In The Wind." Of course Fitzgerald based his information on newspaper reports of the storms here, and while a newspaper is a part of my livelihood, I know that the newspaper reports were not anywhere near the actual thing. The story is only a curiosity to readers in this section, and would be difficult to enjoy, as the author did not know his geography so well. But of course, readers of the story elsewhere will no doubt find it very interesting.

While most fiction stories are usually on the extreme with situations, predicaments, and the like, "Family In The Wind" is not even up to reality, when it comes to the description of the fast happening things in this county the nights of the storms.

* * *

Been on the lookout for some peaches in this county during the past few days, but of course I realize the time is a little early yet. However, I hear there are some ripe peaches in Thorsby now. It's hard to get by that place of Thorsby when it comes to doing things. Have you noticed the large number of bean fields up there. Yep, looks like they are going to do business the year round up there.

* * *

Am sorry that such a small crowd witnessed the presentation of "Palm Beach Bound" at the high school last Friday night. The people round town should realize by now that when the Kiwanis and Pilot Clubs of Clanton place their stamps of approval on anything, it is good and worth seeing.

* * *

"Palm Beach Bound" was good, attributed to the extremely varied program. While the opening appeared to be slow and unorganized, it became more entertaining as the show went on. A bad beginning makes a good ending, as it were.

And so now comes the Pilot Club of Clanton with a very high class dance right away, to be given in Clanton. Yes, it is true the club may be criticized for sponsoring a dance, but criticized by those who have the wrong impression of dances, and those who listen to ring-side gossip. I understand the dance is to be well chaperoned and conducted under strict surveillance of elderly persons. It is being given to raise funds for the worthy work of the club in the county, and is to be strictly invitational. In other words, you are pretty good if you get an invitation to this dance and by all means attend.

And some of you no doubt remember the controversy that went through this column sometime ago on dancing. Well, anyway it was a lot of fun, wasn't it?

Perhaps the most outstanding event in social life of Clanton closed last Saturday night when the reception was held following the brilliant wedding of Miss Madelyn Orr and Mr. Vester Bryan Curtis. It ended a week of social events in honor of the bride and will go down in the history of Clanton and will be pleasantly remembered by many.

mer-Labor member against adopting the conference report.

On a similar lineup a little earlier, the Senate, by a vote of 42 to 33, upheld the action of Vice President Curtis in overruling a point of order made against the conference report by Senator Howell, Nebraska, independent Republican.

Center of Rabid Debate

Controversial throughout its career, the tax bill in its final day on Capitol Hill was the center of a stormy debaae in which charges were made that members of Congress were influenced by the desires of the power companies.

To speed the measure to the White House and start the revenue flowing into the Treasury as soon as possible the Senate took time off from its work on the $238,000,000 economy bill.

No sooner had the conference report been laid before the Senate than Senator Howell made his point of order and in vigorous terms asserted the conferees had violated the rules by changing the imposition of the tax from the power companies to the consumers.

WHEN TAXES EFFECTIVE

Washington, June 6.—All but one of the excise taxes contained in the new $1,118,500,000 tax bill signed Monday by President Hoover will become effective 15 days from Tuesday.

The new high income rates are retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year.

The four tariffs written into the revenue bill are classed under excise provisions and become effective in 15 days.

The estate taxes will be assessed beginning on June 7, 1933.

Miscellaneous taxes, including bank checks, etc., become effective in 15 days.

Mrs. John Foshee Of Maplesville Passes

The western part of Chilton County was saddened last Monday when the news was heard of the death of Mrs. John W. Foshee, life-long resident of Maplesville. Mrs. Foshee, who was before her marriage Miss Bessie Savage, died in the Vaughan Memorial Hospital in Selma Monday, following a short illness.

The deceased is a member of one of the most outstanding families of this county, the wife of John W. Foshee, a prominent merchant and planter. She was a member of the Baptist church of Maplesville, a devoted worker and a wonderful woman.

Funeral services were held yesterday in the Baptist church in Maplesville, conducted by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church and the Rev. Paul Oden of Maplesville. She is survived by her husband, three sons, Forrest, John Allen, Herbert, and other relatives.

Jackson Replies To Criticism Of Republicans On Charge

can or Democrat. Neither would you.

Now, Mr. Editor, don't you know if you put out such Propaganda that you don't believe yourself, that the voters of this County will not believe it?

Mr. Editor, you say that there is no political administration at Washington that can do anything to change present conditions. And then wind up your Editorial by saying "If I want a bigger and better depression I'll vote the Democartic ticket."

You admit that the Democrats could make conditions worse. Then why not admit that any power that can make a thing worse could make it better. You know it is true.

Now, Mr. Editor, in concluding my tributes to your Editorial, I will say so far as your burlesques and criticisms are concerned, I take them all with a smile, as I know they are worthless.

Now just a few words to the Voters of Chilton County and I will bring my few remarks to a close. If you haven't, I want you to read the Editorial that appeared in the Union Banner of last week, telling about A. A. Jackson jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. If you will investigate this old Republican Frying Pan as I have, you will find that it is so hot with Republican Depression you will do as I, and thousands of others have, and will do. I jumped from that old Republican Frying Pan that has been frying and stewing the People's Substance out of their possession and concentrating it into the hands of the few.

Such a jump will give some ease, regardless as to where you land.

Mr. Voter, remember the Bible says, "When the wicked rule, the people mourn. But when the Righteous beareth rule, the people rejoice."

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON.

SAVE YOUR I. G. A. WRAPPERS AND BOXES FOR CLANTON CHURCHES

Do you use products bought from the I. G. A. Stores? If you do, then you can help out in a very worthy cause by saving all the wrappers from off the cans and other packages, and all the empty boxes, bearing the I. G. A. labels.

The Methodist and Baptist churches in Clanton are after that $100 prize offered by the I. G. A. Stores for the largest number of I. G. A. boxes or wrappers bearing their trade mark.

The wrapper or box must be as complete as possible. The trade-mark alone is not sufficient. The ladies organizations of these two churches are asking everyone to save these wrappers.

Cakes To Be Given

On the next two Saturdays, there will be given away at each I. G. A. Store here, a large and delicious cake to someone helping in this contest. To each person bringing five coupons will be given this opportunity. When you bring five I. G. A. wrappers or boxes to any I. G. A. Store in Clanton, your name will be written on a slip of paper and put in a box. On Saturday at six p.m. a name will be taken from the box. The person whose name is on that slip will get a cake.

Elmore County Paper Says Judge Tate Will Be Winner In Their County Over Opponent

Now that the time for the run-off between Arthur Glover and Judge Loyd Tate in the circuit judge race is near at hand, many predictions are being heard. One, coming from a newspaper in Elmore County, The Tallassee Tribune, published at Tallassee has the following to say:

"In Tallassee Judge Tate's many friends are busy working for him and they have every confidence that Tate will defeat Glover on June 14th. They point out that Tate carried Autauga County by more votes than his opponents could total and did the same in Chilton. He was led by Glover in Elmore but the entry of Bateman into the race very late, in fact just before the primary, is known to have influenced the vote in this county. As has been pointed out, the man that can get the Bateman vote and hold his own is slated for the job after June 14th.

"Tate will carry Tallassee easily and is expected to gain considerable strength throughout the rest of the county. In a close race, Tallassee can turn Elmore County either way and as this is expected to be a close race, Tallassee's going for Tate will probably put him back on the bench for he has the other two counties already in his favor.

"True, Glover got a lot of votes here on May 3rd, but we understand that, it being generally known that Tate and Glover would be in the run-off a lot of swapping went on, in the Congressional race and in the County Superintendent's race. This will be eliminated this time and on a straight Tate-Glover race Tate is prejudiced to lead here by about 4-1.

"If the margin proves that big, and with all other things in consideration, then it looks like Tate will be the next judge of the circuit."

Plan To Secure Farm Lands For Families

tions are proposed:

1. The legislature will be requested to exempt lands formally subjected to the plan from taxation for a reasonable period. If this shall not prove feasible, the plan will assume the taxes.

2. Units of 10, 20, or 40 acres or more will be allotted a family group, according to size and capacity, but continuous acreages of large area are desired, although suitable small tracts or individual farm units would be wholly acceptable.

3. An option will be granted each family to purchase the unit, so long as a stipulated standard of work is complied with. The option will run for a liberal period. Meanwhile, the family will have the right to occupy the unit rent free, assuming compliance with proper conditions.

4. The option price will be as agreed between the owner and the Relief Committee. The owner should state this price, but it is hoped that much of it can be made available without charge, or for a low price, on condition of its development under the program.

5. The Committee is attempting to arrange for the minimum necessary housing and equipment and aid until self-sustaining basis is reached.

Land owners willing to cooperate in this movement are urged to supply us with immediate descriptions of the land, giving a plat, if available, showing location on or available to railways and highways; also the following:

(a) Existing or available water supply
(b) Timber, if any, for fire wood
(c) Whether land is well drained
(d) Whether now or heretofore in cultivation
(e) Whether any habitable buildings are on the land. If so, describe same.
(f) Nature of soil and whether adaptable to garden crops and to farm commodities which are now imported in substantial quantities for consumption within the State.
(g) A general description of the land and to what extent, if any, the owner will be in position to assist in aiding, with lumber or otherwise, the necessary housing units and equipment.

There are immediately available for an adequate program of this nature a very large number of families. Inquiry by relief agencies in other states indicates that if the program we are formulating can be worked out so that there will be reasonable assurance that the beneficiaries will be enabled to become self-sustaining, they will make the necessary reasonable contributions and that worthy families in large numbers are available for such settlements.

Assuming that suitable lands are made available and that the program can be developed along the line now being considered, there is no reason why the settlements proposed would not be in every way desirable for the state and locality concerned as well as further the improvements and sale of the land or adjacent lands for the owner. Owners submitting lands would greatly expedite consideration of the matter if they would accompany the report with a letter approving the tracts submitted from the County Demonstration Agent or similar local authority. All offers of farms or acreages will be considered as tentative merely, pending further development of the program and definite agreements with the owners.

The Committee's connection with the matter is entirely in furtherance of relief work. Only lands in Alabama and Florida are desired for the program at the present time.

Very truly yours,

—P. G. Shook, H. R. Howze, H. U. Sims, M. H. Stern, Forney Johnston, Committee on Permanent Relief, Red Cross Family Service.

Fox Film Depicts Allied Method Beat'g U-Boats

George O'Brien, Marion Lessing Leads In "The Seas Beneath," First Talking Version Of Sub Warfare During World War

Recounting in a thrilling manner the Allied fight against the submarine menace, and combining this with a unique romance between an American naval commander and a German secret service agent, "The Seas Beneath," Fox movietone drama coming to the Wadesonian Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, June 13 and 14, reveals many hitherto unfilmed secrets of the U-boat struggle.

The story, written by a former naval officer and directed by John Ford with the cooperation of the United States Navy, revolves around the activties of a noted German submarine, the U-172, and the efforts of two American ships to capture it. One of these vessels, a big schooner, is equipped as a "Q-ship" or "mystery ship" with a big gun concealed under a false deck-house. The other is an American submarine, escorting the schooner and maintaining telephone communication with her thru a long cable. The efforts of the German spy, a woman, almost capture the American vessels and the heart of their commander.

BUYING HUCKLEBERRIES

Those persons who have huckleberries for sale, are asked to see Marcus Polk at the store of M. A. Gore in Clanton. Mr. Polk is paying a good price for good, well filled-out huckleberries during the season, and if you have any to sell, see him.

Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Metcalf of Verbena left Tuesday morning for St. Stephens, Alabama, where they will visit relatives for ten days. The Second Sunday in June is Laymen's day in the Methodist church at Verbena and the services for that day will be in the hands of the laymen, leaving Rev. Metcalf the opportunity for a vacation.

The business meeting of the Missionary society of the Methodist church was held Monday afternoon in the Ladies' Parlor of the church. The work of May was reported, showing that the Society is making progress along all lines. Mrs. M. A. Gore's circle won the attendance banner for the fourth time.

New Waving Machine Installed by DeMabel

o

To-day women demand speed, simplicity and perfect results in permanent waving. They want a curl that is soft and natural and easy to set.

DeMabel is always up to the minute in using the latest and best methods for hair beauty and now she has installed the latest method of permanent waving which people demand, a wave which is self-setting and eliminates finger waving or the use of finger wave lotion. This wave cannot frizz or kink. It cannot burn the scalp, produces perfect ringlets and pushes up beautifully without effort.

All this is obtained by using the Santurello E-Zee self winder, which winds the hair like no human hand can do and produces results with speed and perfection impossible to attain by any other method. It ties, winds and applies pad in on operation without the use of accessories. It eliminates the use of strings, metal clips and that tedious and tiresome way of twisting and winding by hand, together with the worry and grief over burns and failures.

This new method is called the Bonat Wave and is given with organic oils which gives the hair a real oil treatment and therefore reconditions the hair. The per cent of ammonia solution used is so small that it cannot be noticed as hitherfore.

All methods have such a disagreeable smell of ammonia which is annoying to all customers.

The Bonat Wave has won first prize at the last three Beauty Trade Shows which speaks for itself as to beauty it gives the hair. This wave has taken the place of the croquignole Wave which for a short time has been so popular but did not last because the wave does not hold like it should.

Therefore everyone desiring a wave much prettier and more lasting than the croquingnole method should be sure to come and find out still more about the Bonat Wave, the latest method and only one of its kind.

The new Arnas Steamer gives the hair and scalp a steam and oil treatment which is wonderful and cannot be surpassed for reconditioning the hair and scalp before getting a permanent or for dandruff, oily or dry and brittle hair, or any scalp trouble. It makes a natural wave more deep and soft. You cannot appreciate the value of an Arnoil scalp treatment until you have tried one and see the marvelous results it gives the hair and scalp.

These two new improvements added to DeMabel's Beauty Salon shows she wants to give her customers the best of service and which cannot be surpassed in the larger shops. Therefore show your appreciation by patronizing your home town and beauty shop, and Miss Mabel will be glad to explain every detail about her new permanent wave machine and Arnas Scalp Steamer.

On June 13 Thorsby will begin a Daily Vacation Bible School with courses for all ages, from the tiniest tots to the oldest men and women. The course for the young people and adults will begin on Monday evening, June 13, at 7:30 at the Baptist church and continue through Friday evening. There will be three classes—for the young people, the women and the men. After the class period each evening all will meet together for an inspirational address. Monday evening the speaker will be Rev. L. E. Barton, Secretary Board of Alabama Baptists. Tuesday evening Fred P. Ensminger, Supt. of Congregational work in Alabama. On Wednesday evening Rev. A. Y. Napier, returned missionary from China, will give a stereoptican lecture. The speaker for Thursday evening is to be supplied.

On Wednesday of the same week courses for the children up to and including the Junior age, will begin at the Public school building. They will meet from 8 to 11 o'clock and continue for ten days. There will be teachers for each grade.

This Bible School is the united effort of the churches of Thorsby and all are cordially invited and urged to send the children in the day time and come to the evening meetings. There will be no charge for tuition.

Listen for announcements from the pulpits next Sunday.

You need God in your life, in your home, in your business. Come to the Thorsby Baptist church next Sunday.

Activities of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association

We are loading on our sixth car load of potatoes and expect to load a car of beans today, but it all depends on what the market will do as to whether there will be any more loading of potatoes or not. The lack of rain is cutting down the bean production, making our shipments at this time shorter than what we had hoped to have. The association is finishing up strawberry returns and is working at the checks to show what the results of this season will be.

A Discussion of School Finances

Where Does the Money Come From To Carry On Our Schools?

By B. Lawrence

I realize that in dealing with figures, or statistics, any article for the press or in a speech, there is danger of dryness. In this article it shall be my purpose to avoid this evil in so far as I can. The figures given are of vital interest to everyone interested in the improvement of our schools.

Let me ask that in considering the sums spent for the various objects you remember also the relative size. At one time some of the members of the County Board of Education and I were in Montgomery. We had dinner at a cafe. One member of the Board ordered fish. When the waitress brought the fish to him it was longer than the large platter (not plate) on which it was lying, the head over one end and the tail stretched out over the other. "What a fish!" he exclaimed.

We walk out on the street and see a boy driving a Shetland pony and exclaim, "What a little horse." The horse weighing thousands of times more than the fish. "What a big fish! What a little horse!" $10,000 would be a big sum of money to most everyone of us but when that sum of money is spent in 200 or more different places and purposes it immediately shrinks into units of $50.00.

According to the school census of 1930 (the last census) there are 7,367 white children and 1,343 negro children in Chilton County. If these children enter school and pass a grade every year, there are 12 years each one of them must be taught. A very few years ago only a small number indeed ever thought of going beyond what was then the seventh grade. Now most of these children and parents as well, are planning for high school graduation. Our schools are crowded. Teachers are overloaded in many, many schools; but it takes 147 white teachers for them and 32 negro teachers.

Now the thing you naturally begin, or should at least, to think about is where the money comes from to finance this program. As in all departments of government the answer is found in the sources and amounts of taxes collected. In so far as the ad valorem taxes are concerned you can look at your tax receipt and tell something about it. Looking at it you will find it like this:

State (going to the state)	.65
County Gen. 50c and Special Road 25c and going to Commissioners Court	.75
County Special School tax 30c and a District School tax 30c and going to Board of Education	.60

Both the Commissioners Court and the County Board of Education have lost heavily as a result of the decreased assessed valuation in Alabama Power Company property. The school revenues are those which we are most interested in now.

There are two sources of revenue for the schools; those coming from the county taxes and those coming from the state. The following are county [illegible]

[illegible] 3 mill tax	$40,369.64
District 3 mill tax	37,736.14
Poll Tax	1,765.50
Total	$79,871.28

The revenues have been greatly reduced this year as mentioned above.

The State revenues for Chilton County are:

General Fund	$45,571.06
Bonus Fund	3,000.00
Revolving Fund	1,000.00
County High School Fund	4,500.00
Attendance Fund	7,933.23
Rural High School Fund	7,052.85
Vocational Education	8,589.92
Total	$74,647.06

The general fund is made up from the state three-mill tax, the interest on the Surplus Revenue fund from the Federal Government, the interest and income from the 16th Section Land Grant fund. These revenues are collected the year previous to the one in which they are spent. In other words, the funds supposed to be available for the scholastic year 1931-1932 were collected in the fiscal year 1930-1931, but $17,256.42 of this fund has never been paid to the County by the State of Alabama. Neither has any part of the Rural High School fund nor the $3,000 Bonus, the Attendance or Rural High School fund, for this year. Only a part of the County High School fund has been paid. We hold other miscellaneous warrants that have not been paid.

The Bonus Fund is a legislative appropriation made to each County which votes a county-wide tax. One thousand dollars for each mill of county-wide taxes collected is paid. Chilton County levies and collects a County Three-mill tax and receives $3,000 from the Bonus Fund. Most counties of the state have a 4 mill county tax and therefore get $4,000 of the Bonus fund.

The Revolving fund is for elementary supervision. The first step toward equalization of educational opportunities is to be found in the creation of this fund. The state has created a much larger equalization fund. However, Chilton County does not get any part of this because we have not yet helped ourselves as far as the counties have which share in it.

The Attendance fund is appropriated on the basis of average daily attendance. We have but one condition to meet in order to share in this fund. Any county in order to draw the full amount of this fund must employ a Child Welfare and Attendance Officer. The employment of this officer brings the county $7,933.23 more than we would otherwise get.

Almost every day someone asks why we are not getting the state appropriations. The State of Alabama has one treasurer for all funds. Not enough money is being collected to take care of every department of state with its present program. The state officials, Convict Department, Bryce Hospital, Health Department and every other department of state is being taken care of while schools must wait. This is in the face of the fact certain revenues are collected specifically for education. The remedy for this, no doubt, must be found in creating a separate treasurer of school funds. This could be done without creating a new department and without extra expense. In this way school funds would not be mixed with the other state funds and therefore no opportunity to spend school monies for other than school purposes. The friends of education would not be making the complaint they are if schools had shared on a basis with other departments of state. The fact is "They have been made the goat." The children would have been the ones to have carried the loss had it not been for school officials and teachers stepping forward and in a sacrificial way, unsurpassed and unmatched by any other professional group anywhere, assumed the responsibility and taken the loss themselves.

New Trustees Elected For County Schools

By W. L. Sanders, Member County Board

The Board of Education is glad to recognize the newly elected trustees and they welcome you into the educational field. I feel that they will pledge you their cooperation in promoting educational interests in Chilton County.

There is a great deal that can be said in regard to a trustee and his work and right here I am going to take advantage of this opportunity.

For a man to be a good trustee he must be of a sacrificial spirit, always ready to quit his work when duty calls him to his school. He should be of a leading spirit to get the cooperation of his fellow patrons. He should be reasonable in the assessment of incidental fees and see to it that all pay alike. He should in a public meeting have the books audited, showing the receipts and disbursements of all incidental funds, therefore clearing away the idea (as some have it) that the money has been misused. A trustee should prove to the patrons that it is economy to keep the building in good repair, to obtain a good library, to have the best equipment possible, sanitary water fountains, sanitary out-buildings, and the yards in a clean and neat condition. All of this "when carried out" will mean much to the community as well as to the individual child.

A trustee should never conceive the idea that he is going to satisfy everybody, for this is almost impossible, but always be ready to return a smile for any criticism he may receive. Just remember these words that "Where there is no sacrifice, there is no reward."

W. L. SANDERS,
Member of Your County Board.

Home Economics

By Miss Leacy Newell

The evolution of Home Making Education is as interesting as the evolution of the scientific invention of today. When the work was first put into the schools, only cooking and sewing were taught, that is, just the preparation of good food and the fundamentals of serving. Later, the course was known as Domestic Science, and as the work grew and more phases of home making were added, it was given the name of Home Economics. The field has broadened, and today it includes all phases of Home Making. It is these Home Making courses that Vocational Schools offer.

Three years of Home Economics are offered to the student. The chief purpose of the first years work is the personal development of the high school girl and the solving of her personal problems. This instruction is given in units of Personal Relationship, House, Clothing, and Foods.

The second year's work is based on the interest, ideals and skills developed during the first year. Family living and art applied to home and clothing are emphasized. The units offered this year are: Health of the Family, Food, Family Relationships, Applied Art and Clothing.

The third year instructions given in the other two years are made use of with emphasis in organization and management problems of home making. These units are: Home Management, Child Development, House, Clothing and Foods.

School instruction produces small results unless practical application is made. Home economics has been criticized because the girls did not put into operation at home the knowledge that they were supposed to have gained at school.

It is through the home project work that interest in home work is stimulated. In this phase, a minimum of sixty hours is required of every girl taking vocational Home Making Education. One half unit of credit may be given on the home project provided the girl does one hundred and fifty hours of high grade work, and that she includes three phases of Home Economics in the project. A girl also must be in good standing in school, that is, she must make good grades in all subjects before she is allowed this extra credit on home work. Home projects help the teacher and the student. The teacher finds out if she is teaching material that may be used by the girl, and the girl finds out how well she is understanding school instruction and whether or not she is able to use it at home.

Vocational Home Making Education schools have three or more rooms set apart for teaching this work. Rooms and equipment are very important factors in teaching Home Making. One room is used for a clothing laboratory; the second is the dining and living room combination; and the third is the food laboratory. These rooms should be as attractive, sanitary, and convenient as possible. The food laboratory is divided into unit kitchens. Each unit kitchen is equipped as a single kitchen in order that the girl may become experienced in preparing and serving foods under as nearly the same conditions as she would at home.

Vocational Home Economics strives to reach adults not only through the students, but through Adult Evening Schools. The schools aim to acquaint the home maker for the job with scientific, easy and practical methods affecting her work and give opportunity for the members of the Class to pass on to others useful information they have gained through the experience of outside study.

The schools in Chilton County offering Vocational Home Economics are Jemison High School and Isabella High School.

ORGANIZED CHILD WELFARE WORK IN STATE OF ALABAMA

Child Welfare Means Family Welfare; Attendance Officer Is Link Between the Home and School, Tying Together the Home, the School and the Community

By Mrs. C. E. Stapp, County Welfare Worker

The State Child Welfare Department was organized in December, 1919. A brief statement of its duties as provided by law included devising a plan for: (1) The promotion of higher standards of work in all child-caring agencies; (2) Enforcement of laws to prevent premature exploitation of children; (3) Individual care and treatment in cases of dependent or neglected children who would otherwise grow up in ignorance or crime; (4) The rounding out of a coordinated program of all agencies, public and private, for socially handicapped children in Alabama.

Prior to the time the State Child Welfare Department was established, a State-wide Juvenile Court Law was enacted first in 1907, re-written in 1909, 1915 and again in 1923. It was apparently the first intention of the Legislature that the development of children's work in the counties should center around the Juvenile Court. As far back as 1919, however, there was a noticeable change in the trend of thought putting the emphasis on school attendance, family welfare, recreation and suitable work in prevention of dependency and delinquency, the recognition of the physical and mental defects, the correction of the first and training of the second, rather than on the particular functions of the court. At that time the first compulsory attendance was enacted and after arranging for appointment of attendance officers the act set forth the provision that this should make possible the employment of persons by the court of commissioners and the board of education, jointly.

The county child welfare board act was passed in 1923. This made a definite shift from the court to the welfare board as the center for the development of child welfare work in the county. At this point the quality of the work began to be judged more by the number of cases which were adjusted away from the court rather than on the number taken into the courts. The day of probation officers who were regarded as police officers dealing with the child offender has passed. The board is not a new one imposed on the county, but is largely made up of existing boards—the judge of the juvenile court is chairman, one member of the board of commissioners is appointed by the board. The county superintendent of schools and the president of the county board of education are members and the judge has the responsibility of appointing the three remaining members at least two of whom must be women. In many counties it has become the custom for health officers, farm agents, home demonstration agents, etc., to become advisory members thus making it possible to correlate and coordinate the activities of all the units in meeting the needs of children. It is the right of the county board of child welfare to employ a county superintendent of child welfare and assistants and to fix their salaries with the consent of the county board of commissioners and board of education. It is their responsibility to arouse community interest in the needs of the handicapped and to organize the social forces of the community to meet these needs. They should also give direction and guidance to these activities through consideration of specific cases and problems. They should provide a contingent fund to meet the problems of emergency relief. Judge L. H. Reynolds, Commissioner Cobb, Superintendent B. Lawrence, C. C. Conway, I. J. Quinn, Miss Zora Guy and Mrs. Pope Payne are members of the Chilton County Child Welfare Board.

In 1927 the State Board of Education adopted the county child welfare board plan and also prescribed the qualifications for the county workers employed for the attendance work, this being their duty by law. The State Child Welfare Commission, who under the law, provides the qualifications of the person employed by the county child welfare board as probation officer, concurred in the action of the State Board of Education setting forth the following qualifications: (1) Graduation from a recognized college or university; (2) Three years teaching experience or experience in some organized social agency; (3) Definite social training.

Child welfare means family welfare We cannot separate the child from the family today with the expectation of getting the best out of the embryonic citizen. Today, we in Alabama, know what we didn't recognize ten years ago and that is that greater emphasis should be placed on preserving the child's family and kinship ties.

By reason of the organization of the county child welfare board the county child welfare superintendent performs not only the service of probation officer to the juvenile court, but that of attendance officer for the public schools. The school is the avenue through which all children must approach citizenship. The home is the alpha and the omega of his journey. If the home be too weak to serve the school, can the school itself overcome this weakness? It is doubtful! If the home be unfit, unworthy, can the child himself, in his turn, set up a more worthy home? That is doubtful too! The attendance officer is merely the link between the home and the school, supporting the teacher in her work, encouraging the home to overcome its weakness, and finally tying together home, school, and community. Until the home can be brought to the level of the school, until the community's influence may be made constructive forces and not destructive, we shall continue to let child life go to waste and continue to use the tax payer's money in vain.

The school attendance officer cannot, in any given county, of herself do all the things needed to be done for the children, but there are supervisors, there are Parent-Teacher Associations, there are Missionary Societies, there are many, many individuals and agencies who can lend a hand.

MISS ATKINSON GIVES PARTY

Miss Vonzelle Atkinson of Jemison, Ala., entertained her Sunday school class at her home Friday, June 3. Many delightful games were enjoyed by all, after which a delicious ice course was served to the following:

Martha Helen Sims, Louise Cooper, Mary Faye and Ruth Glass, Albert Peterson, Jr., Dorothy and Deewhit Davis, Shirley and Lincoln Rogers, Mary James and Melba Patton, Harold and John Morgan Foshee, Kathleen Headley, Jimmie Collins, Lucile and Billy Frank Merchant. Misses Mary Clements and Evelyn Cooper assisted the hostess.

Miss Lucile Edwards had her tonsils removed at Dr. Arthur Johnson's Infirmary Monday.

Elementary Supervision

In the spring of 1928 the County Board of Education, for the first time, employed a supervisor of elementary schools. The present supervisor began work in this county, September 1928. The employment has been for a term of nine months until this year when it was cut one month. The fund given by the State to the County Board of Education for supervision is called the Revolving Fund and is given to counties only when the county puts on supervision.

The duties of the supervisor are to the elementary grades in all schools in the county. It is her duty to keep in as close touch as possible with the teachers and pupils. When the supervisor makes a visit to the school room, she goes not as an inspector, but as a helping teacher. She observes the lessons to determine to what extent the children are learning. It is the purpose of supervision in this county to help the child get the most there is to get from the time spent in school. Immediately after each class room visit, the supervisor and teacher have a private conference in which they study

Elementary Supervision

(continued from preceding page) the child and the effect of the teaching upon the child. Since the supervisor spends her entire time in the study of children she is able, after hearing them recite, to assist the teacher in making further plans for the work of teaching the child so that he may get the most in the shortest length of time. This also helps the teacher in organizing her work so that she will not have unnecessary burdens.

Every years there is an outstanding objective toward which teacher and supervisor work. Up to this time most concern has been placed upon reading. It is a settled fact that the child must be taught to read—and to read rapidly and understandingly—if he is to be able to grasp the thought in the other subjects which he studies. Much stress is put upon the value of good silent reading; that is, reading silentlp and then making a report or answering questions about the subject matter read.

According to the regular reports sent to the State Department of Education from this county, the following are some statistics which deal with activities for the year:

253 visits were made to class rooms; 522 conferences were held with individual teachers; 48½ days were spent in the office making plans for the year; 4 supervisors' conferences were attended.

Summer School At Auburn For Teachers

By J. P. Montgomery

The work given to vocational teachers at the summer school at Auburn each year, for a period of three weeks, is for the purpose of strengthening the teacher in his work back at the school where he teaches.

Back when cotton was a good price and it was profitable to poison cotton, a practice that grew since I graduated from college, an opportunity was given to learn just when to poison the boll weevil. It was a surprise to me when I learned that you had to open each square to make a correct count. I thought that only the squares that were flared open were punctured.

Several summers at Auburn a group of exercises were offered to teachers. They consisted of such work as spraying, terracing, testing milk, culling poultry, etc. If any teacher felt that he was weak on any exercise he had a chance to learn it thoroughly.

I worked a part of a summer in a wood shop under a trained instructor improving myself in woodworking. I worked another part in a blacksmith shop.

Special courses have been offered in Landscape Gardening and poultry. New practices such as the vaccination of poultry to prevent roup and the iodine vermicide treatment for worms were taught along with other fundamentals.

There has been an increasing interest in marketing farm products in the last few years. Several courses have been given to teachers of vocational agriculture on marketing.

Every year at Auburn the teachers go over the experiment station. There, the experiments being conducted in every branch of agriculture as: Dairying, swine, poultry, gardens, orchards, strawberries, cotton, corn, etc. are given. Living in a truck section I have taken an unusual interest in anything pertaining to horticulture and insect control. Experiment Station work is the real basis for teaching Vocational Agriculture.

The teachers of vocational agriculture have an opportunity to hear addresses and discussions from outstanding educators and scientists as Dr. Knapp, Dean Judd, Dean Funchess, Dr. Hobdy, and other men leading in their particular field in education.

Improved methods and practices in teaching comes in for a fair share of the time at ahe summer school of instruction at Auburn. Among the improvements in that line has been the basing of the course on a survey made of the farms of fifty successful farmers in the school community. A yearly teaching plan of each subject to be taught was made and as many as 100 daily lesson plans.

A text, book is used in the teaching of vocational agriculture, but it is used only as a guide, not as a daily text. The subject matter desired in teaching boys varies from a herd of dairy cattle five miles from the school which you want the boys to judge, to some farm practice used by a successful farmer or an experiment station test. Teaching vocational agriculture is not a subject that is easily organized. One day you may be away from the school selecting seed corn or teaching the laying off of terraces, another you may be in the class room analyzing a fertilizer test on hairy vetch and the next the boy may need to fix a plow in the shop or make a self feeder for poultry. It takes a good deal of planning to properly instruct 30, 40 or 50 boys daily in vocational agriculture. For that reason a good deal of time is given at the summer school to the collection of material for teaching and devising ways and means to present the subject matter in the most effective way.

I have always come back from a summer school feeling encouraged and ready to go.

IN MEMORY

The great tornado swept into the home of Mr. Monroe Headley and snapped the little thread of life, taking from our midst Cecil Bridges. Cecil was only nineteen years of age February 7th. He was the son of Mrs. R. A. Williams. Cecil was loved and is missed by all who knew him.

We miss him so much when we go to church. We never went but that we saw Cecil and T. J. We hope to have T. J. back with us soon, but Cecil's dear face has gone from our midst, and there's always a vacancy. One that can never be filled. Our hearts are heavy when we think of it and realize he has gone and we can't see his sweet face again on earth, but we know that God has a purpose for everything and He had a purpose for taking Cecil home when we felt he was just in the prime of life.

Dear loved ones, weep not for Cecil, for we feel that our loss is heaven's gain and if we just serve God some sweet day we'll meet him face to face again.

Cecil leaves to mourn his loss, his mother, Mrs. R. A. Williams, two brothers, S. A. and Allen Williams, six sisters, Mrs. Lee Smith, Ruth, Victoria, Mary, Ruby and Peggy Williams, besides a number of friends and relatives.

It was hard to give Cecil up, but he's paid the debt we all must pay sooner or later and dear mother, brothers and sisters, let's not grieve more than we can help for we feel that he is better off.

—Written by a friend who loved him.

IN MEMORY OF MOTHER, GRANDMOTHER AND CECIL

Dear loved ones, you've gone from our midst. We miss you, oh, how we miss you, though we feel that our loss is heaven's gain, but it was so hard to see you go. There will always be three vacant chairs in our home, no one can ever fill them.

Mother, when you left us the dearest and best friend on earth went from us. We know no one can ever take your place. You always stood by us so faithfully and, oh, it was so hard to give you up. We miss you so much, but we know you're gone to heaven and we're striving to meet you there some day. We feel that we have a precious goal to reach and you'll help us reach it.

Grandmother, you stayed with us a long time, yet it was so hard to see you go. As we come into our home it is so hard to never see your dear sweet face or to know we'll never see it again on this earth, though we know that you've gone to rest and if we serve God every day, we'll meet you some day.

Cecil, dear, we miss you, oh, how we miss you every day. You were always so kind and sweet, especially to mother, ever doing something to help her.

We loved you like a brother. It was so hard to give you up, when you were so young, though God knows best and he had a reason for calling you home to dwell with him.

We know that God always does the thing that is best for us and we're striving to meet each of you in heaven when He sees fit to call us home.

—M. H. Headley and Children.

BURIAL FIRM FAILS TO WIN MANDAMUS SUIT

Judge Jones Upholds Greer's Contention for Regulating Insurance Society

Upholding demurrers by State Superintendent of Insurance Charles C. Greer, to the amended petition of the Brown Funeral Homes and Insurance Company, of Birmingham, seeking a writ of mandamus to require the State Bureau of Insurance to issue the company a license, Judge Walter B. Jones of the Montgomery Circuit Court, in a decree issued yesterday, sustains Superintendent Greer's contention in the matter of the premium rate and reserve on the type of policy of burial insurance proposed to be issued by the company.

In his decree, Judge Jones points out that the petitioner is a mutual aid company which does a burial insurance business, and rules that in the conduct of such business, it is controlled and governed by the laws of Alabama which regulate companies engaged in the life insurance business, "where the same does not conflict with the State mutual aid laws, nor with the act approved July 2, 1931."

It is then set out the certificate the company issues, states its purpose is to furnish a casket of the value of $250, adding that it can furnish a casket of that value, and also the other services called for and contracted for in the certificate, at a cost to the company of only $75, also that the reserve which it is required to maintain should be calculated on the basis of $75 and not upon the basis of $250.

As to this contention, Judge Jones holds Superintendent Greer very properly ruled the company's reserve should be based on the sum of $250, the face of the certificate. Citing it appears the company issues policies to persons "of all ages between 18 and 100 years," for the same premium rate, and that the contention of Mr. Greer is that this practice is improper and constitutes an unlawful discrimination, Judge Jones states that apparently the recent decision of the Alabama Supreme Court in the case of Greer vs. the Aetna Life Insurance Company, leads to the conclusion that the premium need not be graduated according to age or expectancy of life, "provided the flat rate charged is actuarily sound," that is, the aggregate of premimums to be be collected will be adequate and amply sufficient to cover the risk assumed by the burial or insurance company.

He adds, however, that while in the Aetna case, that proviso appeared without dispute, "it is not clear in the case now before the court that petitioner can safely continue to operate on the basis of the flat rate charged by it." He states also in this connection: "While the ground of refusal taken by the respondent insurance commissioner on this point, that is, that there was an unlawful discrimination in the matter of the premimum rate, seems to be answered against him" in the Aetna case, "still this court would not grant a petition for mandamus unless it appeared that the aggregate of the premimums to be collected would be adequate and ample to protect against the risks assumed." — Montgomery Advertiser, June 5, 1932.

The Roper Strawberry farm did not turn out as many crates of berries this year as last. In 1931 this farm shipped about 1400 crates and this year the shipment was less than 1100 crates. Last year the price was far better than this year. The 1931 crop brought a sale price of $3,600.00, while the crop this year will not be over $1,500.00. The other strawberry sales in Chilton county are on an average of the Roper farm. The cash returns to the county will be about fifty per cent of what it was in 1931.

KIWANIANS TO HAVE LEGION GUEST TODAY

County Commissioners Will Also Be Guests Of The Club At Lunch

This week is being celebrated by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton commemorating National Flag Day, which was June 14th. At the regular weekly luncheon of the club today at the Baptist church, a fifteen minute program will be given by members of the Chilton County Post of the American Legion, according to C. E. Stapp, secretary and John Hollis, president of the club.

At this meeting, the Commissioners Court of the county will also be a guest of the Kiwanis Club and the last forty minutes of the hour will be spent in discussing the possibility of building several miles of permanent road in this county, whereby the county will spend several thousands of dollars if the project goes through. A one-hundred per cent attendance is expected at the club luncheon today.

Last Thursday night, members of the Kiwanis Club and guests were entertained at Mitchell Dam, taking a long ride up on Mitchell Lake on the large barge of the Alabama Power Co. thru the courtesy of the power company and John Hollis of Mitchell Dam and president of the club. This is an annual affair, and although the weather was not so pleasant as it could have been for the outing, all present apparently enjoyed it. A picnic lunch was served on board.

NATURE AND MAN WORKING WONDERS IN STORM AREA

A trip through the storm stricken area will reveal how rapidly nature and man have worked together to heal the awful destruction that occurred when the tornadoes swept through Chilton county. Many of the woodland sections still show signs of broken timbers, but the green leaves and the new growth have about hid out this apparent destruction. In the places of the homes blown away, new houses have been built and the premises of the farmers are taking on their old time appearance. Where there were old buildings before the storm, now there are nice new little bungalows, and in many instances the farmer is better housed and better clothed than he was before the storm. The humanitarian spirit of humanity is wonderful.

CLANTON JUNIOR TEAM DEFEATS THORSBY BOYS

Game Played at Thorsby Last Friday Afternoon; Score By Innings Given

Last Friday afternoon at the baseball diamond in Thorsby, Clanton's American Legion Junior ball team met Thorsby in a fast, close game, but emerged with a victory.

Throughout the game Clanton kept a small lead, but in the seventh inning Thorsby began a rally, but Clanton's fast playing, infield and outfield, cooperating smoothly, with the pitcher, held them to three runs in that inning.

Clanton boys took nine hits off Lyon, Thorsby's only pitcher for the game, and Thorsby's boys received only four hits off two Clanton pitchers, Atchison and Williams.

Several costly errors were made by both teams throughout the game.

Leading the Clanton batters were Cecil Jones, third baseman, and Ashcraft, catcher, and left field, who got two hits each. Moore and Ashcraft brought in two runs, leading the team

MISS MARY LOU TIFFIN HONOR STUDENT AT MONTEVALLO

Included in the second semester honor roll of 163 students at Alabama College, Montevallo, from this county was Miss Mary Lou Tiffin, of Clanton.

The roll of honor students for the semester was the largest, on percentage basis, of any recorded at the college, representing one out of every five students enrolled, President Carmichael announced.

For first honors it is necessary to make a record of at least 50 percent A grades and nothing under a B grade on the semester's work.

Second honors, won by Miss Tiffin, represents an average B grade on all semester studies.

FARM PEOPLE TO GATHER IN AUBURN SOON

Programs Of General Interest Arranged For Three-Day Meeting

During August 2, 3, and 4 Auburn will be the mecca for farm people of Alabama. These three days have been named as the dates for the annual gathering of farm people at their state college of agriculture and experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

In announcing this date officials in charge said that a combination of meetings will be held in Auburn at that time and that the exercises will be conducted in three days instead of one week as heretofore.

Programs of general interest to farm people—men and women—will be conducted. The annual convention of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and the annual convention of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Club Women will be in session in Auburn during these three days. County agents and home demonstration agents will be present.

A program of instruction and recreation is being arranged. Provision will be made to accommodate all who attend.

President J. L. Edwards of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and Mrs. J. D. Giles, president of the State Council of Home Demonstration Club Women, announce special programs for each organization.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Bell and two children, Allen and Edith, planned to leave this week on a motor trip into Texas, stopping at Azelea, where they will visit relatives for a few days.

Youth Attacked With Knife Saturday Night

James Arnold, of Clanton was painfully injured last Saturday night, when a man attacked him with a knife. The report given the News stated that young Arnold was walking near the Methodist church, when he heard someone say something. He is said to have stopped to ask the man he saw in the shadows if he had spoken to him.

Without saying a word, the man stepped from the shadows for a moment and struck Arnold just above the ear with a knife, leaving an ugly gash. At the time of this writing, no arrest had been made, but is reported that an arrest is expected in a day or so. Arnold is a student in the local high school and well thought of among his associates in Clanton. He stated he did not recognize his assailant.

NO SERVICES AT BAPTIST CHURCH HERE NEXT SUNDAY

There will be no services at the Baptist church in Clanton next Sunday morning nor evening, June 19th, according to an annoucement from Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor. Dr. Ezell will be in Alberta City taking part in the conducting of a revival meeting.

HOUSE IN CLANTON BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

The house, belonging to Leonard Williams, in West End,, was badly damaged by fire Tuesday, during the early part of the morning.

Flames had gained considerable headway when the alarm was turned in, and the firemen had a little difficulty in combating the blaze, however it was soon under control and homes nearby saved. The house was vacant. Origin of the blaze was undetermined at the time of this writing.

F. Loyd Tate Wins In Judgeship Race

Hugo Black Gets Big Majority In State In Race For Senator; Charlie Duke And Wilkins Win In Republican Run - Off

Judge F. Loyd Tate carried the 19th Judicial Circuit composed of Chilton, Autauga and Elmore counties, by a small majority over Arthur Glover in the run-off yesterday, according to unofficial and incomplete returns. Reports reaching the News stated that Tate polled more votes in Chilton and in Autauga, while Glover carried Elmore county in this race. Unofficial returns from 23 boxes of the 26 in this county, give Tate 577 and Glover 377. The other boxes not heard from are reported as small. Beat 4, which is Clanton, give Tate a good majority.

Out of 21 boxes in this county, unofficial returns give Hugo Black 529 and Thos. Kilby 565 in the Senatorial race. It is believed that the other five boxes will change this, giving Black a small majority in this county. Press reports from over the state give Black a safe majority over Kilby by unofficial counts.

The unofficial returns in the Republican run-off on the school board and commissioners show that Duke won over Devaughn as commissioner, and Wilkins defeated Smith as member of the school board.

These Republican candidates will now be faced with the opposition of the Democratic nominees in the general election in November in this county.

L & N Has On Special Rate Beginning Sat.

In this issue of the News will be found an advertisement of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in which they are announcing a reduced rate between all stations on their railroad.

This rate is only one cent per mile and begins Saturday, June 18th, with tickets good returning until June 26th. Many persons are planning to take advantage of this special rate in making business trips as well as pleasure trips, as no cheaper transportation can be had, in such comfort.

Eight Arrests Reported From Sheriff's Office

Eight arrests during the past several days were reported by the office of the sheriff here this week. One for carrying a concealed weapon, 3 for driving motor vehicles without tags, one for assault and battery and 3 for petty larceny.

The latter arrests were in connection with the stealing of pigs and chickens in the western part of the county, the report stated.

THIS BUSINESS OF MORE TAXES

Next month, the bill recently passed in Washington inaugurating an additional tax on many items of everyday use, will become effective. This includes additional postage on mails, tax on all checks written on banks, tax on telephone calls, in fact, tax on almost everything you wish to purchase—a sales tax.

Of course it is the wish of everyone that the government get rid of its enormous deficit in its treasury, but it had not occurred to the masses that the government would impose heavier and more taxes on an already tax-burdened people. It does seem that the government, like any business concern, in attempting to save enough money to pay its debts, would cut down on expenses, rather than raise its prices. But the advantage there is obvious—the government forces its people to pay the price shown on the price tag.

Could that be compared with countries where the rulers sit upon thrones, feared by the people, and imposing heavy tax on them, while the rulers enjoy the utmost in luxuries paid for by the hard-working people? Does it seem to you that the Government could save millions by doing away with many departments for two years, rather than increasing the tax you pay?

The powers in Washington have the authority to cut down expenditures as well as increasing taxes. They are there to serve their country and its people, instead of forcing the people to serve them, as it seems to be the case now. We wager that one could pick out most any department in Washington and find places where savings could be had, without endangering the proper functioning of that department.

But the bill has been passed, approved by the President and becomes a law next month. More taxes have been imposed on the tax-burdened people of the United States. This additional tax will, without a doubt, force many business enterprises to the wall, cause the necessity of cutting of expenses in business houses, and probably add to the already overload of unemployment in this country. And still the government goes on spending millions of dollars, that could possibly be saved if those in power were not playing politics instead of working toward the interest of the tax paying farmer, merchant, manufacturer and business man, as they should be with conditions as they are at present.

Not that we wish to find fault with anything that will benefit the people, but we have not discovered anything anywhere in this new tax bill that will benefit any person who is not connected with the government. Some would say that instead of criticising, a person should cooperate with the government in coming out of the deficit of the treasury. We don't believe we could say that we have contributed to anything that caused the treasury to have a deficit. We recommend a change in government in Washington in order that the people will have a more equal chance to live without being harrassed with taxes at every turn. At the rate it is going now, soon there will be nothing to pay taxes with. Then what will the "big-boys" in Washington do? They will probably be forced to eat cornbread and peas like the rest of us.

COOSA, CHILTON LOSE TAX CASE ON POWER CO.

Supreme Court Ends Fight on Power Company Assessments In Counties

Appeals from the Montgomery Circuit Court in two cases representing action in the name of the State, by the County of Chilton, and a tax-payer of the county, respectively, to require Tax Commissioner S. R. Butler to re assess the property of the Alabama Power Company within the county, were dismissed by the Alabama Supreme Court, in decisions announced Thursday of last week.

Dismissal was on motion of Atty Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., this motion being on the gound that the appeals were not taken by him or upon his authority.

Opinions of the high court in both cases were by Justice A. B. Foster. In one it was held that the county was seeking to use the name of the State to enforce a public duty to it in its sovereign right which belongs exclusively to it, and that the State has not delegated to the county nor to any one the right to enforce the duties to it of its own administrative officer. "The Attorney General and perhaps the Governor," it was ruled, "are vested with the ultimate power conferred by the sovereignty, to control this sort of litigation."

In the case involving the action brought by the tax-payer, it was held that the action was merely "seeking to force the State, by the unauthorized use of its name, to control an administrative function of one of its officers, in respect to a matter which is the prerogative of the State."

Increase In Postage On First Class Mail

Effective July 6th, 1932, the new postal laws will become effective, according to a statement from Postmaster W. M. Bean of Clanton. This law stays in effect until July 1, 1934.

The new laws require an additional one cent on all letters of one ounce or fraction thereof. In other words, instead of the regular two-cent stamp on letters, you will be required to place three cents in stamps. This does not effect postal cards nor private mailing cards on which the one-cent charge is made.

Other information regarding the new postal laws on air mail, packages, can be secured at your post office. This new law is a part of the recent bill passed to aid in balancing the budget of the Federal government of the United States.

LANDE SAYS HIS PRICES ARE STILL LOW, QUALITY HIGH

"Those prices I advertised last week certainly hit the right spot in the people in this county," said Mr. Lande at The Leader Store here this week. So Mr. Lande is carrying another large ad in this issue, listing more low prices on quality merchandise.

He also stated that he realized that his customers were in search of bargains, at the same time wanting something good for their money, and that he had combined these two wishes of his customers and believes he has what they want. Turn to The Leader ad in this issue and see for yourself.

3 ARE KILLED IN ACCIDENTS PAST FEW DAYS

Several Injured When Autos Collide, Overturn, Sideswipe Near Here

Three persons are dead and several injured as result of automobile mishaps happening in this county during the past several days. The dead are Hubert C. Cotten of Montgomery, John Carl Walters of Birmingham and G. L. Humes of Luverne, Okla.

Cotten was killed Wednesday of last week, when the truck he was driving left the Birmingham-Montgomery highway, overturning a few miles south of Clanton. He was 33 years old, a driver for the Ward Baking Co., of Birmingham. Funeral services were held in Montgomery Thursday. He is survived by his widow and three children.

G. L. Humes was killed when his car collided with a truck at Coopers last Friday afternoon, and striking a telephone post. In the car was Mrs. Humes and two children. They were enroute to their home in Oklahoma, coming from Florida.

Reports state that the truck, said to have been driven by Albert Dean, of Slocomb, Ala., and the Humes car collided when another car began to slow down in front of the truck. The body of Humes was brought to Clanton by a Spigener ambulance.

Another accident happened just about four miles south of Coopers, in which [illegible] Dean, Jr., also of Slocomb figured. He is a nephew of Albert Dean. Reports state that the younger Dean had turned around to see what had become of his uncle and fell asleep while driving, sideswiping another larger truck. No one was injured in this accident. The Deans had been to Birmingham in the two trucks and were en route to their Slocomb home, it was stated.

Walters, age 27, of 3826 Thirty Ninth Ave., Birmingham, was killed Sunday afternoon when his car collided with a car said to have been driven by W. T Haynes of Murfreesboro, Tenn. In the Walters car was Mrs. Walters and Perry Smith, the latter of Montgomery. Mrs. Walters received only slight injuries, while Perry Smith was confined in the Central Alabama Hospital here. The accident happened about four miles north of Jemison on the Birmingham highway.

In the Haynes car was Mrs. Haynes and two children, neither were seriously injured. Mr. Haynes received a fractured arm, and was carried to South Highands Infirmary in Birmingham by a Spigener ambulance of Clanton.

The office of the sheriff here reported that a quantity of liquor was found in the Walters car after the accident. Both cars were badly damaged. A truck coming along the highway soon after the accident, brought the injured people into Jemison where they received first aid treatment. The body of Walters was turned over to Martin & Sons, funeral directors of Clanton and prepared for burial, and shipped to Birmingham Monday.

BAPTISTS TO MAKE DRIVE FOR MISSIONS

Home And Foreign Missions Are In Destitute Need Of Immediate Relief

The Baptist Headquarters' office at Montgomery reports through Dr. Barton, Secretary-Treasurer, that all Baptist churches of Alabama and the South are requested to make a special emergency offering for Home and Foreign Missions during June and July, Sunday, June 19th, being the day set for the all-time churches, but any day thereafter if more convenient. It is said that the Foreign Mission Board, of Richmond, Va., will not be able to pay is foreign drafts on its letters of credit this summer unless the churches make this offering in this dire emergency. The missionaries will be stranded in foreign countries with no money to buy their bread unless Southern Baptists will come to the rescue.

The Home Board, of Atlanta, Ga., is threatened with the necessity of taking off all its force and closing its missionary work altogether unless the Baptists give heed to this emergency appeal. The older members of the de-

CHEVROLET DEALERS REPORT INCREASED JUNE BUSINESS

Chevrolet dealers reported the sale of 48,218 new passenger cars and trucks in May, within 200 units of domestic production for the month, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager announced today.

In the first ten days of the month, dealers reported the sale of 13,870 units. In the second like period the total advanced to 16,227 units, and in the last period it climbed to 18,121 new cars and trucks, Mr. Knudsen stated.

This entrance into June on a rising sales curve is one of the most hopeful signs for the month now evident, Mr. Knudsen pointed out.

In June the Chevrolet company, largest in the industry, is conducting an intensive new car campaign among more than two million owners of low priced cars two and three years old now in need of replacement, Mr. Knudsen stated.

SWEET POTATO GROWERS ARE GIVEN CERTIFICATES

Alabama sweet potato growers are offered free inspection service and certificates permitting them to sell potato plants without violating the Alabama law, which prohibits the selling of plants without a certificate.

The deparment of agriculture issues the certificates and growers are at present making application for inspection service, reports Seth P. Storrs, commissioner, who states that growers who intend to sell potato plants next year must apply for inspection not later than July 15 this year.

Before the department can issue certificates three inspections are necessary, one while the crop is in the field, one while the tubers are in storage and one of the plant beds after the plants are above the ground.

B. P. Livingston, chief of the plant division reports that potatoes and plants which have no black rot or stem rot will be graded "A" and that those with some black rot and stem rot will be graded "B".

He urges that farmers grow seed sweet potatoes from vine cuttings and that they be grown on soil not used in producing potatoes for the past ten years.

Thief? — Part II

Mrs. McNef's question, "Have you missed anything?" and the hint that Sam probably had stolen something from Mrs. Glover, called forth the angry retort:

"No! I haven't missed anything, and that 'sack of something' you speak of, was a bag of quilt scraps I left on my back porch for Sam. I asked Mrs. Clayton to send Sam after them. No! Sam has stolen nothing from me."

Mrs. Glover went home worried. She was teacher of the S. S. Class of which the three boys were members.

"Well," she sighed, "I have a job all cut out for me first day I am at home. I don't believe Sam's a thief. I'm going to the home of every boy in my class to hear what their mothers say about the rumor. I mean to get to the bottom of it, and I'll be my own private detective."

Sunday came around about five days later—five busy days for Mrs. Glover. When she entered the class room that Sunday morning the room rang with lusty cheers of welcome. She was a favorite teacher, and they were glad to have her with them again.

"Boys," she said, when they had cheered to their satisfaction, "I appreciate your hearty welcome. I should like to tell you about some of the thrilling sights I have seen since I saw you last, but that must wait until another time, for there is something else to do today." Her serious manner sobered the boys.

"I miss one face, Sam isn't here," she said, and the boys became still as statues.

"Why isn't he here? Does anyone know?" she asked. No one spoke or moved; statues don't, you know.

"Mack," she continued, "you and Sam were great chums, why isn't he here?"

"Well, Mrs. Glover," answered Mack, "Sam's had hard luck since you've been gone. Some of the boys got to callin' him 'thief' and accusin' him of takin' lots of things. They got to makin' fun of his clothes, and he mashed Fred's nose for him one day 'cause Fred called him a thief; so Sam hasn't been here for two weeks. He doesn't feel like bein' with the boys any more 'cause they've told l—, I mean fibs, on him."

"Thank you, Mack," said Mrs. Glover. "When I came home Tuesday I heard a little about what you have just spoken of, but I didn't believe Sam would take anything that did not belong to him. For Sam's sake I have done my best to get to the bottom of this rumor and I have found this: No one can bring any proof against Sam. It was all 'they say' and 'people say' except in one case. In that case one boy saw Sam leave my house with a 'bag of something.' This boy told his chum, and together they told others, hinting that Sam probably had stolen something. Soon many people were suspicious and Sam has had to suffer the heartbreak that every innocent person suffers when accused of crime of any sort.

"I wrote Sam's mother a note just as I was leaving two months ago asking her to send Sam to my house for that bag which was filled with quilt scraps. Sam is no thief, but I am sorry to know that some others in my class are. Shakespeare says,

'Good name in man or woman, dear, my lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls:
Who steals my purse, steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his and has been slave to thousands:
But he that filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed.'

"Do you see why stealing one's good name is one of the worst forms of thievery? Now, I don't believe the boys who started this tragedy in Sam's life realized what they were doing, but I want them to realize that the only thing they can do now is to straighten it up by telling everybody that Sam is innocent and also get back for him all that he has lost because of it. You know what that is, paper route, after-school jobs and the good will of his former customers. I hope to see some sign that these boys are sorry that they have injured one of the finest boys in town.

"Open your Bibles to James, 3rd chapter. All ready? You follow as I read the 5th and 6th verses.

"There we find a description of something that has been used in a way that has wrecked Sam's good name and burned up his happiness lately, and what is it?"

"Tongue," answered several boys.

"Yes, and isn't it sad that the tongue which is able to form words that make people happy is so often used to form words that break hearts? I want you to read this whole chapter, but now we're going to skip to the 17th and 18th verses and find there the way to be happy and make others happy every day of your lives.

"Let me tell you my plan to make peace out of this circumstance. I have asked the superintendent to hold S. S. until I can carry my plan through. Miss Thomas will take my place here again. I wrote Mrs. Clayton and Sam to be prepared for a pleasant surprise at 10:15. I am now asking Mack and two other boys to go with me to Mrs. Clayton's. I will ask Mrs. Clayton and Sam to come back to the closing exercises of Sunday School in which I will bring proof that Sam is not a thief. I'll ask everybody to accept Sam back in his old place, trust him in the same way and make his life happy again. Then we'll all be happier. Don't you think so?"

"Sure!" answered the class as one voice.

"Now, which two boys will volunteer to go with Mack and me?"

"I will," said Rufe.

"So will I," said Fred.

"Thank you, boys," said Mrs. Glover and she now wore her old time smile.

JESUS WILL KEEP YOU

By Mrs. Newton Cooper

Are you living, dear friends, under a burden within?
Is your heart overflowing with grief?
If so go to Jesus—in him you'll find rest.
He'll give you sweet comfort and peace.

Are you standing, dear loved ones, with a troubled brow?
Have you more trouble than you think you can stand?
Remember that Jesus is standing close
And He'll lend you a helping hand.

Does the world seem against you, and you in the battle alone?
Is your cross too hard for you to bear?
Remember when we get to the end of our trail,
Jesus is standing right there.

Do you get discouraged and all out of sorts, because you can't have your own way?
Remember, there are others that are suffering too.
So, let's you and I kneel down and pray,

Does it seem like you're forsaken by loved ones and all?
That nothing you do is done right?
Remember, that Jesus is watching over you,
And will keep you both day and night.

LARGE INCREASE IN STATE HOME GARDENS

Ninety to 95 per cent of the farm families in Alabama have gardens in which they are producing vegetables for home use, according to F. W. Gist, statistician for the department of agriculture, who reports this to be a large increase over previous years.

Federal statistics for 1930 show that only 80 per cent of farm families in Alabama had gardens.

The Fall Crop Of Irish Potatoe

Julian Brown, Extension Horticulturi

The two main factors limiting t production of fall grown Irish potato in Alabama are (1) climatic condition in some sections of the state during July and August, and (2) through force o necessity spring grown seed are usua ly planted which generally result in poor stand. Of course, climatic conditions cannot be controlled, but resul during the past few years have show that we may materially increase th sprouting of new or spring grown potatoes by a comparatively simple treatment. Certain sections in north Alabama seem particularly adapted to th production of a fall crop of potatoe where a stand is secured, and thes recommendations should prove o greatest interest in these sections.

Ethelene chlorhydrin is the materi which has been found to be most effective in hastening the sprouting of new potatoes. This treatment is as follows

1. Mix 1 pint of 40% ethelene chlorhydrin in 4 gallons of water.
2. Cut potatoes as usual before planting. /Where small potatoes are use which are not cut before planting, slic off one side of peeling to permit direc action of the chemical.
3. Dip potatoes in solution just long enough to make sure they are thoroughly wet.
4. As soon as potatoes are dipped they should be placed in a fairly tigh container, covered over top, and allowed to remain for 24 to 36 hours. To avoid over-heating, which usually results in decay of the potatoes afte planting, this container should be kep in a cool place while the potatoes ar going through this treatment.
5. The potatoes should be planted a the end of the treating period (24 t 36 hours). They should be plante about 6 inches deep to avoid exce heating from the sun and first fe inches of top soil.

LETTER FROM J. C. EDWARDS

ditor, Chilton County News:

David says, Depart from evil and do od and dwell forevermore, Ps. 37:27.

To depart from evil means to for- ke the Devil's organization, and to good means to wholly devote one's lf to the Lord. Those who thus show eir love for God he never forsakes, t they shall inherit all the precious ings that God has promised.

God has promised that he will estab- h a righteous government on earth d that man shall benefit therefrom. is promise is that it shall be a govern- ent of peace and prosperity, and that shall stand forever. God never fails a fulfillment of his promise. For in s own due time God will faithfully rform all that he has promised. (Josh. :14; I Kings 8:56; Isa. 40:26.)

In order that those who call upon him ay have complete confidence God says to them. So shall my word be that goeth forth out my mouth it shall not return unto me void but it shall accomplish that which I please and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it. God said to Abraham and I will make of thee a great nation and I will bless thee and make thy name great and curse him that curseth thee and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed. (Gen. 12:2-3.)

These words can be construed to mean only that God purposes to establish a nation of righteousness for the blessing of all the families of the earth and this he will do in his own due time.

The words of Gen. 17:1-6, can mean nothing less than God's expressed purpose of establishing upon earth a government for the benefit of men over which God must reign as the great Supreme Power. God organized Israel into a nation. His primary purpose in so doing was to foreshadow the establishment of his lasting government which he had promised through his holy prophets. Then evil doers shall be cut off, but those that wait upon the Lord they shall inherit the earth (Ps. 37:9).

Dear Editor:

Please allow me to say a few words through your paper in regard to church work and the depression. It seems that no one can tell when the depression will end though many make attempts to say. More than a year ago it was said, "We are at the bottom of the depression curve," but we have been going right on down since then. I have watched with interest how people have used the depression as an excuse for everything. Of course it enters into almost everything, but it is also used merely as an excuse. People use it as an excuse for not attending church. They say they do not have suitable clothes like other folks and that they do not have money for the offering. God does not expect us to use that that we do not have, but that that we have, be it little or much. The shame in it is not insufficient or unsuitable clothes and no money for the offering, but a lack of proper realization that Christ is counting on His children to carry on the work He has so graciously left to our care. The Gospel must be preached at all times, to all the world, under all circumstances and if we fail in any of these we fail to measure up to what our blessed Lord expects of us. The proper amount of pride in matters of clothing, etc., is all right and needed, but we should brush aside over-much pride in matters of clothes and attend the Lord's house. For my part, if necessary, I could preach in clean overalls just as well as in fine clothes, which I have never had.

Next Sunday is our regular church day and I take this means of inviting all true and loyal Baptists to attend church with us. If there are those who are Baptist in name and something else in belief, you come too and worship with us if you will.

My subject will be something bearing on the Doctrines of Christ. There is a real need for strong doctrinal messages among Baptists in some places especially. Emotional religion is sweeping some people off of their feet and we as ministers are the ones who should give our people the real Scriptural doctrines and the emotions will take care of themselves.

"I was glad when they said unto us, Let us go into the house of the Lord."

G. G. WILLIAMS.

Others to attend are Dewey Dorsett, State Chairman of the organization for North Carolina, and Miss May Thompson Evans, State Vice-Chairman.

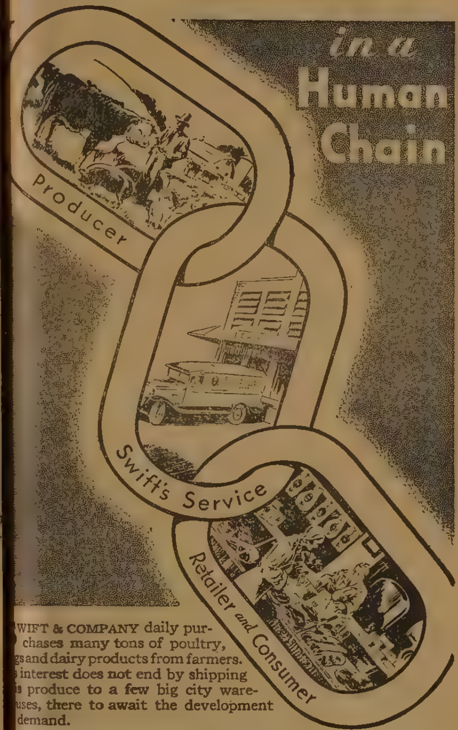
Vital Links



WIFT & COMPANY daily purchases many tons of poultry, gs and dairy products from farmers. interest does not end by shipping s produce to a few big city wareuses, there to await the development demand.

Demand seldom stands on the rooftop and yells for Supply to e into the house.

That's why, every morning thousands of Swift & Company anch House and Car Route salesmen start out to sell poultry, tter, eggs and meat.

Perhaps these salesmen do not create demand, but they hunt for with fine tooth combs; they stir it; they dig it up. When they d Demand, they turn it over to farm producers who sell to ift & Company.

It is to the salesmen's interest to discover new outlets, to expand old ones, to let the organization know which markets are best. eir incomes, their advancement, depend on how well they sell. Salesmen are vital links in a human chain that reaches back to the duce plant manager and his helpers. Every man strives to ter himself by selling more and by cutting the cost of handling.

The Swift & Company national market was made by digging up demand wherever it exists in the United States, by advertising brands of high quality, Swift's Meats, Swift's Premium Milk Fed Chicken, Golden West Fowl, Swift's Brookfield Butter, Eggs, Cheese and many other products. Local gluts and shortages are known, and Swift's products are then distributed to the best advantage. By having the same railroad cars equipped to transport produce or meat; by having the same salesmen sell produce and meat on the same order, important economies have been achieved. Costs are spread more thinly for livestock men and produce men alike.

Unflagging interest that begins with a purchase from a farmer continues until his produce is in a retail store—and in demand a consumer—that is Swift & Company service. The charges for re low. Profits over a period of years, have averaged less than alf cent a pound of all products sold.

Be Sure You Understand It

Within the past eighteen months at least one-half of the states have considered levying new taxes on the gross revenues of public utility companies. Two states, South Carolina and Idaho, have passed measures taxing the electricity generated within their borders. In both cases the measures were opposed in the courts on the grounds of unconstitutionality, but were upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

It is to be hoped that the public will not consent to such schemes without a thorough understanding of what they mean. Political advocates of them ask support on the ground that they will tax the rich corporation in order to benefit the entire population. What is not explained is that the taxes fall upon the individual, rich and poor, alike—and proportionately more heavily on the latter.

A utility company cannot raise revenue from the sky. It has no means of producing dollars out of thin air. Any increase in operating expenses, whether it be for labor, supplies or taxes, must find its way into the gas or electric bill. It must be passed on to the customer. And the man with an income of three thousand a year will pay relatively more of it than the man with a million, because no matter how wealthy one is, there is a limit to the amount of electricity that will be used.

It is safe to say that thousands of persons have supported these and similar schemes because they have misundersood them. They have believed they would really do what their advocates said—not realizing that tax chickens always come home to roost. Until industry finds some magical means of making money, the public is going to have to pay when it artificially increases the cost of doing business.

Build No More Pyramids

We would like to see the Government of the United States, the Government of every state, every county and every town, start right off on a program of public improvements that will put a lot of people to work and put a lot of money into circulation. But we don't want to see that sort of work done if it is just going to sink the taxpayers' money where it won't come back.

Among the greatest public works of all time are the Pyramids of Egypt. Under the direction of successive Pharaohs they gave employment to practically everybody in Egypt, but they consumed practically all of the money and resources of Egypt. And once all of that labor and money had been built into the pyramids, there wasn't any way of getting it out again, and that is what ruined ancient Egypt.

We have built enough pyramids, in the form of nonproductive public works, in America. We do not think the government, or any part of the government, ought to go into business in competition with private capital, but we can think of a lot of things, to build which it would be perfectly sound business for the government to borrow money, because eventually the money would come back to pay for those enterprises, and they are not the sort of thing toward which private capital has ever been greatly inclined. We understand that the Washington Monument, although it was only partly built by government funds, more than pays for its upkeep by the fees charged for taking visitors to the top of it. We think the principles of democracy have been carried too far in assuming that whatever was paid for out of public funds should be free for the use of everybody who wants to use it.

By all means let Uncle Sam sell a billion or five billion dollars of bonds to get money for public works, provided it is not to be spent for pyramids but for projects so safe-guarded that the money will come back with interest without putting an added burden upon the taxpayers.

o-o-o-o

The Cost of Government

We have always felt that taxpayers do not object to paying reasonable taxes, provided they get something for their money. Lately there has risen a widespread outcry against the steady increase of taxes, Federal, State and local. We think that outcry has its roots in the general feeling that our governmental units are not giving us value received for the taxes we pay.

Almost all of our government units have been taxing, borrowing and spending beyond the means of the people to pay. Taxes are remaining unpaid. That causes forced sales of property and destroys values. Nothing but drastic retrenchment can possibly restore our governmental units to financial health. And one way to retrench—the best possible way as we see it—is to stop spending money on fads, on things which benefit only a few, and particularly upon the effort to regulate everything by law.

As a nation we are dedicated to the principles of individualism and a minimum of governmental interference in private affairs, and yet we have built up the biggest and most expensive governmental machinery ever created. We object to government in business, and yet we spend more money on governmental promotion and regulation of business than any country in the world except Russia. We talk loudly about the vast expenditures for armaments in Europe, and yet we spend more on armaments than any country in peace time in the world's history. Likewise, we spend more than any other country in the attempt to enforce the laws, and at the same time we have more crime of all kinds than any other nation.

If the editor of this paper knew the perfect answer to all the problems of government and finance, he would not be running this paper, but might be running the government. We think that there is an answer, but we think also that the answer will only be found when everybody who contributes a cent in taxes to local, county, state, or national administration devotes a lot more time to thinking about these things and expressing his thoughts than most people do now.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

> "Despise not any man, and do not spurn anything; for there is no man that has not his hour, nor is there anything that has not its place."—Rabbi Ben Azai.

Don't know much about these Rabbis, but the guy who said that above, said a mouthful, believe me.

* * *

Did you know that it had rained in Clanton almost every day for the past week? It has.

* * *

Did you know that—

Rumors have it Clanton is to have a regular bus terminal?

The railroad that has meant so much to Chilton County is being hard hit by bus and truck lines?

The pay roll of the railroad has been deeply cut due to a loss of business as a result of bus and truck lines on the highways?

These same busses and trucks run on the road that was built by the txpayers' money, and that the railroad had to buy its right-of-way?

The Pilot Club of Clanton is beginning to "do things"?

It seems rather obvious that the Democrats are slated for a victory in the November election? (That's a tip.)

Business is becoming more sensitive than ever?

Advertising is a good treatment for sensitive business?

I believe it is going to rain again today while I'm writing this column?

This fellow McNair, the Presbyterian preacher, seems to be a rather fine sort of fellow?

That I don't know whether he is married or not? Do you?

That I've had several young ladies to ask me about that?

That I have used the word "That" only nine times in these few lines?

I hear, from comments of those watching the dance given by the Pilot Club last Friday night, that "it must have been good." Clanton's "400" was represented in a big way at that blowout, and so far as I can determine, it was a success and nothing was wrong or amiss. A neat little sum was realized by the club for Red Cross funds, also.

* * *

Did you read that article in last week's News, headed "Mice Cages"? It was good, and had some reasoning in it. The article, written by a reader of the News, was based on the mouse in the cage at Alred Drug Co., here, and how he would go round and round on the disc that was arranged in the cage.

* * *

And now, they tell me, the county has it in mind to spend several thousand dollars to build a permanent road out to Lock 12. I don't want to be too critical, nor seem so much like a cynic, but I do hope this is not a political scheme, but a sound idea for the good of the people. You know, so many times in the past, it has seemed to me that all this road work the county does, is usually based on politics and if a person don't alk just right, there's small chance of getting a job.

* * *

Speaking of being a cynic, I'll never forget the time a certain friend of mine accused me of being somewhat cynical.

* * *

Also seems like a certain columnist is about to get in a tight place in regard to some remarks about graft in the road work of this county. The Commissioners Court has called his hand at it, and asked him to show his cards, and basis for his accusations.

* * *

Well, old timer and fellow-sufferer, I hope you have the guts to show the Commissioner your cards. You know if you fall down this time, it will injure the confidence of the people in opinions you express. Now's your chance to be of a real service in uncovering this graft, but be careful that you are not hooked up with some politicians in this.

* * *

It seems rather strange to me that a bird of a color would be finding such terrible faults with other birds of the same color. If the said columnist is right in his accusations about the road graft in this county, then it seems to me that something is wrong in the Republican camp in this county.

* * *

Thanks to you Mr. Williams and Mr. Davis for your kind comments on this column. Mr. Davis, you are right. I don't like to dabble too much in politics, because I feel that my readers get enough of that somewhere else. I'd rather write about bees and flowers, if nothing else.

* * *

But if you think it is an easy job to write this column every week, you should just try it.

* * *

I just must get up to Thorsby one of these days and do a little looking around. I notice the ed does a lot of writing about Thorsby, and I better just run up there and see what it is all about. But Verbena is my favorite right now. Don't ask why. It is neither a blonde, brunette nor red head—perhaps all three, although I don't believe there is a red-headed girl in Verbena.

* * *

The reason I like Verbena is because of the air of aristocracy that seems to be calmly gathered there with no effort. And even the name of the town appeals to me.

* * *

There's something about Maplesville I like too. Perhaps it is the friendliness of the people over there. Taking it all in all, no doubt the whole thing can be summed up in the one word "Democracy". I like Democrats, like to be with them and around them. Republicans may be all right, and I've some real good friends who are Republicans, but I just feel a little uneasy when I get with a bunch of them. Hope they don't feel the same way when I'm around.

Saw Bernie Cobb in Clanton the other day. He lives up at Jemison, and is a friendly sort of fellow.

* * *

These $4.95 suits of clothes they have up at The Leader Store, are sure the go now. Mr. Lande knows what the people want and he can get it for them.

Names Don't Count --- It's the Man

Newspapers have published many articles detailing business difficulties arising in the transportation world through competition between railroads and motor trucks. The character of men in these businesses is also revealed in three newspaper stories.

The Scottsbluff, Nebraska, Daily Star-Herald tells of a fifty-mile gale that suddenly blew snow across the plains around Cheyenne with fierceness that has seldom been equaled. The editor continues:

"In the midst of this turmoil came one of those huge Union Pacific passenger buses, stolidly making its way to Cheyenne and safety—and with a real he-man at the wheel. The big bus could make its way where lighter cars could not. Apparently its occupants had nothing to worry about—but a good Samaritan was in that car. He stopped and investigated every car that was in distress; he took the women and children—and some of the men, too, into his own warm car; he shoveled snow; he dragged cars back into the highway; he herded them along; . . . . he took on to his own shoulders the job of seeing that everyone was safe if he could make them safe."

The second story is told by E. O. Mayfield, a retired feature writer of the Omaha World-Herald. Accompanied by Mrs. Mayfield, he left Ogallala for Julesburg in his automobile. A part of the road paralleled the railroad right of way. Between Big Springs and Julesburg there was the choice of smashing into an oncoming light car with a number of children in it, or driving into the bank. The Mayfield car was wrecked, both occupants injured and cut by flying glass. The light car with the youngsters did not see the accident and went on. But the engineer of a Denver-bound Union Pacific freight train did. Mr. Mayfield says:

"That engineer stopped his train and he and the crew that were not need to safe-guard the train came over and dug us out of the wreck: . . . . They administered first aid. A Denver-bound bus came along. The train crew and the bus driver dragged our car back on the road. Fortunately it was able to run. We drove back to Ogallala where the Union Pacafic doctor at the point dressed our injuries. A Union Pacific passenger train was about due. The operator wired ahead to the train conductor. It was stopped at Ogallala. A berth had already been prepared. Mrs. Mayfield was put to bed in the care of a nurse and we came on into Omaha and to the hospital."

The third story is told by the United Press, under a Cheyenne date line:

"The feud between railroad and truck lines was graphically portrayed near here one cold, wet night recently. A motorist halted a truck and explained to the driver that his machine had skidded into the ditch. The truck driver agreed to tow him on to the road, and a rope was tied between the truck and the machine. The truck driver then walked around the rear of the stalled car to size up the situation.

"He looked at the tire cover on the rear of the car. The cover bore a slogan, 'Ship and Travel by Rail.'

"'Buddy, you better get a switch engine to tow you out,' said the truck driver, as he flipped the tow rope back into the truck and drove away."

If it were possible for the most renowned artist in the Universe to attempt to picture a character, a life, an influence, a spirit of love as was evidenced in the personage of our subject, he would fail in his tints and shadows in the extremity of his canvas. As we undertake to picture her life in words we feel our vocabulary deficient, as master of words adequate or in language expressive, conveying to the reader a retrospective history of a life as was Hers. Upon eulogies of woman by gifted orators, they have said that a good woman was the grandest gift to man and the world.

The life of this noble woman is indelibly engraven upon the hearts and minds of all with whom she chanced to be an associate. Her influence was as the rays of the morning sun, penetrating a joy of gladness to weary souls, her smiles as the silver moon reflecting purity of character, her eyes, as satelites set in azures of love, her words, as dew drops refreshing the tendels of honor and peace. Her footprints fashioning pathways to a city celestial.

She was an earnest worker and devoted to her church, the W. M. S., and her class in Sunday School. Her class of Young Men and Young Women attested their devotion to their teacher when the last and comforting words were said over the bier placing a profusion of floral designs over and around the altar and dropping tears from a wounded heart for one whose life budded on earth to bloom in heaven. Her deeds of kindness to the sick, the bereaved, and unfortunate were her greatest pleasure. We recall an incident that saddens our heart when one afternoon last summer, she and her daughter called to spend a few hours with a member of our family who cherished them as special friends, and who was ill. They gave him words of encouragement, but in a few months he passed away, November 1, 1931, and on the 11th day of the same month Mrs. Duncan, familiarly known as Vivienne, without warning, and the picture of health was slain in an auto collision, and on June 6, 1932 Mrs. Foshee was called. She is and will always be missed in Maplesville, in church organizations and most of all in the home.

She spent her life here, born February 12, 1876 and was first a worker in the Methodist church and later cast her lot with the Maplesville Baptist church, being a charter member at it organization. She took marriage vows with Mr. John W. Foshee on December 15, 1897 and resulting from this union were born on November 8, 1898 Vivienne (Mrs. L. P. Duncan), on August 6, 1901, Maurice, on May 6, 1909, John Alwyn and on January 8, 1912, Herbert E., all of whom survive her except Mrs. Duncan, who left in her stead twin daughters to cherish the memory of Mother and Grandmother.

Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of Clanton Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Paul Oden, conducted the funeral services in Maplesville Baptist Church. Interment in Maplesville cemetery.

Her body only has died—she liveth still
We shall miss her, but 'twas God's Will
And on the resurrection morn we will see,
Walking the Streets of Gold, Mrs. John Foshee.

A FRIEND.

It Makes The World Go Round

A young man burst violently into my office.

His face was somewhat haggard, and his clothes disheveled, as though he had been up all night, which, in fact, he had.

But there was electricity in his walk, and sunshine in his eyes.

"Have you heard the wonderful news?" he cried.

I told him I had not heard any wonderful news since 1929.

"Well, you're going to hear some now," he exclaimed. "I have a boy. Yes sir, seven and a half pounds, born at five-thirty this morning. Think of it . . . me . . . a son."

Whereupon he became almost inarticulate, waving his arms and emitting sounds that were half laughter and half tears.

At length he gained sufficient self-conarol to impart the information that the baby had blue eyes. (I hadn't the heart to say that all babies have blue eyes. He wouldn't have heard me anyway.) "When I looked down at him the first time, the little rascal looked up and smiled. And he reached out and grabbed my finger, and say . . . well, I don't know how to express it, but when I felt grip my finger, so trusting and everything . . . well, say, if I were worth five thousand dollars to my boss yesterday, I'm worth ten thousand today."

Did I treat his enthusiasm seriously? You bet I did. Any man who himself has passed through that experience and does not feel a reverena sympathy for a younger brother in the same situation has some serious lack in his soul.

One night in 1856, Thomas Huxley, the great scientist, sat alone in a quiet room awaiting the birth of his first child. His spirit was on fire with great new resolves:

"In 1860 I may fairly look forward to fifteen or twenty years," he wrote in his diary, "and with the comprehensive views my training will have given me, I think it will be possible in that time to give a new and healthier direcaion to all Biological Science.

"To smite all humbugs, however big; to give a nobler tone to science; to set an example of abstinence from petty personal controversies, and of toleration for everything but lying; to be indifferent as to whether the work is recognized as mine or not, so long as it is done—are these my aims? 1860 will show.

"Half past ten at night.

"Waiting for my child. I seem to fancy it the pledge that all these things shall be.

"Born five minutes after twelve. Thank God."

Every night, somewhere in the world, hundreds of thousands of men sit wating for their children. Thoughts come into their young minds, which never were there before. New purposes; new earnestness.

Not all of this impulse is permanent of course, but a part at least remains of the urged to do something and be something worthy of these children.

It is a greater force than personal ambition. It makes the world go round.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
BY JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

Malaria

I believe that many of my readers will be interested in my topic this week, especially the great number living in the damp lowlands of our southern districts. The mosquito is the malaria-carrier. Our broad policy of education of the masses will, in time, conquer the little demon that has wrought so much of unhappiness to our race.

Typical malaria is manifested by its periodical chills, and fever that follow immediately. Its paroxyisms occur with the regularity, almost of the clock. Remember, irregular chills and fever point to septicaemia—pus somewhere—and NOT malaria. Your physician must decide for you; and a chill, of any kind, should send you post-haste to the doctor for investigation.

Science has identified the malarial poison, which is now easily disposed of, if your diagnosis is right. Quinine will turn the trick, if administered properly: give it on chill-days only, getting in three doses (which should total at least ten grains), the last dose at least one hour before the expected chill. For instance, if the chill has been arriving at eleven o'clock every second day I give four grains of quinine at four, seven and ten on the day the chill is due.

Given in this manner it will dismiss the chill on that day. Then, on next chill-day, I repeat the little program, and do it for at least six "chill-days" after the last chill. The malarial poison will have been conquered. Of course the bowel must be looked after, and the diet kept in the bounds of good, easily-digested food. This outline is for acute form of malaria, which will not become chronic if properly dealt with. Quinine is a specific for malaria. Space forbids discussing the "estivo-autumnal" type.

I have treated cases from the Amazon Valley in South America and the swamps of Louisiana with gratifying success.

James Rorkin of St. Louis had his wife arrested for pointing a revolver at him and taking away his week's wages.

John Bould of Latham, Eng., was fined for trying to punish a girl and youth who kissed each other at his gate.

"It was worth it!" sighed T. H. Rising of Portland, Ore., as he paid a $2.50 fine in city court for kissing a girl while driving with one hand on the wheel.

In a divorce suit Mrs. Mildred F. Richardson of Boston testified that her husband is a "cave man," explaining that he pulled her out of bed, hurled a telephone at her, and poured hot coffee down her neck.

BIG PICTURE IS COMING TO LOCAL THEATRE LATTER PART OF MONTH

Special Picture Is Also Scheduled To Be Shown Here On Monday And Tuesday, June 20 And 21 At The Wadesonian Theatre

Many persons remember seeing the famous motion picture, "The Birth of A Nation." This picture is coming to Clanton again this month and will be in sound, the first time it has been shown here in sound. It is scheduled to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, June 27 and 28, and is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, proceeds going to the worthy work of that club.

"The Birth of A Nation" is truly a big picture, and many comments are being heard on its coming to Clanton again in sound. It goes back to the time when the idea of the Ku Klux Klan originated and operated in this country.

On next Monday and Tuesday nights, the Wadesonian announces they have booked to be shown here, the picture "Not Exactly Gentlemen." This promises to be good, according to the management of the theatre. Several well known and popular stars play in this picture next Monday and Tuesday nights.

Mr. and Mrs. Oce Willis spent Sunday night with the parents of Mrs. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wells. C. W. returned to spend the week with them.

Mrs. J. B. Franklin spent part of Monday night with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miskelley.

Mr. and Mrs. Hernie Hodgens spent Sunday night with the parents of Mrs. Hodgens, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miskelley.

Mr. Charlie Wells has been ill this week.

Mr. J. B. Franklin spent part of Monday night with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright.

We are very glad to know it was a mistake that Mr. Burnie Davenport had to stay in the hospital and that he has now returned home. He won't be able to work this year any.

Our pastor, Rev. J. C. Miller, with Rev. Wells and Rev. Nicholas were present last Sunday at our singing.

The health of this community is not so well this week, but there isn't but two serious cases, that is Mr. Rasberry and son. We hope for a quick recovery.

The rain has been just the thing this week; or it would not have fell, but we can't think about it that way when we are hoeing for dear life to kill the grass in our crops.

Crops in this section are not nearly so good as they have been being this time each year. Some of the farmers are looking for destruction by the insects as never before witnessed, but we hope they are mistaken.

The farmers of this section aren't looking for such heavy crops. Therefore they have decreased their fertilizer bill by almost one-half and are raising more for the "table" than for the "market." Some of the things that have been increased in acreage are corn, cane, sorghum, beans, okra, and as many things as is possible to produce for the table. Another saga the farmers have added to their chapter is that all the farmers are trying to get plenty of bees and eggs.

The farmers of this community have witnessed the lowest prices for strawberries this year than has been in years, therefore, leaving them, many of them, in debt without anything in sight this fall. But maybe we can enjoy prosperity better when it returns if it ever does.

CALF CLUB TOUR

By Quentin Kelly

On Friday afternoon, June 3rd, the Clanton Calf Club accompanied by Mr. Stapp and a few other Clanton men, made a trip to Baker's Dairy in Shelby county. We left Clanton about 1:30 and arrived there about 2:30 o'clock. Arriving there we met Mr. Baker and his son who own the dairy. The dairy and farm around contains 300 acres and the dairy contains about 200 head of cattle, including about 70 milking cows, 30 dry cows, 4 bulls and 100 heifers. Mr. Baker raises all the feed which contains hay and grains.

After we had visited all interesting places of the dairy Mr. Baker made us a short but interesting talk, telling us all about the facts about dairying, why he was in the business, etc.

It might be interesting to some people to know that Mr. Baker started out 36 years ago with only 7 cows, an old graw mare and a one-horse wagon. Since then the dairy has grown into 3 of Alabama's best and most prosperous dairies.

We left for Clanton about 4:30 o'clock and arrived here about 6:30. I'm sure every boy or man who went feels benefited by the trip.

Night Grazing Of Cows Is Advised

In the summer when the days are hot night grazing of dairy cows is recommended by Prof. W. H. Eaton, dairyman at Auburn. Reasons for this are, (1) comfort for cows, and (2) less annoyance from flies.

It has worked well with the dairy herd at Auburn. The cows are kept in a cool shady place in the daytime and fly repellants used to reduce fly annoyance. At night they graze without disturbance.

Activities of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association

We have closed the strawberry season and they have brought about $50,000. We have now shipped four cars of beans. It is possible we will ship another car of beans the last part of this week. There is a good deal of talk about the growers of Thorsby planting another crop of beans, if they do this the association will ship cars of beans again at a later date. It would be well for those that contemplate growing late beans to confer with the manager of the association.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A prospective auto buyer was talking with an Irishman salesman when he propounded this question, "And Mike, what part of an automobile do you consider to be the most important part?" Mike thought for a moment and replied, "The nut that holds the wheel." Mike was right. The "Nut" that holds the wheel never fails to determine where the wheels shall carry the car. Before the days of the automobile we often heard this statement, "It's as useless as the fifth wheel to a buggy." This expression has lost its original meaning. The buggies that roll thru our streets today have a fifth wheel and it is the most important wheel on the machine. The steering wheel and the "Nut" that holds it, determine as to course of the other four wheels. Like the automobile, all human life is equipped with a fifth wheel, and this wheel is more important than the other wheels. The fifth wheel of your life, and the fifth wheel of my life is none other than our will power. If the "Nut" that holds that wheel fails to function along right lines of choice, a collision is sure to follow. It is will power that keeps the wheels of life from running us into bad habits. It is will power that keeps us from taking the "Detours" that leave the narrow path of virtue and right. I am begging that the "Nut" that holds every steering wheel in life, grip the wheel and guide your way of life firmly and well.

I overheard a conversation that took place between a customer and the owner of a store. The customer had refused to buy an article that was offered, not because it was not needed, but because the man did not have the money to pay cash. He was told that his credit was good, and that he would be glad to charge the price to him. Then the man in front of the counter made a sensible reply. Here is what he said, "I pay cash for everything I buy. If I cannot pay cash, I do without." That man had the correct idea of breaking the chains of this depression. One of the real fine arts of human life is the art of learning how to do without. When a man's wants are his masters, and he buys without the cash to settle, that man is headed for the rocks. It is an easy matter to want. Even a baby can have as many wants as a grown man. The real test of character and manhood is not in wanting, but in the ability to force yourself to do without the things that you can not afford. One of the real gems of life is to have credit, but it should never be used. Credit, like a coffin, should be our last resort. If you will learn the art of doing without, the time will come when your can pay cash for what you need.

A modern father had a modern daughter. She was just sixteen. She flounced into the reading room where her father had just seated himself with his paper. A conversation started that grew a bit loud and heated. At last the father was heard to say, "Daughter, all of your conversations remind me of the early days of married life when your mother practiced the musical scale." The daughter in a rather pettish mood replied, "Musical scale, father, for goodness sake tell me what you are talking about?" "I am saying just this, child, in your conversations you always start with dough and you finish with dough." That is the modern topic of young people when they are talking to their parents. If young life would learn the lesson of doing something first, the getting of dough would not be such a difficult task.

It is said that when Helen Keller was a little babe that her mother would bend over her and talk in baby language to the little one. Mother tears would fall upon the face of the little one, but not a sign of knowledge or recognition would play across the countenance of the babe. The eyes of the babe were dark and her ears were deaf. The little one knew not that her mother was near only by touch. The mother would cry over her darling, saying, "Mother love you. O Helen, can't you hear mother?" All was blank and dark. That is the way our Father in heaven is bending over every sinner who is blinded with sin and who is deaf to the affection of God. Our Father is bending over every lost sinner saying, "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." O sinner, can you not hear the call of God?

In the midst of the Crimean War a poor soldier boy was picked up on the battle front. In the hospital the doctors found that his heart was bad and that he could not take anesthetic. An operation had to be performed to save his life. He told the doctors that he could stand it if Florence Nightingale—the angel of the Crimean War, would come and sit by him and let him hold her hand while the doctors were cutting in his flesh. The nurse came and the soldier boy held her hand while the doctors probed for the bullet. While holding the hand of the Angel of every soldier he stood the operation. Many of us are meeting with accidents and trouble along this way of life. There is but one Anesthetic that will quiet our spirits and calm our souls, and that is to hold on to the hand of Jesus Christ. If he will sit by us when the providence of God is probing for the bullet thru sorrow and disappointments, we can stand it. Hold thy my hand, dear Lord.

JACOB THE AGED FATHER

Genesis 46:1-7; 28-30; 47:7

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Pharaoh had personally invited Jacob to come and take the journey in the "wagons of Joseph." Our Master Teacher is gracious in giving us aids to faith, for many are still slow of heart to believe, like the two who walked and talked with Jesus on the road to Emmaus. Those who do not believe God are those who simply will not, for the proofs concerning His person and work are abundant throughout the ages.

Heart-hunger helps Jacob to become willing to enter upon the toilsome journey to Egypt. There are to be five more years of famine and then the appeal to change residence to another place where food can be found.

In Hebron was the place of ancestral burial. On this traditional site are the most venerated shrines of the Mohammedans. Care is taken to bar all others but Moslems from visiting this shrine.

All anxiety about the journey to Egypt was removed at Beer-Sheba. There Jacob had further audience with God at the altar of worship. This change of home was in the purpose of Jehovah as we read the promises made to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Jacob was a shepherd so he was given a section of land in Goshen, which lay east of what is now Cairo and contiguous to the Red Sea. Reuben was sent to announce their coming.

The aged father met the first born son with outburst of thanksgiving. The meeting with Pharaoh was formal indeed, but he extends full courtesy. Read the rest of the narrative to the end of Genesis.

Read the Golden text as found in (Genesis 20:12).

The groundless fear of the brothers is renewed until Joseph assures them that forgiveness has been granted. What is our relationship with God? Read (Psalm 103:12).

PRESERVE THIS SUMMER TO HELP THE NEEDY THIS WINTER IS URGE

Chilton County Clubs, Organizations Have Splendid Opportunity To Prepare For Calls For Helping That Are To Come

"Preserve this summer to help the needy next winter", is a slogan that condenses into a few words a description of a movement which as it gains momentum appears to provide a practical means whereby housewives thruout the country can perform a real service in relieving distress among the unemployed.

Nothing more elaborate or complicated is involved than the putting up of preserves for distribution to the needy throughout the winter months. A great deal can be accomplished by individual women working in their own kitchens and distributing the results of their work to families whose needs they are personally acquainted. An even more important contribution to relief, however, can be made by women willing to organize group preserving activities among their friends, or women's organizations of which they are members.

The cash expenditure required is small. Fruits and vegetables promise to be unusually cheap and abundant throughout the summer. Sugar is cheaper than it has ever been in all history. Another great point in favor of the movement is that preserves are of particular value in maintaining health and stamina. The fruits and green vegetables are the best possible sources of vitamins and mineral salts. The sugar content of the preserves is an unequalled source of energy. A supply of preserves put up by the conscientious housewives of the community can go far toward providing distressed families with a balanced diet that will go beyond the point of merely sustaining life on a make shift basis.

The procedure of organizing group preserving activities is an easy one. The woman willing to take the initiative can suggest to a number of her friends, perhaps to her bridge club, that one day a week they meet by turns in each other's kitchens, each contributing her share of the small amount of money required to purchase the necessary materials and supplies. Those who are officers or members of women's community or church organizations should find a hearty welcome for the suggestion that the organization as a whole devote a day a week to such a worthwhile activity. Many community centers and churches have kitchens where the preserving can be done, and a group of women working together will make the work and time fly with astonishing rapidity. Materials and supplies bought in the larger quantities required will be even cheaper than when purchased on a strictly retail basis.

CARD OF THANKS

The News has been requested by George W. Willis to express his thanks and appreciation for the kindness shown the bereaved relatives of little James Donovan who died at his home recently. Mr. Willis wishes to especially thank J. Mell Martin, funeral director, the ministers, doctor attending, and all their friends.

CONSTIPATION take

"IF I got constipated, I would get dizzy and have swimming in my head. I would have very severe headache.

"For a while I thought I wouldn't take anything—maybe I could wear out the headaches; but I found they were wearing me out.

"I found Black-Draught would relieve this, so when I have the very first symptoms, I take Black-Draught and now I don't have the headache.

"I am a firm believer in Black-Draught, and after using it 20 or more years, I am satisfied to continue its use."

THEDFORD'S Black-Draught

WOMEN who are run-down, or suffer every month, should take Cardui. Used for over 50 years.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulant need not worry about growing old.

Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

Our church is equipped with an electric bell system for the Sunday school work. Each Sunday morning at 9:45 this bell rings. This is news to many for they have the bad habit of coming late. Be on time next Sunday and see how the bell sounds.

Preaching Sunday at 11 A.M. and at 8 o'clock P.M. by the pastor. We heard two great messages last Sunday by Prof. Haskew. He spoke as a Layman to Laymen.

There will be preaching Sunday afternoon at Isabella at 3:30 o'clock.

Since the close of our schools the attendance at Sunday school is dropping off. This should not be. Parents, show your real interest in the well being of your children by bringing them to Sunday school. Then if you love your children, take them with you into the preaching service. If you want your family to be a credit to you and an honor to your country, you had better train them in the house of God.

Is your telephone in your Neighbor's home?

Of course it's embarrassing to ask an obliging neighbor for the "loan" of his telephone, knowing that you cannot return the favor.

But the greatest imposition is on yourself and your family. The home without a telephone is cut off from ready access, especially in these days when friends and relatives live in scattered suburbs and cities.

Your name in the telephone book makes it easy for friends, and business associates as well, to reach you and your family.

Ordering a telephone is easy. Ask any telephone employe to explain straight line and party line service or call the business office. Modern telephone service is so low in cost that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

Baptists Will Make A Drive For Missions

nomination cannot remember, they say, so grave a crisis and so menacing conditions as face these two missionary boards now.

This is to be an offering strictly for Home and Foreign Missions, with every dollar contributed going to these two Boards, since the Sunday School Board, of Nashville, Tenn., will pay the necessary expenses of the offering.

The goal set for all Southern churches is $300,000 - $190,000 for Foreign Missions and $110,000 for Home Missions. The quota for Alabama is $15,000. The leaders in Alabama are reported as believing that this is a reasonable amount for the Alabama churches to raise. The state committee is requesting the associational organizations to adopt the quotas, which are being published in the Alabama Baptist, and apportion them among the churches of the association with some plus margin so as to insure the raising of the whole amount. The conditions of the two mission boards was presented at the recent St. Petersburg Convention, and, after canvassing the whole matter, the Convention decided that it was either a special contribution or calamity. It was believed in that Convention that the Baptists throughoht the South would meet this supreme emergency promptly as soon as they know the conditions that threaten the stability and continuance of the work of these two great mission boards. So the Convention requested the churches to make this special offering, asking that the all-time churches would make the offering Sunday, June 19th, or some Sunday as soon thereafter as convenient, and that the rural churches will come into the noble effort according to their meeting days in June and July. The funds should be sent promptly to Baptist State Executive Board, 127 S. Court St., Montgomery, from where they will be forwarded promptly to the Home and Foreign Boards in Atlanta and Richmond.

Red Cross Official Thanks Local Workers

A letter was received from an official of the National Red Cross, lauding the splendid cooperation they received from local workers during the relief work following the storms here. This letter is appreciated by all without a doubt. Following is the letter:

"Mr. C. E. Stapp, Chairman, Disaster Relief Committee, American National Red Cross, Clanton, Alabama.

My dear Mr. Stapp:

"With the maximum of sincerity—even though delinquently—I express to you our warmest thanks for the unusually fine work of your Advisory Committee in connection with our disaster relief work in Area "C". I should like to personally thank each member of the committee for his part in the relief operation, but must further impose on your good nature for this service. The Headquarters Staff, as well as Mrs. V. FEED REQUIREMENTS PER COW EACH YEAR Feed for dairy cows must be produced in the spring and summer for fall and winter feeding. As a guide to how much to produce F. W. Burns, extension dairyman at Auburn, says that, "Each dairy cow will require two tons of good legume hay, such as alfalfa, peavine, or soybeans, per year. If silage is available, three tons of silage and one ton of legume hay will make a more satisfactory ration.

"In addition to the above roughage, each cow will require 15 bushels of corn and either 15 bushels of oats or 500 pounds of velvet beans together with four 100-pound sacks of wheat bran and four 100-pound sacks of cottonseed meal.

"This will furnish sufficient feed for the average cow if two or three acres of good pasture are furnished during the spring, summer and fall. By trading cottonseed meal and buying only four sacks of wheat bran Alabama dairymen will have a satisfactory and economical dairy ration, most of which can be produced at home."

Calera Falls Before Coopers' Slugging

The batting led by Morgan and Ray, sent three of Calera's pitchers back to the bench. And scored 11-6 triumph over Calera baseball team, at Coopers June 11th. Coopers spotted their opponents a two run lead before starting their scoring. They seem to do this to draw the fire from the other team. And were successful, the whole game was filled with clean-fought baseball, throughout the game. Foshee, pitching for Coopers, was batted rather heavily, but managed with the support of his players to pull out of the pinches. The stars afield for Coopers: Tatum, Morgan, Calloway and Smith. The outstanding fielder for Calera was Bray, who played left field. J. Parker on first base, played consistent ball.

Batteries for Calera: Popwell, Pilgreen, Hawkum and Aldredge.

Batteries for Coopers: Foshee and Ray.

40 Homing Pigeons Are Released Here

J. A. Hester, Louisville & Nashville agent here, received forty homing pigeons last Friday, to be released here to participate in a 500 mile race back to their home.

The pigeons were sent here from the Indianapolis Racing Pigeon Club, of Indianapolis, Indiana, with the request that they be liberated. Mr. Hester turned the pigeons loose Saturday morning at six o'clock at the depot. The birds flew right into the air, and for a few moments, apparently getting their bearings, rose higher and flew in a northwesterly direction. Each bird had leg bands. Mr. Hester was to receive a communication from the racing club regarding the outcome of the race.

SEVERAL ITEMS OF INTEREST ON KIWANIS PROG'M

Club Urges Continuance Of Child Welfare Work; Legion There

A very entertaining and progressive meeting of the Clanton Kiwanis Club was held at the regular meeting time and place, last Thursday.

Several matters took place on the program that are of interest to everyone in the county. The club had as its guests, three members of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, J. E. Cobb, A. P. Vinson and J. F. Burnett. Also, R. D. Woodson, Post Commander of the American Legion, Mack Wyatt, Eugene Gore and E. W. Klinner of the local post of the American Legion. Other guests were Charlie Cox and Mr. Batson, road builders.

Chilton County has been considering the building of a few miles of permanent road in the county, and the Kiwanis Club requested the Commissioners Court to seriously consider this project. It will be done, it was stated, as an experiment and to enable members of needy families in the county to secure work for awhile, provided the project is put over.

The Kiwanis Club also requested the Court to continue the work of the Child Welfare Department of this county. At present, indications are that this department will be eliminated unless something is done to continue it. The result rests with the Commissioners Court of the county.

The members of the American Legion present, gave a very interesting Flag Day program with Post Commander Woodson and Mack Wyatt as speakers. The flag was in custody of J. E. Gore and E. W. Klinner, legionnaires. The meeting was presided over by John Hollis, president of the club.

All Kiwanis Night will be observed at the regular weekly meeting of the club this week.

Arrests Over Week Mounts To Fifteen

According to a report issued to the press from the office of Sheriff Gillespie last Monday morning there were fifteen arrests made last week in this county. The report stated that there were two arrests for assault and battery, three arrests for grand larceny, two for petit larceny, one arrest for each of the following charges: bastardy, non-support and disturbing religious worship. One arrest was made for violation of the prohibition law and four arrests were made for violation of the highway code.

The Rev. J. M. McNair, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Clanton announces the following services at the church for next Sunday: Sabbath school at 10:00 a.m.; morning worship at eleven o'clock, sermon by the pastor. A warm welcome awaits you at this church.

W. J. Patrick, prominent merchant of Billingsley, was attending to business in Clanton last Friday.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION

Herbert Clark Hoover was nominated again as a candidate for President of the United States, at the Republican National Convention closed recently in Chicago. Curtis was also nominated as vice-president.

In this issue of the News will be found a complete story on the doings of the Republican National Convention.

FIREMEN BRING PICTURE HERE FOR WEEK END

"Fireman, Save My Child" Is Comedy To Be Shown On Friday and Saturday

Buckets of water will probably have to be used at the Wadesonian Theatre next Friday and Saturday, to quench the laughs to be had from seeing the picture, "Fireman Save My Child," starring Joe E. Brown, foremost of present day comedians.

The Volunteer Fire Department of Clanton is sponsoring this picture and they assure all who see it, they will get plenty of laughs. The question of why firemen wear red suspenders will be answered in this picture.

Don't forget the dates. It's next Friday and Saturday, June 24th and 25th.

As "Smoky Joe" Grant, Brown invents a fire extinguisher. Needing money to exploit his patent, he accepts an offer from the St. Louis Cardinals to pitch for their team. He makes good as a pitcher, but is in constant difficulties with the team manager because of his penchant for dropping everything when a fire truck shrieks by. In the city, everyone regards him as a rube and he falls into the clutches of a blonde adventuress, in spite of his love for Sally, the home-town girl. His difficulties are smoothed out, however, and he returns to the hometown more a hero than ever, rushing to his marriage with Sally in the local fire wagon.

Evalyn Knapp portrays the hometown girl with whom "Smoky" Joe is in love. This is Miss Knapp's first important role since her injury last year which confined her to a hospital for several months. Lilian Bond, English star recently seen on the New York stage in the musical comedy "Free for All," appears as the adventuress who complicates the hero's life in the big city. Guy Kibbee is the team manager who cannot sympathize with Joe's passion for fires. Others in the capable cast are Richard Carle, George Meeker, Andy Devine, who made such a hit as the injured football player in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," and a large staff of Pacific Coast and major league baseball players, among whom is Frank Shallenbach, star pitcher.

TRAIN SCHEDULE HERE HAS BEEN CHANGED IN HOUR

In this issue will be found a notice from the L. & N. Railroad of change in time of No. 10 Train. Instead of leaving at 3:41 p.m., the train will leave at 3:21 p.m. This change becomes effective Sunday, June 26th.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warner of North Little Rock, Ark., have been visiting Mrs. P. M. Moore in South Clanton. They returned Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. Moore, who will visit in Arkansas for several days.

Rev. D. W. Haskew is announced to preach at the Sardis Baptist church next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

EDITORIAL

SOMEBODY HAS SPENT TOO MUCH MONEY; WE ALL MUST PAY NOW

It is not that this newspaper does not wish the government to pay off the tremendous deficit in its treasury and get back on a sound financial basis, but it does seem strange that those officials having the authority to spend the public's money would not spend so much of it, go into debt, and then place upon the people, the heaviest tax burden since the World War, or perhaps even before that.

Monday night at twelve o'clock, the new tax law became effective. Everybody was caught. It would seem that the fellows in Washington where the government's business is carried on, need some more money. The only thing they could think of is to make the people send them some more.

The people are beginning to wake up to this fact, and are beginning to take more interest in the election of officers in the government. Judge Walter B. Jones, in an article in The Montgomery Advertiser, which also appears in this newspaper, gives some splendid ideas on "Our Increased And New Taxes," pointing out that the people have not raised enough racket about this tax business, and the tremendous expenditures of the government. It is perhaps like he says, try to get the lawmakers to do away with some useless department or job in the government and you've started something.

Now that it has been stated, and has become a law, as to what the people shall do to help the government get out of debt, we sincerely hope that these law-makers will get busy right away and see what they can do in the way of eliminating every useless officer, bureau, department or office that is not absolutely essential to running the government.

We do not wish to continue to harp on what the present officials in Washington promised during their campaign, but it must be remembered that Herbert Hoover placed considerable stress on the statement that "the farmer must have relief." We leave it to the farmer as to whether he has received this relief or not.

Right now, it seems that the minds of the people are not so interested in which party is in office. What they want most is something done for them to ease this financial distress. Republicans have made promises, before and after being elected—things have gone from bad to worse. The Democrats will come before you next November with a list of candidates, asking your vote. Let's start at home and go up the line all the way to Washington, with a full Democratic ticket and tell these Democrats you want something done. We'll help you.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES MAKING APPEAL TO PEOPLE FOR SUPPORT

In the coming general election to be held in November, this year, the voters of Chilton County will have the opportunity again, to vote for candidates to fill various offices in the county government, on the Democratic ticket. These candidates are W. Louie Smith, for County Treasurer; J. H. Jackson, member of Commissioners Court from District Four; J. L. Davis, member of Commissioners Court, District Three; George W. Edwards, member of County Board of Education.

These candidates are making their appeal to the voters of Chilton County for their votes and support. They come before the people with their records and their opinions of how they believe the county affairs should be administered at all times.

Throughout this entire list, there is fairness to all, courage and honesty. They have no fight to make against any candidate who might be opposing them, although they are seeking to go into these offices on the Democratic ticket. They are appealing for the support of the voters of the county, promising fair and just dealings while in office and carrying out their respective duties.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" WILL SHOW HERE NEXT MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Picture Is Being Sponsored By Kiwanis Club Of Clanton For Two Nights At the Wadesonian Theatre; Matinee Tuesday

The picture that you have possibly seen once, or maybe twice, is coming to Clanton again on next Monday and Tuesday nights, June 27th and 28th, according to the management of the Wadesonian Theatre, and the Kiwanis Club of Clanton.

This picture is none other than the famous "Birth of a Nation." This time it will be shown with sound, the first time ever shown in Clanton with sound.

Back many, many years ago, when the Ku Klux Klan was first organized with its first purposes. See these night riders as they went about taking the law into their own hands and administering punishment where they thought it was due. Back when the states were at war and the things following this—all in sound.

This picture is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton to raise funds with which to carry on the worthy work of the club. Admission will be 20c and 40c. The picture will be here for the two nights only—Monday and Tuesday, June 27th and 28th.

There will be a matinee on Tuesday afternoon for children, and grown ups too. Complimentary tickets are to be given to all Confederate veterans, their wives or widows. If you know of one who would like to see this picture, see that he or she is brought in on Tuesday afternoon, or at one of the other showings.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION

The Democratic National Convention will be held in Chicago the latter part of this month, at which time the Democratic nominees for President and Vice-President of the United States are to be selected.

The News has made arrangements to secure a complete account of the convention. This will be published in the first issue possible, following the close of the convention.

SEEK SITE FOR A PERMANENT PRISON CAMP

State Would Like To Hear From Persons Having Suitable Place

The News is in receipt of a letter from the State Board of Administration stating they wish to locate a permanent convict road camp or district prison. Following is the letter which is self-explanatory:

Montgomery, Ala., June 16, 1932.

The State Highway Department and the State Board of Administration desire to establish in some appropriate locality in the State, a permanent convict road camp or district prison, if sufficient funds can be secured therefor.

It is proposed to maintain and construct roads within 25 miles radius of the prison. The prison buildings will be designed and erected of permanent material and of sufficient capacity to provide custody for not less than 100 prisoners.

It will be necessary for the State to acquire in fee simple four or five hundred acres of good farming land for the reason that the prison will operate a farm to aid in maintaining prisoners.

The State Highway Department and the State Board of Administration are prepared to investigate sites for the purpose of determining the most appropriate locality. These departments will appreciate hearing from those who have appropriate sites for this purpose with the least cost, or by gift.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT,
Landon L. Smith, Director.
STATE BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION — Wm. F. Feagin, Director.
APPROVED: B. M. Miller, Governor.

TWO BURGLARIES OCCUR IN THIS SECTION RECENTLY

The store of W. J. Hogan, Speigner, Ala., was entered last Thursday night, and escaped with approximately $100 worth of hardware, groceries and tobacco. The theft was discovered Friday morning when the store was opened for business.

Last Thursday night also, the store of J. E. Terry of Plantersville, was broken into and a quantity of cigarettes and other articles were taken.

PILOT CLUB DELEGATES RETURN FROM CONVENTION

The seven delegates from the Clanton Pilot Club, who attended the International Convention in Atlanta, the past week end, returned to Clanton Sunday, reporting a most enjoyable and worthwhile trip and stay in the Georgia city, where they were highly entertained by the Atlanta Pilots and the city.

Those composing this party were Mrs. M. Lande, Misses Dewey Branch, Lona Thompson, Zora Guy, Alma Allen, Mrs. C. E. Stapp and Mrs. Mamie Smith. Ben Margolis of Clanton accompanied the party to and from Atlanta.

OFFICIAL COUNT GIVES TATE A SMALL MARGIN

Chilton Co. Goes Stronger Than Other Two Counties To Elect Tate

When the official count was completed in the counties of the 19th Judicial Circuit, Judge F. Loyd Tate won over his opponent, Arthur Glover by a small majority, something like 45 votes.

The official count for Chilton County showed that Tate polled more votes in majority over his opponent than in either of the other counties. However, Elmore county went for Glover.

Official figures on the Democratic run-off in Chilton County are as follows:

United States Senator

Hugo L. Black received 570 votes.
Thos. E. Kilby received 415 votes.

National Committeewoman

Mrs. J. E. Frazier received 275 votes.
Mrs. A. Y. Malone received 530 votes.

Judge 19th Judicial Circuit

Arthur Glover received 407 votes.
F. Loyd Tate received 592 votes.

There was no run-off on the Democratic ticket among county offices.

CLANTON CASH STORE HAS BIG I.G.A. PARTY

Residents of Clanton and surroundings were treated to another big I.G.A. Store party last Friday night when the Clanton Cash Store threw open its doors to a large crowd of men, women and children.

The store was decorated for this occasion, and the proprietors state that they had a good time also, the same comment being heard from all who attended this party.

Canned fruits, cakes and meat sandwiches were served as refreshments, through the courtesy of Cudahy Packing Co., Sunshine Biscuit Co., the hosts and others. A novel feature was the manner used in serving iced tea. A large block of ice, with a large opening was used as the bowl. Frozen into the ice were several packages of I. G. A. products. The ice was frozen especially for this by the Wade Ice Co.

Prizes were awarded as follows, a basket of groceries to Mrs. Frank Mims and Miss Eloyse Jones, and two dollars in cash to Miss Gertie Mae Fiquette.

Attention Is Called To Coming Institute Here

All men, women, boys and girls, who are Christians or who are in any way interested in Christian work, are asked to begin now to set aside July 5, 6, 7 to attend the Unity-Chilton Institute which is to be held at the Clanton Baptist church, under the auspices of the W. M. U. of these two associations. For three years we have been holding these Institutes, and it is no exaggeration to say that they give the greatest opportunity of the year for outstanding Baptist Leaders teach and preach.

The faculty this year is probably the strongest ever secured. No city could have a better one. We are to have missionaries from three or four countries, and great preachers, and women workers. The program will be printed next week, but this notice is to urge you to begin to make your plans now, so you and your whoe family can attend each day. There will be no night sessions, but the exercises will begin each day at ten o'clock and close at four.

Democratic Candidate Expresses Beliefs And Stand In Regard To Chilton County Affairs

Wishing to make a statement to those he has not been able to see in behalf of his candidacy, J. H. Jackson, Democratic candidate for member of the Commissioners Court from the Fourth District has the following to say in regard to affairs of the county:

"In behalf of my candidacy for member of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, I wish to state some of my views on matters regarding county affairs.

"I favor a reduction on the valuation of all real estate at least twenty-five per cent.

"I believe in more permanent road work.

"I believe in letting the almshouse out on a salary basis for the reason—what is the employee's gain is the inmates' loss. I also believe that there should be a way provided to carry them to church of their choice at least once a month. I believe this plan is cheaper and more satisfactory than the way it is being operated at present. If elected to this office from the Fourth District, I will do all I can to put this in effect.

"Your vote and influence in behalf of my candidacy will be appreciated."

J. H. JACKSON.

EZELL TO RETURN IN TIME FOR SERVICES ON SUNDAY

A communication from Dr. S. J. Ezell Tuesday, stated that he would return to Clanton today and will fill his pulpit at the Baptist church here Sunday morning and evening. Dr. Ezell has been taking part in conducting a revival meeting.

He announces as his subject for Sunday morning, "If God Had A Chance, What Would He Do For His Church." The subject for the evening services, beginning at 7:45 o'clock, will be "If God Had A Chance, What Would He Do For Lost Men?"

DR. AND MRS. SAMUEL JOHNSON SPENT THIS WEEK IN CLANTON

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson arrived in Clanton Monday from Washington and will remain here until Saturday. Dr. Johnson has been busy looking after his property in Clanton for a few days.

They plan to leave Saturday for Pensacola, Fla., where he will be stationed at the U. S. Naval Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Armstrong and children, Elizabeth, Kathleen and Betty Jean, have returned from a visit in Mobile with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ellis (Jewel Armstrong). Little Elizabeth Armstrong remained in Mobile for a longer visit.

Letter From A. A. Jackson Replies To Editorial Terming His Opinions As So Much "Hot Air"

Following is a letter addressed to the Editor, The Union-Banner, which was given to the Union-Banner this week for publication, by A. A. Jackson, of Lomax, Ala., who recently withdrew from the Republican party in a public statement:

Editor
The Union Banner
Clanton, Alabama
Dear sir:

Will you please give me space in your paper to reply to your editorial which appeared in last week's Union-Banner, in which you referred to me and others like me being hot air blowers? And that we left the Republican party because we could not rule it.

Just a few days ago a good Republican and I were discussing the controversy between you and myself, and I said to the good Republican, "I guess Mack will snow me under." The Republican said, "No he won't. He hasn't got sense enough."

In 1930, a good Republican candidate came to me and asked my support in getting the nomination for a certain office, and offered me $15.00 for my first letter to the Union-Banner in behalf of his candidacy. And if he got

Sunday school at 9:45 A.M. To avoid the heat in the next world you had better not allow the heat in this world to keep you away from Sunday school and church.

At 11 A.M. next Sunday Dr. N. B. McLeod, presiding elder of the Selma district will preach for us. After the morning service he will hold our 3rd quarterly conference. We urge every one to attend and hear his wonderful message, and then to remain over for the conference.

The young people's- organizations meet Sunday night at 7:15. There are about fifty young people gather at the church every Sunday night for their programs.

Preaching Sunday night by the pastor. Be in your place at eight o'clock and you will be ready to return home in about fifty minutes.

We have a welcome for all. If you are a stranger, or if you see a stranger in the church, be sure to speak to him and bring him to the pastor. We want our church to be home like.

PAINS
QUIT COMING

"When I was a girl, I suffered periodically with terrible pains in my back and sides. Often I would bend almost double with the intense pain. This would last for hours and I could get no relief.

"I tried almost everything that was recommended to me, but found nothing that would help until I began taking Cardui. My mother thought it would be good for me, so she got a bottle of Cardui and started me taking it. I soon improved. The bad spells quit coming. I was soon in normal health."

Planning To Have A Canning Demonstrat'n

By C. E. Stapp, County Agent

Last year I arranged for several canning demonstrations, but they were too late in the season. I have an opportunity to get one or more ladies from Auburn for about ten days this summer if the ladies of the county want these demonstrations.

I shall be glad to arrange for the help if the ladies of several communities are interested and will get in touch with me at once. If you are interested, see several other ladies of your community and plan a spend-the-day party at someone's house in the community.

If you will let me know soon I will set a date for you and arrange for the help.

There is lots of food stuff that should be canned this summer, and I believe there are going to be many hungry people next winter to eat what is canned. At these demonstrations all can learn the easiest known way to can and at the same time learn how to can vegetables so they are most healthful.

Antioch News

Antioch and Sardis singing society met at Antioch Sunday afternoon and rendered a very good program under the management of our chairman, Mr. Harvey Davis. The leaders for the afternoon were as follows: Mr. S. A. Henley, Mr. F. I. Popwell, Mr. Hudson Williams, Miss Mary Owen, Miss Lottie Henley, Miss Lola Smith and R. W., G. W. Stewart. We had several visitors from other churches with us, and we cordially invite them to come back and be with us again.

The organists for the afternoon were Mr. Hudson Williams, Mr. F. I. Popwell and Lola Smith.

We are going to have an all-day singing at this place on the fifth Sunday in July. Everybody is invited to bring their dinner and come and be with us on that day.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A funny thing happened on Laymen's Day in a certain Methodist church. The service was ready to begin. The laymen were in the pulpit and the pastor was sitting on the front seat just in front. In the stillness that came just before the first hymn was announced someone sitting in the rear of the church dropped a twenty-five cent coin. It started to rolling down the inclined floor toward where the preacher was sitting. It missed every foot under the seats and came to the preacher's shoe, struck it and then fell flat on the floor. With a bright face it smiled into the countenance of the preacher saying, "Here I am." Before the preacher could reach for it a man was standing over his shoulder saying, "Where is my quarter?" That was one sensible piece of money. Through mistake the owner dropped it and it was not to be outdone and so it made a race for the preacher. Wish that all the "Quarters" belonging to the preacher would start to rolling toward him. Many do make a start but they are picked up on the way.

A family of six were seated at the breakfast table. Coffee was served and then the sugar bowl and the cream pitcher were started on the rounds. Each member of the family emptied some sugar and a little cream into his cup of coffee and stirred it well. This was done to make the coffee better, to make it sweeter and more delightful to the taste. Before this was done this family of six hod stood with bowed heads and worshipped together. Around that table they had thanked God for his protection during the night and they had prayed for His guidance during the day. That morning prayer was the sweetness that went into the soul to make it better and finer for its touch with the outside world. When a family will pause for family devotion, it is just like putting sugar into coffee. The family altar will sweeten every heart and make it much finer in its attitudes toward the world. We are not surprised that the water of life is bitter to many. They begin the day without putting prayer into it to make it sweet. Many do not flavor the soul with the milk of human kindness. When we learn to empty the sugar bowl of prayer and the cream pitcher of human kindness into our cup of life, then our life will be profitable to the world about us.

On June 12th there were four boys in a country home. They were all of the teen age. Two of the boys seemed to be wise and two seemed to be foolish. The foolish boys said to their father, "Father, will you let us have the family car today? We have heard about a ball game that is to happen six miles away and we want to attend." The father reluctantly gave his consent. The two foolish boys rode away to a ball game on the holy Sabbath day. The other two boys were wiser than their brothers. They shaved their faces, bathed their bodies and then clad themselves in their best suits. Together they walked away to Sunday school and church. That day the parents of those four boys had not one worry about the two boys who went away to church, but all day those parents talked and worried about the two boys who went to the ball game. How foolish to spend God's holy day in batting balls. How wise it is to "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

"Money can talk" said a man to me the other day as he hurried on with a roll of bills in his hand. I called to him to stop and interpret to me the language of his money. He did so and with much eloquence he interpreted the language of his money. Money may talk to some folks, but to me it has only one parrot expression. All it ever says to me is "Good Bye."

One night I was riding an old mule in the moon light. I would plow this mule during the week and then on Sunday I would ride him off to a country church and do my best on an assault at preaching. On this particular Sabbath I had tried to preach at 11 A.M., 3 P.M. and at 8 P.M. The mule and his rider were weary as we went jogging our way back home. I trusted myself to the mule and before I knew it I was fast asleep on his back. All at once he snorted and dashed away at great speed. I gripped the horn of the saddle and glanced behind to see a big dog as he hurried in the opposite direction. I knew that there were many mad dogs out at that time, and from the action of that dog I was sure that he was mad. Lucky for me that I did not fall to the ground when the mule leaped forward, and lucky for the mule that the dog missed him when he made a lunge at his feet. Since that time I have learned to keep myself awake when their are mad dogs along the road of life. Whether you believe it or not, the road of life is full of mad dogs. Better stay awake in spite of the weariness of the flesh.

I had a school mate who carried an alarm clock to college with him. He wound it good and tight and set it to go off at six o'clock. Right on the minute the big Ben shook its head and rattled its teeth until the boy crawled out of bed. The next morning he heard the Big Ben start, but he reached over and turned off the alarm. His clock proved worthless, because he refused to obey it. How like your conscience was that clock.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

C. D. MESSER

Verbena Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 754
Of Alabama
Verbena, Ala., June 16, 1932

To Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren: —

Dear Brethren:

It is with deep sorrow that we announce to you the death of our beloved brother Commodore Doniphin Messer which sad event occurred at his home Verbena, Ala., April 19th, 1932. For several months Brother Messer had been confined to his bed and the end was expected, but we feel his loss none the less.

The funeral services were held on the afternoon of April 20th, 1932 in the Methodist Church at Verbena, Ala., conducted by Rev. T. C. Cassidy, pastor of the Methodist Protestant church at Montgomery, Ala. He was assisted by Brothers J. P. Morgan, Dunlap, Lynch and J. M. Metcalf and at the grave the Masonic ritual was conducted by Bro. Q. C. Meroney.

Brother Messer was born Jan. 3rd, 1861, was married to Mrs. Louanna Weldon in Shelby County Jan. 20th, 1891. There were born to them four sons and two daughters, Tommie and Pierce, (twins) died in infancy, Maggie Mae, Nixie E., Commodore Doniphin and Charles McDaniel Messer survive him.

He united with the Methodist Protestant Church at an early age and b came a Minister of the Gospel in this Church in 1888 and remained in active work on various circuits all over Alabama until 1928 when he was superannuated.

Brother Messer was made a Mason in Rockford Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 137 Jan. 17th, 1891. His work in th ministry necessitated his moving frequently and he therefore moved his Masonic membership. He affiliated with Beaulah Lodge No. 455 in L County Sept. 24th, 1905 and with Hartford Lodge No. 409 in Geneva County Dec. 21st, 1907, where he remained until June 12th, 1912, when Verbena Lodge No. 754 was established with which he affiliated as a charter member and remained so until the time of his death.

Now Therefore: As God in His allwise providence has seen fit to call our most worthy brother from his labors on earth to that Lodge Triumphant, be it resolved.

First: That in the death of Brother Messer this Lodge has lost a faithful and loyal member, his church one of its able and devout ministers and this community and state a valued citizen.

Second: That our most heartfelt sympathy is hereby extended to his bereaved family and friends. Though his face we see no more, we shall ever cherish his memory.

Third: That a blank page in our record be inscribed to his memory and a copy of this resolution be spread on our minutes, a copy thereof furnished his family under the seal of this Lodge and a copy be published in our county papers.

Respectfully submitted,
—J. S. Hubbard, J. C. Pattillo, C. D. Hughes, Committee.

G. O. P. BIG SHOW AT CHICAGO WAS A MASTERPIECE

Greatest Interest Centered in Fight Over Prohibition Repeal Plank.

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

Chicago.—The Republican convention met, nominated Herbert Hoover as the party's condidate for President, and Charles Curtis as its candidate for Vice President, adopted a platform that embodies a modification of the prohibition amendment to the states as one plank, and adjourned.

That is what was accomplished by 1,153 delegates—Senator Borah not being present—and 1,154 alternates, who traveled in going to and from the convention an estimated total distance of 2,308,000 miles at a cost for railroad fare of something over $46,000.

So far as the actual news of the convention was concerned any reporter—even the cub—could have written it at any time during the past three months and possibly at any time during the past three years. But there had to be a convention, the properly designated delegates had to have their day in the spotlight, even though there was no contest for votes for a Presidential nomination and all had to pay their own railroad fare and hotel bills. Members of the national committee had to have the opportunity of sitting in the reserved seats at the big show. Distinguished guests had to have the opportunity of being known as distinguished guests. The assistant sergeants-at-arms and the ushers would never have been satisfied had they been deprived of wearing their badges, and even the peanut venders had to have their chance to earn an honest dime.

The Nominations Are Made.

When the roll call of states for the naming of candidates began on Thursday the California delegation was the first one to respond and James Scott presented the name of Herbert Hoover. His naming of the President produced the greatest demonstration of the convention. When Oregon was reached the name of Doctor France was presented to be followed by the one ballot needed to name a candidate. President Hoover received all the votes with the exception of three or four for Coolidge, three for France, three for Blaine, of Wisconsin, and one for Senator Wadsworth, of New York.

Doctor France proved a magnanimous candidate for the nomination. After L. R. Sandblast, of Portland, Ore., had presented in a modest way the qualifications of his state's champion for the Presidential job, Doctor France attempted to secure recognition from the chair, and when refused attempted to force his way onto the platform. The audience presumed he wanted to say something more in his own behalf, but that was not the good doctor's purpose. What he wanted to do was to withdraw his own name and present to the convention the name of the distinguished Massachusetts trout fisherman, Calvin Coolidge. The police took a hand in the affair, ejected the doctor from the platform, and the name of Calvin Coolidge was not mentioned except that during the roll call for the Presidential nomination three or four delegates from as many states insisted upon voting for him.

With General Dawes out of the race there was practically no opposition to Vice President Curtis, and he received the nomination for second place on the ticket on the first ballot.

The Formalities Begin.

Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock there were close to one hundred thousand people milling about OUTside the Chicago Stadium. Inside, there were some fifteen thousand to occupy 20,700 seats. In the section reserved for delegates there was but one vacant chair, the one reserved for Senator Borah. In the alternate section they were all filled. The national committeemen and women were all present, the distinguished guests had arrived, the assistant sergeants at arms, all properly labeled with pretty badges, were in evidence, but all too many of that more than 7,000 seats provided for paying guests, at from $3 to $5 per guest, were vacant. The people of Chicago had failed to evidence their appreciation of the entertainment provided by a national Republican convention.

It was only 18 minutes after the scheduled hour of eleven when Senator Fess, national chairman, with a bung starter for a gavel, called for order and announced to those who persisted in continuing their conversation, that their time was up, and he was now in charge and would temporarily, at least, run the show. Ordinarily, the next number on the program would have been the prayer, but before that in this case they must get through with the welcome by the Democratic mayor of the city. It would never do to include in the plea for Divine guidance, the actions or words of a Democratic mayor.

The keynoter, Hon. Lester Jesse Dickinson, of Iowa, made a good speech. The same quality of speech made before a Democratic national convention would have produced hours of boisterous demonstration, but the Republicans are more given to voting than to shouting. Though Senator Dickinson's speech did not produce any number of wild outbursts, any prolonged parade of howling delegates, it did make a profound impression on the assembled Republican hosts.

While looking on at a Republican national convention seems like watching the operations of a well oiled and perfectly geared machine, it is not as simple as it seems. Jones and Smith and Brown and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler all have a chance to air their views, but all of this is in committee meetings held in hotel rooms. It is the final result that is brought to the floor of the convention and goes into the record as the unanimous verdict of the assembled delegates.

The Wednesday morning session was another of those formal occasions that did not attract the crowd. It took ten minutes to listen to the report of the organization committee and an hour to listen to the speech of the permanent chairman, Representative Snell, of New York. But it was a good speech and appealed to the delegates. His first mention of the name of President Hoover started a half hour demonstration that would have been unanimous had Oregon joined in. But that state was loyal to former Senator France, of Maryland, the adopted favorite of Oregon, and its banner was not carried in the parade of states.

Chicago Sees the Show.

Chicago went to the convention Wednesday night, and Chicago was wet. When Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, read the minority platform report, demanding straight repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, the thunderous applause came from those $3 to $5 seats the Chicago people had paid for and the assistant sergeants at arms. The rather mild delegate demonstration was led by Wisconsin, and joined in by many states, including prohibition Maine. When previously the majority report was presented, providing for modification, with federal control of the liquor traffic, Kansas led the demonstration, but did not receive any appreciable support from the Chicago audience.

Wednesday night it looked like a convention. The vacant seats that had been so noticeable during the Tuesday and Wednesday morning sessions, were all filled. All of the Chicago aunts and uncles and cousins, Republican and Democratic, had turned out to hear what the G. O. P. was going to do about prohibition, and these Chicago aunts, uncles and cousins knew what they wanted done with it. When James R. Garfield of Ohio attempted to make a plea for the adoption of the majority plank, Chicago, in the galleries, refused to listen Even a threat to clear the galleries was of no avail, and very little of what Mr. Garfield said was heard by any of the delegates to whom he was talking.

Dr. Butler in the Limelight.

Chicago thought differently about Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler when he had his ten minutes on the platform. The gallery gods recognized him as their champion and the threat to adjourn the convention was not needed to secure attention to his speech.

When Ogden Mills of New York told the vast audience why he favored the majority report, the gallery gods listened. They had to. His powerful voice over-awed them and demanded attention. Altogether those gallery gods did much to counteract the good impression made by the gracious welcome extended to the delegates by Democratic Mayor Cermak.

Speech followed speech, starting with a time limit of ten minutes and getting down to one minute, until every one who wanted to have his say had been given an opportunity. It was such a talk-fest as would have been expected at a national Democratic pow-wow, but the oratory lasting until one o'clock Thursday morning, did not change a single vote, and when the roll of states was called it resulted in the adoption of the majority report by 462 to 681.

Platform and Prohibition.

The party platform as worked out by the resolutions committee contains 28 planks. When it was read to the convention on Wednesday evening the delegates, and especially the wet Chicago visitors, evinced interest in only one of the 28. There was but little interest in the fact that the party stood for a reorganization of the government bureaus in the interest of economy; that the party proposed to have the government loan money to the states for emergency relief work; that it stood for a reduction of public expenditures; for the balancing of the national budget; for adherence to the gold standard and against currency inflation; for revision of the banking laws to protect depositors; for continuing assistance to co-operatives through the farm marketing act, but when the secretary, after an hour, got down to that one vital, all important subject, prohibition, they were interested.

© HARRIS & EWING

CHARLES CURTIS

The majority of the resolutions committee proposed a plank that would modify the Eighteenth amendment permitting people of any state to decide for themselves whether they wished to be dry or wet. If dry the federal government to assist in the prevention of the manufacture of liquor in the state, or transportation into or the sale of liquor within the state. If wet the federal government to control and regulate the sale of liquor within the state. It implied that government control and regulation would be through the medium of government dispensaries to be established in wet territories only.

Other planks call for tax reduction; for a flexible tariff and the extension of tariff protection to cover natural resource industries, farms, forests, mines and oil wells; for a shorter work day and shorter work week, restriction of immigration, collective bargaining, freedom of speech and assemblage; for a home loan discount bank system; for giving the federal power commission authority to regulate charges for electric current when transmitted between states, and others that are usually found in any party platform.

Spotlights and Observations.

If all of those wearing assistant sergeant-at-arms badges vote the Republican ticket next November, Mr. Hoover is sure of election.

"welcome to the g. o. p., ANTON J. CERMAK, Mayor," was the message carried on the arm of every city policeman on duty in and around the Stadium.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth was much the lion of the occasion of the women, but Will Rogers got the majority of the attention from the women. At every session the women crashed the gates of the press stand seeking Will's autograph, and he signed until he developed a severe case of writer's cramp and wore out all of his lead pencils.

COOPERS GETS DEFEATED BY CALERA 4 TO 0

The Baseball Club of Coopers went to Calera last Thursday and was defeated 4-0. The game was hard fought all the way through. Calera out hit Coopers, but the latter out fielded them. Calera making nine hits and Cooper three. Calera made four errors and Coopers two. All the breaks were in Calera's favor and the tide dealt fate against Coopers that date.

Batteries for Calera: Kendricks and Aldridge.

Batteries for Coopers: Ruland, Foshee and Ray.

The Baseball Club of Coopers is sponsoring a Barbecue and Picnic on the 4th of July for the benefit of the Ball Club. There will be two ball games; one in the morning and one played that afternoon. We are also going to have some other amusements during the day. Everyone has a special invitation to come and share a good time with us. The team of Rockford is expected to come that day.

Let The Democrats Fuss

The Republican platform builders who cannot find out how their own candidate stands on Prohibition, or how wet or how dry a plank he is willing to permit are deriving a great deal of satisfaction in their embarrassment at the prospect of there eventualizing more or less of a struggle for the nomination at the Democratic convention.

It might perhaps be worth recalling that the Baltimore convention which finally nominated Woodrow Wilson, was anything but a love feast. The Democrats had in that gathering about all the elements of discord possible—intense rivalries, collateral controveries, dark horses, favorite sons and even an aspirant who attained a majority vote and failed of the nomination. And all these things did not interfere with Woodrow Wilson's election.

To go back a generation farther: the convention that nominated Grover Cleveland fought fiercely for ballot after ballot though Cleveland had within 18 votes of a majority on the first count. All the big guns of Tammany were there fighting him; there were threats of a bolt if he was chosen. Yet after the fray Cleveland was nominated and elected.

Eight years later, Cleveland having been defeated in the intervening election came up again in the Democratic convention. Again Tammany was ranged against him, and was for his successor, Goveror of New York David Bennett Hill. Bourke Cockran thundered that Cleveland was a Mugwump and described him in one of the greatest convention speeches ever made, as the most popular man in America except on election day. DeWitt of New York in placing Hill's name before the convention assured the delegates that Hill could carry New York and that Cleveland could not. Yet Cleveland was nominated on the first ballot and was easily elected.

In all these convention struggles there was agitation to rescind the two-thirds rule. In two of these the man who went to the convention with the most votes was successful. In one he was eliminated and a moderately dark horse got the prize. Yet the Democrats won the election in each case.

The lesson of this, if there is any, is that a Democratic convention row is about as often an overture to victory as a prelude to defeat. The deduction is that when the Republicans rely on Democratic factional struggles to get their man in they are leaning on a broken reed. However, that being their only source of hope, it is understandable that they should play it up.

"The first and best victory is to conquer self; to be conquered by self is, of all things, the most shameful and vile."—Plato.

And yet how many, many persons do I see almost each day who have failed to conquer self. Temptations overwhelm them, and weaken them. Men who just drift, taking things as they come, suiting self to whatever happens rather than making things happen to suit self. Contented, satisfied—two of the worst things in anyone's life.

Some live with dreams ever in their minds, hoping some day to realize those dreams, and then dream more and larger dreams when the first become realizations. Not allowing disappointment nor brick bats to obstruct the path to success.

To dabble a little in politics this week—or not to dabble, that is the question. I'll answer it and dabble just a bit. The Democrats of the county know now what their opponents in the county races will be, and the work can start in earnest toward a Democratic victory. Looks like every time someone says something that sounds good for the Democrats, some person on the other side gets all "het up" over it and tries to slam something back, making a miss-lick every time. 'Tis very amusing to watch those persons do those things. Reminds me of that old saying, "Drowning men catch at straws." If you follow what I mean.

Clanton Cash Store, the I. G. A. Store on Main Street pulled a big party Friday night of last week, and boy, was it a party. You're asking me. It was fine, and nothing more than a splendid success of goodwill building for that store. I wish more stores would give parties like that. They always serve something good to eat, and it don't cost anything.

And so Judge F. Loyd Tate is going to be our next Circuit Judge, according to the official counts of the primary last Tuesday. Judge Tate is a likable sort of fellow, and there's one thing I admire about him—he is so blamed square about things, and sticks to what he believes is right. He is not lined up with any particular ring of politicians, except he is a good Democrat, and that's something.

See that Mayor and Mrs. J. Lee Smith and children have returned from a very extended motor trip. Mr. Smith says they traveled in 17 different states. That's going some. And had only one puncture in the 6,670 miles they traveled. I'd like to have made that trip with them.

Did you ever see one of those suits of clothes made from cloth that was made in Clanton, from cotton grown in Chilton County? Well, if you see J. B. Atkinson wearing a light suit with stripes, that's one of those suits. Cotton grown in Chilton County, cloth made in Chilton and the suit tailored in Chilton. Can you beat that for trading at home? I've been wondering if it would pay any of the dry goods stores here to handle those suits.

I felt all out of sorts, or something when I started writing this column this time, but as it wore on, I began to feel a little more lighthearted. I only wish I could find words that would express my mood each week, through this column.

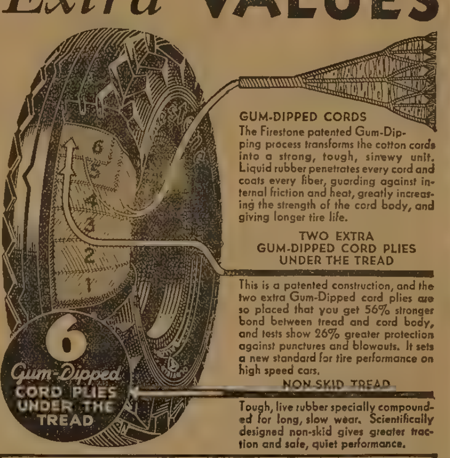
Extra VALUES



GUM-DIPPED CORDS
The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

TWO EXTRA GUM-DIPPED CORD PLIES UNDER THE TREAD
This is a patented construction, and the two extra Gum-Dipped cord plies are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and tests show 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

NON-SKID TREAD
Tough, live rubber specially compounded for long, slow wear. Scientifically designed non-skid gives greater traction and safe, quiet performance.

News from Thorsby

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

Mrs. Marie Forsman, aged 79, died at the home of her daughter, Miss Rosalie Forsman at New Orleans, last Sunday night, following a stroke of paralysis. Her body was brought to Thorsby for burial Tuesday morning. Funeral services were held at the Lutheran church and the interment was at the Concordia cemetery, with Martin in charge of the funeral and Rev. J. E. Each conducting the services. Mrs. Forsman leaves five children: Mrs. Fred Larkins of Cincinnati, Ohio, Miss Rosalie Forsman of New Orleans, Mrs. August Larsen of Thorsby, Mr. Mauritz Forsman of Mobile, and Mr. Bennett Forsman of Chicago. The church services were very impressive and floral decorations were beautiful. Miss Kathryn Foss sang during the services. Mrs. Forsman was one of the pioneer settlers of Thorsby, having lived here over thirty years. She has been in New Orleans with her daughter, Miss Rosalie Forsman, for the past year.

Activities of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association

Those wishing to plant fall beans are advised that these should be planted about the first week in July and that it be advisable for everybody who intends to ship fall beans to plant them at this time, so that we can load cars. If the market is sufficiently high, when these beans come in the association will load cars. It must be understood, however, that the association is not encouraging an extensive planting of fall beans until a fall market has been tried, but that they will only load these beans for the growers who intend to try this fall market and can not guarantee any large or small returns. We are looking into the loading of corn with the possibility that if the market holds up right, we can send some of this to the market.

However, we are unable to say at this time as to what the prospects will be. It is advisable for the growers to keep in touch with the manager for all these things. The manager, together with some of the members, expect to visit Baldwin county shipping points, Wednesday, and investigate methods of packing and shipping corn and will be in a position upon their return to give better information on the subject. Five cars of beans have now been shipped with a probability of more with favorable weather and market conditions.

Among the books recently donated to the Thorsby Institute Library by the Birmingham Community Church the following will be of special interest to the general public:

Conrad, Suspense; Crawfor, Via Crucis; Lyall, Won by Waiting; Priestley, The Old Dark House; Walpole, Harmer John; McCarthy, The Flower of France; Rice, Mr. Opp; Wharton, The Children; Parrish, All Kneeling; Parrish, The Perennial Bachelor; Dangerfield, Wilderness House; Connor, The Man from Glengarry; Davis, Gallegher and Other Stories; Sidney, Five Little Pepper and How They Grew; Sidney, Five Little Peppers Midway; Barclay, The Mistress of Shemstone; Rinehart, The Door; Rinehart, When a Man Marries; Rinehart, The Amazing Interlude; Smith, The Tides of Barnegat; Ingraham, The Pillar of Fire; Tarkington, Penrod and Sam; Tarkington, The Fascinating Stranger; Hay, The Right Stuff; MacDonald, At the Back of the North Wind.

Brooks, As Others See Us; Lang, The Yellow Fairy Book; Lang, My Own Fairy Book; Page, Recent Gains in American Civilization; Comstock, A Son of the Hills; Waller, Flamsted Quarries; Atherton, The Conqueror; Roberts, The Great Meadow; Phillips, Light-Fingered Gentry; Spencer, The Lady Who Came to Stay; M. T. F., My Chinese Marriage; McClure, A Bush That Burned; Garland, A Son of the Middel Border; Wright, The Calling of Dan Matthews; Byrd, Skyward; Allen, A Kentucky Cardinal; Alcott, Little Men; Cather, Shadows on the Rock.

MAYOR SMITH AND FAMILY RETURN FROM MOTOR TRIP

Mayor and Mrs. J. Lee Smith returned Wednesday of last week from a very extended motor trip through the West, accompanied by their children, J. Lee, Jr., and Lillian.

They left Clanton on Wednesday, May 18th, and visited in seventeen different states while on their trip. One remarkable thing about this trip, Mr. Smith stated, is that he had only one puncture, that one occurring when they passed a place where some building was going on, near Globe, Arizona.

The entire trip extended over 6,670 miles, Mr. Smith stated and outside of the puncture, they had no car trouble at all.

States visited by the Smith party are Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana and Old Mexico.

In telling of this trip, Mayor Smith spoke of some of the interesting parts they stopped. The first stop for any length of time was at Tulsa, Okla., then on to Bristow, Okla., where Mr. Smith resided about 19 years ago.

Then on to Colorado Springs, where they spent several days sightseeing, visiting Pikes Peak, Cave of the Winds, Garden of the Gods. Considerable time was also spent at Yellowstone National Park.

Other places they visited were Cripple Creek, one of the largest gold mines in the world, drove into the canyons, and over the famous swinging bridge. They visited Wichita and Dodge City, Cheyenne where the frontier days are held.

An interesting thing to J. Lee Smith, Jr., and Lillian, was the visit to Salt Lake City, Utah, and going in swimming in the Salt Lake, where it is impossible to sink. The return trip carried them to Los Angeles, the Catalina Islands, El Paso, Dallas, Shreveport, Vicksburg and back into Alabama.

Juniors' Column
By Miriam

Dear Boys and Girls:

While reading this morning I read the following verse in the 27th Psalm:

"One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life to behold the beauty of the Lord and to enquire in His temple."

I like that verse. I have read it many times, but this morning I memorized it before reading further. I thought too of you, and wished that you would take that verse, or a similar one, as your motto.

One can have no higher ambition in life than a desire to be a child of God. That desire, begun at your age and carried through life will mean more than everything else in your life. It will help you to choose between right and wrong conduct every day. It will help you to have high ideals and will help you to stand true to those ideals.

In school you study to learn the many things that you must know if your life is to be successful when you grow up. In-order-to-be a thoroughly happy, as well as a successful grown-up, start now to make this verse your own. And when you do you'll look around you and think:

"My Heavenly Father has given to me father, mother, sisters, brothers, pets, flowers, birds and lots of other things to make me happy. He has given material for food, clothing and shelter to make me comfortable." When you think of all those gifts of His love you will want to say, "I thank you." I do and that's the reason that I know you will too.

I'm ending this little letter to you with the last two lines of "Better Things," a little poem by Leigh Hunt.

"Better a child in God's great house
Than the king of all the earth."

Lovingly,
MIRIAM.

PLUCKY BOY REWARDED

Some twenty years ago John Livak was born on a Vermont farm, of Hungarian parents who had little education and a very imperfect command of the English language. The family was poor, and as soon as he was big enough John took his share of the daily tasks on the farm, outside of school hours. But John was ambitious. His handicap of humble birth and foreign descent did not dismay him.

After finishing the course in the little district school nearby, he walked four miles and back each day to attend the high school in Rutland, often in the severest weather, with the temperature far below zero. Finally he graduated, standing second in a class of 128.

But that is not all. He won the national essay prize offered by the American Chemical Society, in competition with 6,000 other high school pupils. This gives him a full four years' scholarship at Yale, with $500 a year living expenses besides.

This is but another illustration of what a young person with ambition, energy and grit can accomplish, even under adverse circumstances, in this land of opportunity.

The example of John Livak, the Hungarian farmer boy, is a stern rebuke to those who belittle our American institutions and sow seeds of discontent, as well as those shiftless individuals who whine because they "never had a

SOME VIEWS OF FARMING OVER CHILTON COUNTY

The rains of the past ten days have wrought wonders in the crops of Chilton county. Up until the rains came the outlook in our county was below normal. It is good for the eye and for the hopes of our people, to ride out on the highways and to look over the fields that have undergone such a wonderful change in so short a time. The corn has sprung up almost like magic, and now the indications are that we will have a bumper crop. Cotton is entirely too promising for the price that it will likely bring. However, we hear it from every section of the county that the boll weevil will take care of the production. The unusual weather of last winter made it possible for the weevil to survive, and already he is in the cotton fields to prevent the maturing of the forms. One man in the Isabella community said that he selected the most likely looking stalk of cotton to investigate. On it were five forms and each one had already been visited by the weevil. It seems now that the farmers are going to have to fight for even a small production.

Watermelons are showing up with promise and in a few more days they will be on the market. There is an evident scarcity of fruit. In riding thru the county you will pass home after home where there is not a fruit tree in sight. There is also an evident scarcity of sweet potatoes and peanuts being grown. We have recently made a visit into many sections of the county, and if there are many hogs in the county they are hid out from the highway. Some may accuse us of being a little hoggish in our nature, but it does seem to us that more hog pastures and fewer cotton fields would indicate more prosperity for Chilton county.

Guy DeShazo, who has been doing carpenter work at Panama City, Fla., is expected to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will DeShazo, of the Isabella community, at an early date.

"BILL'S BILLINGS"

When er pusson duz a thing onst he is jest fule nuff to duz it agin. That's what I hird Billy Smith say onst when he axed er girl suppen or other. I member when I wuz jist beginnin to feel my onions a bunch of purty gals wanted to go fishin over on Cane Creek and axed me to go with them cause they wuz skeered of frogs and lizurds. So that was a chance us my fust outin with any calico doires. I culd go alrite, but I did not have any shuse. I wuz just provocatin around, on my natural foots. I told Dad I wuz goin and just had to have a pare of shuse, so he say, "Don't say shuse to me, boy." So I ups and skirmigates around in all the old trash up to the house and found one boot and one shue but boof of em wuz fur some foot. I say, well, I shore is in a mess. No time fur foolin around so gits out the box of Masons shue black and bless your puddin I shined and shined that boot and that shue to a finish and thay look like a lookin glass. I went 2 miles to git yearth worms fur bate, cum back and parted my hare in the middle and the back and got out on the road waitin fur the ladies, all of them ole enuf fur my ma. I got 5 sents worth of lemon stix candy and a block of chawin gum fur freshments fur six uv us and off we went to Cane Creek. We fished and we did, leastwise thay did, cause I was to buzzy feelin my importance. By and by one gal got a bite and jurked up the hook and it caught a limb across the creek. I jumped up and went to get it loose, but the creek wuz to wide to jump over, so I calculated to take a runnin start and put my boot foot in middle of the creek and make it over O.K., but I got tangle in my calculatin and put my shoe foot in middle of the creek and Lord how them gals did laff. I ain't never bin fishin with no more gals just me by myself. No, dot's one thing I dun that is well dun an aint goin to dun No mo. So will tell you some mo things or suppen next time I write.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

Why People Lose Confidence

Situated as I am, at a health resort, I meet folks from all over our land. I listen to their reasons for leaving the home physician, and find out why many employ quacks, just to get "stung." Many times I fear that it is our fault that quackery flourishes; WE DRIVE OUR PATRONS AWAY FROM US.

Here are some reasons why the patient left the home doctor, as I take from my notes:

"My home doctor didn't examine me as I thought he'd ought to."

"My doctor told me there was nothing the matter with me but 'nerves'."

"He just wouldn't examine my kidneys—and I knowed the seat of my trouble was there."

"Doc didn't do nothin' for me but prescribe. . . an' I got tired of that; didn't do me no good."

"He just didn't seem to understand my case."

"After the hard times set in I couldn't keep up my payments, and Doctor just seemed to lose interest. . ."

"My doctor ain't a liver doctor—and I know it's my liver."

"O, I got to readin' about this doctor that don't operate; he described my case to a dot. . . . I paid him $250 in advance, but I ain't no better yet; he says it will take a long time."

These are typical answers. I wonder if we honest physicians ever stop to think it may be OUR FAULT that we sometimes lose our patronage?

The meanest patient that you have, Doctor, is entitled to the very best that is in you. If you give him that and he still is disloyal and disobedient, the quicker the quack gets him the better.

Illustrating how customs change, a recent writer reminds us that in 1790 Congress passed a law that each soldier and sailor should be furnished a quarter of a pint of rum, brandy or whisky daily.

Belgium still has an important wooden shoe industry, much of the production being shipped to France, Germany and the Netherlands.

The Way of Life

Saving Face

A friend was telling me about Big Business in China.

No man is ever discharged there, he said. If it becomes necessary to remove an employee the boss arranges to have a friend tip him off. The next morning the doomed man appears in the boss' office.

"My uncle in the most remote province of the Chung River is very ill," he explains. "It is necessary that I should go to attend him."

The boss assumes an expression of distress. "Why, to reach the Chung River and minister to your uncle and then return will require more than two years," he protests.

"Nevertheless, I must go."

"Noble fellow," says the boss, embracing him. "Do your duty, and though your journey keep you away for years, have no fear. Your place will be kept open for you."

The next morning and every morning thereafter the two meet on the street, but there is no embarrassment, no sense of inferiority on the part of the ex-employe. Face has been saved.

I remember one of the first men for whom I worked in New York, and one of the wisest I have ever known. He called me in one day and said: "I want you to think up some way by which X can be prompted to resign."

I was astonished.

"After he resigns," my boss continued, "I think I can help him to find a more congenial place. But he's no good where he is.

"I always try to be very careful in these cases," he explained. "I don't want it written on my tombstone that I ever dealt a blow to a man's self-confidence."

This employer was almost as wise as the Chinese. As our civilization and our business grow older we all shall learn some of the mature wisdom of these older people. They know there are things in life more important than efficiency and production and quotas and charts.

They know that the human soul is more important, and that all the operations of life should be conducted so as to increase its dignity and self respect.

Said Mencius, the ancient Chinaman: "The people are of the highest importance; the gods come second; the sovereign is of lesser weight."

Our Increased And New Federal Taxes

Judge Walter B. Jones, Montgomery, in his column "Off The Bench" which appeared in The Montgomery Advertiser, Monday morning of this week, seems to have a good idea of the new and increased tax that has been placed upon the people. Following is the article by Judge Jones:

OUR INCREASED AND NEW FEDERAL TAXES

When the President of the United States signed the 1932 Revenue Act at 5 p.m., June 6, 1932, he signed one of the most important pieces of legislation that has ever crossed the desk of a President. His signature made a law which affects every man, woman and child in the United States, and which will bring millions of dollars into the United States Treasury. Some of the money will come in the form of increased taxes, but much of it will come in the form of taxes that are new to the present administration, and to most people.

The new and the increased taxes have been found necessary to balance the Federal budget. They have been made necessary by the depressed conditions of the past few years, and by the great waste and extravagance in the expenditure of the money collected from the people of the United States by taxation. The people have been long regarded by the taxing power as a big fat goose from which the feathers were to be plucked whenever revenue was needed. Whenever the government income was less than the government expenditure, the Federal taxing authority never thought of reducing the government expenditures, it was so much easier to tap the pocketbooks of the people, and thus by increased taxes make the income of the government meet its expenses. And the bad part about a tax is that once it is put on, you never have a chance to get it off. The rule seems to be (with few exceptions) once a tax always a tax.

People Partly Responsible

Congress and the State Legislatures have a lot of blame to bear, but not all the blame is theirs because the people, those who pay the taxes, have just contented themselves with grumbling now and then. If they'd get real mad and go to the polls and vote some of the heavy taxers and public spenders out of office a lot of taxing would stop. But we go ahead and elect the same old crowd term after term, and these officials knowing that the people will content themselves with a few feeble protests, go ahead and levy and collect new taxes every time Congress and the Legislatures meet. It's not exactly a case of the "people be damned" so much as it is a case of "the people don't care." The idea in the back of the heads of a lot of the law-makers is something like this: You take a small tax and spread it out among several million people, nobody is taxed much. They kick a little, but they won't take the trouble to do more. But you try to separate some office-holder from a sinecure, or try to reduce somebody's salary, or abolish a useless job, and you have your hands full. Everybody's on the lawmaker's neck, and a well organized lobby camps on his trail until the proposed law abolishing the useless job is dead. And so it goes. The people don't get stirred up enough (except at rare intervals) to do anything that would put a stop to the raids on their income. So long as the government doesn't take all they have, they let it pass without doing anything at all.

People Are Waking Up

I think, however, that a change is coming over the people, that part of the people which supports the government by their money paid in the form of taxes. I am inclined to believe that they are taking a little more interest in knowing why their money is collected and where it goes. They are tired of being regarded as a bunch of saps by their rulers. They are beginning to realize that the government exists for them, for their benefit and their protection; and that they do not exist just to support the government and an increasing and officious bunch of officials. And they are beginning to examine into the records of their lawmakers, and are getting impatient with the usual brand of lip-service that is given to the great and fundamental principles of government. The fellow that talks about economy in his newspaper interviews and then goes to the Legislature or Congress and creates useless offices and raises salaries is ceasing to have their respect and confidence. After awhile the people are going to throw him out of office, and let him starve awhile.

How New Tax Bill Affects Us

In addition to the taxes with which we are already acquainted, such as the income tax, there are many new and additional taxes laid by the new revenue act, most of whose provisions will go into effect tomorrow.

As a matter of public information, and also to let you know where you come in on the new tax bill, I mention here a few of the taxes new to the revenue act:

The miscellaneous taxes are the ones that will be felt the heaviest by the average man and his family, and these include taxes on telegraph, telephone, radio and cable facilities; an admission tax; stamp taxes on bonds, stocks, conveyances; then there are taxes on safe deposit boxes, on boats, on checks, and all sorts of taxes on sales of matches, cameras, furs, candy, chewing gum, gasoline, electrical energy, sporting goods, mechanical refrigerators, automobiles and the like. Some of these taxes may not come out of our pockets directly, but don't have any doubts—the ultimate consumer will sooner or later (sooner, I think) pay all of them, every dollar of them. The law doesn't seem able to devise any way to keep these taxes from being passed on to the man in the street, the fellow who buys the things.

Things You Will Pay Tax On

After June 21 there is a tax of two cents on checks, drafts, or orders for the payment of money drawn on any bank or trust company. This tax will be paid by the maker of the check or the drawer of the draft, and the bank, or person paying the check or draft, will charge it against any deposit you have at the bank.

After July 1, 1932, and when you buy a new yacht or boat, and you do not use the boat exclusively for trade, fishing or national defense, you will pay a tax ranging anywhere from $10 to $200, graduated according to the length of the boat.

If you have anything that is worthwhile keeping safely, and you have done the common-sense thing of renting a safety box, you will pay 10 per cent of the amount collected for the use of the box. If it is a $5 box you will pay 50 cents, and so on.

If you make a deed, or other instrument selling and conveying land, you will pay a tax of 50 cents if the price is between $100 and $500, and for each additional $500, or fraction thereof, you pay 50 cents.

Tax On Theater Admissions

There is a tax of one cent for each 10 cents of the amount paid for an admission to any place of amusement. If the amount charged is less than 41 cents, no tax is imposed.

Telephone conversations, for which the charge is 50 cents or more and less than $1, will tax you a dime; and the the tax is increased as the phone bill for the talk is increased. Telegrams will cost you 5 per cent extra for the new tax.

Tax On Manufacturers

The new revenue law imposes a tax upon many manufactured articles, the tax to be paid by the manufacturer, and of course, he will pass it on to the consumer. Among the articles taxed are lubricating oils, four cents a gallon, tires 2½ cents a pound on the total weight; inner tubes, four cents a pound on the total weight; toilet preparations, 10 per cent of the price paid for them; jewelry, 10 per cent; automobiles, two to three percent; radios, five per cent; sporting goods, 10 per cent; refrigerators, five per cent of the price for which they are sold; matches, two cents per thousand; chewing gum, two per cent on the price for which sold; three per cent tax on electrical energy; one cent per gallon on gasoline, and then there is a tax of six cents on most fountain syrup.

As we study the new tax law carefully, we see that it is designed to bring in contributions, in the shape of taxes, from every man, woman and child in the United States. It is probably the heaviest tax bill the people of the United States have ever had to face.

Now that the law-makers have said what the people and the taxpayers shall do to help balance the Federal budget, let us hope that they will devote their attention to abolishing every useless officer, bureau, department, or office that is not absolutely essential to running the government. The government payroll, at Washington and in the field, is crowded with many sinecures, and with many jobs that could be done away with without the slightest harm to the government. Retrenchment and economy should cease to be mere words: they should have the breath of life breathed into them, and be adopted as action absolutely necessary to the well-being of the Nation.

More Interested in Government

What we need today in this country, worse than at any time in its history, is more citizens to take an active part in running the government. Citizens who will discuss public affairs in the press, on the streets and in their clubs; citizens who will inconvenience themselves by running for office when good men are needed and great principles are in danger; citizens who will make it a point to let their law-makers hear from them, and let them know that the people are watching their actions. The white light of publicity should beat around the government and those who administer public affairs more than it does. Very few people know anything at all about the finances, the number of jobs, the salaries, the sinecures, and the like that are saddled on them by the politicians who are always willing to accommodate a friend, particularly if the accommodation can be given at the expense of the taxpayer.

I don't know what the five volumes of the Brookings Survey of Alabama's State institutions will show, but I believe the number of office holders in Alabama, the counties and the cities could be reduced forty per cent. I know this could be done if we had a few common-sense laws to work under, and the people would stand squarely behind their public servants who really work and render conscientious service. The public service is filled with unnumbered drones in unnumbered sinecures.

Control Of Garden Insects Is Needed

He who makes a vegetable garden and allows insects to eat it is a foolish and a lazy gardener. Instead of feeding himself and family he feeds bugs to make more bugs to eat up his garden next year.

The description "foolish and lazy" is aptly applied to him because a little spraying or dusting properly done at the right time will control insects. W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn, says that the cost to dust is very little, after which he gave practical instructions.

First, he called attention to the fact that some insects have mouth parts for chewing vegetables while others have mouth parts for sucking them. Those which eat the foliage chew while others suck the juice from them.

For the sucking insects, such as plant lice and Harelquin cabbage bug, he recommends soap and nicotine sprays. County and home demonstration agents will give information as to how to make or how to obtain a spray for these insects.

For chewing insects, such as cabbage worms, potato bugs, and tomato worms, he recommends dusting with a mixture composed of one pound of calcium arsenate and 5 pounds of either hydrated lime or flour. Mix thoroughly and apply early in the morning and late in the afternoon.

A good spray for chewing insects is made by mixing two pounds of arsenate lead with 50 gallons of water. Smaller amounts of either of these can be made but the proportions must be the same.

IN MEMORY OF DOROTHY ELLEN GILES

On last Friday afternoon, June 10, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Giles and carried Dorothy Ellen to the Great Beyond where she is at rest with God. Where no more pain or sorrow in this world to ever realize any more.

She was a sweet and kind little girl and loved by all who knew her. To know her was to love her. Little Dorothy Ellen was two years old. She bore all her suffering well. She was sick three weeks with a severe case of colitis.

Her vacant place is missed by all, never to be filled. If she could tell she would say, Dear Daddy and Mother, don't grieve after me, for I am at rest with Jesus, to await your arrival. Dear brothers and sisters, please live so that each one of you may go to Dorothy Ellen some day.

A FRIEND.

PUBLIC WARNED AGAINST CIVIL SERVICE COACHING SCHOOLS

Washington, D. C., June 22.—The following statement is made by the United States Civil Service Commission:

The Commission warns the public against paying money for "coaching" courses in preparation for Federal civil service examinations.

Schools which sell such courses under present conditions accept money under false pretenses. A purveyor of civil service courses is now under indictment in Iowa for false representation. It is expected that other such cases of prosecution will follow.

Comparatively few appointments are being made in the Federal civil service. Vacancies which mush be filled are filled by the transfer of those in the service or the reinstatement of those who have been in the service, wherever practicable.

It is seldom necessary to announce an examination. In most cases registers of eligibles exist as a result of examinations held during the past year. When an examination is announced, the applicants are usually hunereds of times in excess of the need.

Money paid for civil service coaching courses at this time might almost as well be thrown to the four winds.

WHO DARE ADVERTISE?

Usually the argument is made that every business concern should advertise. Generally speaking, this is true, but there are exceptions. In fact, some concerns hardly dare advertise, because they can not make good according to the requirements of modern business practices.

When advertising is untruthful and misleading it does more harm than good. Only an enterprise which fulfills the promises made in its advertising can stand the spotlight of publicity. Hence, when we find a firm boldly advertising its wares or service, month after month and year after year, we may generally conclude that it can and does give real values.

Observing the advertised businesses of any community, large or small, will enable one to identify the most dependable concerns in that community. Only efficient and reputable establishments dare to advertise.

CLANTON BOYS GET ANOTHER BALL VICTORY

Wetumpka Team Is Defeated By Local Legion Juniors Here Tuesday

Tuesday afternoon was a day to be remembered by Chilton County's American Legion Baseball Team. Chilton's team met the Legion team of the Elmore County Post on the ball diamond in Clanton and left with a victory, the second of the season. The final score was 6 to 1 in favor of Chilton. The game was witnessed by a good size crowd of baseball fans. The total gate receipts was $5.25, ten cents admission was charged.

Chilton won the game without much difficulty, receiving 6 hits and 6 runs off of Elmore's team. Chilton pitchers Atchinson and Williams, allowed only 2 hits, both off of Atchinson, who pitched seven innings. Jennings, Elmore's only pitcher for the game gave six hits. Only one run was made by Elmore.

Leading Chilton's batters were Ashcraft, catcher, and Cecil Jones, third base, who received two hits apiece out of four times at the plate. The remaining two hits were made by Moore, right field, and Hayes, second base, who received one hit each, in three times up. Beck, right field and Gober, center field, received one hit apiece, the only hits Elmore's team got. Ashcraft's double to the right field fence was the longest hit of the game.

Three errors were made by Elmore against only one made by Chilton. Chilton lost many chances for runs when a number of her men were caught off the bases.

Friday afternoon at the local diamond Chilton will meet the Legion team from Montgomery. This promises to be a good tight game since Chilton suffered a defeat at the hands of Montgomery last year and Chilton will attempt to repay this grudge.

All ladies are urged to come also, since special seating arrangements have been made.

the nomination, he would pay me $100.00 immediately after his nomination. Now Mack, if you think the above is home-made, by myself, I will produce the evidence.

I just make mention of these two incidents to show you and the readers of your paper the difference between you and the two Republicans who really know things.

Mack, did you ever see me in a Republican meeting trying to carry things my way? You know you haven't. I suppose you refer to the letters I have been writing in the Union-Banner as being hot air.

I do not know just what you mean by hot air, but do know that hot air is moving longer trains than any other power at this time. Mack, notice how the three last Republican primaries have run in Chilton County. The vote was approximately as follows:

In 1930	2450
May 3rd, 1932	1750
June 14th, 1932	1450

What has caused such a slump in the Republican vote in Chilton County? Please answer. Mack, if you will furnish the paper, I will furnish what you call "Hot air" and let the people of Chilton County be the judge. Or I will go with you to the voters of Chilton County and carry with me what you call "hot air" and let you take with you, your noble stuff, such as:

"Be it resolved by the Republican Executive Committee of Chilton County, Alabama, that we endorse the wise, able and patriotic administration of the national affairs of Herbert Hoover, as President of the United States. And we hereby call upon all loyal Republicans of our county to stand steadfastly behind him and give him the loyal support we are due him."

I say such a resolution as I quote above, which was passed by you and others, is enough to make a buzzard's stomach rebound. Then what will it do for the farmers of Chilton County. We cannot tell until next November. Let me know when you get ready to go, Mack.

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON,

LOUIE SMITH THANKS VOTERS FOR SUPPORT

Candidate For Treasurer Gives Data On Life; Well Qualified

Following is a letter from Louie Smith, Democratic candidate for treasurer of Chilton County in behalf of his candidacy:

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish first, to thank each and every one of you for voting for me in the primary that was held in May.

On account of having to work I know that it will be impossible for me to see each of you personally, as I would like to, hence I am taking the liberty of writing this letter to you.

As there are many of you, that I have not had the pleasure of meeting, I want to give you a short history of my life. I am a native of Alabama, born in Perry County, and moved to Chilton County in 1913, and have been a citizen of this County since that time.

I am a candidate for the Office of Treasurer of Chilton County, Alabama, and therefore think it proper for me to give you my experience which would tend to qualify me for this position. I worked on the farm with my father, Y. E. Smith, until I was twenty years old, and since have been closely associated with the farmers. For the past six years I have been working with the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton, Alabama, with the exception of about seven months I spent in a banking school.

I have never been a candidate for any office before, and I invite your investigation as to my worthiness and ability to fill this office properly, and would greatly appreciate your support in the coming November election.

Respectfully yours,
W. LOUIE SMITH.

Judge Tate Thanks Friends For Support

Editor Chilton County News:

Dear Sir:

Permit me space in your valuable paper to express to my friends in Chilton County and in the 19th Judicial Circuit my deep appreciation for the loyal manner in which they supported me in my race for Judge. It has been the ambition of my life to serve the people of my Circuit as their Judge and Chilton County was the banner county in helping me to realize this ambition.

Thanks,
F. LOYD TATE,
Judge 19th Circuit.

MR. HESTER HEARS FROM PIGEONS RELEASED HERE

Sometime ago, J. A. Hester. L & N agent of Clanton, received several of the homing or carrier pigeons, from a pigeon racing club in Indianapolis, Ind. He was asked to release the birds at a given time, which he did.

Mr. Hester heard from the club the other day, stating that all the pigeons, 40 of them, had reached their home in Indianapolis on the following Sunday. They were released at the depot here one Saturday morning at six o'clock. It could not be learned whether the birds flew at night, but believed they did not. This was quite an experiment for Clanton, and Mr. Hester appeared delighted over having a big hand in this pigeon race from Clanton to Indianapolis.

"ALL ABOARD!"

Ready for a "Tour For Values." The tour, sightseeing for bargains in Clanton starts this week. The "Tour For Values" is something new for this section, but has promises of being very interesting.

Get in on this tour, beginning this week. There is more information elsewhere in this issue of the News. Merchants of Clanton have joined and started this tour.

Find the ad with the heading, "Tour For Values." There you will find several business houses represented, and each one listing some special value they have waiting for you this week. When you come to Clanton, keep these merchants in mind, go to their places of business and ask about these bargains as listed in this "Tour For Values" ad.

And don't pass it up this week thinking this is the last, because the "tour" around Clanton for values will go on next week. Watch this space, there will be new values for you next week. Board the bus, it starts today. Take advantage of the many varied items as listed.

T. H. Neighbors Is Lightning Shocked

Reports were received in Clanton Sunday that T. H. Neighbors, of Goodwater, was badly shocked by lightning last Saturday afternoon. The information stated that Dr. Neighbors was crossing over a wire fence, when the bolt struck the fence. He was unconscious for several hours, but later reports Monday stated he was getting along nicely.

Dr. Neighbors recently moved to Goodwater from Clanton. He is remembered here as being connected with the Alred Drug Co. His many friends here were deeply interested in the report.

L., one for driving while intoxicated, and one for violating the prohibition law.

Auto Kills Youth Then Speeds On

Prattville, Ala., June 26.—Autauga County authorities today believed they had found a clue to the identity of a boy about 18 years old who was struck and killed Friday night on the Birmingham highway by a hit-and-run driver. The accident occurred about 14 miles north of here.

Sheriff's Deputy J. C. Rawlinson said a bundle of clothing, containing a vest that matched a coat worn by the boy, had been found on the highway one-half mile north of the place where he was killed. The name "T. M. Holman, Moundsville, W. Va." was found on the vest. It is believed the bundle was caught on the machine which struck him.

Later reports from Spigener Funeral Home, stated that the parents of the boy had been located, and his body shipped to his home.

Clanton Legion Team Victor Over Millbrook

Clanton's Legion team played Millbrook on Millbrook's diamond Tuesday afternoon, leaving with victory. The score at the end of nine easy innings was 5 to 0 in favor of Clanton.

Clanton's pitcher, Johnson, allowed Millbrook only 5 hits, while Clanton's hard hitting players hit Trotter, Millbrook's pitcher, for 15 safeties, among them were several doubles.

An outstanding event of entire game was the triple play by Clanton. In the seventh inning with three of Millbrook's players on the bags, no outs, and the score 3 to 0, Clanton pulled a fast triple play, Moore, to A. Hayes to M. Hayes to Ashcraft, catching all three Millbrook runners off the bases.

Leading Clanton's batters were Jesse Frank Foshee, receiving 3 out of 4 times up and M. Hayes, getting three out of five times up.

G. Jones of Millbrook led his team with 2 out of 4.

EDITORIAL

WE STILL HAVE FAITH AND MUST KEEP IT

The Brookings Institute report of the state's financial condition, and containing recommendations of necessary changes or revision of the state's government, is now in the hands of the printer and will be out in the very near future, according to a statement from Governor Miller last week.

Apparently the whole workings of the state finance machinery has been at a stand-still for the past few months, awaiting this report, which we certainly hope will shed new light on some way out of the entanglements of the state's finances. This report may be the key to the situation. At least we hope that it will be a means whereby necessary co-operation can be had between the governor and the legislative departments. Whether it does or does not, something must be done to relieve the strain on our people.

It seems to us that if those office holders whom the people have placed in law-making bodies cannot get together and work out our state difficulties, then they should be made to answer at the next election to the same people who put them in office. It is not that the people have lost faith, but their patience is weakening.

Those who represent us must realize that in this time of stress, their paramount duty is to the state, and not to their own political party. These law-makers must realize that while their people wait, the welfare of the state is hanging in the balance, our educational system in the state is being threatened, the unity in the people's homes is endangered.

At present, there is a state deficit of over $20,000,000. This is a debt and must be paid. A large block of that amount is due to school teachers of the state, who have been given non-negotiable state warrants.

There has been a lot of idle talk about cutting of appropriations and a reducing of expenses to help meet this deficit. Governor Miller has stated he would not call a special session of the Legislature until he had some assurance that something would be accomplished. He says he is not going to spend money that belongs to the people, until he can expect results from a special session. The governor is right. Alabama has no money to be paying law-makers unless they can go to Montgomery determined to do something and carry out that determination.

It is going to depend largely upon the people. You must impress upon your representatives the great necessity of cooperation. They cannot refuse the pleadings of the masses. It is their patriotic duty to respond.

TWO DROWNED AT MITCHELL DAM RECENTLY

Glenn Moore and Loyd Crowson Of Clanton Victims Of Undertow

Glenn W. Moore and Loyd J. Crowson, both of Clanton, were drowned Wednesday of last week at Mitchell Dam, while fishing.

Reports reached Clanton about noon Wednesday of last week, a few minutes too late for the story to get in last week's issue of the News. The report stated that Moore and Crowson were in a small boat, just below the dam near one of the piers, and a sudden change in the force of the water caused their boat to be sucked under, as the water from an open gate drove them toward the concrete apron of the power house.

It is understood that the suction of the water carried them into a dangerous spot, and in attempting to get away, they fought hard, but the small boat was tossed about by huge waves

Moore's body was recovered a short time afterwards near the dam, while it was not until early Friday morning that Crowson's body rose to the top and was caught on a line stretched across the

MAN WANTED IN CHILTON ON ATTACK CHARGE IS FOUND

Elbert Mimms, 49, wanted by Chilton county authorities since 1927 on charges of assault with intent to murder was arrested near Tuscaloosa by county deputies and when taken into custody had $200 worth of watches in his possession.

He was questioned by the officers, but gave no statement as to where he got the watches. Mimms was turned over to Chilton County officers Friday.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS WILL BEGIN JULY 18

Teachers For Schools Will Be Announced In Near Future, Is Report

The Opportunity Schools over Chilton County will begin on Monday, July 18th, according to Prof. H. A. Harris, organizer of the schools.

All the desired number of schools have been located except one white school, and Prof. Harris reports that several are working to get that one. There were 12 negro schools located, instead of the desired 10.

Prof. Harris stated that the teachers for the schools will be named next week and published.

The White schools will be taught at the following places:

Coopers (Cross Roads), Pilgrims Rest, Popwell, County Line, Mullins, Mineral Springs, Free Springs, Refuge.

The Negro schools are located at:

Johannah, Chilton Bell, Verbena, Big Springs, Clanton, County Training, Lomax, Thorsby, Jemison, New Convert, Maplesville, Stanton.

Teachers for all schools will be announced next week.

KID PARTY AT VERBENA H. S.

On Thursday evening, June 30, at eight o'clock the young people of the Verbena Methodist Church will sponsor a Kid Party at the high school. IN MEMORY OF T. B. MINOR

On Friday night, June 17, our community was saddened again by the death of Mr. Tom Minor. Mr. Minor had been a citizen of Chilton County for 45 years. He was well known and greatly loved by the people of this county.

He was 71 years and 1 day old at his death. All was done for him that loving hands and Dr. Arthur Johnson could do and save him, but God saw fit to take him from our midst to that Heavenly Mansion. He had been in ill health for a number of years but was only confined to his bed one week. He bore his sufferings with patience. Funeral services were conducted on Sunday, June 19, at 11:00 o'clock at Mt. Carmel Baptist Church by Rev. A. S. Bentley of Billingsley. The remains were laid to rest in Mt. Carmel cemetary with Mr. Griffin of Prattville in charge.

Pall bearers were Archie Giles, Enzo and Earnest Klinner, Malcom and Basco Chambers and Arthur Moates. Mr. Minor leaves to mourn his loss his widow, Mrs. Janie Minor, three children, Marvin Minor and Rosie Scott of Maplesville. Mrs. Ada Smitherman of Prattville, two grandchildren, Adell Scott and Winston Minor of Maplesville, two brothers, John Minor of Birmingham, Bill Minor of Freemont, one half-brother and one sister, Joe Minor, Mrs. Mildred Adams of Detroit, Mich., and a host of other relatives and friends

Let us say, weep not, dear ones, for we feel sure our loss is heaven's gain. Mr. Minor was a member of Mt. Carmel Baptist Church for 37 years. He was always loyal to his church. He will be missed not only by his family but by his church and his neighbors and friends for he was always ready to lend a helping hand to any one in need. He was ready to do his part in anything that stood for the right.

We loved him but Jesus loved him more and called him to come home on that shining shore. We know there is a vacant place in his home that never can be filled. He can not come back to us but we can go to him where all is peace and love; where there will be no more pain and sorrow. There will be no more parting. Let us all live a life like Mr. Minor did then when our life here is over we can meet him on that shining shore. He is waiting to welcome his loved ones to that beautiful home up there.

—One who loved him

Why The State of Alabama Is In Debt

Alabama's deficit reminds us of Mark Twain's comment on the weather: "There is a whole lot of talk about it, but nobody seems to be able to do anything about it." The situation will have to be met in the near future by either raising more taxes or cutting down state expenditures. The politicians of the State haven't any idea of cutting down expenditures, but are right now figuring on some way to ease more taxes over on the tax-payers, by some indirect tax, such as the extraordinary taxes now levied on public utilities of the State—and they are going to do it, too, if the tax-payers of the State do not howl long and loud between now and another session of the State Legislature, and make their demands for some reduction of expenditures heard to the top of the capitol dome. The political job-holders of the State are sitting back right now waiting until they feel that the plight of the schools will enable them to put over any kind of a tax scheme or bond issue they may propose, and when their scheme for more money is submitted with the plea "Save the State's Schools," the politicians are going to try to put it over by labeling everyone who opposes their schemes as an "enemy of the schools," and an "educational slacker."

It doesn't take any expert or certified accountant to find out why the State of Alabama is in debt, but the average voter is not familiar with the way expenses of every department of our State government have increased by leaps and bounds. In order to give you some idea of how costs of State government increased in twelve years, we have prepared some comparative figures of departmental expenses of the State of Alabama for the years 1918 and 1930. The figures for 1930 are the latest obtainable, as the State Auditor's report for 1931 has never yet been made public. The following figures are compiled from published reports of the State Auditor, and show expenditures of the principal departments of our State government.

HOW THE EXPENSES HAVE GROWN

Operation of Convict Department

In 1918, when the convicts were worked in the mines, the State received a net profit of $775,077.30 from this department. In 1930, during which time a large number of them were engaged in road building, and supported by funds from the highway department, the net loss to the State from this department was $191,998.96.

Legislative Expenses

While there are no items charged to legislative expenses in either the Auditor's report for 1918 or 1930, we know that these expenses have increased more than 100 per cent in the twelve years. The first thing the legislature should do, if they are called into extra session is to cut their own salaries, and dispense with all of their unnecessary clerical jobs, then in good faith, they can proceed to prune every other department of the state government.

How Indirect Taxation Has Grown

A large part of these increased expenditures have been taken care of by indirect taxation, such as the extra-ordinary taxes now levied on public utilities. This method of taxation in Alabama has sprung up during the last decade. When the politicians decided they needed more money to spend, they started up a loud hue and cry about making the large utilities pay their share of taxes, and, though knowing full well who was going to pay these additional taxes, they put it over by deceiving the public into believing that anyone who saw through their schemes and raised any objection, was bought by the railroads or the power company. As a result of these new taxes, for instance, the Central of Georgia Railway is paying a regular property tax just like you, and then in addition they are paying a corporation permit tax, a corporation franchise tax, and a privilege tax of 2½ per cent of their gross annual intrastate business. Out of every dollar taken in, this railroad pays approximately 4 cents in taxes of every kind, and they of course are allowed to charge this in when making freight rates. Compared on a basis of gross business done, this is four times as much as the average business in Union Springs pays. The Alabama Power Co. pays a property tax just like you do, and then pays a corporation permit tax, a corporation franchise tax, and a privilege tax of four mills on each dollar of gross receipts, and a privilege tax of 2-5 of a mill on each kilowatt hour of hydro-electric power produced. Out of every dollar taken in the Alabama Power Co. pays eleven cents in taxes of all kinds, and of course they are allowed to charge this to you when making rates for electricity. Compared on a basis of gross business done, the Alabama Power Co. pays eleven times as much taxes as the average business in Union Springs. So remember when you pay a freight bill that about 4 per cent of it goes for taxes; and when you pay an Alabama Power Co. bill, about 11 per cent of it goes for taxes. If you doubt these figures you can find sworn evidence to verify them on file with the Alabama Public Service Commission. Yet, when any person who sees through these indirect taxes, objects to them, or tries to explain how they are actually additional taxes levied on the public, the politicians, who want this money, rise up and accuse him of being bought by the railroads or the power company, and a large percentage of the public will always believe the loud-mouthed political demagogue.

Then there is the special coal tonnage tax, and don't let anybody kid you into believing that anyone but the man who burns the coal pays this tax.

Every time the farmer buys a sack of fertilizer or stock feed, or a gallon of kerosene or paint for his house, he pays a special indirect tax to the State, which goes to pay the salary and traveling expenses of the boll weevil estimator or potato bug coach.

Expenses Out-Run Increase in Property Values

The value of all taxable property in Alabama is a fair basis for comparing the ability-to-pay of the tax payers of Alabama, nd if you will note the figures above on value of property assessed for taxation in 1918 and 1930, you will find that during these twelve years, the value of all property in Alabama increased only 72 per cent, while during the same period the costs of your State government increased 500 per cent. Are you going to stand for the ever increasing tax burdens being placed on you by the job holders of the State, or are you going to insist that these extravagances of State government be eliminated? The job-holders of the State are not going to initiate any economies, unless the public forces it on them.

We have got to call a halt to the ever increasing costs of state government sometime, and the good year 1932, we believe, is the right time to put on the brakes and back up.

It might be a good idea for you to paste the above comparative figures in the old family album, and if no adequate reduction of State expenditures is made, and some politician comes around and wants you to vote for a bond issue or support a new tax of some kind, see if he can explain to you why it costs 500 per cent more to operate your State Government now than it did in 1918.

The writer having been a member of the State legislature for the past two terms, you will probably rise to inquire why he, knowing these facts, has done nothing to correct these extravagances—and in reply, we will ask you, "Why you haven't stopped the depression?" But we are willing to stand up and take our share of the "cussing," and are not trying to side-step any responsibility for the misdeeds of this body.

Personally, we would be in favor of discontinuing about half of these various expensive state enterprises which have sprung up in the past decade if it becomes necessary to do so in order to keep the public elementary and high schools operating.—Union Springs Herald.

True Bravery

"No, I'll not put my hand into that water. There are snakes in there," said Fred Pierce as he moved further back from the water.

"Fred, if you're afraid to reach down into that hole you're a coward," said Phil Brown.

"No, he isn't," defended Clara, Fred's sister. "I wouldn't put my hand in there for my beads and I don't want anyone else to."

"Why did you drop your beads in?" asked Joan, Phil's sister, who had stopped on the hill to pick flowers and had just come down to the others.

"Phil threw a rock in to scare me, when the water splashed, I jumped back, and as I jumped a limb caught my beads, and the catch gave way. The limb swung out over the water and the beads dropped into the water among the rocks," answered Clara.

"Well, I'm not afraid to get them," boasted Phil, and he dropped on his knees to reach into the muddy water.

"No, no, no-! a moccasin will bite you," shrieked Clara.

Joan siezed Phil's shoulders and pulled him backward just as he was reaching into the water. He got up off the ground with a much injured air.

"No such thing," he growled in a sulky way.

"You may say 'no such thing'," replied Fred, "but a snake bit a calf here at this hole last year and it died before night."

"Say, children," called Mr. Pierce from the field above them, "Come away from that place. That is a regular moccasin den. I killed one there yesterday."

"Let's go to the pasture and maybe we'll find some blackberries," suggested Fred.

"Oh, let's do that," agreed the rest.

"Won't mother be glad to have some berries for a pie for dinner!" said Clara.

"And won't we all be glad of that pie!" added Phil.

"We'll go by and get the bucket that we brought water in to Father and Jim and put the berries in it," said Fred.

They hurried away to the pasture. There they found plenty of berries that were easy to get. They had plenty of fun and a great deal of excitement when Fred waded too deeply into the first patch of briers and disturbed a big family of wasps. In trying to escape from the swarm that flew at him, he ran over Phil, knocked him down, tripped in a vine, and fell, spilling the few berries they had already picked.

"Say, Phil, did any of them sting you?" asked Fred.

"No, but I surely got scratched when you knocked me into the briers. I see you're stung by the way you're rubbing your shoulder."

"Yes, five of them stung me. My, won't that nest make good fish bait when we go fishing next week! It's as big as my head!"

"Must be forty wasps still flying around that patch," remarked Phil as he looked back. They had recovered the bucket and gone to another patch to get berries.

"Fred, don't wade in and stir up any more wasps," cautioned Clara, "or we won't get enough berries in time to have a pie for dinner."

"Don't worry, I've had enough stings for one day replied," Fred.

Pretty soon they had a bucket full of berries and were starting home.

"Let's don't go home across the field," said Clara. "It will be cooler and easier to go around the cowpath even if it is further."

"Then we can see the bird's nest in that stump," said Joan.

"Suits me," agreed Phil.

Fred said nothing, but carrying the bucket he started off with the others around the pasture fence toward the wooded swamp. When they got even with the bird's nest, Joan and Clara left the path to see it. Fred and Phil went on. Just before the girls reached the stump Joan gave a scream of terror, for almost at her feet was coiled a big rattlesnake.

At Joan's first scream, Fred dropped the bucket and sped like the wind back toward the girls. Clara was calling to him that it was a snake. He took in the situation as he ran before he got to them. Joan was gazing at the snake still screaming.

"Clara," he shouted, "I'll attract the snake's attention to myself, and when I do, you drag Joan away.

"Phil," he panted, "bring me that big stick I've just stepped over."

Soon the snaked was dead and the white-faced cousins were slowly trudging toward the house.

"Fred, I didn't really mean it when I called you a coward this morning. You're brave! I guess I was not brave at all. I was just foolish to go into danger when it wasn't necessary, but you risked your life—"

"Aw, forget it," cut in Fred.

GOVERNMENT AND LITTLE BUSINESS

o

It has long been the fashion to regard "big business" as the only objector to the business activities of the Government. Since the discussion has centered around fertilizer factories, ship operation, power and light plants and insurance, the attitude of the average citizen has been "let them take it on the chin. They're big enough to stand the punishment."

But now the public has learned that it is not big business alone which feels this invasion of business rights. It has seen its neighbors and friends—the local laundry owner, the merchant, the real estate man, the tailor or tobacconist—suffer because they had to give odds to their Government in carrying on their business. It has seen this ruin of individual business accompanied by a tax burden which has grown more and more oppressive. The public is aroused.

As a result of this aroused public opinion, a significant thing happened in the House of Representatives recently. A committee of five members was appointed to investigate government competition with private enterprise and all other questions in relation thereto that would aid Congress in any remedial legislation.

This proposed inquiry had its inception in the personal investigation made by Representative Joseph B. Shannon of Missouri. He had been hearing from some of his constituents who have been forced to divide their business with Uncle Sam, as well as hand over a sizable share of their earnings in taxes. So he sent a young clerk, John Cronkite, to a government store. Cronkite returned outfitted from head to foot in apparel that cost him $27.55. The same outfit, purchased elsewhere would have cost him $38 to $50.

Mr. Shannon's experience caused Representative Ralph Horr, of Washington, to go shopping. At an Army store he bought a straw hat for $1.85 and four bottles of cordial at 50 cents each.

"The cordial is labeled rum, scotch, rye and gin," said Mr. Horr. "Directions explain that, if it is mixed with one gallon of alcohol, the result will be the required flavor as well as color."

In the course of Mr. Cronkite's tour of government agencies he bought for $4.85 a pair of shoes. To his surprise they were stamped "Made in England." At another store he acquired a light gray three-piece suit, for $16; pocket handkerchief, 25 cents; underwear, 75 cents; white shirt, $1.60; belt, $1.

The young man also had luncheon, a shoe shine, hair cut and shave at government establishments and, determined to take advantage of all possible bargains, he bought cigars, camera film, witch hazel, soap and vaseline.

In addition to the goods bought in this manner, and innumerable letters from business men complaining of this competition, Representative Shannon has in his office a franked letter sent by a government store to citizens of Leavenworth, Kan. The letter announces "special sales for Friday and Saturday" of "fresh country eggs, 15 cents a dozen; bananas, 15 cents a dozen; ketchup, three bottles for 57 cents," and so on.

Mr. Shannon said merchants of that city were in distress because they could not meet the lower prices of the government competition.

As he read a letter from one of them, he opened a box containing a string of beads, a necktie, a bottle of cologne and a pair of women's pink pajamas (price 89 cents) and two packages of cigarettes (minus the two cent state tax) that his secretary had bought at the army post store.

One of Representative Shannon's constituents wrote to see if something could not be done to save his little jewelry business from this competition. A customer gets his price on, say, a Seth Thomas clock, takes the number, then walks across the street to the government store and buys the same clock for much less.

And here's another angle, a St. Louis shoe factory petitioned its representative in these words:

"Cannot something be done to stop the Government from making shoes at Leavenworth and competing with us in the Indian reservations?"

Then there's the difficulty faced by private laundries. It seems that the sisters and cousins and uncles and aunts of a government employee may send their family wash to a government laundry if they send it in his name. Representative Shannon says he received protests from privately operated laundries in 20 cities.

The restaurant and delicatessen men also have a case and Representative Shannon has been looking into it. In a government building in Washington he was shown a restaurant which seats 2,500 persons. He was told that it "made for efficiency" in providing quick service for the personnel in a short lunch hour. He found that breakfast was served and asked why. No one seemed to know.

In Kansas City a restaurant is operated in the Federal Reserve Building, and the installation of another in the new post ofice building is contemplated. Space in government office buildings is also leased in competition with local real estate owners.

Our newspapers are up in arms against the Government's practice of printing and selling stamped envelopes to the public. And Representative Stokes of Pennsylvania reports that a varnish factory at Scranton is being ruined by the competition of a government plant at Norfolk. Representative Bacon is authority for the statement that the Navy Department maintains a factory for the manufacture of clothing.

These examples carry a significance far beyond the localities which provide them. They are symptoms of a comprehensive trend toward a paralyzing restriction of individual endeavor.

The fact is that Government has set up shop in about 250 separate lines of business and for this encroachment into those activities which belong to the individual, you and I as citizens are responsible through our indifference or our thoughtless encouragement.

Because of this, our tax burden is increased in two ways—First, the activities now assumed by Government, which should be carried on by individuals are not subject to taxation. Therefore a growing number of business enterprises, including property, are taken off the tax base. Second, when Government attempts to carry on a business undertaking, it invariably runs at a deficit which the taxpayer must make up. This may be due to no lack of ability on the part of those whom we entrust with running a governmental business undertaking. It is due to the political mechanism which we have set up to protect political liberty—checks and balances necessary in handling matters involving our political rights but which hinder the efficient operation of a business.

So, when we have a large percentage of governmental activities, we find the reduced taxpaying capacity of the country is aggravated because government deprives citizens of earning money with which to pay taxes. Thus we have the anomaly of taxpayers providing the funds for their own competition.—Nation's Business.

Notice of the Filing of Bill of Complaint by State of Alabama, Complainant vs. One Ford Truck (½ ton), 1929 A Model, Respondent.

State of Alabama, Complainant. vs. One Ford Truck (½ ton) 1929 A Model, Respondent.

In The Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, In Equity.

The Bill of Complaint of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, against one Ford Truck (one-half ton) 1929 A Model, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 5th day of June, 1932, one Osmond Dorminey did transport in one Ford truck, 1929 Model, certain prohibited liquors and beverages, from one point to another in the State of Alabama, and that said automobile was on said day seized by the Deputy Sheriff of said county and said Bill of Complaint praying that said automobile be declared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

It is therefore ordered and decreed that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for two successive weeks in Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and that all persons claiming or asserting any right, titles or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 22nd day of July, 1932, and that failing so to do, the said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Given under my hand, this the 18 day of June, 1932.

F. LOYD TATE,
Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Circuit Court in Equity. No. 990.
Anthia Knowles, Complainant, vs. Jesse Knowles, Respondent.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Raymond C. Smith that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said Jesse Knowles, to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 9, day of July, 1932, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, this 7 day of June, 1932.

Good Advice For A Safe Fourth Of July

This year most of the nation will celebrate the Fourth of July with a three-day holiday. Such a long period for recreation is awaited eagerly by us all. Yet its unusual length doubles the hazards and danger to which we will be exposed.

Independence Day is known as the worst accident day of the year. This year may break the tragic record unless everyone guards himself closely and observes all safety rules. A list of "don'ts," all excellent advice, has been prepared by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters and follows:

If you drive your car—Drive Safely.

1. Don't drive recklessly—it's a long holiday and there's plenty of time.

2. Don't take out your car unless it is in first-class condition.

3. Don't drive on the wrong side of the road—keep to the right.

4. Don't drive too long without resting—mental lapses due to fatigue cause accidents.

5. Don't pass other cars unless you have a clear view ahead: don't cut in and out of traffic lines; don't pass or fail to slow down at intersections.

If you go swimming—Swim Safely:

1. Don't attempt marathon races by swimming too long or too far.

2. Don't venture out into deep water if you're not a strong swimmer.

3. Don't swim away from the crowd—"In unity there is strength."

4. Don't indulge in ducking others or in frightening weak swimmers or children.

5. Don't lie too long in the sun—sun poisoning is injurious and can be fatal.

If you celebrate with fireworks—Celebrate Safely:

1. Don't hold lighted firecrackers in your hand or throw them close to others.

2. Don't explode firecrackers near combustible materials.

3. Don't celebrate with guns loaded with real cartridges or shot; firecrackers and toy cap pistols are dangerous enough.

4. Don't fail to treat injuries, even the most minor ones, immediately and intelligently. Tetanus poisoning works slowly but surely.

5. Don't get too close to a display of fireworks—premature explosions occur.

Got a good one on the ed the other day. Harrison Taylor, one of our well known blacksmiths, stopped the ed on the street and handed him a contraption for keeping cows and things from jumping fences. Mr. Taylor said, "Here, take this and muzzle that bull you got down at your office." Do you get the idea? I thought that was a rich one when I heard about it.

I looked at five different clocks in Clanton Monday and all showed different time. Four of the five were electric clocks. I'm under the impression that something or somebody was wrong. The difference in time ranged from four minutes to sixteen. Maybe that's one thing that is wrong—folks don't even keep the time together.

Judge Tate, in commenting on the recent primary runoff, sure complimented Chilton County. He thinks this is THE banner county now. And rightly so, didn't Chilton give him his victory?

Turn to it, and board the bus for this tour each week. Each merchant whose name is listed on this space each week, has some specials for that week. Don't miss this "Tour For Bargains" in the News.

It was very unfortunate last Friday night that the sound system at the Wadesonian Theatre went on the bum, due to a broken connection in the amplifier. The picture scheduled for that night, "Fireman Save My Child" was a knockout. I saw it Saturday night. It was sponsored by the Volunteer Fire Dept. of Clanton. There was a full house there Friday night, and the people were very nice about it not being able to be shown. Tickets were returned and everything smoothed over. However, a few minutes after the crowd left, Hubert Farley, electrician, had the machine in good shape and the picture could have gone on. My advice to theatre goers is to stay and give the management a few minutes to get his machine fixed, because those sound systems are delicate and easily broken.

Mr. Heflin Gives A Square Deal

Folks, here's a story and a true one, too. It's about one of Clanton's citizens and business men—H. Grady Heflin of the Peoples Savings Bank.

It seems that Mr. Heflin with his family, was riding out in the country the other day, and suddenly a small dog ran out in front of the car. It was unavoidable. The dog practically ran into the car, and regardless of what Mr. Heflin could have done, the dog would have been hit. Anyway, the car ran over the dog and killed it. Now you can believe this or not—it's true. Mr. Heflin went on and carried his family wherever they were going, and then came back to where he had ran over the little dog. He looked up the owner of the dog, and found it to be a charming little girl, who, finding that her dog was dead, had shed a considerable number of tears before Mr. Heflin came back.

Maybe it was the thoughts of killing the dog, or maybe it was the thoughts that the dog might belong to some child. At any rate Mr. Heflin returned to the scene and finding the owner of the dog, immediately did what he could to console the little girl.

She shall have another little pet dog, a brand new one, and maybe she already has it, because Mr. Heflin saw to that.

KIWANIANS HAVE AN INTERESTING PROGRAM AT MITCHELL DAM

Monday night being known to Kiwanians as "All Kiwanis Night," the members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club went to Mitchell Dam and enjoyed a delicious feed at the Club house and the splendid Kiwanis program over the radio. The meeting was presided over by President John Holils.

The Kiwanis International convention was in progress in Detroit. The delegates from the 1800 Kiwanis clubs throughout the United States and Canada could be heard cheering at intervals as the program of the hour came over the radio.

The following is the message delivered by the president of Kiwanis International:

"FELLOWSHIP HOUR MESSAGE"

To all of our Kiwanis friends assembled here in this magnificent auditorium and to those loyal members who are assembled at home in tune with the spirit of this occasion, "Fellowship Hour" must this year assume a new significance. The trials and tribulations which have befallen all of us during the past twelve months serve only tonight to emphasize the true value of that spirit of fellowship and friendship which has always characterized the activities of Kiwanis. Whether you are present here tonight, whether you are meeting with your own club or beside the radio in your own home, Kiwanians, I greet you from Detroit, the Birthplace of Kiwanis, in an humble but reverent spirit of good will and bespeak to you the friendly association and co-operation of a hundred thousand Kiwanians all over the North American continent.

We observe tonight for the ninth consecutive year this occasion so emblematic of fellowship and pledge anew in our hearts to always maintain within our organization that moving spirit which has built Kiwanis and enshrined it in the hearts of the citizenry of two great nations; namely, Friendship based upon understanding.

We could not tonight recount that part of Kiwanis achievement over the seventeen years of our history which has been made possibel by the friendships which it has created. We could not appraise the effect of mutual understanding, fellowship and good will, nor can we measure its value in the solution of the problems before us today. We can, however, approach our present day responsibilities confident of true and faithful friendship and energetic and sincere cooperation. No greater inspiration or better equipment was ever needed by any organization.

"Back to the Birthplace and Forward in Kiwanis"—such is the slogan under which all Kiwanians meet tonight. We who are privileged to be in Detroit and have a part in this great program can testify to these loyal Kiwanians of Number One Club of our faith in the organization which they created and of our sincere appreciation of its value to ourselves and to all mankind. Kiwanis in this seventeen years has come to mean friendship, sincerity, service, helpfulness, good will and true citizenship, through the activities of our clubs and individual Kiwanians, and our wish tonight is that it wil lalways mean just these things in American and Canadian Community life.

Seventeen years of constructive accomplishment, seventeen years of community service is the endowment of Kiwanis tonight. We can justly glory in the accomplishments of the organization for Kiwanis has found and earned a place of leadership in eighteen hundred communities. We need spend no time tonight to justify the existence of the organization—no dollar and cent value can be placed upon our activities—no rule of gold can measure the good that has been accomplished, but in the hearts of under-privileged children, in the character of young men and women guided to gainful occupation, in the soul of charitable and character building organizations and in the ideals of business and professional men you can find the true value of Kiwanis.

"Forward in Kiwanis" is but the realization of the present day challenge of our objectives. No time was ever more opportune—nor was our opportunity ever any greater to thoroughly entrench Kiwanis in the minds and hearts of the people than today. Social, industrial, agricultural and economic problems are calling for champions. Governmental agencies are calling for help and co-operation and the very ideals of American and Canadian citizenship are being undermined with the attempt to destroy—destructive influences are flourishing within our own communities and a real challenge of tried and true citizenship is at the door of Kiwanis today.

Through seventeen years we have been taught to serve, through seventeen years we have boasted the sincerity of our citizenship. We have the organization and the potential power.

Kiwanians Let Us Meet the Challenge

As we come to Detroit in a spirit of Friendship and International good will—truly proud of our past, thoroughly appreciative of the potential power for good wrapped up in such an organization of men who are willing to serve—let us leave it recognizing the present day responsibilities with a broader vision of service and with a determination to achieve — rededicated to the ideals of Kiwanis and inspired by the zeal and enthusiasm which will know no defeat.

WM. O. HARRIS,
International President.

MASONIC CONFERENCE

The Twentieth Annual Session of the Chilton County Masonic Conference will be held with Maplesville Lodge on Wednesday and Thursday, July 13 and 14. All Lodges composing the conference are urged to be represented and all Masons are invited to attend this conference.

Personal

The three circles of the Methodist missionary society met Monday afternoon and enjoyed special programs. Circle 1 met with Mrs. Willie Jones, 2 with Mrs. B. L. Jones and 3 with Mrs. C. R. Mullins in the Primary department at the Methodist church.

Mrs. M. A. Lanford of New Orleans, mother of Mrs. J. W. Powers of Thorsby, died last week and was buried at Gainsville, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. Powers attended the funeral.

Mrs. W. C. Warrick of Birmingham is visiting her niece, Mrs. M. L. White, for a few days.

Dr. N. B. McLeod of Selma preached at the Methodist church last Sunday morning to an interested audience and Sunday afternoon he went to Prattville where he preached that night.

Much comment has been made over the appearing of the dark cloud in the north west Saturday afternoon. The scars being made by the storm in March may have been healed by the hand of nature, but the fright caused by the tornado has not released its grip. At the appearance of the threatening cloud people made a dash for their storm pits like rats for a hole.

A large crowd attended the Wadesonian Friday night in honor of our city firemen to see the picture, "Fireman, Save My Child," but were disappointed in the failure of the sound machine to give out the wording of the picture. A flash of lightning had burned out the delicate part of the machine, and a workman had to install new parts. The repair was completed before the show Saturday and the picture went off with a great success.

The City of Verbena is installing a recreation park for the children of the community. A large plot of ground in the heart of the city has been selected and is being cleared off and swings are being built. A wading pool for the kiddies and a swimming pool for the older children will be provided. This needed recreation park brings a long felt need to the parents of that section and will afford a safe place where the children will be protected.

We are wondering if Clanton and Chilton county are going to let the Fourth of July pass as other days of the year. Why can we not have a citizenship meeting of some kind. One that is free of politics and yet a meeting that is all athrill with correct ideals of citizenship.

Mrs. E. G. Chappell and son, Charles, and Mrs. Gilland, of Norfolk, Va., are visiting Mrs. J. H. Williams this week.

W. Y. Keel left Friday for Birmingham where he will undergo treatment at South Highlands Infirmary for several weeks.

2:30 Address, J. C. Lowery, Auburn.

2:55 Two numbers by winning fiddler.

3:00 Adjourn.

Mr. Stapp hopes that farmers, merchants, lawyers, doctors, bankers and in fact, people in every vocation of gainful occupation will join in and help make this program worth something to Chilton County.

Mr. Stapp states that he will have only one hour for the fiddlers contest. The prizes will be liberal. For this reason Mr. Stapp asks that the fiddlers who desire to enter the contest give to him their names at an early date. The order in which the names are turned in to Mr. Stapp will be the order in which the fiddlers wil lbe called to play. If there are more fiddlers than can finish in one hour, the last ones registered will not be able to compete.

Jemison F. F. A. News

On Wednesday night, June 22, the Jemison F. F. A. Chapter met at the high school building at Jemison. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss the Irish potato and bean project. Prof. J. P. Montgomery gave us the figures on an acre of each, which ran about $27.50 for the Irish potatoes and about $12.00 on the beans.

The F. F. A. Camp Trip was taken up at the meeting and discussed more thoroughly. The place decided on now is Camp McGowens, up in Shelby county, near Wilsonville. This place was chosen by a majority vote of the chapter. The question of the place to go has been settled and the date was arranged. The date was Friday and Saturday, July 8 and 9. Everybody is to meet at the school building Friday morning.

Another thing taken up and discussed was growing seven-top turnips for the January and February markets. This question was settled by Prof. Montgomery's consent to supervise Lance Franklin and Wilson Clements an half an acre. Mr. Montgomery states that he plans on the turnip project himself.

Final arrangements were made to be sure our delegates would be present this year at Auburn, Ala. on July 15 and 16. Our delegates are Mr. Frank Nelson, near Thorsby, Mr. Herbert Watson of Sinner Hill.

We were delighted to have with us Mr. George T. Sargent, supervisor of vocational agriculture from our Experiment Station at Auburn.

The meeting was a great success and all who attended received a benefit. Among those present were, and it is understood that all were Mr. Wilson and Winston Clements, Alford Davenport, Arban Crim, Grant Stockdale, Ervin Beasley, Erskine Martin, Frank Nelson, and Lance Franklin. The meeting adjourned with refreshments served with the kindness of Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Dezzie Littlejohn.

We would like to say that Mr. Montgomery asked all boys trying the above mentioned projects sow cow peas and turn them under before planting.

Activities of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association

After considerable talk with the growers in regard to planting of beans, it is thought best to hold off the planting until the last of July or the first of August. The opinion of most of the growers is that this will be a better time, than to plant them at this time, or even the middle of July. It is advisable therefore for no one to plant with the intention of shipping in car loads, before seeing the manager at the Fruit Growers office. In regard to corn shipments, it was found that there was too little corn available at this time to load cars this week, but that by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, cars might be loaded.

Mr. C. R. Foss, accompanied by J. D. Cleckler, D. L. Ward and W. A. Hayes spent last Wednesday in Baldwin County and points in Florida in the interest of the association, inspecting loading and shipping methods for the corn growers in this vicinity.

Will Rogers Coming To Clanton In Famous Picture, "The Connecticut Yankee," Mon. and Tues.

More than 5,000 players have parts in the Fox production of Will Rogers' latest starring vehicle, "A Connecticut Yankee," which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre Monday and Tuesday, July 4th and 5th.

There are knights and ladies of the court by the hundreds, servants, heralds, pages and hundreds of villagers in many of he scenes. "A Connecticut Yankee" is one of the biggest productions ever made, in point of the number of persons used.

Rogers, of course, has the role of "Hank," a Connecticut radio store proprietor, and "Sir Boss," when he becomes the Prime Minister of King Arthur's realm.

The story of "A Connecticut Yankee" deals with the modernization of King Arthur's Court by "Hank." The Knights, armed with machine guns, ride into battle in Baby Austins, and dozens of other amusing innovations are seen as the plot unfolds.

Maureen O'Sullivan is "Alisade," the beautiful daughter of King Arthur. Frank Albertson is "Clarence," the page boy who dared to love Alisade, and whose suit is fostered by the omnipotent "Sir Boss" with such success.

The exotic Myrna Loy is "Queen Morgan Le Fay," the wicked sister of King Arthur who imprisons "Alisade" in her castle, and William Farnum, the great star of the silent screen, stages a sensational comeback in his second talking picture as "King Arthur." Mitchell Harris is "Sagramor" and Brandon Hurst is the evil court magician, "Merlin" who almost accomplishes Rogers' undoing.

David Butler, who has such previous successes as "Sunny Side Up," "High Society Blues" and "Just Imagine" to his credit, directed "A Connecticut Yankee."

When a professor recently declared to a flapper that "the use of slang is deplorable," she acquiesced by saying, "You sure slobbered a bibful, sir."

The Junior department of our Sunday school has moved down into the basement of the church and will now have a cool and commodious apartment. Remember that our Sunday school meets at 9:45 A.M. We have a place for the entire family. If the weather is too hot to wear a coat leave that coat at home and come and be comfortable.

At 11 A.M. the pastor has a special message, "What it takes to make a good citizen." This is a good subject for us to think about just before we observe the 4th of July. Come and bring your family. We are going to sing patriotic songs that day.

The Young People's organizations meet Sunday night at 7:15.

Preaching Sunday night by the pastor, subject, "The Anchor That Holds." In this time when everything seems drifting, doubtless you would like to know of an anchor that holds. Hear this message.

This is a friendly church and we want to be a friend to you.

Alabama Farm News

Big Crop of Feed

Heflin. — Cleburne County farmers have harvested this year bumper crops of good hay where they planted a winter legume and small grain together last fall. Austrian peas, hairy vetch, wheat, and oats were used, and County Agent E. R. Carlton anticipates an increased production of feed this way.

More Trench Silos

Columbiana.—More trench silos will be used next winter by Shelby County farmers, according to County Agent A. A. Lauderdale. Eight farmers made silos last year and these have served as successful demonstrations. Silage crops have been planted and are now growing.

Crimson Clover Seed Saved

Scottsboro.—Crimson clover on Sand Mountain in this county has produced a good crop of seed which farmers have saved for planting. In the Tennessee Valley section more crimson clover will be planted as a pasture for sheep and also for soil improvement.

1,102 Boys in 4-H Clubs

Gadsden.—L. L. Self, Etowah County Agent, says that 1,102 farm boys in this county are now actively engaged in 4-H club work. They are organized into clubs with officers and a local leader. A splendid year is expected.

Soybeans Planted for Seed

Pell City.—An increase of 200 per cent in acreage planted to soybeans by St. Clair farmers for seed production is reported by Clyde Dunn, county agent. Their goal is to produce their seed rather than buy seed produced in other states, thereby saving money.

U. S. ARMY CAMELS

Few persons know that once the United States Army employed camels as a means of transprtation in the Southwest. The story of the experiment is interesting.

With a view to overcoming the difficulties of traversing the great American desert before there were any transcontinental railroads or highways, 75 camels were brought from Egypt and Asia Minor in 1856 by the War Department, while Jefferson Davis was Secretary of War.

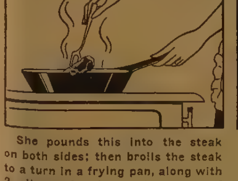
The camels performed satisfactorily, but the Army "mule skinners" did not like the beasts, besides they frightened the Army horses and mules into a stampede on slight provocation. Before the experiment had progressed very far the Civil War broke out and the project was abandoned, some of the animals being sold to circuses while others were turned loose. Some of these, grown wild, were seen in Arizona as late as 1909, and some believe that a herd still exists in the uninhabited wastes of that region.

Pam's Recipes

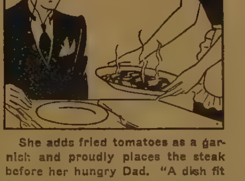
By Lea Lane

Pam's budget is showing signs of strain. An inexpensive cut of meat is in order for the evening meal. She decides to prove she can make a round steak a dish fit for a king.

Cheaper cuts, she has heard, are improved by using sugar as a seasoner; so she mixes ½ cup of flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper.



She pounds this into the steak on both sides; then broils the steak to a turn in a frying pan, along with 2 slices of onion and a chopped green pepper.



She adds fried tomatoes as a garnish and proudly places the steak before her hungry Dad. "A dish fit for a king," is just what he calls it after the first taste.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was sitting in a coach talking to a number of friends. We could hear the engine as it shuffled the cars and knew that something was taking place. Soon the porter appeared at the door and shouted, "All passengers to the coach ahead." We were pleasantly situated and would have been pleased if we could have been undisturbed, but the engine had been disconnected from the car in which we had been traveling, and if we were to continue on our journey we must pick up our baggage and advance to the coach ahead. We did this without question for it was the thing to do. We are seated in a bustling, banging, shifting world, and we imagine ourselves pleasantly located. We are having sweet fellowship with our comrades, and just when we seem to be enjoying ourselves the most, there is an unexpected order, "Move up to the coach ahead," and we must move on or be left behind. The fellow who refuses to move is left sitting on the side track in the blazing sun and he wonders why he is left out of the travel of civilization. Customs and contacts are changing, tested and tried methods are being disconnected, and every year we hear the announcement, "Move up to the coach ahead." Some day our ears are going to be deaf to the sounds of changing times, then we will hear the last summons, "Move up to the coach ahead."

A ship had come in at the narrows and had anchored herself near the city dock. The tide had gone out into the gulf and the water was low where the ship was anchored, but still she was floating. About noon there came up a squall on the bay and the wind struck this ship and drove her on the sand where she stuck fast. The crew and captain went into action. The sails were hoisted, the engine was put into action and two large tugs were hitched to the stern of the ship. The wind was blowing against the sails, the engines were pulling at high speed from within the hull of the steamer and the tugs were churning the water with pulling power. I stood on the shore and watched. The tide was coming in and just before it reached its highest level I heard a grinding sound and I saw the vessel move. She slipped along for a moment and then she swung her bow clear of the bottom and was ready for ocean travel. She had been grounded by a terrific squall, but she had been set free by the pulling power brought to bear upon her. Many a man has been grounded under the driving power of a terrific temptation. He was made conscious of his danger and all parts of his being were put into action. God's forgiving grace was the tide that flowed in, and finally the pulling powers made it possible for him to slide free from the grip of the world.

Young Mr. Russell, a brother of the Georgia governor, had his neck fractured in a ball game several years ago. Since that time he has fought a noble battle to keep himself fit and efficient, but the doctors hold out a gloomy future for the young man. Already his arms are dwarfing and only by his will power will he delay the total loss of his hands. He forces himself through rigid exercises that he may stay the coming sadness of a helpless state. It is beautiful to see the fighting spirit of a human heart. This young man is not alone in his misfortunes. In almost every community there are people who have malignant diseases, deformed bodies and incurable afflictions that causes the future to be dark and uncertain, but these people are cheerful and brave in their fight for life and the few joys that life can bring. God bless the people who have met with a misfortune along the way.

I was going into a cave with a friend. He had experience as well as inventive genius. Before we advanced into the darkness he slipped a candle into each end of a cane that was about four feet in length, and then he lighted each candle and held the cane in the middle with his hands. That placed a light on each side of him and it made it possible for him to see his way without being blinded with a flame near his eyes. This guide made a remark that set the wheels of my brain to revolving, said he, "My candle of life is burning at both ends." In my travels through this dark journey of life I have found many who are burning their candle at both ends. They work hard all day and then frolic and carouse the most of the night. Such living is burning the candle of life at both ends. Such living cuts the duration of life into halves.

I was to preach at a church in a strange town. Being the first to enter the building I took my seat. Looking about me I wondered why a church in a community like that should have been built with such a small auditorium. Just then the sexton entered and started to pushing back the folding doors, and in a very short time there was an abundant space in sight. Thought I to myself, "This is the way of the church in human life. When the church first enters the soul the space of life seems narrow and inadequate. The church is the sexton of the soul and as soon as it enters, it begins the work of pushing back the folding doors. It keeps up its benevolent work until the soul becomes wide and wonderful in its space and power to serve the races. "Are you letting God's sexton push back the walls of your life and widen out the space of your soul for service and worship.?

FREEDOM'S ANNIVERSARY

On July 4 the American people will celebrate the 156th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, that immortal document which was made effective through the blood of our illustrious forefathers and which was intended to vouchsafe to citizens of this nation the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

It is highly fitting that this historic date should be celebrated. It is also fitting that the principles enunciated in the Declaration should be reaffirmed. as they will be, by orators throughout the land.

It might also be well to recall on this occasion the important privileges set forth in the first ten amendments to the Constitution, popularly known as the Bill of Rights.

But, without disparaging the accomplishments and progress which have been made in these 156 years, it is pertinent to inquire just what measure of liberty, freedom and independence is accorded to the average American citizen in this year of 1932.

Is he not encompassed with a multitude of laws, regulations and restrictions exceeding those imposed upon any other supposedly free man? Is he not subjected to the whims of an army of investigators, spies and snoopers which he must support out of his slender earnings under present adverse conditions? Are the people "secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures" as contemplated by the Fourth Amendment?

Honest answers to these vital questions will indicate just how enthusiastically we may judge in celebrating the coming Fourth of July.

TRUSTEES OF SCHOOLS MET HERE FRIDAY

Dr. J. B. Hobdy Speaks To Crowd On Present Situation Of Schools

A meeting of new and old trustees of schools in Chilton county was called last Friday by Supt. B. Lawrence. The gathering was held in the courthouse in Clanton, with Dr. J. B. Hobdy, of the state department of education as principal speaker.

The crowd was not large, but appeared very attentive. Dr. Hobdy discussed the school situation, contradicting the State Treasurer regarding a statement of the amount of the tax dollar going to education. Dr. Hobdy said that the State Treasurer stated that 51 cents of the tax dollar went to the educational department. Dr. Hobdy contradicted this, saying that only 12 cents of the tax dollar went to education in the state.

He also stated that every Southern state, except Alabama had balanced their budgets by cutting appropriations, eliminating useless offices, and combining various departments that could be combined.

"SIX CYLINDERS no more no less" says America

Since Jan. 1st, buyers have chosen more Chevrolet Sixes than the total of all fours and all eights priced below $1000

Look at what happened when America began lifting hoods and counting cylinders: Overwhelming preference for "SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less." A sweeping endorsement of the soundness and correctness of the Chevrolet six-cylinder engine!

America knows its motor cars. And America knows that six is the largest number of cylinders you can have in a low-priced car and still get unexcelled economy! That six is the fewest you can have in a car and still get built-in smoothness!

America prefers the Chevrolet Six—because it strikes a happy medium between two extremes. It gives economy—the lowest operating and upkeep cost of any American car. It gives smoothness—the built-in smoothness that makes driving really enjoyable! And it gives many other advantages that are just as essential as six cylinders! Big, spacious, luxurious Fisher bodies. Free Wheeling, Syncro-Mesh shifting. An advanced chassis of proved design. Four parallel-mounted springs. Four hydraulic shock absorbers. And new reduced prices, as much as $50 and $55 lower than they were before!

Chevrolet is able to give you all this value, because Chevrolet is the world's largest producer of motor cars. Largest for three out of the past five years! Largest for the first six months of 1932! First in value—First in sales!

Jackson Writes More On Politics

Dear Editor Chilton County News:

Will you give me space in your paper to say a few words to the voters of Chilton County? And to thank the editor of The Union-Banner for his editorial of last week, in which he said: "It appears that the Republicans will have a stiff fight to hold the fort this year," and concludes his editorial by saying, "The Democrats are greatly encouraged because they have already succeeded in capturing one Republican that is about the only one they will get." From the ring of his editorial he surely is expecting some good work to be done by this Republican because he admits they will have a hard fight to win, and says this one Republican is about all the one the Democrats will get.

Yes, I agree with the editorial in The Union-Banner. They have a hard fight on their hands. Because their fight will have to be made with blank cartridges.

Now to the voters of Chilton County, and especially to the Republican voters:

The first fact that I want to make mention of is that all government power is vested in the majority of the voters of the United States. And when they elect men to office to administer the affairs of the United States they transfer their power to that administration. Thus making the present administration responsibile for the deplorable condition of the millions today who are the subjects of charity.

What was the condition of our country in 1928 when Herbert Hoover ran for President, and was elected on a farm-relief platform? At that time the farmers were getting for their wheat $1.40 per bushel, and 17 to 18 cents per pound for their cotton.

Soon after Mr. Hoover took charge of the affairs of our government he organized the Federal Farm Bureau, and his administration appropriated five hundred million dollars and turned it over to the officials of the bureau, and the officials of the bureau plunged into the wheat and cotton markets. What happened then? The money kings began to force the market down. The officials of the bureau held a pretty stiff upper lip, so to speak, for a while and paid a good deal more for cotton than the money kings paid. But finally fell in line with the money kings and were governed by the money kings' price and went down as the money kings went down, and the bureau finally quit the market with a large supply of wheat and cotton on their hands.

And the farmers' products continued to decline in price; and today the farmers' products are bringing about one-third as much as they were when the present Republican administration organized their farm bureau for the purpose of carrying out their pledge that the farmers must have relief.

The present administration, the only power the people have to look to for protection, has let the money kings destroy banks by the thousands, and the greatest calamity to more than half of the people of the United States that has ever been known. Millions of poor farmers and laborers right here in a land of plenty. Yes, the producers of this bountiful plenty for all, are in destitute condition, and suffering for want of food, clothing and money to pay their taxes and mortgages.

Isn't it a fact that the present administration has made no attempt to check these money kings, but has suffered the money kings to bridle the farmers and laborers, and lead them to poverty and destruction?

Dear old farmer and laborer, if any political feather-legged coward tells you that the present administration has nothing to do with the present tragic conditions, don't you believe him.

Mr. Voter, let me call your attention to just one thing that ought to convince anyone that the present administration is not competent to run the affairs of the farmers and laborers.

Here it is: We have all over this country county farm demonstrators, whose business is to look after the farmers welfare and teach him how to produce abundantly. That the farmers has done as we all know. What did the administration say about the farmers making so much stuff. Did he say, Mr. Farmer, you have overdone the thing. You have made too much cotton. The only remedy I see is for you to plow under every third row of your cotton.

The taxpayers of this great nation are paying one organization to teach us farmers how to make lots of cotton, and another organization to tell us that we made too much cotton and that we should destroy every third row. Fine Business.

Now, Mr. Voter, are we going to vote to continue the present administration? I will not. I feel if I did I would be committing a tragedy against my fellow man.

A good Republican said, "No, I won't vote for Hoover, but I may vote the Republican county ticket."

Now, Mr. Voter, what is the difference in voting for Mr. Hoover, and voting for a man that votes for Mr. Hoover? In other words if I am a horse thief and you indorse me, how much better are you than me?

Dear Voter, in the name of high heaven and in the name of suffering humanity, don't vote to continue the present administration. You had better stay at home or go fishing on election day. It is not my purpose to tell anyone how to vote. But I am not ashamed to tell how I will vote if permitted to go to the polls next November. The only way I can see to vote against the Republicans is to vote the Democratic ticket from A to Z, and that I expect to do.

In conclusion I want to say to my Republican friends, if you read any more of my "hot air" articles you will have to manage to get a Chilton County News, as the Editor of The Union-Banner says he is politically through with me.

A. A. JACKSON.
Yours very truly,

MAN KILLED IN DISPUTE OVER YOUNG CHILD

"Bill" Franklin Is Victim; Ernest Garner Placed In Jail Here

An incident that shocked Clanton and surroundings happened last Saturday about noon, when Ernest Garner was alleged to have slain William Anderson (Bill) Franklin, age 51.

According to reports given the News, Garner went to Franklin's home, about two miles east of Clanton, and started a quarrel with Franklin in regard to a young child of Garner's, who had been adopted by Franklin and his wife, when the child was about a year old.

Garner is said to have been under the influence of liquor, and the quarrel led into a fight. Franklin's neck is said to have been broken. The sheriff's office was notified and officers went to the scene, finding Garner in the yard of the Franklin place. He submitted to arrest and was brought to Clanton where he was still in jail at the time of writing, awaiting a preliminary hearing or the action of the grand jury.

Franklin was held in high esteem by all who knew him, and had the reputation of being a law-abiding citizen at all times, devoted to his family, church and his work. He is a brother of Joe W. Franklin, prominent resident of Clanton.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock at Walnut Creek, with the Rev. M. J. Parrish officiating. Interment followed in the Walnut Creek cemetery, with Spigener Funeral Home in charge. Pallbearers were Walter Teel, Steve Baker, John Farley, Allen Gore, John Gore, and Miller.

Franklin is survived by his widow, an adopted child, three brothers, J. W., of Clanton, J. E., and John. Four sisters, Mrs. Mary Trite, Mrs. J. A. Baker, Mrs. J. B. Coe and Mrs. Lillie Weldon.

ISABELLA HIGH WILL HAVE NEW SCHOOL HEAD

Prof. J. D. Griffin Ends Nine Years As Principal Of Isabella School

The Isabella High School will have a new principal beginning the next school term, according to an announcement made last week. This change takes place following a nine-year period of service as principal of the Isabella school by Prof. J. D. Griffin.

Prof. Griffin will go to Billingsley, to assume duties as principal of the Billingsley High School, succeeding Ralph Upton. He stated that he will move his family there, sometime in the future.

Prof. Griffin and his splendid family have resided in the progressive Isabella community for a number of years. He is considered as one of the most progressive and God-fearing citizens of that section of the county, and has shown his ability as a leader. His willingness to cooperate with his fellow-workers at all times in all worthwhile movements stands out, and he and his family will be missed, when he goes to Billingsley to take up his new place.

When Prof. Griffin assumed the principalship of the Isabella school there were only four rooms, and as many teachers. During his administration there has been added such departments as vocational agriculture and home economics, and the school building has been enlarged to a ten-room structure, with additional vocational building. The school has progressed, that is no doubt, but all this does not go to Prof. Griffin. However, it was his untiring efforts with the cooperation of residents of Isabella that put it across.

Chilton County loses a good man and a splendid family, when the Griffin family moves to Billingsley.

G. G. Williams, who is well known throughout Chilton County, will succeed Prof. Griffin as principal of the Isabella school. Prof. Williams is well liked by all who know him, and is well qualified.

SECOND TERM OF SUMMER SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY

The second term of the Summer School being conducted at the Chilton County High School, will begin next Monday morning, July 11th, according to Prof. L. C. Warr, who is conducting the school.

Prof. Warr stated that one unit of old work may be taken or, a student may take two one-half units of new work. The first term of the summer school has just closed.

BAKERY WILL OPEN HERE IN NEAR FUTURE

Establishment To Be Located In Building Next To Postoffice

An announcement that will no doubt be received with a great deal of satisfaction here, is that Clanton is soon to have a bakery, where fresh bread, hot cakes, rolls, buns and other good things to eat can be had every day.

Workmen have been busy getting the building ready for the new business in Clanton, and indications are that it is going to be a real bakery out and out. It will be located in the building next door to the postoffice, east. The new establishment will be known as the Sunlight Baking Company.

Operators of this bakery are W. J. Snow and R. S. Lynch of Meridian, Miss., who are already here getting things in shape for their opening, which will be announced later. They will have as their baker A. D. Owen, of Meridian, also. Mr. Owen has had 16 years experience in this business and comes well recommended.

New equipment will be installed in the next few days, Mr. Snow stated, and they will make their formal opening announcement in about a week. Clanton welcomes these business men to its midst, and hopes for them much success.

MELL MARTIN ENTERTAINS KIWANIANS ON OUTING

Members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club were treated to a real treat when J. Mell Martin entertained the club at his attractive camp on the Coosa River last night.

This outing takes the place of the regular weekly luncheon of the club on Thursdays, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Business and pleasure were combined in the open last night by the club, and Mr. Martin received thanks for a very pleasant time.

Interest Is Focused On Big County Picnic

Since the announcement last week by C. E. Stapp, county agent, of the big county-wide picnic to be held on Friday, July 22, all interest seems to have focused on that occasion, as it is being talked the county over.

This picnic to which everyone is invited will be held in Popwell's Woods, south of Clanton. The program has been arranged, including some splendid speakers, real interesting contests, community singing, fiddlers convention, and other things. The full program was published in last week's paper, and will be published again. Don't forget this big day. Make your plans to be there.

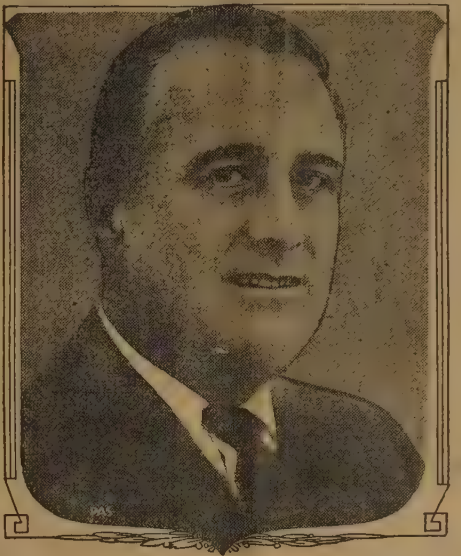
Home Coming For Samaria Church Sun.

There will be a home-coming of the Samaria Baptist Church Sunday week, July 17th, at eleven o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all members, former members and friends to be with us. Revival services begin that day and will continue through the week. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones, will be assisted by Rev. I. W. Myers of Cullman. Rev. Myers is a consecrated hard worker and a good preacher. You will like him and especially his message.

NOTICE

There will be an all-day working on the cemetery at Pleasant Grove M. P. Church Friday, July 15. All parties interested are requested to come.

DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT



The Governor of New York was born in the house in which he still lives, at Hyde Park, Dutchess County, New York, on Jan. 30, 1882. He is a graduate of Harvard and Columbia Law School. He married his distant cousin, Anna Roosevelt, daughter of President Roosevelt's brother, in 1905; they have five children. He served in the New York legislature, was assistant secretary of the Navy under President Wilson, Democratic nominee for Vice-President in 1920, and was first elected Governor of New York in 1929, re-elected in 1931.

C. R. Foss Is Candidate For Co. Board Member

Has Brilliant And Active Life; Urged By Friends To Seek Place On The County School Board, And Is Well Qualified

The announcement to the effect that C. R. (Reuben) Foss of Thorsby has been nominated as a candidate on the Democratic ticket for place as member of the Board of Education of Chilton County, will be received throughout this county with a great deal of interest and satisfaction.

There was a vacancy on the Democratic ballot for this place and friends of Mr. Foss urged him to accept the nomination by the Democratic Executive Committee of the county.

Mr. Foss is extremely well qualified to fill a place as a member of the county Board of Education. That statement being based on the past and present life of this well known man. He has been a resident of Thorsby practically all his life, coming there with his people when he was 13 years of age.

He is a graduate of the Thorsby Institute, and went through college, receiving an A. B. degree. He later was connected with a large newspaper as an editor for sometime. Mr. Foss has taught in the public school of Thorsby as principal for two terms, and also taught for a short term in the Thorsby Institute, as well as serving as a member of the Board of Directors of that splendid institution for sometime, giving him many qualifications in the educational line.

Later on Mr. Foss entered the hardware business in Thorsby, remaining more or less connected with the well known Thorsby Hardware Co., for a number of years as a partner. He has served as a member of the city council of the Town of Thorsby.

Mr. Foss has gradually worked himself up to the top, and his business ability is recognized over the county. He came to Clanton, where he was connected with the Peoples Savings Bank for awhile, and when the Bank of Thorsby was established, he immediately became cashier of that fine old institution, serving for a number of years.

He later became cashier of the Peoples Bank, of Jemison. At present, Mr. Foss is employed as manager of the famous Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association, an organization of over 200 members. This office was elective by the association, and Mr. Foss was chosen for his ability to conduct large organizations. At one time he was treasurer of the association, when the membership was small.

He is now also serving his second term as a member of the Thorsby Public school board, and is an upright citizen in every respect, with unquestionable character. Mr. Foss is married and has three fine girls and three fine boys.

The name of Mr. Foss will appear on the Democratic ticket in Chilton County with the other well qualified candidates for the various offices to be filled in the general election in November.

A VERY INTERESTING TRIP

Those who went on the "Tour For Values" around Clanton the past week, report a most interesting trip, and a saving of several dollars. The merchants who are giving this "tour" have also reported that the visits they received were pleasant and many.

The "Tour For Values" continues in the News this week. Get aboard, when you come to Clanton and look up these bargains that are listed in that advertisement headed "Tour For Values" in this issue.

Every merchant on this ad states that the items they list are real bargains and no strings tied to them. Follow these trips around Clanton each week, watch this space elsewhere in the News and take advantage of the special items these merchants are offering. Last week these merchants reported that many people certainly must have read that ad, due to the calls they had for the items advertised.

Sallie Irby, negro woman, was carried to Mt. Vernon last Monday morning, by officers from the sheriff's office.

Mrs. Annie Cannon of Tuscaloosa is spending several days with Mrs. Mamie Smith and family.

THREE CENTS ON EACH LETTER MAILED BEGINS

Yesterday opened the 3-cent stamp use in the United States. Hereafter, until further notice, you must put three cents postage on all letters mailed.

All postmasters are anxious that the people remember this, and avoid trouble and loss of time in the mails. If proper postage is not placed on the letters, they will be returned to the sender, if known, or otherwise the receiver will have to pay the extra postage.

CLANTON SEES QUIETEST 4TH IN SOME TIME

No Serious Accidents Are Reported Over The County During Holiday

Perhaps the quietest Fourth of July Clanton has witnessed in many years passed Monday.

There was no large crowd gathering at the high school, there were no automobiles driving back and forth, except on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway, and traffic was noticeably heavy there.

Not even was a fire cracker heard in Clanton on this holiday, and while ambulances stood in readiness to answer any emergency call, the drivers were allowed a perfect day of rest and quietude.

The soda fountains were not rushed as they have been in years past, when Clanton was the center of all attractions in Chilton County on July 4th. When hundreds of men, women and children laid aside their work to "go to Clanton."

It was more like Sunday than the 4th day of July. Truly, Clanton had a very quiet Fourth.

J. H. Jackson, Democratic candidate for Commissioner, was in Clanton Monday attending to business matters.

JOE CALLOWAY IS NOW A REGISTERED PHARMACIST

Joe Calloway, proprietor of the Calloway Drug Co., was officially advised this week to the effect that he had passed all requirements of the State Board and has received his certificate showing that he is a registered pharmacist, and authorized to fill prescriptions brought to his drug store.

Dr. Calloway was in Birmingham Tuesday purchasing a full stock of medicines and drugs for his drug store here.

Masonic Conference At Maplesville Soon

Announcement was made last week by H. A. Harris, secretary, that the 20th Annual Session of the Chilton County Masonic Conference will be held with Maplesville Lodge, Wednesday and Thursday, July 13th and 14th.

All lodges composing the conference are urged to be represented and all Masons are invited to attend this conference.

BURGLAR CAUGHT AT HOME OF JOHN PARRISH SUNDAY

A burglar, in the act of leaving the home of John Parrish, east of Clanton, was caught last Sunday, after Mr. Parrish had been told that someone was believed to be in his house.

The Parrish family had gone to church and the intruder, giving his name as Carl Reaves, age 28, took advantage of their absence, but was not quick enough. Several articles were found on his person, it was stated, and identified as belonging to Mr. Parrish. Reaves, who stated he was from Collinsville, was brought to Clanton by officers and placed in jail.

BEN MARGOLIS TAKING TRIP INTO OHIO AND OTHER POINTS

Ben Margolis, proprietor of the popular Sample Shoe Store, left Monday morning for a two weeks trip through Ohio, stopping for several days in Cincinnati, and other points. Alex Margolis will be in charge of the Sample Shoe Store during the absence of the former Mr. Margolis.

COUNTY PLANS HARD SURFACE ROAD BUILDING

First To Be Done In County, Plans Are To Start In Near Future

Chilton County plans to spend approximately $4,000.00 on hard surface road building in the very near future, according to action of the Commissioners Court last Friday.

The road to receive this hard surface (asphalt) is the road leading to Lay Dam. It is planned to start at the city limits, just beyond Gore's Bridge and surface the road for two miles, at an approximate estimate of $2,000 per mile. That figure quoted provided the county can furnish enough gravel in nearby localities, it was stated

Bids will be advertised for [illegible] it was stated, and it is planned to use all local help possible. The Commissioners Court also reserves the right with the contractor to put hard surface on three more miles on the same road, provided the surface on the first two miles is satisfactory.

If the entire five miles or more is surfaced, it will mean an expenditure of approximately $10,000 on the one road. It was also stated that the work is expected to begin as soon as possible. Members of the Commissioners Court who voted against the project were Cobb and Mims. Vinson and Burnett and Judge Reynolds voted in favor of the road.

SHILOH CEMETERY

All who are interested in the cemetery at this place are asked to meet there Thursday, July 14, and bring tools for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery and church grounds

Mrs. J. W. McEathern and son, Demar, returned Monday from Columbus, Ga., where they had been visiting her father.

UNITY-CHILTON INSTITUTE WILL CLOSE TODAY

Institute Is Attended By A Large Number During Three-Day Run

The Unity-Chilton Institute which is in session at the Clanton Baptist church, comes to a close today, according to the program. Today, Dr. Sampey, Mr. and Mrs. Duggar, will conduct a most interesting part of the program on South America. Mrs. A. Y. Napier, missionary from China will be soloist. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this program at the Baptist church in Clanton.

The committee arranging the program were very fortunate and make this institute a most successful one by having such distinguished speakers and teachers present, including missionaries from foreign countries.

The Institute opened Tuesday morning at ten o'clock when Dr. H. G. Williams conducted the Bible study. Others taking part on the program were Mrs. H. G. Williams, Miss Wilma Bucy, Mrs. A. C. Duggar, Rev. A. C. Duggar, Rev. Colis Cinningham, Miss Mary Ellis, Dr. J. R. Sampey, Dr. L. L. Barton, Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Rev. Fred Pearson, and Mrs. A. Y. Napier. The gathering was extremely well attended each [illegible]

"UNION DEPOT" IS COMING TO LOCAL THEATRE SOON

A picture truly out-of-the-ordinary is scheduled to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton next Friday and Saturday. This picture is "Union Depot" with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Joan Blondell taking the leading parts.

"Union Depot" is rated as a real big picture. The advertisements say "Renew all the thrills you've ever known. See the parts of life you have missed." The week's program appears in this issue of the News.

"SIX CYLINDERS NO MORE—NO LESS," says America

Anything more and you sacrifice economy—anything less and you sacrifice smoothness. . . .

BUYERS everywhere ▬ comparing low-priced cars. Lifting hoods. Counting cylinders. And the result? An overwhelming verdict for the six, in preference to cars of fewer or more cylinders.

"SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!" And America backs up that conviction by purchasing more six-cylinder Chevrolets since January 1st, than the combined total of all fours and all eights under $1000.

With more than six cylinders, you sacrifice Chevrolet's famous economy of gas, oil and upkeep—the greatest economy in today's motor car market. With less than six cylinders, you sacrifice the built-in smoothness that makes driving really restful and enjoyable.

But with a six—a Chevrolet Six—nothing is sacrificed.. You get smoothness and economy.

And power, 60 horsepower. And speed—65 to 70 miles an hour, easily! And pick-up—from a standstill to 35 miles an hour in less than 7 seconds! You also get Free Wheeling; Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting; big, spacious Fisher bodies.

So, when buying a new low-priced car, settle the question of cylinders RIGHT, and you can't go WRONG. Take America's word for it: "SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!"

MONROE RAMSEY

Maplesville community was saddened again Wednesday night, June 29, at nine o'clock by the death of our friend, Mr. Monroe Ramsey, 84 years of age, husband of Mrs. Annie E. Ramsey, whom God called home May 24th. He had been in bad health for several weeks, but confined to his bed only three weeks. He was born December 31, 1847, has been a member of Mt. Carmel Baptist church for 60 years. He will not only be missed by his family, but by his friends and neighbors too, for he was always ready to lend a helping hand to anyone in need.

He leaves to mourn his death, three daughters, Mrs. C. C. Cobern, Mrs. M. O. Perry of Maplesville, Mrs. T. A. Wright of Linden. One son, James Monroe, of Selma. Three brothers, Wiley, Sim, of Clanton, and Jopp of Selma. Seven grandchildren, one great-grandchild, and a host of friends.

We know there are two places in their home which can never be filled. They can not come back to us, but we can live a life where we can go to them, where there will be no sorrow or pains overe there, but a life of gladness and rejoicing.

Pallbearers: David Vines, Emmett Shanks, Bob Edmonson, Jake Wallace, S. D. McCrary and Zettie Hambrick.

Services were held at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the Maplesville Baptist church. Dr. Ezell of the Baptist church of Clanton officiated. Interment was made in the Maplesville cemetery, arrangements by Brislin Brothers of Selma.

FEDERAL AID FALLACY

There is no doubt that the financial plight in which many states find themselves has been caused largely by the making of appropriations to match Federal aid for road building. While the building of roads is a highly commendable proceeding, the fact is that the states have bankrupted themselves by going too fast, spurred by the temptation of Federal aid.

Since 1917 the United States government has appropriated approximately a billion and a quarter dollars for highways, requiring the states to appropriate a like amount in order to receive their proportion of Federal funds.

The states have eagerly swallowed this bait, apparently looking upon the Federal money as a gift from heaven. But, as every sensible person might have readily seen, these Federal sums had to come from the pockets of the public, just as the state funds do.

In other words, the government says: Uncle Sam will tax you a billion dollars for roads, provided you allow your state governments to tax you another billion. And the pork barrel politicians tell you how generous Uncle Sam is—with your own money.

Of course, if Uncle Sam is going to tax the state for their pro rata of the Federal highway fund anyway, each state government feels that it must impose a tax on its own people to meet it, or lose its proportion of the Federal levy.

Thus a sort of vicious circle is created, from which the states can hardly escape. For if any state does not match the Federal aid offered, it must still pay its proportion of the Federal tax, and see it go to states which do. By this system a club is placed in the hands of the Federal government with which to virtually force each state to match government funds, whether it can afford to do so or not.

In practice, so-called Federal aid is merely a bureaucratic scheme for coercing the states into bankruptcy, to keep the Federal government in its similar condition.

Although the Hawley-Smoot tariff law which was enacted early in the administration of President Hoover raised the duties on 665 products the present indications are that customs receipts for this year will be only a little more than one-half of what they were before this measure was enacted. The drop is due to the low level to which American foreign trade has declined.

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1932

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 5 lynchings in the first six months of 1932. This number is the same as the number 5 for the first six months of 1931. In 1922, that is ten years ago, there were 30 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1932 there were 13 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 2 were in Northern and Western States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 4 other instances force was used to repeal the would be lynchers; thus a total of 18 persons, 5 whites and 13 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 3 were negro. The offense charged were attempted rape, 1; murder, 1; threatening men, 1; dynmiting a store, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Florida, 1; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 1; Ohio, 1; Texas, 1.

Juniors' Column

Do you know how Thomas A. Edison was able to learn telegraphy? He was very anxious to learn, but had not had an opportunity. One day he saw a little child playing on the railroad track. A train was coming rapidly down the track. He rushed to the child and pulled it off the track just as the train rushed by. The child's father was the station master. He was so gratful he asked Edison to stay with him and learn telegraphy.

In 1863 near Gadsden, Alabama, the Confederate soldiers, under General Forrest, were chasing the Federal soldiers, who were retreating. The Federal soldiers burned a bridge hoping to delay General Forrest long enough to allow them to escape. General Forrest however, came on before the bridge was all burned. He met Mrs. Sansom and her daughter, Emma, and stopped to ask them where he could cross the creek. The daughter went with him to show him the crossing. Soon the shots and shells were flying around them. When they arrived at the crossing, the Federals began to fire upon them. Some bullets went through her skirts and she exclaimed, "They have wounded only my dress," and she waved her bonnet at the Federals. They cheered her and quit firing until she could get out of the way.

One More Courage Story

The boy Daniel, had courage.

He was carried captive from his home in Judah to Babylon to the King's palace along with some other boys to be trained for the King's service. When he saw that the king expected him to eat rich, heavy food and drink wine, he objected. He knew that he could not develop a strong body and a clear mind on that. Though he was only a boy and his master was a king, he asked for plain simple food and water. He finally received what he asked for and grew strong and wise.

Later the King had an image—or an idol—made and said that everyone must fall down and worship it. He said that anyone that would not do so would be cast into a furnace of fire. Daniel and his friends remembered that the Lord had commanded: Thou shalt have no other Gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven imtge—Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them". Daniel and his friends did not fall down and worship the King's image, and so they were reported to the king. He commanded them to obey but again they did not worship his image. They were cast into the furnace of fire, but when you read Daniel 3 you will see that none were burned except the strong men who threw them into the furnace.

Again Daniel showed his courage when men who were jealous of him (and knew that his habit was to kneel and pray to his God three times a day) persuaded the King to make a decree or law, that no one in his kingdom should ask anything of any God or man except the king for thirty days. All who disobeyed should be thrown into the den of lions.

Daniel did not deny himself the joy and comfort of daily study and prayer, but worshipped God as he had been doing. Neither did he hide to do it. His enemies watched him and reported to the King, causing him to be thrown into the lions den. What happened to him then? Read Daniel 6.

Courage enables one to do valiant deeds in spite of fear or danger.

Clanton Methodist Church

D. W. Haskew, Pastor

It takes grit and grace to get up on Monday morning after a Sabbath like July the 3rd. and with a sweet spirit invite folks to church. If you were a pastor and loved the church that you were serving your heart would be broken if you should have to administer to 49 at Sunday school, 56 at 11 a.m. and 29 at night. No complaint is to be made against those who were present. In spite of the indifference so manifest I am at my weekly (and I might spell that word "Weakly") job of inviting you to church next Sunday.

We want to serve you with the Word of God at 9:45 in one of our Sunday school classes. We would be happy to break of the Bread of Life to you at 11 a.m. and at 8 p.m.

When you get up Sunday morning the devil votes for you to skip church that day and God votes for you to go. If you vote with God you go, if you vote with the devil you stay away. Next Sunday you have another ballot. Be careful how you vote.

What The New Taxes Mean

A recent Associated Press dispatch from Washington gave an interesting insight into what the new revenue bill will mean to the wage earner.

A married business man with one child, having a net income of $6,000, will pay an income tax to the Federal government of $124 as against $23.63 in the past. If he buys a $600 automobile he will have to pay a new tax of $18 plus 60 cents for taxes on tires, etc. If he uses 700 gallons of gasoline during the year and 30 gallons of lubricating oil, he will pay a tax of $8.20, in addition to state gas and oil taxes. If his wife gets a $200 fur coat the tax will be $20.

If he makes home brew he will pay about $3 in taxes on malt. His wife's perfumes, powder, etc., will cost another $3. If he buys a $75 radio and pays $100 for an electric refrigerator, the taxes will be $3.75 and $5, respectively. He will pay increased taxes on cameras, electricity, matches, the telephone and a hundred other commodities and services. If he spends $2 a week for shows and movies, the Treasury will get $10 from him by the end of the year.

His total direct taxes will be about $310, as against about $174 under the old rates—an increase of $236.

It looks as if the new bill will fatten a depleted Treasury—but it's going to make a deep hole in the public pocketbook. And these taxes are only a beginning unless definite steps are taken to curb the expense of government, the cost of which increases like compound interest as the number of public employes grows.

Republicans Straddle Prohibition

It was not to be expected that there would be any forthright declaration upon any controversial issue within the party from a Republican National Convention made up largely of officeholders in the Hoover Administration, including six Cabinet members. It could be taken for granted in advance that these delegates, together with those who were looking for administraion favors, would willingly do the bidding of the Administration strategists in charge of Mr. Hoover's campaign to retain the Presidency. Naturally they would have as a model of ambiguity Mr. Hoover himself. Therefore the prohibition plank in the national platform adopted by that convention is susceptible of various interpretations, as verified by the conflicting comments thereon by individuals and the press.

During all the controversy that has been carried on with respect to this question no one has been able to state with exactness the attitude of President Hoover. What utterances he has made upon the subject are as vague or as confusing as some of his messages to Congress, which baffled the interpretation of even the Administration spokesmen. And now, his own party, in a national convention controlled by his own officeholders and would-be officeholders is committed to the same ambiguity and evasiveness on one of the most highly controversial questions before the public.

The Republican platform declaration on prohibition is most commonly characterized as a "straddle," an effort, in common with parlance, "to work both sides of the street." Some comments of the press indicate not only its ambiguous character, but also the design in purposely making it so.

The Rutland (Vt.) Herald (Ind. Rep.), for instance, declares it "was written with the view of satisfying both sides of the controversy and, as inevitably follows such an effort, it must fail to satisfy either." The Spokane Spokesman-Review, on the other hand, paradoxically asserts that "it will be generally satisfactory to wet and dry Republicans." A third view is that of the Buffalo Evening News (Ind. Rep.) that "much depends upon the way the plank is interpreted." Still another point is that of the Akron (O.) Beacon Journal which characterizes it as "pompous but empty words, strung out into nebulous phrases."

The Democratic press generally condemns it as "obscure," "sidestepping" and "a straddle." The New York Sun (Ind.) adds to these phrases "a pitiful example of ducking and dodging," and says the plank "is described as having been drawn by 'friends of the President.' His enemies could have written nothing more damaging."

The framers of this plank could not have chosen a more inopportune time for an exhibition of "ducking and dodging," "sidestepping" and "pussyfooting." There is abundant evidence that the public has been thoroughly "fed up" on such arts and practices during the Hoover Administration. The masses of the people still have fresh in mind the long list of misleoding statements made by officials of the Hoover Administration greatly minimizing the amount of unemployment in the earlier stages of the Hoover panic. They still remember the dose of soothing syrup administered by the President himself concerning the depression, that it would all be over within sixty days. They can recall the estimates of surpluses that resulted only in deficits, and the various sets of figures offered by the Treasury when Congress was attempting to balance the budget.

But the people are no longer deceived by Hooverian Pollyannaisms or a convention platform declaration that is intended to mean one thing to one person and something else to another.

Unless all signs are wrong they want forthright declarations from their public men and political parties that say something and mean what they say and are susceptible of but one interpretation.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

"The world is a looking glass, and gives back to every man the reflection of his own face. Frown at it, and it in turn will look sourly upon you: laugh at it and with it, and it is a jolly kind companion."—Wm. Makepeace Thacheray.

* * *

It's raining again this afternoon while I'm writing this column. You know, I've just about had enough of this rain for awhile anyway. I got wet yesterday and again today. The damp weather makes my corns hurt, and my head itch. In fact, when the weather is too damp, it makes me hurt all over.

* * *

But I shouldn't complain. Every time it rains, the weather gets cool and pleasant, and the nights are fine for sleeping. Some of these days I'm going to find me a job where they got an electric cooling system, serve lemonade, cold drinks and sandwiches to their workers. Boy, that would be great wouldn't it.

* * *

Well, now that Franklin Roosevelt has been nominated on the Democratic ticket for President, we might have those things. However, personally I don't think so because the Democrats have learned a lesson about this promise making. Hoover and his bunch made so many promises they haven't figured out which one to fill first, and the time is drawing close for them to vacate, scram, vamoose, or something.

* * *

Speaking of our next President, the proper way to pronounce the name Roosevelt, is like this: "Rose" and not "Ruse". Say it like it was Rose-velt. Mr. Roosevelt said that that was right. Lots of folks say it Ruse-velt, but there ain't no ruse to it. It is the regular old fine Rose-velt, descendants of the famous Theodore Roosevelt.

* * *

Wonder what the Republicans are going to get up that's bad about him now. No doubt they'll try to hatch up something. But it'll have to be pretty good to change the people's minds.

* * *

Excuse me for getting off on politics. I don't like them, or it—whatever politics are or is.

* * *

Now folks, let's get down to Chilton County for awhile. Next November there is going to be a Democratic ticket at your service. On it will be the names of Franklin Roosevelt for President of the United States, and the Democratic candidates for county offices. Go down the list and see if you can find better men than these for the offices they want to hold? Now, the thing to do is this—ask for a Democratic ballot, with a rooster on it, make one cross mark, in the circle under the rooster. But as soon as you finish reading this column, find that full page account of the Democratic Convention, which is in this paper this week, read it and see for yourself.

* * *

There's one item in the Democratic platform that maybe misunderstood. It's the item about the repeal of the 18th Amendment. That doesn't mean that the Prohibition law will be done away with. It means that the liquor will be dispensed under government control, which is all right. There is just about as much liquor in the country now as before Prohibition, but what rotten stuff it is. What this country needs is some good liquor, sold under government control. Folks are going to drink liquor, that has been shown, so why not give them liquor that won't hurt them so much?

* * *

Pardon me again for getting off on politics. And it had to rain on the Fourth of July. Whatta day, whatta day, and I'd had all this big time planned, to go places, see people and do things. Yes, I got wet trying it, too, just like a lot of other folks did.

* * *

See that Col. Raymond Smith is back from the Kiwanis Convention in Detroit. Haven't seen him to get a report of what he did and didn't do, but I sure would like to have been with him.

* * *

I understand that those merchants of Clanton who are on this "Tour For Values" business in the News are pleased with the results the first week. That "tour" goes on for this week too, and you better board the old bus, and take advantage of those bargains you see listed in that ad.

* * *

And, by the way, seriously speaking now—take a look at the ads in this issue of the News. Grocery ads, dry goods ads, automobile ads, and what have you. There are bargains and there is information in all these ads. It will pay you to sit down and study the prices. A merchant nowadays is not going to spend his money advertising unless he has something to offer you that is attractive. Read these ads, and come to Clanton to do your shopping.

* * *

Hats off again to the Pilot Club of Clanton. This group of business and professional ladies have selected a room at the Central Alabama Hospital, and are to furnish it in the best of style. It will be known as the Pilot Club room, and used for special patients, and members of the club, if any of them have to go to the hospital. I think it is nice of the hospital to let the club do this.

And confound it. Looks like somebody is always trying to stir up some unrest in our school system. It's a pity that some supposed broad-minded people can't cooperate and push things forward, instead of spreading gossip around that would injure someone. That cap can fit wherever it will.

What ho! Are we going to have a new bakery for Clanton? Looks that way, from appearances down near the post office. Now folks, if a bakery goes into business here, you should support it by always asking for Clanton baked bread. That is, if the bread is all right, and I have every reason to believe it wil lbe. Don't know anything definite about it yet.

* * *

Monday, the Fourth, seemed to have passed off very quietly in Clanton and round abouts. Didin't hear of any great accident, calamity, nor catastrophe happening on this Fourth. In fact, I didn't even hear a fire cracker pop.

No Tax Santa Claus

Uncle Sam, tax collector, is the very reverse of Santa Claus, for whom some deluded people have mistaken him, says the Oregonian. He does not spread bounty; he collects with relentless hand from all of us, from the cradle to the grave. WHAT EDITORS ARE SAYING

"Governor Roosevelt is a man of warm, humane sympathies, but not one to allow emotion to becloud his intellect. "Roosevelt, as every delegate anxious for a party victory will know, has an enormous popular following throughout the country. The leaders and the city bosses and the big business contingent may be hostile. But the people are for Roosevelt. And it is the people, in this year of grace and disgrace, who are going to do the voting and the electing. The delegates will be keenly aware of that. TAYLOR'S BARBECUE MONDAY

The Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company promoted a barbecue and entertainment on Monday, the 4th of July, at their camp on Lake Mitchell. As honor guests for the occasion they numbered about 150 of their friends, composed of prominent business men of Wetumpka, Centerville and Columbiana and others of their business associates and friends in Clanton and throughout Chilton County.

Among the out-of-town visitors were Mr. Leo Brewster, of Centerville, with a party of friends; Mr. J. R. Edwards, of Columbiana, and a number of friends; Mr. Rupert Ingram and Mr. A. A. Culver, of Wetumpka, with a party of friends, including Mr. John A. Lancaster, a prominent Wetumpka banker and business man; Mr. W. J. Billingsley, of Clanton.

Among the local people in attendance upon the occasion are mentioned Dr. J. P. Hayes, Sheriff Walter Gillespie, Dr. Hosea F. Downs, and Mrs. Downs, Rev. M. J. Parrish, Uncle Tom Taylor, father of the Taylor boys, Dr. L. D. Popwell, Jim Dupree, Dr. W. L. Parrish, Mr. L. F. Gerald, attorney of Clanton, Jesse Baker, G. M. Wyatt.

These, with many others of their family connections and friends, made a total of about 150 persons who greatly enjoyed the feast of barbecued kid, mutton and chicken, together with all the other fixings necessary for a hungry Fourth of July appetite.

A downpour of rain just at noontime considerably marred the pleasure of the guests; but everyone accepted it with good spirits and continued eating and having a good time in spite of the rain.

It was planned after noon to have a Fourth of July address by Hon. Lawrence F. Gerald, and a talk by Rev. M. J. Parrish. This had to be dispensed with on account of the inconvenience caused by the heavy rain.

Everything considered, however, the Taylor Grocery Company is fully deserving the thanks of their many friends for the splendid manner in which they carried out their entertainment. They went to much trouble to provide everything for the convenience of their guests. The only reward they hoped for was the satisfaction and enjoyment of their friends, and we feel sure they are amply repaid in that respect.

PILOTS PRAISE COURTESY OF ATLANTA HOTEL

When the representatives of the Pilot Club of Clanton went to Atlanta, to attend the International Pilot Convention recently, they decided to make their headquarters at the Robert Fulton Hotel.

Neither of them had stopped at this hotel before, but were attracted by the reasonable rates as advertised by the manager. On returning to Clanton, the Pilots were high in their praise of the Robert Fulton Hotel, in Atlanta. These ladies found the Robert Fulton a most convenient stopping place, and were amazed, so to speak, at the many conveniences to be had at this hostelry at such reasonable rates.

Their praise was not altogether for the conveniences, as the impression left with these ladies, of the courtesy of the employees of the Robert Fulton was most pleasing, judging from their comments. The Robert Fulton Hotel is located right in the business district of Atlanta, yet not too much so, to have guests disturbed.

The story of Fifi Dorsay's successful career as a talking picture star is similar in many respects to many thrillers of the sort that were popular before the screen found its voice.

Knowing the American weakness for anything French, especially when it is highly publicized, Miss Dorsay, who is co-starred with El Brendel in the Fox comedy, "Mr. Lemon Of Orange," coming to the Wadesonian Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, July 11 and 12, spent most of her small hoard of savings for excellent photographs.

Tucking them under her arm she visited one of the swankiest Fifth Avenue shops.

"I am just from Paris," she said. Her broken English made it sound authentic. "I should like a job modeling, please"

She displayed her photographs. She got a job. After a week she took the manager into her confidence.

"I am French, all right," she told him, "but not from Paris. I was born in Montreal and have spoken French all my life until recently."

"That's all right," the manager replied. "We like you for yourself. You are an excellent model."

With her eyes open for the big opportunity, Fifi took time off one day and secured a job as a chorus girl with a Gallagher and Shean show. She convinced the comedians that a French version of their famous song, as rendered by herself, would be a feature, so they let her try it. She was a sensation.

Then she was cast to play the French girl in Will Rogers' first talking picture "So This Is Paris," and scored a big hit in the film. She was awarded a long term Fox contract and subsequently appeared in such successes as "Hot For Paris," "Women Everywhere" and "On The Level."

After having extensive repairs done on his home recently purchased Dr. J. E. Edgar moved into it on the first of July. It is located next door to the Adventist church, and no doubt Dr. and Mrs. Edgar will make it one of the beauty spots of Clanton.

Watermelons made their appearance on the streets of Clanton June the 30th for the first time in 1932. They are now showing signs of a glutted market, but the sale is good.

Mr. Emmett (Happy) Conaway of Clanton spent Saturday night with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Conaway.

We are proud to say that our B. Y. P. U. has improved so much that we had to form another group. We are glad to have the older people with us. We start at seven o'clock and everyone is invited to come and be with us.

A few hours were enjoyed by everyone at a Lawn Party given by Winfred Suitte at her home Thursday night in honor of Miss Whilla Bee Suitte. The guests were Alton Peters, Ruby DeShazo, Van Williams, Lucile Gaydon, J. P. Poole, Baz Williams, Edmond Green, Elsie Conaway, Herman Lecroy, Whrilla Bee Suitte, Marvin Durbin, Mary Turner, O'Neal Turner, Winfred Suitte.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

Roosevelt and Garner Named by the Democrats

New York Governor Wins on Fourth Ballot in National Convention at Chicago—Platform Advocates Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment—Lively Scenes in Stadium.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Chicago.—Thousands of unterrified Democrats barged into this city by the lake; 945 of them nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for President; 1,154 of them selected John N. Garner of Texas for second place on the ticket; practically all who were delegates adopted a platform that included a plank declaring for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and for immediate legalization of beer and wine. Then they uproaringly greeted their Presidential nominee in the Chicago Stadium, and departed for their homes, confident of victory in November.

It took the delegates six full days to do the work of the national convention, and in the doing they put up as pretty a political fight as one could wish for. Several fights, in fact, enough to make a real battle. That was what the spectators wanted and expected, and what the Democrats always seem willing to supply. They enjoy it themselves as do the participants in the traditional Donnybrook Fair.

Why the "stop Roosevelt" effort failed was easily seen. In the first place the New York governor had obtained a running start by corraling a majority of the delegates, in many instances having had no opposition in state preference primaries. Then the anti-Roosevelt groups did not center their efforts on any one man. Finally, after three ballots had failed to bring Roosevelt the required two-thirds, his managers made a deal with the Garner forces that put him over on the fourth ballot with ease. The accretion of 44 California and 46 Texas votes made his band wagon irresistible for most of the other delegations that had been holding out.

Alfred E. Smith of New York, the standard bearer four years ago, was the only other aspirant who received any considerable vote, and his supporters nearly stood by him to the bitter end. He started with 201¾ votes and wound up with 190½ votes.

First Session Not Eventful.

Opening their proceedings with dignity that was tinged with buoyancy, the Democrats put on a show the first day that was so uneventful that the spectators might have thought the late Republican convention had reassembled. With considerable difficulty but infinite patience, Chairman John J. Raskob of the national committee managed to obtain order about one hour late. He then delivered a brief but pithy introductory address in the course of which he spoke satirically of the Republicans and took occasion to give unstinted praise to Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee, later a central figure in the most important test contest between the Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt forces. Mr. Raskob also paid high tribute to Charles Michaelson, probably the most astute and resourceful director of publicity that any political party in American has ever had.

Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, now came forward and delivered an impressive invocation which had the effect of humbling her hearers, for there was no slurring over of the faults and sins of the people.

Then, in a great glare of flood lights Mme. Rose Zulalian, an Armenian from Boston, sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," in full, rich voice and with dramatic gestures. The audience tried to join in, but as always rather feebly. The first stanza over, the accompanying band stopped and the crowd applauded, but Mme. Zulalian had a surprise. She knew the words of another stanza—which is more than most Americans know—so she went right ahead with them, and the band and its leader had a hard time catching up with her.

Cermak Does Some Keynoting.

Mayor Cermak being introduced made the customary welcoming speech on behalf of Chicago, and, being himself an eminent Democrat, he then continued with a miniature keynote speech all his own, earning a cheer when he declared: "The President who is to assume office next March has not yet been named." Yet louder cheers greeted this:

"The American people believe that we shall have more respect for the Constitution with the Eighteenth amendment out of it. . . . Let it be recorded in history that in this convention America was reborn."

As the mayor stepped back to his seat, there was a wild yell from the galleries, and the entire Massachusetts delegation arose to its feet cheering. All necks were craned in the effort to see what was causing the excitement. It was one Al Smith, smiling genially, making his way to his place in the New York delegation. With a little encouragement from him, the convention would have given him what is called a "demonstration." But he quietly seated himself between Mayor Jimmy Walker and John W. Davis.

To complete the preliminaries, the veteran Isadore Dockweiler, national committeeman from California, was introduced to read Thomas Jefferson's first inaugural address, a foundation stone of Democratic principles. He read it well, but many of those in the hall took advantage of the chance to get out into the lobbies and corridors to obtain a bite of luncheon. They might well have remained in their seats to hear such wisdom as this:

"With all these blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens—a wise and frugal government which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned."

Barkley Rakes the G. O. P.

More to the taste of the throng was the fiery keynote speech now delivered by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the temporary chairman. He talked full ten thousand words, but held his audience well and was frequently applauded. The Republican administration and the Republican platform were raked fore and aft and the nation was assured that its only hope of salvation lies in a Democratic victory at the polls next November—of which victory, according to the speaker, there could be no slightest doubt.

Chairman Barkley spoke for almost two hours, but thirteen minutes of this time were taken up by a genuine demonstration caused by his remarks on the prohibition question. Delegations raised their state standards and marched yelling through the aisles; bands were brought in from the corridors and blared popular "wet" airs with the pipe organist manfully assisting, and banners of favorite sons made their appearance. The occupants of all the balconies were on their feet throughout the demonstration, and their cheering was seemingly unanimous. If there were any drys in the crowd they were totally submerged for the time being.

So ended the first day, with no outward evidences of the hot fights that were going on in committee rooms and delegation headquarters. "Tomorrow we will see the battle open," said everyone. Consequently, when Chairman Barkley started proceedings Tuesday noon all seats were filled. The delegates and alternates were anxiously eager for the conflict and the spectators might have been as many men and women of ancient Rome avid for a gladiatorial combat in the Coliseum.

After a pessimistic prayer by Rt. Rev. Mgr. F. G. Ostrowski of Chicago and a sentimental song by Mrs. Howard Austin, the first fireworks were set off, the piece being the contest between Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana and his delegation, selected by the state central committee, and another bunch of delegates named by a state convention. Here was the first open demonstration of the operations of the Roosevelt steam-roller. The credentials committee, controlled by the Roosevelt forces, reported in favor of seating Long and his crowd, they being counted as for the New York governor. A minority report was read by W. Emery Lancaster of Illinois and ably upheld by him and several others.

"Kingfish" Didn't Bluster.

The chief debater on the majority side was Long himself, and the "Kingfish" furnished a great surprise. His antics in the senate and in committee rooms since his arrival in Chicago had led to the belief that he would be rampageous. Not so. He was, on the contrary, quite dignified and gave an exposition of his case that was impressive if not entirely convincing. Seemingly, to the unprejudiced hearer, he had the law and the regulations of the Democrats on his side, and whereas, when he stepped to the platform he was greeted by a storm of boos and catcalls, when he finished there was an equally loud salvo of cheers.

The roll call on this matter resulted in the adoption of the majority report, seating the Long delegation, by a vote of 638¾ to 514¼. It was the severest test of the Roosevelt strength during the day and was not unencouraging to his opponents since it showed some defections in delegations counted on to vote for his nomination. This was especially notable in the cases of North Carolina, Iowa and Illinois. On the other hand the Roosevelt forces made gains in Missouri and Connecticut that had not been anticipated.

There was another contest, in Minnesota, the decision in which meant much to the Roosevelt army. It, too, was decided as the credentials committee had ruled, and by a larger majority than in the Louisiana case, after a debate had been, in the wording of Chairman Barkley, "perpetrated."

Walsh Made Permanent Chairman.

For the third time the Roosevelt tactics were now put to the test, the committee on permanent organization reporting the selection of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana for permanent chairman, and a minority report recommending that the place be given to Jouett Shouse of Kansas, ally of the Raskob-Smith group, who had been picked tentatively last spring by the arrangements committee of the national committee. To the satisfaction of the party leaders, though perhaps not that of the blood-hungry gallery occupants, the debate developed no unpleasant personalities. The nearest to this came in the speech of Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke of Ohio, who participated in the selection of Shouse by the arrangements committee and who declared Franklin Roosevelt had given the choice his approval at that time. Aside from this it seemed the only argument was over the propriety of the sub-committee's action. Those who spoke on behalf of Shouse lavished their praise on Senator Walsh, and the advocates of Walsh were equally laudatory of Shouse's services to the party. The best speech was made by John W. Davis, the party's Presidential nominee eight years ago. He was witty, eloquent and suave, and while he insisted Shouse should be chairman, he had all kinds of nice things to say about the Montana senator, who presided over that New York convention of 1924. Chief orator on the Roosevelt side was Senator Clarence C. Dill of Washington, who was not quite so pleasing to the galleries, receiving once an outburst of boos and hisses.

The decision of the states was closer here than before. Senator Walsh was made permanent chairman by a vote of 626 to 528, and everyone stood and cheered as the veteran was escorted to the platform and given the gavel. The organist played "When it's Springtime in the Rockies" and the photographers leaped around like a lot of goats.

Back-Down by Roosevelt.

Throughout Tuesday the Roosevelt forces maintained their claims that the New York governor would be nominated on an early ballot, perhaps the first, but they made two significant surrenders. Even before the convention opened their manager, Farley, announced that they would undertake to have abrogated the century-old rule requiring a two-thirds vote for nomination, and being in control of the committees, he was sure this could be carried through. A storm of disapproval arose at once; and among those protesting were some of Roosevelt's most prominent supporters. To change the rules in the middle of the game would be disgracefully unfair, they argued, and furthermore, would be taken as a confession of weakness by the Rooseveltians. The governor was notified of the dangerous situation his managers were creating and promptly wired them not to try to have the rule abrogated. However, he included a suggestion that led his followers on the rules committee to slam through a rule providing for optional abrogation of the two-thirds rule after the sixth ballot. Again revolt broke out in Roosevelt delegations and this plan, also, was abandoned. Farley now informed the press that Roosevelt stood for the traditional procedure and the regular order of business.

The Roosevelt forces also backed down on their scheme to adopt the platform after the nomination of the ticket, the purpose of which was to allow the candidate to shape the platform and perhaps to hasten the nomination.

Wednesday afternoon's session was a washout so far as the transaction of business was concerned, for the committee on resolutions was still wrangling over the prohibition plank. So Chairman Walsh, after a prayer by Rev. Duncan H. Browne, turned the gavel over to Eddie Dowling, a stage comedian, and Eddie put on a very good impromptu vaudeville performance. The delegates and guests showed they enjoyed it immensely.

Came then the evening, full of tumult and oratory over the prohibition plank. Some 25,000 men and women were packed into the Stadium and many more thousands wailed outside when the doors were ordered closed. Mayor Cermak had been giving out vast quantities of "courtesy cards" and when it was discovered these had been counterfeited no more of them were honored. Many of those excluded from the hall held purchased tickets.

Repeal Versus Resubmission.

After the big guns had made their entries to appropriate tunes from the organ and the delegates had all found their seats, Chairman Walsh called on the tall, handsome former senator from Nebraska, Gilbert Hitchcock, to present the report of the committee on resolutions. Mr. Hitchcock said with pride that he was about to offer the shortest and clearest platform ever produced in a national convention, and it was just that. Though so concise that it scarcely requires summarizing, the main features of it are given in an adjoining column. Nearly every section was heartily applauded, but the throng was saving up its voices for the climax that came as the speaker uttered the portentous words:

"We advocate the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment."

Then bedlam broke loose. Bands blared, the great organ pealed, cowbells jingled, delegations marched shouting and singing through the aisles, state standards waving ahead of them, and in the packed balconies there did not seem to be a single person who wasn't screaming at the top of his lungs. Delaware, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Virginia delegates sat tight, keeping their standards in the sockets, but Texas was split and its liberals paraded with a banner of their own. The tumult lasted nearly 15 minutes, and Mr. Hitchcock then had a chance to finish reading the platform.

John N. Garner

Cordell Hull, senator from Tennessee, presented, to an accompaniment of boos, a minority report, a prohibition plank that recommends resubmission of the question to the states but does not declare the party in favor of repeal. Also, it omits the recommendation for immediate legalizing of beer and wines. Alfalfa Bill Murray and William G. McAdoo also offered minority reports on other topics, which didn't have a ghost of a chance.

At this point Chairman Walsh announced that the proceedings, between 7 and 9 o'clock, had not been broadcast to the country, and asked if the convention were willing to have the platform and proposed amendments read again. This idea was vetoed at once with a mighty roar of noes.

Wild Demonstration for Smith.

Two hours of debate on the wet plank followed, most of the speakers favoring the majority report, though the resubmissionists were not badly represented by such men as Senator Hull, T. A. Walters of Idaho and W. C. Fitts of Alabama. For the repealers came forward early in the debate Al Smith, and the demonstration that was made for him was extraordinarily spontaneous and noisy. For 15 minutes Al stood smiling and actually blushing, waiting for it to subside. If all the delegates who were standing and shouting their heads off had voted for Smith later he would have been nominated on the first ballot. His talk was humorous and snappy.

Governor Ritchie later took the platform to urge adoption of the majority plank, and his welcome was only a little less tumultuous than that accorded Smith.

On the roll call the moist resubmissionists were completely swamped. The repeal plank was adopted by a vote of 934¾ to 213¼.

The other minority reports were still to be acted upon, but it was past midnight and the overwrought delegates wanted to go to bed, so the convention adjourned.

Nominations and Hullabaloo.

Eager to get at the business of nominating, the convention on Thursday speedily adopted the platform as a whole, two minor changes having been made—home rule for Hawaii, and "continuous responsibility of government for human welfare, particularly the protection of children."

Nominations for President now were called for and, following the prearranged plan, Alabama yielded to John E. Mack of New York state, who offered the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt as a starter.

This chronicler has neither the space nor the inclination to quote at length from the speech of Mr. Mack or from any of the other nominating efforts. And a description in detail of each of the demonstrations would be tedious. It is almost enough to say that every candidate, including Governor Roosevelt, was skillfully and persuasively presented to the convention, and that most of them were plentifully seconded. Senator Tom Connally of Texas spoke for Garner and was followed by Gov. J. B. Ely of Massachusetts, whose eloquence in nominating Al Smith surpassed that of all the others. Ely even dared to allude to the religious prejudice that had contributed to Smith's defeat four years ago, and he also gave Roosevelt some shrewd jabs.

Recess until evening, and then the presentation in turn of the names of Harry F. Byrd of Virginia by Carter Glass, Melvin A. Traylor of Illinois by Michael Igoe of Chicago, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland by Senator Tydings, James A. Reed of Missouri by Samuel W. Fordyce, Gov. George White of Ohio by Atlee Pomerene, and Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma by Henry S. Johnston.

As for the demonstrations, those for Roosevelt and Garner were long, synthetic and rather tiresome, though the latter was enlivened by the cheer leader, Miss Malvina Passmore of Houston, vivacious, with a good singing voice and the prettiest set of arms in the Stadium. When Judge Mack gave forth the name of Al Smith, that doughty leader was accorded an ovation by the delegates, alternates and galleries that was a most extraordinary personal tribute. It lasted about one hour and the yelling and singing and marching were continuous, needing little stimulation by bands and organ. Colorful and enthusiastic, too, was the Ritchie demonstration, with singing girls and waving state figs. The others didn't amount to much until Alfalfa Bill Murray's show came, at the very close. It consisted mainly of about fifty lassies and a kiltie band, all wearing shakos and kilts of the Murray tartan, and of Will Rogers. The comedian had a lot of fun parading in a policeman's cap and trying to steal various state standards.

Three Futile Ballots.

By this time it was nearly 4:30 Friday morning, but the Roosevelt managers were determined to have at least one ballot before adjournment, so the call of the roll of states was begun to the cheers of the delegates and of the spectators, about a third of whom doggedly sat through the entire night. There was trouble over the Iowa vote, and more trouble over Minnesota's. A New York delegate demanded that his delegation be polled, which of course consumed a lot of time. Mayor Jimmy Walker was absent and his alternate voted for Smith, but a little later Walker appeared and asked permission to vote. This granted, he shouted "I vote for Alfred E. Smith," thus telling the world that he was against the governor who was soon to pass on his fitness to hold his office. It was a bold play and evoked loud cheers. District of Columbia's little bunch of six votes caused the chairman a lot of tribulation, but at last the call was finished, in one hour and forty minutes and amid great confusion. Missouri made a slight change in favor of Roosevelt, and the governor's managers were evidently hoping for more, for the announcement of the totals was so delayed by the chair that a New Yorker protested. As told earlier in this story, Roosevelt obtained 666¼ votes, or almost 104 less than the required two-thirds. A second ballot was ordered immediately, also indecisive although Roosevelt showed a gain of 11½ votes. There were various shifts that meant nothing especial. For instance, Murray gave his entire 22 to Will Rogers.

"Proceed with the third roll call," ordered Senator Walsh wearily, handed the gavel to Senator Barkely and retired for a bit of rest.

Again, on this third call, the available delegates refused to leap into the Roosevelt bandwagon in worthwhile numbers, the governor gaining only about 6½ votes over the second. His total was now 682.79, so far below the two-thirds that his manager, James A. Farley, admitted his disappointment. The convention adjourend at 9 o'clock until evening, and as the delegates staggered out of the Stadium, Farley and his associated generals hurried to the hotels to attempt some more trading on the basis of the vice presidency. They were plainly astounded by the firmness with which the stop-Roosevelt group had held its strength.

Fourth Ballot Ends the Struggle.

"The deal has been made and it's Roosevelt on the fourth ballot" was the word that passed through the press section as the evening session opened. When California was reached on the roll call Mr. McAdoo took the platform and his first words made it plain to all that California and Texas had taken their places on the band wagon. The Roosevelt delegates put on a long and noisy demonstration, but when McAdoo tried to resume his talk the galleries, faithful to Smith, silenced his voice with tremendous and continuous booing. Chairman Walsh couldn't quiet them, nor could Mayor Cermak who was called to the stand, but the tall Californian finally talked them into comparative quietude and completed his explanation of the Garner switch.

Then one after another all the delegations fell into line, except the dogged Smith adherents in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Rhode Island and some of those in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wisconsin. A dozen scattering votes were given to others, but the Roosevelt total was announced at 945, which was 175 more than enough. So Senator Walsh proclaimed him the nominee of the convention.

While Jim Reed made a political speech communication with Roosevelt was established and his telegram of thanks was read. In it he asked the convention to remain in session until he could arrive by plane Saturday afternoon as he wished to appear in the Stadium and there receive the formal notification. In consequence completion of the ticket was postponed until next day, when the deal that had been made was consummated and John N. Garner was nominated for vice president by acclamation.

Governor Roosevelt, resting a while after his flight, rode to the Stadium and was assisted to the speaker's rostrum. The crowd that packed the vast hall to its limits gave him a fine ovation and watched with interest the notification ceremony, that usually takes place in the candidate's home. It was a spectacular ending of an interesting national convention.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A funeral was being held in a country church and the preacher was telling one by one the character elements of the deceased. He was represented as a devoted husband, a loving father, a good citizen and a devout church member. Just before the preacher reached the climax in having the man in the casket to walk home with God, an unshaved man, clad in overalls, rose from his seat in the back of the church and deliberately stalked down the aisle toward the stand. The preacher thinking that he had left something unsaid that should have been spoken, paused in his oration and said to the man as he peered into the face of the dead, "Friend, is there anything special that you wanted to say?" "Naw," replied the man, "I decided from what you said that we were burying the wrong man and I wanted to see for myself." That fellow had lived as a neighbor to the man in the casket and he knew that the funeral oration contradicted the life of the one who was dead. A man's life is his funeral oration and it is so foolish for a preacher to contradict a life record. The safe plan is to let the dead speak for themselves. The language of the life is the only voice that should be heard in a funeral oration.

Two salaried men met at the cold drink stand and discussed together the way they spent their income. Tom asked of his pal, "Sam, how do you spend your salary?" "Well, let me see," said Sam. "I spend about 40 per cent for my car and gas to run it, I spend 25 per cent for cold drinks, cigarettes and sweets, then I spend 20 per cent for picture shows, ball games and golf, I spend 30 per cent for food and clothing and then I blow in about 20 per cent more." "You are crazy," replied Tom after having added up his expenditures. "You only get 100 per cent and here you have an expense of 135 per cent. How can you spend more than you get?" "That is the sadness of those who sell to me," replied Sam as he smiled over his brightness. That is the tragedy of these hard times. Like Sam we are spending more than we make. There is no relief in sight until we learn how to live within our income. Most young people are running on the theory that the world has an opening for them and when they try hard to find it they are heard to lament, "I am in a hole now."

A noble layman was standing on the steps of the church door talking to his pastor. The day had been hard and discouraging and pastor and official were with their backs to the wall. After a moment of silence the layman said, "Pastor, I am discouraged, you are discouraged, but there is nothing left for us to do but to keep on a keeping on." That layman was right. We are down below the valley now in every look of life. In every direction that we look there are walls and mountain peaks. There seems to be no help for the widow's son, but this is no time to lose heart. Our churches may be depleted, charity revenues may be cut off, society may be corrupt and politics may be rotten to the center, but still there was never a time when we needed more real men and women than today. For the next three years things are not going to be as we would have them, but we must be real men and women and "Keep on a keeping on."

Two negro men were sitting on a saw log waiting for the coming of the truck. They were handling weighty matters from the tip of their tongues. The Government came in for its share of philosophy. One remarked, "Dis government am mighty slack des days. It am turning its men loose like Texas mustangs. Why don't Uncle Sam take us up and feed us like he should " The other negro replied, "Dare you am, Mose, you be just like de odder trash, you think dat the government am due you a living. You better get dat out of your nuggin. De government am due you nothing but protection. If you wants to chew bread, you better get out and make it." The negro had the correct philosophy of life. It is alarming to see how many people today are possessed with the idea that the government owes them a living. They go to Washington in droves and camp there for weeks at a time clamoring for a "Hand Out" when they should be at home working for a living. There are thousands of vacant acres under the dominion of the stars and stripes that are calling for willing hands to turn the soil. Those blistering acres are ready to make bread for all if willing hands will work for a living.

I was pestered with a family of mice. They had no regard for my things. They made free use of their teeth and feet and in self defense I set a trap. On the trigger of the trap I placed an attractive bait. Along came a little mouse and he took the bait and my trap took the mouse. I baited again and another little mouse came along and took the bait and again my trap took the mouse. The simple little things kept taking my bait and my trap kept taking the mice until all the mice had been taken. It is an easy matter to understand the devil's methods. He baits his trap with an attractive bait, and along comes the one for whom it is set. He takes the bait and the trap takes the man. The devil baited his trap with gold and beautiful garments and Achan took the bait and the trap took Achan. The devil baits his trap with whiskey, you take the whiskey and the whiskey takes you. The devil's trap is baited with pleasure, you take the pleasure and the trap takes you.

IN MEMORY OF W.W. WILLIAMS

Mr. W. W. Williams (Uncle Will) as most of his friends knew him, died at his home Friday morning July 1. Uncle Will had only a short time to suffer. He became sick while in the field plowing, shortly after his son, J. D., got him to the house, the death angels came for him.

He had a wife and seven children, Morris, J. D., Eugene, Mrs. Ada Deason, Mrs. Everee Culver and Mrs. Beula Sims, six brothers, one sister and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his loss.

Yes, we mourn, but the angels of heaven rejoice because another has come home.

Why do we mourn departing relatives, or shake at death's alarms?
'Tis but the voice that Jesus sends to call them to His arms.
Are we not tending upward too, as fast as time can move?
Nor should we wish the hours more slow to keep us from our love.
Why should we trouble to convey their bodies to the tomb?
There once the flesh of Jesus lay and left a long perfume.
Thence he arose, ascending high and showed our feet the way
Up to the Lord, our flesh shall fly at the great rising day.
Then let the last loud trumpet sound and bid our kindred rise.
Awake, ye nations under-ground, ye saints, ascend the skies.

RUTH WILLIAMS.

Nations would need fewer arms if statesmen would keep their heads.

How Cardui Helps Women

"Mal-nutrition" means that your body is not getting enough to keep it up, so that what it has to do is not done well. You may not be eating enough to keep up the work of the body, or there may be something wrong that keeps you from getting full value from the food you eat.

Because of mal-nutrition, some women have aches and pains every month. Such pains should not be neglected.

Take Cardui to give you a better appetite, to give you more strength from the food you eat — to build up and increase your feeling of well-being. Aches and pains go away as you build up with the help of Cardui.

Mineral Springs Is Being Developed Into A Very Beautiful Place Known As "Havengreen"

Something like 25 or 30 years ago, persons suffering with rheumatism, or other ailments, throughout the state, know something of or had heard of Mineral Springs, in Chilton County. That was when there was a large sixteen room hotel, bath houses, pavilions and lunch stands, occupying the hills around this famous spring, know for the wonderful medicinal and curing qualities of its clear water.

Mineral Springs is located seven miles east of Jemison, Ala., in one of the most attractive mountain spots in the county, and only a short drive from Clanton.

Anyone visiting this spring now will find to their amazement, a modern building, furnished throughout so completely, that one would not be in want of comfort nor conveniences there. The grounds around the place are being cleared and other buildings are to be erected for the comfort and convenience of guests at this widely known spot.

The large building that now occupies a place near the spring is arranged for the care of fifteen to twenty guests, with bed rooms in modern style.

The spring has received a concrete housing of well arranged proportions, and the water is piped to the porch of the guest house, forming a fountain of continuously flowing, highly recommended water, rich in minerals.

The development of this is being done by W. T. Hand, prominent citizen of Chilton County, and resident of Jemison, Alabama. Mr. Hand states that although the place is ready for guests, there is still quite a bit of work to be done yet to add to the attractiveness of the spot. W. R. Blow is manager.

In addition to the new and modern buildings, Mineral Springs has received a new name of "Havengreen" and is being widely advertised as that. However, to those old timers who drank its purifying waters in years gone by, it will probably still be "Mineral Springs."

There seems to be quite a history to this spring that has been pouring forth its valuable water throughout the years. Hundreds are said to have been benefited by the water. A visit to Mineral Springs will reveal to one a spot of beauty, restfulness and nature's handiwork.

The best route from Clanton is out the Lay Dam road, just beyond Kilgore's Gap, turn to the left, following that road right to the spot.

County Agent.

A Successful Day At Coopers July Fourth

The day started off with a good attendance. Everyone came with the spirit of celebrating. A nice ball game led the morning activities with the Verbena Orchestra playing at intervals. Both were enjoyed by everyone present. Coopers played Prattville in the A. M. The score was 5 to 1 in favor of the former team. After the ball game was over the barbecue was sold for 25c per plate. While this was going on a rain scattered the crowd for a short time. But they came back with the determination to still have a good time. The first game of the afternoon was between Titus and Prattville with the latter winning 8 to 2. Coopers played the winning team and was defeated 5 to 0. All umpires made very good decisions. All teams showed good sporting blood to the red. Dinner was furnished to the Orchestra and visiting teams and also local team.

We want to thank everyone for the donations in any way both small and large. We feel that without these donations that this could not have been a success. Also the crowd for their nice orderly conduct. May we also thank the Verbena Orchestra for the "Peppy Music" that was rendered. The ones that worked in the stands deserve credit for their help.

The proceeds of this picnic were for the benefit of the Ball Club. This is only for the buying of equipment for the Club. We also want to thank everyone again for the cooperation and courtesy.

ALABAMA'S 24 STARTED FINAL VICTORY MARCH

Alabama's 24 votes went down line for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in his triumphant march to the Democratic nomination for president.

Rumors that at least three delegates were ready to desert the New York Governor's camp were floating about hotels and convention hall prior to the fourth ballot on which he was nominated but a poll showed all members still following his standard.

Several members of the delegation, including L. J. Bugg, Monroeville, and Judge Leon McCord, Montgomery, were in telephone conversation with Gov. Roosevelt this afternoon and assured him before the final ballot started, that Alabama would stand by him.

Numerous advocates of Newton D. Baker in Alabama wired members of the delegation urging them to switch to him and several said they might do so to prevent a deadlock. The New Yorker's overwhelming victory, however, precluded necessity for this step.

Ebenezer-Stanton

To the members of the Stanton Baptist Church and to those of the community, I am writing to remind you that our revival begins next Sunday, July 10. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the first Baptist Church, Clanton, will do the preaching. I just wish to say this about him: He is a man of God, full of the Holy Spirit, his heart full of love for the lost and for saints and thoroughly furnished in every good work. In one sense these words are useless as most of the people of Chilton County have long since learned to know and love him. You will miss a treat and a blessing if you do not hear every message he brings.

Now it has been raining much and you may be in the grass, but let me give you this advice: Get up early and work in the field till about nine or nine-thirty, then quit and get to church. Then in the afternoon you can go back and work about three hours and back to service at night. Anything else that you see you can do to help the meeting, I am sure you will do. Pray for the meeting and plan to do some personal work for the Master.

Dan. 12:3 says: "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and that that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." Christ won the majority of the disciples to himself through personal contact and expects us to use that method as well as preaching the Gospel.

Come to the meeting and invite your friends and let no excuse get in your way.

G. G. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

ROAD BUILDING PROJECT HITS BIG SNAG HERE

Meeting Called In Clanton Next Saturday For The Discussing Of Road

Indications are that the Commissioners Court of Chilton County has hit a snag in its project to pave a part of the Lay Dam road. A meeting has been called in Clanton concerning this, by several citizens of the county, who are objecting to the county spending the people's money on the road. Following is a petition signed by several citizens of the county:

Word having come to us that the Commissioners Court has voted to pave two miles of the road from the city limits of Clanton on the Lay Dam road, and feeling that this is a mistake, we protest such action and call on the citizens of Chilton County to meet at the Courthouse on Saturday, July 16, 1932, at 2:30 o'clock P. M. to discuss such action and to determine on a course of procedure.

We believe it improper to pave the two miles for the following reasons:

1. The State of Alabama has just about bankrupted itself in an effort to construct hard surfaced roads, having spent $50,000,000 besides the gas tax collected for the Counties, and spent by the counties, which amounts to about $50,000 annually for each County in the state.

2. Two miles of road will not benefit anyone except those who may own property adjoining the paved strip.

3. This is a time for retrenchment and a reduction of expenses and not a time to undertake such an expenditure of funds.

4. The cost of County government for the years past is sufficient grounds for believing that the County is not able to construct this permanent road, at the present time.

5. Permanent road building has passed the experimental stage. Thousands of miles of roads have been built in the last ten years and therefore we could not say that this would be an experiment. Millions of dollars have been spent by the State and Federal Government in this experiment and having bankrupt themselves, why should Chilton County bankrupt itself?

We hereby call on everybody interested to be present at a mass meeting next Saturday and show whether or not you are for the proposed project.

—W. G. Shaw, E. E. Mastin, B. M. Killingsworth, J. D. Harrell, P. M. Martin, Ed Y. Conaway, H. H. Armstrong, B. L. Cobb.

EQUIPMENT FOR BAKERY IS COMING IN

Local Support Is Seen For New Addition Here; To Open Soon

The equipment for the new bakery for Clanton is coming in each day, according to W. J. Snow, and R. S. Lynch, of Meridian, operators of this newest addition to Clanton business.

The bakery will be located on Main Street, next door to the post office and is to bear the firm name of Sunlight Baking Company. The building is in readiness and the baking equipment all of modern methods, is being installed.

This bakery has all the indications of being one of the most up-to-date bakeries in this section. Merchants of this section who handle breads, cakes and rolls state they will support this business and handle the bread baked in Clanton. A. D. Owen, of Meridian, Miss., is to have charge of the baking. Mr. Owen has had several years experience in this line and is widely known in the bakery business. People of Chilton County are urged to give this new place of business a welcome hand. Watch for the formal opening announcement.

A DEPENDENT FAMILY NEEDS HELP, REPORT

Appeal Is Made To People For Few Needed Items For This Family

Recently the underprivileged - child committee of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, composed of Earle Thomas, L. H. Reynolds, and C. E. Stapp, investigated the family of Harrison Glaze of Plantersville, Rt. 2, and found a very serious condition. Their report was as follows:

Harrison Glaze, age 27 years, has an active case of tuberculosis.

Ethel Glaze, age 20 years.

Louise Glaze, age 2 years.

Marshal Glaze, age 5 months.

Harrison has been unable to do any work since March. He and his family are living in a one-room house owned by Mr. A. B. Jones. They have nothing except what the community gives them.

The doctor who has been attending Harrison says that he should have fresh eggs and milk every day. After Judge Reynolds and Mr. Stapp visited this family last Sunday, they decided to make an appeal through the papers for hens for Mr. Glaze.

If you have one or more good hens that you would like to give to Mr. Glaze, and will leave them at the Farm Bureau Office in Clanton, Mr. Stapp, Judge Reynolds and Mr. Thomas will see that they are delivered to Mr. Glaze. This committee hopes that more than enough hens will be brought in. If more than are needed are given, the extras will be sold and used in the fund to buy a cow for this family.

J. Z. Mims Urges Tax Payers To Attend Meeting At Courthouse Next Saturday Regarding Road

Following is a letter from J. Z. Mims, circuit clerk, urging the people to attend the meeting at the courthouse next Saturday, regarding the proposed paving of the Lay Dam road:

"Clanton, Ala., July 13, 1932.

Editor, Chilton County News,

Dear Sir:

"In complying with the requests of a number of people I am writing to call the people's attention to a mass meeting called by a number of citizens of the county to meet at the Courthouse in Clanton on Saturday, July the 16th, 1932, at 2:30 P. M.

"It is understood that the Commissioners Court has passed an order to pave two miles or more of the Lay Dam Highway beginning at the City limit of the Town of Clanton and extend toward Lay Dam.

"This order involves the expenditure of a large sum of the people's money it is therefore of necessity of vital interest to every tax payer in the county. I hope and hereby insist that every tax payer in Chilton County, or citizen thereof, will make every effort possible to be at the mass meeting as above stated and there express his or her opinion on the project.

"There appears to be much dissatisfaction among the people over the project, but I believe that if a representative body of the tax payers will come together and make their wishes known, after due consideration, to the Commissioners Court that they will abide the same."

Yours Very Truly,
J. Z. MIMS.

LARGE CROWD IS EXPECTED AT BIG PICNIC

County Agent Stapp Getting Things In Shape For A Big Day, July 22

Things are beginning to take on splendid shape getting ready for the big county-wide picnic to be held near Clanton on Friday, July 22. Following is a letter about it from County Agent Stapp:

"I am arranging for a real County-wide picnic July 22. This picnic will be held just south of Clanton on the highway in the grove of pines known as the Popwell Woods. I am having the undergrowth cleared off, and I think you will agree with me that I have selected a beautiful spot. I am arranging for loud speakers so all can hear the program.

"I am planning this picnic so that any white family in the County may attend, bring a lunch to spread and enjoy a real program without any expense. Of course it is going to cost me considerable money to get everything in readiness for your comfort and enjoyment, but I have arranged to have on sale for those who want to buy, cold drinks and barbecue. The profit from the [illegible] will help defray my expenses.

"I hope that farmers, merchants, lawyers, doctors, bankers, and, in fact, people in every vocation of gainful occupation, will join in and help make the program on this day worth something to Chilton County. The program is as follows:

9:30 Community singing.

9:45 Largest family contest (all it attendance) Prize: $2.50 gold piece to head of family.

10:00 Address Dr. Thomas, Birmingham.

10:30 Contest, Couple married longest (both in attendance); newest "newlyweds" (in attendance).

10:40 Address, L. N. Duncan, Auburn.

11:10 Clothing demonstrations and sack dress parade. (This will be put on largely by women and girls from counties where there are home demonstration agents and will be conducted by Miss Ruth Dobyne, Auburn).

11:25 Nail driving contest.

11:35 Community singing.

11:45 Address, Julian Brown, Auburn (Subject: Gardens and Living at Home)

427 REGISTER FOR INSTITUTE HERE RECENTLY

Thirty - Seven Churches Of Association Were Represented Here

Coming to a close last Thursday afternoon, the Unity-Chilton Institute held at the Baptist church in Clanton for three days was one of the most successful ever held here.

The total number of persons registered in attendance was 427, showing that the institute was interesting and well attended. There were 250 in attendance the first day, 300 the second day and 350 the last day, according to Mrs. S. J. Ezell, of Clanton.

Among the fifteen preachers in attendance, were five foreign missionaries, including Fred Pearson of Palestine, Collis Cinningham of Japan, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Duggar of Brazil, Dr. John A. Sampey, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, from Brazil, and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Williams, China.

The number of churches of the Unity-Chilton Association represented at the institute was 37. Comments from all who attended the institute were that it was highly educational and interesting.

Printed once each month in the hope that the people of Chilton County may read it and become better acquainted with your school system.

Modern Trend Of Education Shown At Recent Conference

Many Chilton County Teachers And Instructors Receive Helpful Suggestions On Modern Trend Of Child Consideration

By J. A. Peterson

Dr. Charles H. Judd, Dean of the School of Education, Chicago University, was the director and leader of the State Education Conference held at the University June 13-17. The high school principal and supervisors had the opportunity of being in session with city and county superintendents in considering the problems of school administration. Many Chilton County educators returned from the conference with much data concerning the modern trends in education.

These trends in education take the interests of the child into consideration. The new psychology insists that all books be written around the interesting expressions of children. Then, the wise teacher, who uses the new method, will guide the child in matters essential for a well rounded education. The child looks forward with greater interest to this larger unit of study. At the same time, the efficient teacher will aid in creating the right atmosphere for this work.

It is the instructors duty to see that fear disappears from the classroom by fore-seeing the situation and replacing fear with confidence. Children should be trained in successful behavior, composure, relax conscience — beginning each day anew, with a confident teacher and a regular program.

Extra-curricular activities give an outlet to activity. They balance the individual, make him better satisfied, and adjust him in society. Organized play, if not overdone, does much in securing health, poise, beauty, composure, and fair play.

A beautiful demonstration of Physical Education work was given Wednesday, June 15, at 6:30 P. M. on the University campus. The elementary school children of Tuscaloosa City Schools took part in the demonstration under the direction of Dr. E. J. Saxman, Professor of Physical and Health Education, University of Alabama, in cooperation with Miss Susie Mae Smith, Supervisor of Physical and Health Education, Tuscaloosa City Schools.

Dr. Judd stated that the "Time has arrived for a consideration of the social studies as major elements of the curriculum, rather than minor and incidental factors. However, there must be prepared a new type of material before the social studies can be properly dealt with in the elementary and high school."

The speaker pointed out that social studies have been largely neglected in the American school program and the reason for the omission of these studies from the traditional curriculum is that the family, church, and other social agencies were thought of as proper sources of training for young people. With the development of the modern social order, it has become increasingly urgent that systematic training be given in the American schools.

The American school is a success and Europeans are coming over here in larger numbers than ever before, and studying our educational system and institutions.

During the conference the State Parent Teachers Association held its meeting at the University. Dr. Judd addressed this body of delegates while in session. He gave a history of the organization, beginning with the first P.-T. A. organization in America under John Dewey. The purpose of this organization was to support the school and not run the school; ready to exchange ideas and these ideas worked out intelligently.

In view of the critical situation confronting the public schools in Alabama it behooves each citizen, each parent to decide: whether you want schools or roads; whether you want well equipped schools — with libraries, laboratories, shops, etc., or bare walls, in which to educate our children. If we do not have schools, and the best schools, we will spend more money on penal institutions. If we neglect our children—Alabama's greatest asset, we have given them a lasting handicap. Surely, it is high time that every parent should pause for a moment and consider what an education means to his children. The best school houses, the best equipped schools, and the best instructors are none too good for our children. The future advance of our nation depends largely on our public schools.

Those attending the State Education Conference from Chilton County were as follows: B. Lawrence, County Superentendent of Education, Mrs. Madge S. Mullins, Elementary Supervisor, Prof. H. A. Harris, Prof. J. M. Parrish, Prof. Ralph Grant, Miss Bessie Thomas, Prof. Russell Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson.

THE WAY TO SOCIAL DISASTER

There are no more dangerous elements in our society than those well-meaning though often selfish persons who would restrict the curriculum of the schools to the three R's, who cry out against the "fads and frills" and go so far as to include in the "fads and frills" such basic elements as education in art, in music, in health, and in social, political, and economic understanding. While the mastery of the tools of learning is essential to social living, it is nevertheless true that the three R's by no means comprise all the fundamentals of education. The development of innate abilities and interests, of high standards of taste and appreciation, of social understanding, of wholesome social attitudes and habits, the cultivation of a mind at once appreciative and critical of the society of which it is a part—these are fundamentals of education. Those who would restrict the schools to a narrow curriculum are inviting nothing short of social disaster.—Jesse H. Newlon in "Report on the Curricula of the Chicago Schools. The Chicago School Survey, 1932."

Opportunity Schools And Their Results

In the summer of 1928 the Chilton County Board of Education entered a new phase of education; that of Adult education or the removal of illiteracy by organizing and operating Opportunity schools.

The first year only 9 schools were operated with an enrollment of about 300 (no definite information available). Many who had never attended school were taught to read and write. The second year we organized and operated 24 schools with an enrollment of 679. Ninety-two were taught to read and write for the first time in life. The third year only 14 schools for white people were operated with an enrollment of 432. Fifty-two were taught to read and write. Nine schools for negroes were operated with an enrollment of 395. One hundred and forty-four were taught to read and write.

In 1930 no schools were operated. In the three years about 200 white people and 144 negroes have been taught to read and write. Several hundred who could read and write very little, can now read and write very well.

The people who have attended these schools have been taught practical arithmetic, health, citizenship and many other things that they need in everyday life. Many have learned to make calculations for themselves, many have learned to write checks and fill out business forms and last, but not least, many have accomplished a long-cherished desire—that of reading the Bible.

Our enrollment in these schools includes people from 16 to 83 years of age. Some have traveled eleven miles to attend these schools. Since the Opportunity Schools are helping a class of people who have never had opportunities for attending school and who are really worthy and need help there, is no doubt but that these efforts are worthwhile and that the money spent in these schools by the County Board of Education brings greater results than a like amount spent in the other schools.

H. A. HARRIS,
Organizer, Adult Schools.

EDITORIAL

FROM SUMTER COUNTY JOURNAL (York, Ala.)

WE ARE one hundred per cent for economy. We believe in cutting to the core in lowering expenses in this state. We think our greatest need is to lower COST of government rather than RAISING TAXES, and we believe every department should bear its just share of this necessary pruning of expenses. But we DO NOT believe that the schools should be the first attacked, nor bear an UNJUST share of the economy program. Certainly nothing should be done that would unnecessarily hamper our educational system.

There are useless expenditures in all departments, in our opinion, and we insist that the educational department take its cut with the rest. We do not mean to imply that this department should be set up as a SUPER deparment that is above retrenchment. But to do anything that would cripple our schools for a short time even, would be an irreparable injury to our boys and girls, and our citizenship would feel its effect for years to come.

We feel that this department should be the LAST rather than the FIRST object in the pruning program. Lack of education — IGNORANCE, if you please — is the most BURDENSOME tax any people were ever called on to pay.

Nothing should be done to hinder our schools from carrying-on. Let the economy program be carried out, but by all means, let our schools go forward unrestricted by unwise economy that would take ONE day from our school terms or leave our teachers with UNPAID warrants to meet the necessities of life.

AIDING THE CRIPPLES

(One Phase of Child Welfare Work)

The Chilton County Child Welfare records show the names of 51 cripple children in the county, 45 of whom have attended the clinics held in Clanton under the auspices of the Cripple Children's Society, the State Department of Education and the Child Welfare Department. On account of the depression and child welfare work's being discontinued in this county, a clinic is not being held this year here.

Mr. E. H. Gentry, Supervisor of Vocational Rehabilitation from the State Department of Education was in the county last week visiting some of the most urgent cases to assist them in making arrangements for hospitalization. Selma and Montgomery have raised enough money to keep two beds for crippled children in one of the Selma hospitals and with Mr. Gentry's assistance, those beds will be full all the time.

The following report is a statement of cripples from July, 1930, to July 1931, and since that time 5 have had operations and two given artificial appliances.

FOOD PRESERVATION

Carrying Food Over From the Rich Days Of Harvest Through the Lean Days of the Winter Months

By Miss Bertha Dennis

Some form of food preservation has been practiced through the ages. A very large quantity of sugar was required in the past days when preserves were stored in large crocks without sealing. The quality of the food was changed, but the very change made it no longer available for bacterial food supply. This method of food preservation is now days far surpassed by canning. Canning has become such an important part of man's existence that it is one of the great commercial industries of the world today.

The underlying principles in every form of food preservation is the same; namely, to safeguard the food from destruction by bacterial growth. In drying and smoking meats the moisture is so evaporated that bacteria can not grow. In salting and preserving (in heavy syrup) the solution is so concentrated with salt and sugar that bacteria can not grow. Spicing and pickling puts the food into solution containing chemicals in which bacteria can not multiply. But all these methods change the quality and the flavor of the food. Canning changes flavor to the least possible degree. Modern methods by which food retain the nearest to its natural flavor, color and texture have been possible through a thorough understanding of bacteriology and the use of improved equipments. Canning changes the taste to the least degree possible, and accomplishes its results by destroying the bacteria that are present; and by sealing in sterilized jars so that no more may enter.

In order to accomplish this result it is evident that having the jars, tops and rubbers absolutely free from living bacteria when the food is put in, is a stride in the right direction. Organisms collect in and on jars, tops and rubbers, where they have been standing for a time after having been emptied of food. Wash the jars, tops and rubbers thoroughly in warm soapy water, rinse in clean water, and boil for fifteen minutes (counting from the time large bubbles come to the top of the water and burst) then turn the jars and tops upside down on clean sterilized cloth, to protect the inside from bacteria falling from the dust and flies in the room.

Starting thus, with utensils boiled free from bacteria, the canner needs to consider the bacteria which are inevitably in the food. There are in general two ways to overcome bacterial growth in canning foods: With heat and by the use of chemicals. The most healthful and practical is with heat. The heating methods most commonly used are the cold pack or can cooked, and the Open Kettle Method.

The cold pack method consists of selection of fruits or vegetables, sound, young and tender. Wash in clean water to remove dirt and dust, blanch by plunging into boiling water for a short time. A wire basket or a thin clean flour sack may be used to hold the product to be blanched. After blanching plunge the product into a can of cold water for a minute or two, this stops the cooking, sets the color, hardens the product, making it cool and easier to handle. The product is then put in a jar, pack the jar as full as possible without crushing. Fill the jar with boiling water, syrup or brine according to the product packed. Remove all air bubble after the liquid has been added by inserting a thin slender flexible paddle into the jar. Clean the top and threads of the jar, a very small seed or particle of food left on the top will allow air to get into the jar, and the air contains bacteria. Put the rubber and top on the jar, screw the top down; then place the jar on a rack or cloth in a canner that is four or five inches higher than the jar, add boiling water to cover the top of the jar at least two inches to allow for evaporation of the water by boiling. Process the time required for the product canned. In processing bring the water to

Superintendent Gives Figures In Regard To School Finances

Compares Amount Spent On Roads To That Expended Toward Educational Service In The State Of Alabama

For months the teachers of Alabama have gone without pay. In Chilton County the teachers have not been paid but $20.00 since January. When we consider the condition in some other counties we feel that we are fortunate in not being any further behind. Here are six counties further behind than Chilton:

Number of Months Behind

	E. Sc'ls.	H. Sc'ls.
Winston County	8	10½
Cherokee County	7½	9
Randolph County	7	7
Crenshaw County	6½	7½
Marion County	6¼	7½
Clay County	6	7½

If the state would pay its appropriations all of these teachers would be paid. The salaries have been cut all over the state and these reductions should reach into every department of state. Reports from 41 counties show that school revenue has been reduced as much as 53.4%. Certain reports sent out from the State Treasurer's office would lead you to believe that 51% of the tax dollar has gone to education. This is erroneous and unfair.

A bulletin recently published by the Alabama Education Association showed that according to the State Treasurer's report for the year 1930-1931 the total disbursements for all state services amounted to $35,665,814. Every good citizen is interested in knowing how this was divided, or how much was spent for each service of the state. Here is where it was spent:

Highways	54.2% or	$19,321,967
Education	11.6% or	4,118,687
Convict Dept.	8.5% or	3,040,142
Pensions	4.2% or	1,514,314
Charitable and Correctional Inst'ns	3.4% or	1,213,965
Bridge Corps.	3.1% or	1,119,707
Interest	3.1% or	1,103,028
Miscellaneous	2.2% or	775,67
Health Dept.	2.2% or	770,169
Administrative Dps.	2.0% or	720,979
Executive Depts	1.8% or	650,965
Legislative	1.1% or	405,418
Judiciary	1.1% or	402,65
Docks Commission	.7% or	255.187
Tax Commission	.7% or	252,96
TOTAL	100%	$35,665,814

Now every good citizen believes in good roads and they are important and necessary but who would for one moment believe them to be of more value than our children and yet we spent in state for the year almost five times more for highways than for education. The table shows that more was spent for highways than for all the other departments of state. (See Bulletin Page 13, "The School Situation in Alabama".)

Calhoun County has seen fit to pass the following resolution which gives us an insight about the school situation in that county:

WHEREAS the State of Alabama is now due the Calhoun County Schools approximately $90,000.00 for the years 1930-1931 and 1931-1932, thus making it necessary for the teachers in this County to have their salaries unpaid from four to five months of the past school term and consequently to suffer great embarrassments and hardships, and this in face of the fact that the teachers were forced to take a reduction of 10% in their salaries the past year and will have to take an additional 10% reduction for the coming year, which condition prevails to a greater or less degree over the entire State, and

WHEREAS the school authorities of this County and of the whole State, in attempting to make plans for schools the coming year, are faced with such a great uncertainty in school finances as to make it impossible for them to determine the length of school term that can be had, or to know whether the schools can open at all next session:

Therefore be it Resolved: That we the citizens of Calhoun County and patrons of the Calhoun County Schools—1st, protest the discrimination against the schools as shown by the fact that other State agencies and deparments take a prior claim on the State treasury over the public schools of the State, other State employees being paid salaries while teachers go unpaid. Furthermore, we protest the evident effort to charge to the educational appropriations more than a just share of the State's present financial deficit.

2nd. We urge the Governor of Alabama to take definite and immediate steps to place the schools on a sound financial basis, to the end that our schools may not be forced to have a short term or possibly remain closed for the next year.

3rd. If reductions in state appropriations are found to be necessary we believe the schools should bear only an equitable share of these reductions, taking into account that funds for public schools have already been reduced through reduced assessments in taxable property.

4th. That a copy of this resolution be mailed to Governor B. M. Miller and every member of the State Legislature

In conclusion I wish to call attention again, and emphasize the fact that school people recognize the necessity of taking reductions but we feel and insist that it is right for every department of our government to take its proportionate share of this reduction. The one thing we object to is that the whole burden is being placed on the Educational Department.

Progressive Education At Alabama College

The Progressive Education Association is now sponsoring a Demonstration School at Alabama College during the first summer school. Only one other such school is being conducted under the auspices of the Association during the summer of 1932. This school is designed to serve the Southeastern section of the U. S. and in view of the fact that it is the first in the South, it was deemed advisable to confine the work this year to the elementary school.

The Elementary Training School is in charge of Mrs. Bess B. Lane, Director of the Elementary Department of the Tower Hill School, Wilmington, Delaware. Mrs. Lane has had seven years of College and University education, also three years of travel and study in France and Germany. She has working under her supervision, three demonstration teachers nominated by the Progressive Education Association, and three of the regular Training school staff. These people are experienced teachers in one of the leading progressive education schools of the Country, and are presenting to the many teachers of Alabama the Progressive method of teaching.

A number of Chilton County teachers have observed the actual work of pupils and teachers during this first semester work, and have been wonderfully benefitted by their observations.

Progressive education seems to be a world-wide movement. It is not a panacea, rejecting accepted beliefs, adult judgments and traveling conditions, but it is a new approach to the study of the child, a belief that the development of his normal interests exceeds in importance the imposing of standardized subject matter. It assumes that education develops from human experience, rather than results from the acquisition of skills for deferred needs. It is liberal and humanitarian rather than compelling and mechanistic.

Some of the outstanding outcomes of the Progerssive teaching as relative to child, are developing his personal qualities, discovering individual aptitudes and inculcating the habit of critical thinking.

Those attending the observations during last week were: Miss Bess Thomas, Mesdames C. E. Stapp, Madge Scarborough Mullins, S. J. Ezell, Curry Thomas, Barney Burnett, J. S. McNeill, Georgia Billingsley.

Food Preservation

boil as quickly as possible to improve the product. Count the time from the minute the water boils vigorously, keep boiling steadily until the processing period ends. Never allow the water to cook away, if more water must be added use boiling water, to hasten the boiling and to protect the jar. A tight cover on the canner will prevent evaporation of the water and it will allow it to boil sooner and continuously. Removed the jars from the canner and seal immediately at the end of the processing period. Protect the jars from cold drafts, this will cause breakage. Turn jars upside down in a cool place. Watch for leaks, and store in a cool dark place if it is a food that requires only one period of cooking. Many foods canned by this method may have to be heated for three successive days or canned in a steam pressure cooker.

Active bacteria may be destroyed at twenty-two degrees, but spore are more resistant to heat. A jar of foods which has been heated the first day sufficiently to kill any active bacteria which may be in it and then allowed to cool. As it slowly cools the spores in the food, unharmed by this mild temperature, begin unfolding themselves. Here are food, moisture, warmth, darkness—the setting is perfect. For the food to keep the spores must be destroyed when they become active bacteria. The three heatings with the lapse of time between are for the purpose of allowing all the spores to develop.

A steam pressure cooker enables one to maintain a temperature much higher than two hundred and twelve degrees. This is the most effective method in case there are resistant spores to be killed. Such vegetables as corn, okra, butter-beans, string beans, spinach, non acid vegetables may be kept by this method. Whether food subjected to such heat loses sufficiently in color, flavor, form, and possible vitamins to render the method inacceptable, is a matter for personal decision.

Canning by the open kettle method the product is put in the preserving pan or kettle, cooked the desired time for the product in syrup or water, then the food is put in sterilized jars while still hot enough to destroy any chance organism that may fall into the food from the air. Fill the can to overflowing before fastening on the cover, remove any air bubbles so that every atom of bacteria laden air is driven out. This means boiling food vigorously and experience shows that much of the flavor and form are lost in such cooking. Furthermore, it is not always successful with all kinds of foods.

Food containing fair per cent of acid offer resistance to bacteria in their make up, in addition to the destructive effect of the heat, and are more successfully canned. Tomatoes are outstanding examples of food which can be satisfactorily canned by the open kettle method. They often lose their shape, color and aroma.

In the past a very large quantity of sugar was required when fruits were preserved in large crocks without sealing. But with a knowledge of the bacterial action, the acid in foods, sterilization, and with improved equipment preserves can be cooked with much less sugar, preserving the natural flavor, color and is available for bacterial food supply.

Soft fruits may be placed in alternate layer of fruit and sugar in equal proportions or three quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit and set aside until enough juice has been extracted to permit cooking in its own juice without the addition of water.

In preserving large fruit such as firm pears and peaches are cooked as rapidly as possible, dropping a small quantity at a time into boiling sugar syrup made of different degrees of thickness, from one-fourth to three-fourths cups of water is allowed to each pound of sugar and one pound of fruit.

A syrup solution that is too heavy shrivels and hardens fruit before it can absorb the proper amount of syrup to take the place of the extracted juices for this reason. The syrup is sometimes made of one-fourth the total sugar requirement and double its amount in water. Fruits are boiled in this thin syrup until tender and transparent, removed from the preserving kettle to stand while the rest of the sugar is added to syrup and cooked down to the proper thickness. The fruit is then replaced, brought to a boil. and stored in sterilized bottles or jars in which enough parafin has been chipped; the paraffin raises to the top and seals the jar. The essentials of canning are cleanliness in handling products, care of jars, tops, rubbers, and personal habits.

Among the list of nurses passing the recent State Board of Examination, as given out by the state papers last week, were the names of Misses Elsie Lee Logan and Gladys Latham, graduates of Central Alabama Hospital training school. It is said their grades were mong the highest made by a large class of applicants.

Pates Chapel News

Mr. and Mrs. Mose Maddox and children of Tallassee spent the Fourth with friends and relatives of Pates Chapel.

The services at the Pates Chapel church was much enjoyed first Sunday in this month. Our pastor is Rev. M. Lockhart. We express our riches blessings on him.

We want to announce that our all day singing will be postponed to the second Sunday in August on account of all the singers going to other places. We hope to have a big crowd of singers. We want to have the Thorsby Quartet and other quartets of other churches if it is posible for them to get here. Don't forget the date; at Pates Chapel, August 14th. Everybody come and bring somebody with you.

Also our revival services will begin the last Sunday inJuly and go on for a week at Pates Chapel with Rev. M. Lockhart and Rev. E.A. Norris in charge. Everybody is invited. Come and be with us.

This past Sunday Sunday was our regular singing evening at Pates Chapel but did not have a large crowd on acount of sickness.

Mrs. Tomie Maddox spent the week in Tallassee with Mr. and Mrs. Mose Maddox and children.

Among those that are sick in this community are as follows: Mrs. B. O. Blow, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Maddox, Rubye and Roscoe Maddox.

Mrs. Nora Cook and daughter, Tillie and Misses Emily Pate, Zemma Hayes and Messrs. Clifford Cook and Oscar Pate enjoyed the preaching service in Thorsby Sunday night.

Miss Zemma Hayes spent Sunday with Miss Carrie Bolton, also Miss Emily Pate and Mr. Oscar Pate.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hayes and son and daughter, Lee and Zelma, and Mr. Tommie Maddox and two children, Rubye and Roscoe, and Miss Maude Wallis spent the day in Tallassee Sunday.

Mr. Alvin Maddox, son of Mr. and Mrs Mose Maddox, who was struck with appendicitis up here the Fourth and was carried home last Tuesday and was operated on Tuesday night is doing fine. He will be able to go to his home Wednesday if nothing happens.

Mr. Venard Cost and brother visited in Pates Chapel community the past week end.

The baptizing was postponed first Sunday until the first Sunday in August on account of the unsettled weather and raining too. It will be after the revival services.

Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "tonic!"

Every child's stomach, liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those bilious days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.

Saving Our Country From Tax Destruction

Tax reduction must be accomplished.

No other problem, except employment, so vitally affects every citizen. It strikes rich and poor alike, the small business and the large one. It is directly related to the business depression in that it discourages industrial activity and investment of capital. High taxes are the great enemy of progress of all kinds.

Leading foreign nations of the world are staggering under intolerable tax burdens. That fact alone is a powerful argument to try and keep this government from being submerged by a similar burden of public debt. If we are to remain the economic leader of the world we must have a government that is run efficiently and at the lowest possible cost. Otherwise, we will sink to the common level of other debt-ridden nations.

It is trite but true, to say that there is but one way to lower taxes—for government to spend less money. The creation of new forms of taxation, of special or class taxes, solves nothing. It should be the duty of government, local, state, and national, to aid the general economic recovery by adopting stringent economies and tax reduction programs.

o-o-o-o

Rate Structure vs. Tax Structure

Politicians who are attacking the rate structure of electric utilities might perform a more valuable public service if they turned their attention to the tax structure of government in this country.

The statement has been made, on good authority, that a billion dollars a year is wasted by governmental inefficiency and unneeded government bureaus.

The total annual bill of the 20,000,000 residential customers of the electric industry is only $664,000,000. Consequently, if but 67 per cent of the billion dollars said to be wasted by government was saved, it would be sufficient to pay the entire domestic electric bill of the nation.

If it were all saved, it would pay the electric bill and give every man, woman and child in the country about $2.80.

By comparison, the tax issue makes the so-called "power issue" look like a very small needle in a large political haystack. We pay taxes every day—each meal we eat, each article we buy, each time we ride in an automobile or on a train or streetcar takes something out of our pockets for taxes, in addition to direct taxes on income and property. The electric bill comes once a month—and it is an infinitesimal part of the family expenses.

If our politicians honestly believe, in spite of the power industry's record of rate decreases, that electric service is too expensive, what have they to say about the high cost of politics?

o-o-o-o

Revenue --- And More Revenue

This much can be said for the new revenue bill—it will probably balance the budget and remove the present danger to American credit.

This can be said against it—it takes us another long step toward a tax condition similar to that of England, Australia, Germany and the other tax-distressed countries. The levies against gasoline, lubricating oil, tires, electricity, the check and bond taxes, the theatre tax, etc., will work hardships on millions of our citizens. The income tax increases will doubtless cause a further flow of capital into tax-free government bonds, thus taking money out of the channels of trade, and away from industries sorely in need of funds. To this extent, it will hamper employment and delay a return to normal conditions.

There is one lesson we should have learned—that undeviating watchfulness is the price of economical and efficient government. If we have to pay greatly increased taxes we have ourselves principally to blame—we gave officeholders all the rope they wanted, and they are slowly strangling us. The American has been indifferent to the operation of his government. He has been a poor stockholder. He is paying now.

The tax fight never ends. It is time we laid our plans for doing what we can, through the power of the ballot, to make tax reduction a reality in the future.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

"If you wish to appear agreeable in society, you must consent to be taught many things which you know already."—Lavater.

* * *

There is another way in which to appear agreeable in society, beside the one given above. The other is to leave out about three-fourths, or all, of the gossip that you hear.

* * *

What I am going to say will not be any too good an advertisement for Clanton, but I'm not thinking so much of that right now. I'm thinking of those persons who are receiving great deal of injustice through the tongues of certain gossip hounds. What I am saying may cause some persons to become angry, but let it fall wherever it may.

* * *

I possibly can point out right now at least three persons in Clanton who have become victims of gossip, making it's rounds from the lips of others, and so on. I wonder if these people in Clanton who are so anxious to tell something bad about someone, ever stopped to think how they would feel if there was gossip going the rounds concerning them.

* * *

After hearing remarks made about certain people in Clanton, such remarks being nothing but hearsay and originated in the minds of certain narrow-ignorant people, I took it upon myself to investigate these accusations. Most every accusation had no grounds whatever, and came from some flimsy circumstantial evidence, coupled with some person's terribly imaginative mind. Then the poison was spread, and innocent persons have been badly wronged by the tongues of gossip-hungry hounds.

* * *

As I said, this may make someone angry. But it is nothing more than the truth about things going on, and none has a right to become angry just because they feel that this is hitting them. Why do people feel so ready to spread some detrimental rumor about a person? It certainly does not do anyone good, and in every case injures the person whom it is told of. Gossip, in it's general sense, has caused more unhappiness than can be imagined. "Gossip carriers" are some of the worst enemies of society, and a person who has brains enough to refrain from "gossiping", that is, telling "bad tales" about someone else, is truly a well-bred person.

* * *

Some people I know, would profit by this saying, "If you can't say something good about a person, don't say it." In most cases, if it is not good, the person telling it is belittled too.

* * *

And now folks, don't forget to make your plans to attend the big county-wide picnic to be held just south of Clanton on Friday, July 22nd. Somewhere in this issue of the News is the program for that big day. They tell me it is going to be bigger than any Fourth of July picnic, and a lot more entertaining. County Agent Stapp has the picnic in charge, and believe you me, he has certainly selected a fine program. I'll be there in person that day to get something to write about, and I'll be looking for you.

Now I'll just have to tell you about a very splendid article appearing in this issue of C. G. N. It is the one written by Judge Walter B. Jones, headed "Militant Democracy" and was clipped from The Montgomery Advertiser, because the ed thought it was good, and I did too, so we're passing it on to you. I know you haven't read it because you read this column first. But be sure to read that article.

* * *

How about this Mayor race in Clanton. It comes off in September this year, and I hear it rumored that Lee Smith is going to run again, and the rumor came pretty straight. Whether he will be the next mayor of Clanton remains to be seen. It is about two months until the election and whatever is done must be done soon. But Mr. Smith, so I understand, has already opened his campaign in a small way (?)., I might better look into this matter a little.

* * *

But maybe the people of Clanton are satisfied with the way the town has been run under the present administration and will want to continue it.

* * *

Hello, folks, down around Verbena. You who have become readers of C. G. N. lately, come up to see us sometime. You know I have a warm spot in my heart for Verbena and surrounding communities, and it is good to see you join our family.

* * *

What ho, the Howard Garage of Verbena announces something big in radios in this issue of the News. Look 'em over folks.

* * *

And then Charlie Gulledge says "It doesn't matter whether you are a Democrat or a Republican, he appreciates your trade." Did you see his ad from the Verbena Service Station. You folks better take to watching the ads in this paper. Some of these days there is going to be something advertised for sale, and when you find out you missed it, you are going to be sore, or something.

* * *

I keep hearing folks arguing about this plank in the Democratic platform, concerning the 18th Amendment. And I'd advise you all, including preachers, that it would be a good idea to get acquainted with that particular plank before you make fools of yourself, by arguing about something you don't know anything about. How's that for a long sentence?

* * *

Dr. Hayes had a little auto accident down near the News office the other day. That's news, ain't it?

* * *

Well, I ain't heard any more about this graft in the road business of Chilton County. Seems like it has been quieted down in some manner. 'I wonder how.

* * *

o-o-o-o

Still About The Taxes

While this newspaper has been raising sand about the new and increased taxes, and how the present administration of government has, what you might say, made things worse instead of better, we feel that something should be said to the people in regard to the new tax law that became effective at midnight last Monday night.

Practically all of it is the same old thing—just more tax, but there are parts of it that appear complicated and it would be advisable for those interested, to become acquainted with its workings.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

When the Democratic Convention in Chicago adopted the repeal platform pandemonium tore loose in the convention hall. State banners were moved into a long line of wet demonstration. Senator Abington snatched the Arkansas banner from the hands of Governor Parnell and started with it into the wet demonstration. A number of dry delegates seeing what took place leaped into the fray and snatched the Arkansas banner and tore it into ribbons. Their reason for this was that they had rather see their banner torn into strips than to see it a second time in the wet parade. These were delegates after the heart of the Man of Galilee. That was the only thing happening in connection with the convention when character and conviction were in evidence. To the man who was listening in it was a spineless convention on the whiskey problem. Democrats at home must develop some spine to combat this wet deluge, or it will not be ten years before the whiskey business will snatch our flag from our hands and tear into ribbons the red, the white and the blue of our American life. The fight is on to a death struggle.

The farmer came home late in the afternoon and as he seated himself on the back steps his devoted companion came out of the home and seated herself by his side. Together they talked over the sowing of the plantation that day. The husband complained of being tired. He said, "Wife, today many seed have gone from my fingers into the soil." That farmer had spent the day sowing seed into the soil. By faith he was looking down the months ahead to the harvest time. Life to that man and his companion was just sowing and reaping. A recent writer charges this same thing to American life in this language, "We have been sowing foolishness and now we are reaping folly. We have been sowing sin and now we are reaping lawlessness. We have been sowing loose moral conditions and we are reaping the breaking down of society. We have been sowing pleasure and we are reaping empty church pews. We have been sowing wrong ideals of patriotism and now we are reaping applause for Babe Ruth and Jack Sharkey in place of applause for the red, white and blue of our flag. We have been sowing information in unrestrained university life, and now we are reaping intelligence without character. We have been sowing a false conception of science and we are reaping a crop of self-conceited fools who think that they can dethrone God." We are reaping today what we have been sowing.

* * *

While viewing the rapids below the Niagara falls our guide pointed out to us a boulder from which the English swimmer leaped into the water to swim the rapids. This man had crossed the English channel in the water, and said that he could swim any stream of water in the world. The authorities of Washington would not let him try the rapids from the American side and so he went over to the Canadian side and took his fatal plunge. Jumping into that surging, rushing, rolling body of mad water was nothing less than madness on the part of the swimmer. For the applaudits of men he took a risk that meant certain death. Many hours after he disappeared beneath the water his body was taken from a whirl pool several miles down the stream. Why will men lose their heads for the applaudits of men? The spirit of taking a risk is one of the most deadly foes moving in the human race. If "No one but a fool will take a risk" there must be plenty of fools still alive. Let mangled bodies, broken bones and newly made graves speak with the truth, "I took a risk." The skilful swimmer thought that he could swim the rapids and took the risk. The auto driver thought that he could cross ahead of the train and he took the risk. The empty skull thought he could get there quicker by speeding and he took the risk. The money mad thought that he could make a lot of easy money by stilling the fire that burns out vitality and character and he took the risk. Taking a risk means death sooner or later.

* * *

I visited a big man of war as she was anchored in the Hudson Bay. We had a guide given to us as soon as we landed on board. On our sight-seeing trip we were carried to view one of the big guns mounted on deck. I stood by the side of that gun and listened to the description of this pride of the navy. It weighed hundreds of tons, its barrel looked like a smoke stack, it cost more than a hundred thousand dollars to make it and it cost five thousand dollars to fire it one time. The guide said to us, "That gun is just one of our many big bumpers." I stood by the side of that death dealer and thought. There was represented in that gun a handsome endowment for a university. I saw there the money that would have given one hundred young men a finished education. I saw there the money that would have built more than 100 beautiful churches in the rural sections. I saw there enough money to support 100 missionaries for a year in a foreign field. The cannon was a thing of beauty, but it was also a thing that dealt out death. Do you want to know why we have hard times? It is because we have spent our money in producing the things that will kill, rather than in spending it for the things that will bring in more abundant life. How foolish to put ten million dollars into a war ship when people are starving for bread.

7,000 FARM BOYS GO ON COUNTY 4-H CLUB CAMP

o

Auburn, Ala.—Seven thousand Alabama farm boys who are members o 4-H clubs are now thrilled about summer camps. With their county agent in charge these boys will spend two or three days in county camps at sites selected for beauty, for nearness t water, for comfort, and for recreation Two of these county camps were held in June. The first was the Lowndes County camp; and the second the Randolph County camp, at Spring Villa near Opelika.

The schedule for July is: Tuscaloos and Pickens, 5-7; Coosa and West Talapoosa, 7-9; Hale, 7-8; Bullock, 11-13 Winston, 11-12; Cherokee, 13-15; Elmore, 13-16; Lamar, 14-15; Lee, 14-16 Baldwin, 14-16; Crenshaw, 14-15; Clarke, 20-21; Lawrence, 21-23; Etowah 25-30.

Other camps will be held during July and August, according to Thomas A Sims, State club leader at Auburn.

These 7,000 boys represent approximately one-half of the total Alabama enrollment in 4-H clubs for boys. Whil in camp boys enjoy recreation, information, social contact, and an outing.

The general program provides for a bugle call at 6:00 o'clock in the morning followed by a roll call then a swim before a delicious breakfast. Eight t 9:00 o'clock is given to instruction, and the next two hours to playing. The hour 11:00 to 12:00 o'clock is given to talks by local business and professional men with the dinner hour from 12:00 to 1:00.

The afternoons are spent in rest, recreation and swimming.

Vesper services are held in the early evening, followed by a 4-H club program and "taps" at 10:00 o'clock at night, thereby completing a busy day.

Begin Taking Cardui Today If You Suffer Like This Lady Did

"WHEN I was a girl, I began taking Cardui," writes Mrs. Maggie Stanfield, of Crandall, Ga. "I was very irregular for twelve months. Nothing did me very much good until my mother began to give me this medicine. Then I got all right, stout and well.

"After I was married, I was in bad health. I began taking Cardui again. I was troubled with my back a lot. Was awfully restless. I could not sleep well. I just weighed 90 pounds when I began taking Cardui. I improved rapidly. Before long I weighed 126 pounds. I felt fine. I was able to do a good day's work."

Cardui is sold by druggists here.

Here's Smiling Relief...

Most of your suffering from common every-day aches and pains is unnecessary and unwise. Unnecessary, because Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve quickly and without unpleasant after effects; unwise, because pain makes your physical condition worse instead of better. One pill usually brings relief in a few minutes.

If you suffer from any of the disorders listed above, take Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. If they do not give you greater relief in less time than anything else you have used, go to your druggist and get your money back.

A package of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills in your medicine cabinet, pocket, or hand-bag means fewer aches and pains.

Will W. Williams Died At His Home Friday

The sudden death of Mr. Will W. Williams at his home in Mt. Nebo community last Friday brought to an end the life of one of Chilton County's most honored, useful and beloved citizens He was in his normal condition of health until about eight o'clock A.M and died at 9:45 A. M.

Mr. Williams was born in West End, Birmingham, June 17, 1865, coming to Chilton County when a small boy. He joined the M. E. Church in his early twenties. He attended church often and enjoyed religious work. He lived a moral life and was faithful to the end. Only a few days ago he made the remark he was ready to go any time. the Lord called him.

Mr. Williams was a kind, honest and faithful man in every respect. He always had a smile and kind word for everyone. His friends were numerous and all loved Uncle Will, as he was better known.

On January 2nd 1890 Mr. Williams was married to Miss Anna Culp. They had seven children, all of whom survive their father. The children are: Mrs. O. Y. Sims, Billingsley; Mrs. Dock Culver, Birmingham; Mrs. W. B. Deason, Birmingham; Mrs. Crawford Owen, Shiloh community; Mr. Morris Williams. Selma; Messrs. J. D. and Eugene Williams, Mt. Nebo community. There are 21 grandchildren, all living.

The body of the deceased was buried at Mt. Nebo July 2nd. His funeral was conducted by Rev. Metcalf, assisted by Rev. F. A. Gibson.

We bow in submission to Wisdom superior to our own, knowing that the will of our Creator must be done, and hoping and striving that we may meet our brother again where happiness shall reign forever, and tears and heartaches will never be known.

Mrs. M. B. Arant, Sr., Age 83, Died July 6th

Mrs. M. B. Arant, Sr., age 83, died last Wednesday, July 6, at Eclectic, Ala., where she was living with her daughter, Mrs. T. J. Wadsworth. Mrs. Arant had been in bad health for several weeks previous to her death, but in spite of this her many friends and loved ones who visited her were always greeted with a bright smile and a cheerful word. Her life indeed, was one of good cheer and inspiration to those about her.

She is survived by seven children: Mrs. T. J. Wadsworth, Eclectic; M. B. Arant, Clanton; Mrs. Lee Billingsley, Clanton Route 3; Mrs. J. T. Shields, of Louisiana; Mrs. A. H. Boyer and Mrs. J. F. Herring, Coosa River; and A. C. Arant of Pratt-mont. She was preceded to the grave by her husband, who passed into the Great Beyond eighteen years ago, and three children, one son and two daughters.

Mrs. Arant had lived and labored practically all of her life in the Coosa River community, where she and her companion reared their family and played an important part in the activities of the community. She was a lifelong and faithful member of the Coosa River Baptist church, and there on last Thursday afternoon, July 7th, at two o'clock the earthly remains of this dearly beloved Christian woman were laid to rest, while beautiful and sincere words of tribute were paid to the exemplary life lived by this woman by Rev. Thomas, and a large gathering of relatives and friends who came with sorrowing hearts and the many floral offerings eloquently bespoke the esteem in which her memory is held by those who knew her.

IN MEMORY OF ALEX LeCROY

On June 25th at 8:25 a.m. the death angel visited the home of my grandfather and grandmother and took from our midst our loving grandfather.

He was a devoted Christian and loved all with whom he came in tontact. We know he is at rest in that home beyond the river that he talked so much about and longed to go there.

But Oh! So hard to give him up. But if we, too, only will live right we will meet him in that heavenly home above. He said to me on Friday a.m. before he passed away the next day he had fulfilled his time here and he could hear his precious Saviour calling him home to live forevermore.

So, weep not, loved ones, for we know he is at rest.

He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, two sons C. L. and A. J. LeCroy, eleven grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Funeral services were held at Mulberry Baptist church, conducted by Rev. G. G. Williams and Rev. J. D. Hughes. Pallbearers were L. S. Calfee, Emmett and Claude Conaway, L. C., E. C. and H. A. LeCroy. Spigener of Clanton was in charge.

Written by his granddaughter,
ARA.

LETTER OF THANKS

Dear Editor and Readers:

May I have the privilege of writing a few words to be carried in your paper this week? If so, here goes: I wish to thank all the good people who have made it possible for me to attend the three-day services at the Institute in Clanton in the Clanton Baptist church this past week, which has enabled me to receive a Y. W. A. Certificate, many many blessings from the good messages from God above and the good dinners I helped eat at the church. I wish to thank Mrs. H. S. Sewell and her dear boys, Odis, David, Hiawatha, Curtis and H. W., for allowing me to spend the nights with them, and for the kindness and enjoyable hours which they bestowed upon me while I was there. Also the kindness of their neighbors and kind relatives who were visiting them, while I was there. May God bless each and everyone that reads this short "Thankfulness" and may I ask everyone to pray for me earnestly in their prayers, that I may live the life that God would have me to live, and that will be a help to everyone with whom I come in contact.

A reader and friend,
PAULINE COLLINS.

Be Strong. Be Faithful

Caleb and Joshua together with ten other men, one from each of the twelve tribes of Israel, were commanded to go into the land which the Lord had promised them. They were to go through the land and bring back a report of the people who lived there, of the cities of the land, of the land itself, and samples of the fruit of the land. Moses, their commander, said when he sent them out, "Be of good courage."

You remember that Moses had done many amazing things in Egypt as the Lord had commanded him and finally had led his people, the Israelites, out of Egyptian slavery. They were now in the wilderness nearly ready to enter the homeland of their father, Jacob.

Four hundred years before this time Jacob, his eleven sons and their families had left the homeland to go to Egypt where Joseph, the twelfth son was. Now as the thousands of people, who were descendants of the twelve sons, were returning to their homeland, they were allowed to send representatives to look over the land. Other nations lived in the land.

The twelve men were gone on their trip forty days looking over the land, the people and the cities; and they found that the land which the Lord had told them was a land flowing with milk and honey was indeed a land full of good things. They brought back pomegranates, figs, and grapes. One bunch of grapes was so immense that two men at a time were required to carry it.

Though the twelve men went thru the land and came back safe, ten of them brought back cowardly reports. They said that they were not able to go up against the people; for they were the stronger. They talked of the giants of the land saying:

"We were in our own sight as grasshoppers and so we were in theirs."

These ten men would not remember that God had promised to be with them. They even forgot that ten times before they had doubted God and had murmured against Him, bringing trouble upon themselves, and yet He was leading them still.

The report of the ten frightened the people. They became excited and complained against Moses and Aaron. They murmured against the Lord. They even wished that they had died in Egypt or in the wilderness. Then they began to talk of choosing a captain in Moses' place and returning to Egypt, the land of bondage.

Caleb and Joshua, the other two men who had gone with the ten, tried to calm the people. They told them that the land was an exceeding good land and that they were well able to take possession of it. They told them that the Lord would give the land to them, that He was still with Israel, and that they had nothing to fear from the inhabitants of their homeland.

The Israelites would not listen to Caleb and Joshua, but prepared to stone them. God himself appeared in His glory and protected Caleb and Joshua.

The ten who forgot God and all who listened to and agreed with them were not allowed to enter into the homeland, but were wanderers in the wilderness forty years. At the end of that time they were all dead. Then Caleb and Joshua of the twelve and the remaining faithful ones of the people entered into the land and enjoyed the fruit of the land.

There is a chance every day for each of us to be forgetful of God's love and power as were the ten, or to be faithful to Him as were Caleb and Joshua.

Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might.—Ephesians 6:10.

MILITANT DEMOCRACY

By Judge Walter B. Jones
In The Montgomery Advertiser

The events of the recent Chicago Democratic Convention are heartening and encouraging to every worth-while Democrat in the country, and bring a message of hope to the people of America.

The party presents to the country one of the finest platforms that has even been drawn by Democratic hands. It puts its standard in the hands of two outstanding American statesmen who are Democrats to the core, and who have the confidence and esteem of the rank and file, and of the leaders as well of the party.

No man knows, of course, what is in the lap of the gods, but I believe it can be truly said that the Democratic party in the Nation today stands a better chance of electing its candidates than ever before in the history of the country.

A Courageous Platform

It has been many a year since a political party of any size has put out such a short platform. It took the Republicans 9,000 words to make their political promises. The Democrats in less than 1,500 words have stated their political creed. The platform is marked by common-sense, courage and clarity of idea. Nobody need ask where we stand. All he has to do is to read the platform. It is written in simple, understandable language. There is no trimming. pussy-footing, or weaseling. The platform speaks the language of a Democrat and speaks it plainly. Every cowardly subterfuge is avoided, the platform declarations are honest, and the program is statesmanlike. In this platform the party is true to the principles of Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson.

A Fighting Crowd

And best of all the Democracy of the Nation is in a fighting humor. We are out after the Republicans. We are to be well organized, and Democracy doesn't propose to ask any quarter or give any. It is to be one of the great political battles of the ages.

The Platform

The party, in less than 150 words, declares for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The Republican Party used more than 500 words to tell its stand on Prohibition, and you can read the 500 words backwards and forwards and still not know where Mr. Hoover's party stands. It is a masterpiece of weaseling. The language is tortuous and vague and lacking in courage.

The Democratic platform also takes note of one of the big issues before the country, the ever increasing and mounting costs of government. It demands an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance. The party declares for a reduction of not less than 25 per cent in the expenses of the Federal Government, and urges the various states of the Nation to proportionately reduce their expenses and give the poor burden-bearing tax-payers some reduction in the size of the tax load he carries.

Rapid Increase of Public Expense

The necessity for this plank in the Democratic platform is known to all who have studied the history of our country for the past twenty years. Every year has witnessed a steady increase in the burden of taxation. The taxpayer, and that today is practically every living man. woman and child in the United States, has just been saddled year after year with the expense of every foolish innovation in government, and the burdensome cost of thousands and thousands of unnecessary jobs created for distribution as political pie.

Congressman Flannagan of Virginia gave the other day, in a speech in the House of Representatives, these enlightening figures: Expenses—In 1911 the governmental expenses were $726,424,850. In 1931 the governmental expenses were $4,219,950,339. This is an increase of 467 per cent in 20 years. National wealth—In 1911 our national wealth was $186,200,000,000. In 1931 our national wealth was $361,800,000,000. This is an increase of 94 per cent in 20 years. Population—In 1911 our national population was 91,972,266. In 1931 our national population was 124,070,000. This is an increase of 34 per cent in 20 years.

In 20 years our national population increases 34 per cent, our national wealth 94 per cent, but our cost of government increases 467 per cent! No wonder Miss Democracy demands a reduction. And if the politicians are wise, they will listen to her pleadings, because the people of this country are alarmed at the mounting cost of government, and they don't propose to have any more taxes saddled upon them. Our rulers can put that in their pipes and smoke it. As showing how the wind blows it may be mentioned that the other day St. Louis taxpayers, impatient at the government's failure to institute economy, formed themselves into a corporation and will wage a drive for lower taxes and a reduction in government expense. The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has formed an organization, "The Public, Inc." Here's good luck to the taxpayers who are about to stand at Armageddon.

The Democratic Chieftains

Democracy made a wise choice when it handed its standards to Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner. They are Democrats without affix or prefix. They love the party. They know and revere her traditions. They are fighters. They have the confidence of the people. And they are in hearty accord with the platform of the party.

Gov. Roosevelt has behind him a long, an honest and useful record in public life. As Mr. Mack said of him, "He fills the crying need for a practical American." Roosevelt's acceptance speech was a masterly presentation of the issues of the campaign, and inspired enthusiasm in all who heard it. Democracy, as she girds herself for the great struggle, finds in him a leader of vision, courage and aggressiveness.

The long years of Mr. Garner's public service have impressed the American people with his rugged Americanism, his statesman-like views, and his common-sense. He stands for all that is good in public life. He has the courage of his convictions, and there has never been the slightest suspicion of any demagogy about him. Mr. Garner is a fighter, too. He has had a man's part in many political battles and he has always hit from the shoulder. He is a Jacksonian Democrat of the old school, and will be a great asset to the public service of his Nation if placed in the vice-presidential chair.

Our party could not have made better selections. We have chosen courageous standard bearers and have placed them on a courageous platform. The Republicans haven't a chance to beat us in November.

The Republican party was organized principally to oppose slavery and the extension of slavery, and is largely a sectional party. It is without any real leadership today. It has never had the interests of the American people as a whole at heart. It has always favored the wealthy and influential; and the average garden-run variety of citizen has nothing to thank that party for. The Republican party has conducted itself on the principle that if it took care of a favored few, these few would let some of their prosperity leak through to the less favored few, and everybody would benefit.

Nation Has Been Generous to Party

The American people have been good to the Republican Party. Since electing its first nominee in 1860, every president that the American people have chosen has been a Republican with two exceptions. The Democratic party elected Cleveland and Wilson, and it is no exaggeration to say that the good accomplished for the country in these two Democratic administrations has been worth more to the country in enduring values than all the work of all the Republican presidents put together. When the people have wanted real statesmanship and genuine public good, they have turned to the Democratic party.

Democratic Presidents

Look over the presidents of the United States who have come from the Democratic Party. There are seven of them. Three of them will rank as among the great presidents of the United States, Andrew Jackson, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson. Take the Republican presidents, eleven of them, four more than the Democrats. and only one name stands out as conspicuous for public service, Theodore Roosevelt. And who are some of the other Republican presidents? Warren G. Harding, Herbert Hoover, Calvin Coolidge, General Grant, and Benjamin Harrison!

Only one Republican president, Gen. Grant, served two full terms. Three of the Republican presidents fell victims of cowardly assassin bullets: Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley; and one (Harding) died while in office.

Democracy in Fighting Feather

Some of our Republican friends have been going about talking as if the Democratic party were dead. They don't know what they are talking about. The Democratic party is the livest political organization existing today. We have on our war paint and our fighting feathers. The energy that we have used at various times in tomahawking and scalping our fellow Democrats henceforth is to be used to get the Republican political scalp. We are tired of fighting each other. We are united in a desire to fight the Republicans, and the Democratic battle line presents a solid and unwavering front. With Roosevelt and Garner as our chieftains, and standing on the Chicago platform, we can't fail.

Sardis News

(Omitted Last Week)

The Cooperative Singing Society of Antioch and Sardis churches, which is making splendid progress, met at Sardis church Sunday afternoon and had a splendid song service.

After the opening song, directed by Miss Melda Sansom, prayer was offered by Bro. Arthur Crane of the Antioch Society.

Directors for the afternoon were: Miss Melda Sansom, Miss Willie Crane, Miss Mary Owens, Miss Lucinda Sansom. Miss Annie Ratliff, with Bro. George Anderson as organist.

We invite all lovers of good singing to come and be with us at these song services held at Sardis every first Sunday afternoon. I should also like to state that our B. Y. P. U. is making progress and that we hope in the near future to have everybody within reach of this union who should be engaged in this work, enlisted. It is a good work and affords wonderful opportunities for service.

Mystery Picture Is Coming Here Soon

Warner Oland, the noted actor of Oriental roles, who makes his initial talking appearance for Fox in the title role of "Charlie Chan Carries On," first entered pictures with the Fox organization.

"It was before America went into the war," Oland said. "I had been playing in a drama of the life of Benedict Arnold, with Walter Hampden, and returned to New York City when the show closed. My agent had no new stage engagements for me, but suggested that I take a role in a Fox film that was just going into production.

"In those days a legitimate actor looked with considerable disdain on the movies, and I was no exception. I laughed at the offer, but the agent persisted, and reminded me that Herbert Brenon, whom I had known for years, was directing the picture. More out of friendship for Brenon than anything else, I took the role, playing a heavy with Theda Bara. To my surprise, however, I found the work very interesting"

In "Charlie Chan Carries On," Showing next Mon. and Tues. at the Wadesonian Theatre, Oland for the first time in his screen career becomes a hero instead of a villain. He portrays the smiling but keen-witted Chinese detective, Charlie Chan, who "carries on" after the Scotland Yard man is put out of the running, while John Garrick and Marguerite Churchill have the romantic leads as the aristocratic Bostonian and the wealthy granddaughter of the mysterious killer's first victim.

LOCAL SCOUTS AT HOME FROM ANNU'L OUTING

Fifteen Local Boys Show Splendid Records And Get Advanced

That boy scout work is advancing in the Chilton County area is evidenced by the splendid report given by John J. Sigwald, Scout Executive, showing accomplishments of the Chilton County boys who attended camp at Camp Spring Villa recently. Mr. Sigwald's report is as follows:

Wade Alford advanced to Second Class.

Junior Deal advanced to Second Class.

Wesley Brown advanced to Second Class.

Irby Wood advanced to Star: Personal and public health, reptile study and first aid.

Phillip Nelson advanced to Star: Personal health, poultry keeping, public health, reptile study, swimming and first aid.

Thomas Marcus advanced to Star: First aid, lifesaving, personal and public health, reptile study.

Searcy Martin advanced to Star: First aid, leathercraft, pathfinding, personal and public health and reptile study.

Owen Deal advanced to Star: First aid, leathercraft, pathfinding, personal and public health and reptile study.

Eugene Wilkinson advanced to Star: Leathercraft, pathfinding, personal and public health, reptile study, first aid and lifesaving.

Julius Martin advanced to Star: First aid, leathercraft, lifesaving, personal and public health, reptile study.

Joe Hall Johnson advanced to First Class: Star: Cooking, first aid, personal and public health, first aid to animals and reptile study.

Hayes Marcus advanced to Star: First aid, leathercraft, personal and public health, reptile study and pathfinding.

Bob Powers advanced to First Class: Lifesaving and swimming.

Ed Lakeman passed Marksmanship, and leathercraft.

John Ezell passed Leathercraft, woodcarving, pathfinding, civics, reptile study, animal industry, cooking, poultry keeping, lifesaving and camping.

John Ezell was one of the assistant instructors during three weeks of the camp and Mr. Sigwald reports that he was well pleased with John's work.

It is interesting to note from the report that all but one member of the Lay Dam troop attended camp. This boy scout training is fine for boys and needs the support of every citizen of the county who is interested in the development of our boys.

It is pointed out that scout work, like anything else, requires trained leadership. The Chilton County Area is a part of the Central Alabama Council and has as its executive John J. Sigwald. Chilton County area is expected to share its prorata part of the Central Alabama Scout Council's expense. Our part of this expense is $360.00 per year. The people of the towns and communities who are interested in scouting are urged to see Mr. W. M. Wyatt, finance chairman, and arrange to help take care of our part of the scout program expense.

Canning Demonstrat'ns Are Held In County

Two canning demonstrations were held in Chilton County last week under direction of Miss Lavada Curtis, home demonstration agent of Dale County, working through the agricultural extension service of Auburn.

The first demonstration was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. S. P. Shaw, at Jemison. There were 17 housewives present and taking part in the work. Eight varieties of vegetables were canned, using the steam pressure cooker and open bath for processing. Also demonstration of canning in tins, using open top sanitary cans and Burpee copper for sealing.

The range of varieties of vegetables canned included okra, peas, string beans, butter beans, tomatoes, corn, squash, and soup mixture. Food preservation bulletins were given to each woman attending the demonstration.

The second demonstration was held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Abbott, at Pletcher, Friday, with 16 housewives in attendance. The same outline of work was done as at the demonstration on Thursday. With Miss Curtis at Pletcher was Miss Leila Belle Smith, who will teach an opportunity school at Pletcher, this summer. Miss Smith assisted in the work of enlisting the women of the community in the canning demonstration.

The young people's organizations meet at 7:15 P.M.

Anybody can go to church when the weather is just right and when there are no hinderances, but it take a real member to be faithful and loyal when every thing seems to be out of joint. Anybody can stay at home on Sunday, but it takes folks with sure enough will power to attend church when there is a blazing sun and a blistering heat coming down. Be a real church member and be in your place next Sunday.

MRS. EMMA VANCE DIED LAST FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Mrs. Emma Jane Vance passed away Friday afternoon at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Patterson, in the Mt. Nebo community. Mrs. Vance was in her 73rd year and had been a constant sufferer for more than twelve months.

For many years she has been a devout Christian and was affiliated with the Friendship Baptist church. The funeral was conducted at this church Sunday morning by her pastor, Rev. Holland, being assisted by Rev. Homer Carroll. At the hour of ten Sunday morning a great crowd gathered to pay homage to her long life of Christian endeavor and church fidelity. She sleeps in the silence of the sod, but her works do follow her.

She is survived by her husband, P.A. Vance, two sons, W. B. and G. E. Vance, six daughters, Mrs. Fannie Patterson, Mrs. R. J. Jones, Beula Bean, Allie Gandy, Nora Headley. Mary Henley. and 21 grand children. Interment took place in the Liberty Hill cemetery with Spigener in charge.

Intimate Glimpses Behind gay Society Scenes

Intimate, behind the scenes, glimpses of New York and Paris society at play are given in "Lady With a Past," the new Constance Bennett starring picture coming Wednesday and Thursday July 20 and 21, to the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton.

The blonde star plays a member of New York's fashionable younger set in this RKO Pathe production and the action pictured includes exclusive affairs in the homes of blue-blooded millionaires, gay gatherings in the famous cafes of Paris and a brilliant party in a nobleman's chateau on the Rivera. Intrigues and artifices which spice the ceaseless struggles for popularity and precedence in social circles are also exposed.

David Manners and Ben Lyon play the masculine leads opposite Miss Bennett with Merna Kennedy, Albert Conti, Don Alvarado and Astrid Allwyn being others among the supporting cast. Edward H. Griffith directed. The screen play is Harriet Henry's popular new novel, "Lady With a Past."

A meeting that has been widely attended started at the Verbena Baptist church on last Thursday night and ran through the first part of this week. The preaching was done by Dr. J. R. Sampey, president of the Baptist Seminary at Louisville, Ky. Dr. Sampey is one of the outstanding preachers of the South and his visit to Verbena where his daughter resides. proved to be a rare treat to the people of that community.

Everything Is Ready For County Picnic

LARGEST CROWD IN MANY YEARS EXPECTED HERE

Everyone Urged To Come To Picnic; Program Shows Big Time For All

"We are all ready for all the people in Chilton county to attend the big county-wide picnic, tomorrow (Friday)" said County Agent Stapp, last Tuesday.

The picnic for everybody in Chilton county apparently is the talk of the county now, and is to be held just south of Clanton in the Popwell grove, where there is plenty of shade.

There will be sandwiches and drinks sold for the convenience of those who will not bring their picnic lunch, and the program shows that a big time is in store for everyone, at no cost. This truly is a real old-time, county-wide picnic, where everybody is invited.

There will be contests and games of many kinds. Look over the program below and get in on this.

9:30 Community singing.

9:45 Largest family contest (all in attendance) Prize: $2.50 gold piece to head of family.

10:00 Address Dr. Thomas, Birmingham.

10:30 Contest, couple married longest (both in attendance); newest "newlyweds" (in attendance).

10:40 Address, L. N. Duncan, Auburn.

11:10 Clothing demonstrations and sack dress parade. (This will be put on largely by women and girls from counties where there are home demonstration agents and will be conducted by Miss Ruth Dobyne, Auburn).

11:25 Nail driving contest.

11:35 Community singing.

11:45 Address, Julian Brown, Auburn. (Subject: Gardens and Living at Home)

12:05 Picnic Lunch (spread by families.)

12:45 Fiddlers convention.

1:45 Address, Cong. W. B. Oliver.

2:15 Fiddlers, elimination by judges.

2:30 Address, J. C. Lowery, Auburn.

2:55 Two numbers by winning fiddler.

3:00 Adjourn.

Feature Of Special Interest To Women

The News received a special communication from Auburn Tuesday morning stating that there would be 20 home demonstration club women present at the county-wide picnic Friday.

These women are coming from Shelby and Coosa counties. They will present a revue of dresses made from feed and fertilizer sacks. This revue will be in charge of Miss Mignon Mallette, Coosa county home demonstration agent, and Miss Jessie Mae Carroll of Shelby county.

A thrift exhibit of articles made from sacks will be on display in charge of Miss Meta Grace, Tallapoosa county home demonstration agent. These exhibits will be made up of articles made by home demonstration club women in Shelby, Coosa, Tallapoosa, Talladega, Elmore, Pike, Dale and Houston counties. Miss Ruth Dobyne, district home demonsration agent, will have a part in this program. This is to be a feature of the picnic Friday, of unusual interest to women.

DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. SAM PAUL MIMS DIED

Delene Mims, age 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paul Mims, of the Walnut Creek community, died at the hospital in Clanton last Sunday morning. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Walnut Creek, conducted by the Rev. J. S. Lynch, who was assisted by the Rev. Lockhart. Martin & Sons of Clanton were in charge.

CHURCH OF CHRIST CLOSES SUCCESSFUL MEETINGS

A series of successful meetings have recently closed at the Church of Christ in Clanton. These meetings were well attended and did some fine work in this county.

Mr. O. C. Dobbs of Fayette, Ala., conducted the series.

MISS IMOGENE SIMMS AND J. P. LAWRENCE, JR., WED

Coming as a surprise to their many friends, Miss Imogene Simms became the bride of John Ponder Lawrence, Jr., last Friday night, July 15th, in Columbiana, with Judge Cage Head performing the ceremony.

Only a few intimate friends were present. Mrs. Lawrence is the daughter of the late H. T. Simms of Clanton, and is one of the popular members of the young set of Clanton. Mr. Lawrence is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lawrence, Sr., of Clanton, a graduate of the local high school and popular among the social set of Clanton. They will make their home in Clanton.

MR. AND MRS. LANDE VISIT MARKETS IN ST. LOUIS

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lande, of The Leader Store, of Clanton left Sunday for St. Louis, and other points. While there they will visit several markets in the interest of new goods for their store here.

GROUP VISITS THE SPLENDID PASTURE OWNED BY H.S. SHAW

A group of eighteen men, headed by County Agent Stapp, drove out to the farm and pastures of H. S. Shaw, located near the Coosa river, recently, to view some splendid work on pasture development as done by Mr. Shaw.

Mr. Shaw, prominent farmer and resident of Clanton, has used some apparently worthless land, and developed it into a fine pasture. He followed recommendations as set out in a bulletin published by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The group viewing this land were shown by County Agent Stapp and Mr. Shaw what could be done with apparently waste land.

Chilton Teachers Are Mailed Salary Checks

There were many persons in Chilton county with smiles in the past few days, and these were school teachers. The smiles were the result of approximately $10,000 in checks mailed to county teachers in back salaries. This paid the teachers for the past month of January.

Some received their checks Saturday while others received theirs through the mail the first of this week, according to B. Lawrence, superintendent of education.

DISAPPROVAL IS SHOWN AT MEETING HERE

Resolutions Adopted By The Tax Payers Against Paving Project

At the meeting of taxpayers of Chilton county, held at the courthouse Saturday afternoon, strong opposition was shown the proposed project of paving a few miles of the Lay Dam road, as ordered by the Commissioners Court of Chilton county recently.

The meeting was held, following a petition published last week and signed by several citizens of the county. A large crowd attended, made up mostly of men, and standing room was at a premium.

J. Z. Mims was selected as chairman of the meeting and the purpose of the meeting was explained. It was clearly stated at the beginning that the meeting was being held for the purpose of determining the approval or disapproval of the taxpayers on the county spending several thousands of dollars to pave a few miles of the road leading to Lay Dam.

4-H Club Debate On Saturday Night, 23

On next Saturday night, July 23, the 4-H clubs of Concord and Verbena will enter into a debate that promises to be interesting, instructive and amusing.

The debate will be held in Clanton at the courthouse, beginning at eight o'clock. The question will be "Resolved That The Farmers of Chilton County Should Follow a Live-at-Home Program Instead of Depending on Cash Crops to Buy Living Necessities."

The question itself shows the debate will be interesting. The Concord club will take the affirmative side, with Verbena on the negative. Three judges will be selected, two by the clubs and one by County Agent Stapp. The public is cordially invited to hear this debate. There will be no charge for admission.

ALABAMA EDITORS TO MEET IN MONTGOMERY THIS WEEK

Newspapermen, members of the Alabama Press Association, will gather in Montgomery. Thursday and Friday of this week for their annual meeting of fun and business.

This meeting has heretofore been held in Auburn for the past three years, and Montgomery promises the keys to the city to the newspapermen and women this week.

Log Cabin Beach Picnic On July 31

Announcement has been made that on Sunday, July 31st, there will be a picnic at Log Cabin Beach, on the Coosa River, on the Rockford-Clanton road. Everybody is invited to come and spend the day, bringing a well-filled basket.

There will be music, speaking and other entertainments, it was stated. People from Coosa and Chilton counties are especially invited. Swimming and boating can also be enjoyed. Remember the date, Sunday, July 31st, and everybody is invited.

THOSE NEEDING WORK WILL BE LISTED HERE

Commissioners To Meet Here Saturday To Register Road Employes

According to information from the office of the Judge of Probate, the Commissioners Court of Chilton County will meet on Saturday afternoon of this week, at two o'clock in the auditorium of the courthouse.

The purpose of this meeting, it was stated, is to register all those residents of Chilton County who are in need of work. This is being done prior to the starting of work on the proposed paving of a few miles of the Lay Dam road.

Anyone who wishes, may come to the courthouse Saturday afternoon at the hour stated, and register, giving information in regard to his family, number of persons dependent and present condition, according to the announcement.

This list, when prepared, will be studied by the court, it was stated, and those needing work most, will probably be selected to work on this paving project.

Log Rollers To Meet In Thorsby July 28

Plans are being formulated now for the big meeting of the Central Alabama Log Rolling Association, Woodmen of the World, to be held in Thorsby next Thursday, July 28th.

The program begins at three o'clock in the afternoon, with a band concert by the Thorsby Band. The meeting will be called to order by J. N. Cochran, former head consul. The program includes addresses by Judge Leon McCord, of Montgomery, and Hon. J. B. Atkinson, of Clanton, both of whom are widely known over the state.

There will be a singing program in the afternoon and refreshments will be served by the W. M. U. ladies. The night session begins at eight o'clock and will be in charge of Col. L. A. Ellington. The night session is for members only, and the public is invited to attend the afternoon session.

DR. KNAPP WILL TAKE OVER NEW DUTIES IN FALL

Alabama School Is Lauded By Leader In Making His Decision Known

Auburn, Ala., July 18.—Dr. Bradford Knapp Monday resigned as president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute to accept the presidency of Texas Technological College, Lubbock, Tex. The resignation is effective Sept. 1.

Dr. Knapp, who was elected president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute four years ago, announced his resignation from the Alabama post and the acceptance of the Texas post simultaneously.

In his formal resignation, Dr. Knapp said he was very reluctant to sever his relations with Alabama Polyterhnic Institute, and that the institution was high in his regard, but that the offer from Texas was attractive and backed by the urging of many friends in that state.

SONGS, MUSIC DEDICATED TO THIS COUNTY

Protective Life Co. Gives This County Fine Salute On Monday Night

A special salute to Chilton County was given over Station WAPI, Birmingham, last Monday night, by the Protective Life Insurance Company

The program, thirty minutes in duration, began at nine-thirty, opening with the song, "Alabama, Alabama." Several musical numbers were given and a splendid quartette of the station's staff, rendered several numbers.

Following is the program as given over the air Monday night.

Music: "Alabama, Alabama"

1. A salute by the Protective Life Insurance Company to Chilton County, in Alabama!

Here is a thirty minute program of quartette music dedicated to one of the counties in the heart of Alabama, deep in the South, the home of hydro-electric power.

The Protective Life Insurance Company sends greetings to its friends and policyholders in Clanton, Thorsby, Verbena, Maplesville, Jemison, Collins Chapel, and throughout the county.

A sweet carol of hope will be heard first.

Music: "Carol of Hope"

2. The mighty Coosa flows by Chilton County and its energies are conserved at Mitchell and Lay Dams for thousands of farms throughout the

Pilot Club Furnishes Fine Hospital Room

Truly an asset to a town and to the Central Alabama Hospital, in Clanton, is the room there that has been furnished and decorated by the Pilot Club of Clanton.

The room is on the second floor, and has been repainted, attractive curtains and shades provided. Furnished with nice articles, such as dresser, tables, flower vases and flowers, smoking set, water set and other items, with a color scheme of green being carried out.

There is also a good supply of nice linen for the room, furnished by the club. This includes sheets, pillow cases, and other such items. The Pilot Club is certainly to be commended on this act. The room is to be used as usual, and at any time, just as any room in the hospital is being used.

EUNICE CHISM IS NOW A REGISTERED PHARMACIST

Word was received in Clanton this week to the effect that Mr. Eunice Chism had passed the state examination and is now a full-fledged registered pharmacist.

Mr. Chism, more intimately known in this county and elsewhere as "Sunshine" is connected with the Upchurch Drug Company, and has been for several years. He will continue his work at this popular drug store in Clanton, and is receiving congratulations from his many friends on his recent accomplishment.

For two weeks a crew of 14 men have been engaged in building a steel bridge across the creek on the old Thorsby highway just outside of the city limits. Will DeShazo of Isabella has been engaged by the county to construct this badly needed bridge and he reports that the job will be completed on July the 21st. It is understood that the bridge has a steel span of about 90 feet, and that when complete it will cost around $800.00.

Bessie's Books

"Bessie, you're not wasting time on that kind of reading are you?"

"Why, Sister, this is such an interesting book! I just love to read it. I don't see why you should call it wasting time to read such a darling book as this one," replied Bessie.

"'Darling book!' Oh, my little sister, can you call such a book 'darling'?" Big sister Nell put her arm around Bessie's shoulders as they sat in the swing. "Bessie, does Father know what books you read?" Nell asked.

"Oh, no. He never notices. He's so busy he never has time to read with me, but I think he would like this book, it has so much excitement in it. I like books like that. Last winter I'd get so scared while I'd be reading books like this that I would be afraid to go to sleep," said Bessie.

"Listen, Bessie, I want to tell you something: Father worries because you make such poor grades. He mentioned it in his letters several times. Your grades were not as good last year as before were they?"

"Why, Sis, my grades were as good as any of the girls'," replied Bessie with a shrug.

"But were they good? Were the teachers satisfied with them?" asked Nell.

"Of course not. They can't be satisfied. They fussed because we didn't have perfect lessons and make perfect grades. They even caused all our fathers to scold us, but we had our books and magazines to enjoy. We'd exchange when we had read all of what we had." Bessie said.

"Do you have other books here?" asked Nell.

"Oh, yes," replied Bessie, "and I know you'll like to read some of them. They are not all so exciting as this one. Some of them are about rich girls and the good times they had and the pretty jewelry and expensive clothes they wear. It just makes you want to be rich to read those books.

"Let's go up to your room and see your books," suggested Nell.

Nell went to Bessie's room, with a heavy heart. What could she do? Must she give up the last two years of college to stay at home with Bessie? She knew that she would if it was best for Bessie, but how she hoped that it would not be necessary.

"Look, Nell, here are my magazines and books. They have bright, pretty covers and such exciting stories."

Nell looked over the books and magazines, reading a little in each one. Bessie tried to tell something attractive about each one. She knew that Nell was displeased, but she hoped to win her over.

Nell laid down the books and drew Bessie down on the window seat beside her and put her arm around her.
